Chartered banks, brought into the mortgage lending business for the first time last March, will be the main lending agencies for the loans. Regulations to be announced later also will allow approved instalment credit agencies to make loans.

Loans made by the banks and other lending institutions will get limited government guarantee by the government's Central Mortgage Housing Corporation.

Borrowers will have to bear the cost of CMHC loan insurance. But it will be only one per cent of the value of the loan, instead of the two per cent charged on NHA mortgage lendings.

To make certain that the improvement job will require the requested loan, CMHC will screen the applications, informing banks whether the amount requested seems reasonable for the job planned.

Losses in individual stocks ran to around 75 cents in issues like Bank of Nova Scotia, Canadian Investment Mortgage and Ford A. Goodyear countered with a sharp climb to 36 and Canada Cement climbed 32.

Lower-priced mines were active and strong in morning trade, pushing the index to as much as seven minutes behind floor sales, but many of the mines later eased from their high.

DEAD, BUT WON'T LIE DOWN

Five-year-old John Gilcrease is wide-eyed with wonder as he looks at a chicken that lost its head, but refused to die. John's mother, Mrs. W. T. Gilcrease, said the bird was one of three that lost their heads preparatory to being the table feature of the Gilcreases' New Year's day dinner. The other two birds did as they were chickens do and went to pot. But not this bird; it was still living five days after . . . hopping around like a chicken with its head cut off, which is exactly what it is.—Central Press Canadian.

Sheppard Attends Mother's Funeral, Father Very Ill

Sheppard wept Monday during the funeral service for his mother, Mrs. Ethel Miles Sheppard, 64, who died yesterday after a fall or fainting a revolver bullet into her head.

WEPT AT BIER

He wept again when he stood with his two brothers beside the casket for a last farewell as it was closed. Their mother's suicide, the brothers say, grew out of despondency that followed Sheppard's sentence—three weeks ago today —to life imprisonment for the July 4 murder of his wife, Marilyn.

A crowd of about 2,000 curious persons had gathered outside the funeral home in suburban Bay-wood when Sheppard arrived in a hearse, then travelled to Riverside A. Uccello, chief jailer. A rope hanging from the hearse helped free the unlivetd at a distance.

After he hurried inside, an overflow crowd filled the sidewalks. Sheppard had time for a brief talk with his father, other relatives and friends at the private service before the sermon began.

FATHER WEAK

In that talk Sheppard asked about his father, Dr. Richard A. Sheppard, in hospital with an ailment described as "serious."

Richard N. Sheppard, oldest of the three osteopath brothers, told his father he loved him, that he "extremely weak" and "we're very concerned about him." We hope he makes it."

Later Stephen Sheppard asked the jailer if his brother could visit his father at the hospital. He was permitted without an additional court order.

SAYS FOUR SHIPWRECKS ENOUGH

When his ship, the coastal freighter Student Prince, sank off the Bermuda coast last week, it was the fourth time that Captain Harry Thomasen lost a ship in the Atlantic. Four times, he thinks, is enough and now, at 54, he thinks he will end his 45-year sailing career and retire to his home in Newfoundland. He made world headlines when the Student Prince, battered by a strong wind, sank two hours after the crew were rescued by the Queen of Bermuda. During World War I his ship was sunk by a German submarine. In 1926 a storm sank his two-masted schooner. And, on another occasion, a rudder broke on his ship, battering a hole in the stern that was impossible to repair. So, looking back on his narrow escapes with the ocean, Capt. Thomasen, shown with two of his grandchildren, thinks he will retire before he tempts fate once too often.—Central Press Canadian.

Canadians No Longer Have Choice Of Govts. Says History Professor

KINGSTON (CP)—Prof. Frank Underhill of the department of history, University of Toronto, said Monday Canadians no longer have a choice between possible alternative governments.

He said the breakdown of the two-party system in Canada has made it no longer possible to have general elections in which the voter is presented with a real choice "because there is no party except the Liberals which is capable of forming a government."

"Mackenzie King (late Liberal prime minister) destroyed the possibility of a real Opposition, capable of taking over the responsibilities of office, by kindness to the various radical groups which sprang up during the depression," Prof. Underhill said.

Prof. Underhill's report here was received successful in England because other major parties have been able to present to the electorate its particular solution for the public problems.

"By some instinctive subconscious mental process, the Canadian people have apparently decided that, since freedom depends on the balance of power, they will balance the monopolistic power of the Liberal government at Ottawa by setting up effective countervailing powers in the provincial capitals."

Prof. Underhill said Canada has committed herself to a mass democracy which will not work unless the masses of the electorate can be stirred to some continuous interest in the problems of government.

"The two chief instruments for mediating between the government and the citizen are the press and the party system but it seems fairly evident to me that neither of these is performing its functions very satisfactorily.

"As a lay observer, I cannot see that our Canadian press in my lifetime has gone through anything like the advance in professionalization which has transformed (for instance) our federal civil service.

"... our political democracy is in danger unless we can rely upon some part of our press setting itself seriously to the task of reporting to us the unseen environment so that we can make reasonably intelligent judgments about it."

Millionaire Will Fight Lien Of $10,000,000

VANCOUVER. (CP)—George W. Morgan, Vancouver millionaire, Monday announced he will fight a $10,000,000 lien filed against him by the United States revenue department.

The lien was filed Friday in San Francisco. Morgan is one of three Vancouver directors of United Distillers of Canada Ltd., indicted last week by a federal jury in New York last May on charges involving evasion of $17,-000,000 in income taxes.

"The allegations against me are false," Mr. Morgan said in a prepared statement released to the press.

"I have not received a dollar of income from any source on which taxes have not been paid. The extravagant amount claimed by the U.S. Internal revenue department itself proves its absurdity. . . .

MUST HAVE ROOTS

"It is a well known fact that you cannot lay on a (recreation) program from the top. There must be some basis and roots in the community," he said.

The recreation program is set up by a recreation director and council, which appoints a seven-man recreation and park committee and five persons-at-large.

There are now 188 organized programs of municipal recreation in Ontario, all of which receive grants from the province. Each has its commission and a full-time professional recreation director while consultant services are provided by the province's community programs branch.

SHORT FLOTTED

A recreation program should be plotted on: (1) budget; (3) facilities and (3) leadership, if the program is applied on this basis it will be well organized, conservation, supervision, evaluation and and action" . . . you are bound to have a good program," he said.

If it is to be recreational it must appeal to the individual who will take part in it either in groups or alone. He must offer "some challenge" so that the participant will have some sense of achievement after participating in the "projects.

In small districts a program may be breaking down. This is due to a lack of knowledge of the services being offered.

NOT ENOUGH INFORMATION

Mr. Weir said there is an insufficient flow of communication between the recreation commission and the people.

Another failing of some programs is that they are "canned" plaid on certain aspects of the program. It might be a very strong point in one area but in the social and physical aspects being lightly treated. A knowledge of opportunities of recreational services are not being offered to the community.

"Recreation costs money. It is high on the list of government no longer," Mr. Weir said.

Well organized recreation can make the community a better place in which to live.

SHE TALKED THEIR TEETH OUT

A teacher of formidable prowess has retired after 40 years in one community with one of the most unusual records in the history of education.

Mrs. Margie B. Aust, of Scobba, Mississippi, has won wide local renown as "the painless tooth-puller." In 40 years she made almost 1,600 extractions.

Her's is a string around the tooth, start telling a story and when the child begins to get interested, I pull," she told in describing her "painless" tooth-pulling technique.

Oratory have each spells over audiences from the dawn of time. Listeners have been converted to another religion, taken up arms, wept, cried, laughed, and even decided to get married, when silver-tongued orators struck the right note on their heart strings. But Mrs. Aust is the first of the powerful speakers to so entrance her listener that he or she falls into a deep sleep while his teeth are pulled with such ease that she is known as a "painless tooth-puller."

Cynics may note with some shyness that this fascinating ability is a woman but we have no wish to cross words with this lady in debate. We only hope, with her active teaching career at an end, that her retirement is not long for enterprising television sponsors seeking a convincing announcer.

ROUGH ROAD TO A PAY ENVELOPE

"Office Magazine" gives tips on hiring executives.

Just take the applicant out for a ride, telling him to do the driving.

"You can learn a lot about a man's personality by observing it behind the wheel of an automobile," says 'Office Magazine."

It proceeds to explain.

"Has he a road hog? Does he lay claim to the inside lane? If so, he is probably the kind who likes to avoid responsibility."

Obviously unsuitable executive material.

"Does he hug the middle lane, following the crowd?"

Again, most unsuitable for a post demanding leadership.

"Or it he an outside lane hog? Drivers in this category are either in an inexcusable hurry or are 'do-gooders' who feel it their personal responsibility to limit all traffic to the slow speed they maintain.

Nobody would select men of either of these types to head up an organization.

Apart from this the would-be executive runs out of lanes in which to drive. There is only one possible conclusion. To qualify as an executive a man must be a high flyer.

NEW OPPORTUNITY

Northern Ontario continues to be the land of unrivalled opportunity.

Trappers, fur traders, prospectors, miners, lumbermen, farmers, businessmen and prospectors again, in successive waves, have found varying degrees of fame and fortune in the rugged north. New opportunities arise daily.

The latest career possibility is recorded in the classified advertising section of the Timmins Press. Like many another call to adventure this one is aimed at a young man. This young man desires to appear before the public. No family ties. Must love animals. To learn exciting profession of lion taming. Phone 85 for appointment."

Where, but in northern Ontario, could one find fame as a lion famer simply by phoning 85 for an appointment?

In northern Ontario, where men are rugged that none have ever tried making $100 reward for proof "of having been et by a wolf" the chances of finding a fearless and durable candidate for lion tamer seem excellent.

ILLEGAL PARKING

If Joseph Atkinson's ghost and Senator Rupert Davies' body are both in the state of extreme shock, you can blame it on Eamon Park, president of the Ontario section of the CCF party.

Mr. Park says that there has been a split in the government of Queen's Park, that newspaper men on that beat know the whole story but were unable to tell all of it "because editorial desks have been fearful to offend publishers party political policies for the 'duty government.'"

To discover that they prefer the Tories will be a sad surprise to the publishers of the Toronto Star, Kingston Whig-Standard, Brockville Recorder and Times and Ottawa Citizen, to name only a few of the newspapers in Ontario which have always been suspected of having a little Grit in their make-up.

SO THE WORLD IS SLOWING DOWN

Swiss watchmakers, the world's finest, tell us that the world is slowing down. The Canadian office of the Watchmakers of Switzerland announces the discovery of our world's hesitancy as result of time tests at the Neuchatel Observatory. "Man, invention, organization, and history are moving at slacker rate than ever before," it says, as recorded by three-tenths of a second, proving that there's no place like home—no place so sensible and reassuring. PAST AND PRESENT

The present soon becomes the past,
But long what now is best will last,
Since men will find a better

The books are filled with tales of men
Who rose to greatness long ago
They were their age's wisest men,
But there was much they

Each age has limits of its own,
Which may be widened by the known,
And text books old give way to new.

Men die and leave their facts behind,
But always following are those Who will more truth by searching find,
Which at the present no one knows,

Asked for Asp For Stage Role

(Brantford Expositor)

Those who say that the English have no sense of humor must be sadly lacking in that quality themselves. Those who hold that the French are frivolous is a somewhat journal exclusively for Tories and highbrows had better start reading that excellent newspaper.

Take this case, for example. In the personal column of the Times recently appeared an appeal from Geoffrey Bond, undergraduate of St. John's College, Oxford, who is going to produce Dryden's "All for Love," for his college.

In this work, Jane Reeve of St. Hilda's College, playing the part of Cleopatra, has to commit suicide, learning of Mark Anthony's death, by applyink an asp to her arm. So Mr. Long advertised for "an asp, quick or dead, for a supporting role in Dryden's 'All for Love'."

The London Zoo came through nobly. "The Zoo," Mr. Long is able to report, "has two asps, both are small and venomous, but it was pointed out that they had little sense of theatre, as they only wriggled occasionally. They could let us have a dead asp in brine, but they are sending us an ordinary grass snake which is more lively and less scurry."

Where, except in England, would anyone make such an appeal? Where, except in England, would a zoo respond to it? And where, except in England, would the Times thus publicise the affair?

What's more, we'll wager this publicity helps to pack 'em in when Mr. Long puts on Dryden's piece.

Railway Rates Issue

(Edmonton Journal)

What may be one of the big political battles of the next decade in Canada was foreshadowed in a statement made in Ottawa by Hugh O'Donnell, counsel for the Canadian National Railways. He announced that the C.N.R. intends to conduct a campaign to free Canadian railways from federal regulation in anything that is not the competitive rate field. This is certain to arouse fierce opposition from the farmers, many business groups, and the governments of the Prairie and Maritime provinces.

The argument for limiting the jurisdiction of the Board of Transport Commissioners — which Mr. O'Donnell described as "anachronistic and outworn fetters" is apparently that times have greatly changed since the principle of government control of railway tariffs was adopted and that now the railways no longer enjoy, as they once did, a virtual monopoly of inland transportation. Not instead are subjected to ever-increasing competition from highways, pipelines and planes.

They must be free, it is contended, to meet this competition by adjusting their rates to retain business, by giving shippers "agreed charges" arrangements with shippers — without having to be bound by general tariffs. Only in this freedom, they may not be able to do business. Government regulation is needed, according to this reasoning, only in fields where the railways still have a monopoly: elsewhere highway and airline competition will effectively protect the public from exorbitant charges.

These arguments, it must be admitted, have a certain validity in the transportation business in Canada, in some of its phases at least, but therein lies their superficiliye as any other. There are many industries, and many sections of the country, which no longer need protection in their dealings with the railways. This is particularly true, of course, in the highly industrialized parts of Canada, with their networks of highways, water routes and airlines.

Unfortunately — and this is a point which spokesmen for the companies tend to gloss over — this is not the whole picture. There are still many parts of Canada which do not have good all-weather highways, and airlines and airports are few and far between. These areas are still almost as dependent on the railways as they were before motor trucks and airplanes were invented. Nothing has yet developed, moreover, to shake the railway's virtual monopoly in the long-distance transportation of bulk commodities, such as grain, mineral ores, coal, lumber, building materials and the like.

The great danger in any general loosening of government control over freight rates is that in many companies are given a free hand to adjust their rates in the long-distance, bulk-freight and severe competition, they will try to make up for revenue so lost by charging all the traffic will bear to the industries and the areas where they have a monopoly. That, indeed, has been the experience of the Western provinces with the railways ever since their history. It is essential for the protection of the less fortunately situated sections and industries that the Board of Transport Commissioners should exercise general supervision over all phases of freight rates and that the powers of the present regulations may have to be relaxed to meet new conditions.

Despite all the changes of recent years, railways are still one of essential public utilities, and they cannot escape the public regulation which goes with that status.

Knee Socks For Ladies

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

If women's styles seem a little crazy every so often, they are apparent fashion in New York city is the "pompadour." We refer to the rather peculiar winter garb which is currently becoming a must for all fashionable ladies — either young or old — with their donning of knee socks to combat wintery chills.

For years women have been waging a persistent fight against the cold which makes it possible for them to wear sheer styles in hosiery sur-zero weather — yet run the risk of catching pneumonia or lazy ass or have to be wrapped in a fur coat. If anyone so much as mentions the fact to a fashionable that they wear more serviceable stockings in the interest of warmth or arthritis, they were told that nylons, no matter how sheer, were quite comfortable.

But when women change their minds there is a big way. Now that they have decided that warmer leg garb should be worn, the fashion that is fashionable is perhaps the woolliest and most colorful that has ever been known. Specifically, knee socks, and some even are designed for over the knee, are knit in bright colors — red, green, white, blue, yellow, orange — and in a bewildering variety of patterns in stripes, squares and diamonds, designed for the maximum of warmth!

Persons other than women might wonder why ladies — if they resemble these colorful stockings could be mistaken for — would simple — they wear them with anything and everything. Short fur jackets, long fur coats, camel hair coats, mink stoles — long skirts, short skirts — fancy hats and even colorful knee socks!

Parked His Car On $10 Bill

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

A fellow can never know when his every trivial act of his is going to make history. Maybe it's nothing more than parking his car on the street and forgetting to lock it, but he has wrought for the ages.

Thomas L. Wilmeth, a living example of the above truths, thought nothing of it when he parked his automobile in front of the United States Treasury in Washington one day 40 years ago. While the old buggy was sitting there, some fine snapped a $10 bill on the Bureau of Engraving, with the Wilmeth Ford parked above it. Then the car and the figure was exhumed and put on the $10 bill, where it is found at present. It is also on the back as Mr. Hilton's cravat on the front.

The story came out only a few days ago. A second cousin of Mrs. Wilmeth (Mrs. Wilmeth lives near Philadelphia) works in the classified advertising department of the Memphis Commercial Appeal. And as newspapers say with more insight: "You can't go around being the second cousin of a girl whose car is on a $10 bill without people eventually finding out about it."

Mr. Wilmeth, by no more than scooting up to the curb and cutting off the engine, parked in a niche in history — maybe a small one, but what's to say it isn't one when it's right there back of Alexander Hamilton?

A HALF MILLION DOLLAR JUNKET

Dr. Brady

Aunt Polly cries "statistics" (origin not revealed) to the effect that "colds" cost five billion dollars a year and fifty per cent of all absences from work are caused by the "pesky" malady (pesky being an appropriately facetious word to use in such a place, if you can't make it kicker-shoo). An appeal to industrial leaders to cough up half a million dollars for research on the cause and cure of the common ete, etc, was launched on the basis of these statistics, says Aunt Polly—still without dividing any particulars.

Ever since Tony was a pup — well, then, since such statements became deductible items, research expeditions have been setting out with more or less acclaim about the great economic advantages that will accrue from discovery of the cause and cure of the elusive "common cold."

No physician or other authority has defined "common cold" so that any other physician can understand what he's talking about.

That's the way the old timers like it — Indefinite.

A notable feature of nearly all the "drives", "greatest investigations," or organized studies undertaken to find the cause and cure of a hypothetical disease is that the newspaper publicity accorded the launching is the last we hear of the expedition.

An outstanding exception to the rule was the three year investigation recently concluded in England. Seven experienced volunteers the British investigators concluded that exposure to cold and wet had no influence on the individual's susceptibility to or immunity to respiratory infection.

So what? Who in America cares what British investigators find, and vice versa? Why spoil such a fine sport as hunting for the cause and cure of a purely hypothetical ailment?

One correspondent who sent me Aunt Polly's story commented: What a wonderful thing it you could be granted this half-million to put on a drive in your own community next year?

Yahbut the bigshots, the trial lawyers and medical men in their customers that Brady is a quack — avowedly so — and the average person might approve but would be afraid to say so.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

CHILDREN OF LIGHT

"While ye have the light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light" (John 12:36).

We may not have the light some day—that is, the light of free, untrammeled religion. If communism gets its way, we shall certainly not have it. Our foes are not to conceal, is reported to have asked the question, "When the Son of Man comes, shall he find faith on the earth?"

Sometimes we wonder how the Church continues to exist. Although both the United States and Canada were settled in the beginning by religious people bent on implanting their ideals and perpetuating them, nevertheless there is a strange, unreasoned dislike of religious on the part of many people. In Canada and the United States, we have not even ruins.

Nor have we for our children to see, such as men in communist, what France has with her, in spring, summer, autumn, winter; those cemeteries of magnificent, inescapable landscape of the deepest reality of war.

Puritans To Blame

(Consiel Bluff Nation (Paris))

Time was when English men and women greeted each other by kissing, which was the only form of greeting, or saying "Pleased to meet you."

That rule held for people who were presented to each other at a party and during visits, when ladies were held to kiss all the men of the house, beginning with the hostess and winding up with the maid, and was followed in return by them. When travelling, the English gentleman was embraced by the innkeeper's wife, by her daughters and by the chambermaid at the inn.

But alas!—one day the Puritans condemned this custom for ever.

Mushroom Plant Placed Fifty Feet Underground

MARVELLOUS MAL TOURS ARTICLE

LEVIS, Que. (CP)—The Levis Mushroom Company has its factory 50 feet underground, in the dank cellars of a ruined hotel.

J. W. Ebeler, 43, and Roger Bernier, 42, who came to Canada from Switzerland six years ago, formed the company after a visit in 1950. The years-old Levis fort built by the British on the south shore of the St. Lawrence opposite Quebec.

They noticed that the cellars of the fort were still in good condition. They remembered that mushrooms grow abundantly in the catacombs on the outskirts of Paris and in some mine tunnels.

Ebel, being growers of a spruce City restaurant, they knew there was a good market for fresh mushrooms.

IMPORTED SPORES

Ebeler and Bernier rented 14 cellars from the City of Levis at $21 a year a cellar. Then they imported mushroom spores from Pennsylvania and set up shop.

The mushrooms are planted in banks of shallow, cedar - wood drawers filled with a special earth. Each drawer is 20 feet long and five feet wide and the company has 165 of them planted.

The first crop was sown in January, 1954, and reaped in August. Since then, fresh mushrooms are cut daily. The drawers are re-seeded every four months in rotation as there is always a harvest crop growing.

Now 10 helpers pick the mushrooms and pack them into half-pound boxes for delivery.

Pockets Best Say Fashion Designers

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—Pockets are a girl's best friend, say top-flight fashion designers whose ideas change the look of American women's clothes each season.

They are Adele Simpson and Mollie Parnis, both of whom previewed their spring collections on the opening day of New York's current week of activity in the designing fashion press.

Since both are designers who think first of the women and second of the fashion, it was natural that both should discover the importance of adequate pockets in modern clothes. For the most part high-style fashions have ignored this basic need.

THE POCKET AGE

Both Mrs. Simpson and Miss Parnis, however, are aware of the situation this spring. Both show pockets of all sizes, shapes and descriptions on their new spring fashions. As the diminutive Mrs. Simpson remarked:

"This is an age of pockets. In order to look small, women must feel comfortable and easy in their clothes. They like to have their hands in pockets, they like to have pockets in which to carry small belongings that get in the way the bottom of a handbag. They want and need freedom of clothes for active living—skirts with room for walking or for getting in and out of taxicabs, suits that slim into cocktail or restaurant dresses with the removal of a jacket—and enough pockets to hold their minor accessories."

'Harrow' New Early Variety of Tomato

OTTAWA — A new early tomato variety has been released for 1955 by the Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont., and is called "Harrow." This variety has been under test for the past four years under number 6-1951-7. Growers in the Leamington, Niagara and other districts in Canada and in Massachusetts have found that the variety has given them large early yields of good quality tomatoes, states L. P. Dorrance.

The yields have been as early as or earlier than Bounty. The fruit runs a little smaller than Bounty, but of a size more acceptable to the consumer. The plant is determinate in growth habit and produces a large number of early fruit. Practically all the fruits are cracked, a characteristic which has stood the variety in good stead in the staking tests.

This new variety "Harrow" was compared with fourteen varieties on stakes in 1953 and 1954. In both years it outyielded all other varieties in the test, many of them being recognized staking varieties, from the standpoint of early and total yields. The quality was high and with the freedom from cracking, the fruits were indeed attractive. The fruit size on stakes has been very acceptable.

Melrose

W.M.S. Installs 1955 Officers

MELROSE.—Miss Beatrice McFarlane was hostess for the January meeting of the Melrose Women's Missionary Society. Attendance was ten.

The president, Mrs. Morgan, opened the meeting with words of welcome and a challenge to all to do great things this coming year. Mrs. Demille presided at the piano. Mrs. Morgan conducted the worship service, the theme being "Evangelism, the Church's Business."

Scripture passages were read by Mrs. R. MacFarlane, Mrs. J. Demille, Mrs. D. Scott and Mrs. E. Embury. The comments made on the Scripture readings were that the gospel message is not made simple enough. The message is "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."

Business period was conducted. Thirty-four calls for the year were reported by the Friendship secretary, Mrs. J. English. The Literature secretary, Mrs. J. Milligan said that the members had read 37 books during the year.

Miss McLaren, the treasurer, stated the finances.

Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Reilly.

PROGRAM

In the absence of Mrs. E. Bradley, the president, Miss Hazel Bailey conduced the following program.

Mrs. E. Embury gave a reading "The Angel's Message," and prayer; Miss Bailey read "Rabbi" from "The Living Message."

Mrs. J. Milligan gave the third chapter of the study book on "India," "The Struggle for Men's Minds".

The Christian church must not rest content. There are too many opportunities for the gospel in the world. We are facing dangers of the utmost gravity today. Some European countries have sorely rejected democracy. Today there are many opportunities open to the preaching of the Gospel than at any time in memory. There is no room for the godless suggestion that Communism must win. Europe must realize, that this is an all-out battle for the minds and souls of men."

RELIGION AND THE ARMY

"It is true that the daily life of the average man in the east is permeated by religion. The religious background than is the average westerner. Religion plays a large part in the lives of the people of India. It is the birthplace of several of the world's great religions or faiths as Buddhism, Jainism, Islam, Sikhism, Hinduism. About three-fifth of the population are Hindu, and they are mild-mannered and good-natured people. The population of India is around 361 millions and is increasing at the rate of two millions per year.

"There are about ten millions Christians and the Christian church is estimated to be increasing at the rate of 4 per cent per year. These statistics should leave no room for despair.

SECULARISM

"Probably the greatest danger, which India faces today, is the rise of secularism, chiefly among the young generation of students in college and university. Indian Christians demonstrate their allegiance to Christ in the face of great difficulties. So we share the same loyalty."

Miss Beatrice MacFarlane gave a reading "Bells of the Angels". Miss Bailey led in prayer for the missionary, Miss Houston, in Indore.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

The Rev. L. W. Scott conducted the installation ceremony of the officers. The following are the officers for 1955—president, Mrs. George Morgan; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. S. Demille; secretary, Miss Beatrice MacFarlane; treasurer, Miss Lena Brayman; Mission Band leaders, Mrs. Ken McMechan and Mrs. Newton Demille; Band leaders, Mrs. Jack MacFarlane and Mrs. M. Lasier, Christian Stewardship secretary, Mrs. R. MacFarlane; Christian Citizenship secretary, Mrs. E. Bradley; Temperance Friendship secretary, Mrs. J. English; Literature secretary, Mrs. J. 'Sunshine Town', Musical Comedy Delights Audience

TORONTO (CP) — "Sunshine Town," a gay and thoroughly Canadian musical lampooning against small-town politics Monday night delighted a first-night audience that welcomed its arrival in Toronto.

Mavor Moore's comedy based on Stephen Leacock's "Sunshine Sketches" opened a two-week run at the Royal Alexandra theatre after trial performances in London, Ont. Later it will move to Montreal and Ottawa.

The book and music all were by Moore, who drew freely on Leacock's whimsy about Mariposa, imaginary town in imaginary land. Moore's comedy beset by electoral, temperance and financial problems, and a profusion of arson at the local Anglican church.

"The play's sallies at hitherto sacred cows occasionally seemed to lose its audience gasping, with laughter and applause trailing far behind. But there was no doubt of the accumulated reaction after the final curtain.

IMPORTANT EVENT

Three curtain calls and five minutes of sustained applause followed the performance of a cast chosen by the ensemble, and stage appearances by Moore and choreographers Alan and Blanche Lund.

Critics last anticipated "Sunshine Town's" appearance as an important event in Canadian theatre—the premiere of the country's leading legitimate stage of a native Canadian musical comedy, with every aspect of it the result of Canadian artistry and skill.

Jacquelyn Smith, Vancouver's Theatre Under the Stars played Zena, daughter of Rackville Judge Pepperleigh, "the terror of Missinaba county," and Joe Rutner went through the antics of Dr. Reginald bank-teller suitor.

Lorne Greene, Canadian actor who has achieved stature in London and New York, was the handshaking, kissing member of Parliament, and Robert Goulet of Winnipeg was handsome Lord Tompkins, staging reporter, for the Mariposa Belle packet whose tune the MP called.

Hilton Chain Will Operate Govt. Hotel

ST. THOMAS (CP)—A director of the Ontario Hotel Association said Monday delegates to the convention are shocked to learn that the federal government will, after all, operate the operation of a new, $20,000,000 luxury hotel in Montreal to a Hilton chain.

Isaac Sikhid, London hotelman, criticized the government for spending public funds for the new Queen Elizabeth Hotel and then handing its operation over to Conrad Hilton, U.S. hotel magnate.

The hotel is being built by Canadian National Railways and the Hilton chain will operate it for the railways.

Govt. Wants to Relax Powers Over Export of Gas and Oil

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government wants to relax its powers over the export of gas and oil, a move that could help smooth the way for Canada's two huge natural gas pipeline projects.

The government has asked Parliament to cut down its control over these exports, and federal authorities say the move would facilitate United States acceptance of the $300,000,000 Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., undertaking and Westcoast Transmission Company's $100,000,000 job.

Trans-Canada plans a 2,200-mile line to carry Alberta gas into eastern Canada, with a big volume going into the U.S. en route to improve the line's earning power. Westcoast is building from the Peace river valley through British Columbia, and is dependent on a U.S. market.

The U.S. end of both projects hinges on acceptance by Washington's Federal Power Commission, which last year denied an earlier Westcoast bid partly on the ground that Canadian supplies of gas should be kept at home.

The federal government, which has the power to prohibit or cancel an import licence for gas, oil or electricity, Monday introduced a bill to limit the countries to limit its cancellation powers to cases where a licence refused to remedy a violation of its licence after it had been drawn to its attention.

In the same bill, the government asked Parliament to take away its authority to impose export duties on gas, oil and other fluids. It has never used this power, though it imposes a duty on exported electricity. The electricity duty would be retained.

No Further Investigation Will Be Made of Air Near-Crash

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department has indicated there will be no further investigation of the Moose Jaw air incident of Dec. 23 when a Trans-Canada Airlines North Stars was not a near catastrophe.

Mr. Maxier, reporting Monday in the Commons on an inquiry made by his department after converging flights of a TCA North Star and an RCAF Harvard over Moose Jaw, said the investigation showed negligence.

His report, the first official version of the incident, was in reply to a question from CCF Leader Coldwell.

RULES OBSERVED

The investigation was "completed" by the transport department with pilots of both aircraft and representatives of the RCAF and TCA present. It showed "Air regulations . . . designed for such occurrences" were observed.

Later, a spokesman for Mr. Marler quoted the minister as saying outside the Commons that he "thinks there will be no further investigation of this specific incident."

Meanwhile, a transport department spokesman said probably more than 14 such incidents had come to government attention in the last eight months.

He connected on a Winnipeg report quoting a representative of the Canadian Airline Pilots Association as saying it were reported to the CALPA since Canada's worst civil air disaster over Moose Jaw April 8 last. Thirty-seven persons were killed when a Harvard crashed a westbound North Star in daylight.

SOME SERIOUS

The spokesman said some of the incidents proved trifling but others were serious enough to warrant disciplinary action by the RCAF.

Mr. Marler said information obtained from the latest incident and others will be used to determine whether any further improvements may be required in air safety regulations.

The two aircraft were separated by an altitude of approximately 500 feet as their courses crossed on an angle of 45 degrees This was "not adequate" in the clear, moonlit night in which they met. The Harvard pilot reported the clear moonlit night in which they met. The Harvard pilot reported the carried quotes of the TCA pilot saying "it was very close . . . close enough to scare us, really scare us." reported it as a near-collision.

SAW EACH OTHER

Mr. Marler said the westbound North Star was flying at 6,000 feet, the Harvard at 5,500, with the speedier airliner overtaking the trainer from the left ahead of it.

Both pilots saw each other and both altered course away from the other as a precautionary measure. The avoiding passing over the Harvard, the North Star "complied with the regulations." The TCA pilot "at no time found it necessary to carry out any violent manoeuvre."

Mr. Marler said conditions of visibility were favorable and the authorized preflight plans of the two aircraft and with air regulations.

Honeymoon In Tourist Trade Has Ended

TORONTO (CP)—Travel Minister Cecile of Ontario said Monday night the post-war honeymoon in the tourist business has ended. Vacationers now are bring more carefully where they go.

Despite a slight decline in tourist spending, Mr. Cecile said the Ontario tourist industry "is one of the healthiest and most thriving in the country."

He said figures for the amount spent by the industry last year are not yet complete, but will drop below the 1953 peak.

"The past year saw the opening of more than 300 new establishments and sizable additions to older establishments," he said. "These were represented mainly by the motel, that postwar development which has so readily been accepted by the travelling public."

Canada Among First Countries To Build Economical A-Plant

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has taken another important step in efforts to be among the first countries in the world to build an economical atomic power plant.

Trade Minister Howe Monday told the Commons research now has reached the stage where private companies and publicly owned electric power corporations such as Ontario Hydro will be invited to submit proposals for construction of experimental reactors to produce electricity.

He said six or eight of these companies and corporations have been invited to submit proposals to Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, the crown company which now sites the Chalk River, Ont., atomic energy project.

The conditions call for joint development of an experimental power reactor by the Ontario company and Atomic Energy of Canada.

Mr. Howe said the proposals are expected to be received early in February. It was hoped that after they had been received a joint project could be initiated by Atomic Energy of Canada and the selected company.

A government official later said that the government would be under no obligation to accept any of the bids and could accept one or more. He said the names of the companies being asked to submit proposals are not being identified at present.

Mr. Howe made the announcement after George Hees (PC—Toronto Broadview) referred to U.S. plans for building industry development and operate experimental atomic power plants.

It is expected here that if an experimental power reactor is built it will be located at Chalk River, 125 miles northwest of Ottawa. However, a government official said there has been no definite decision on location or other problems, including division of cost between the government and the private company.

"This new step is of an exploratory nature," he said. "However, we have high hopes that something definite will emerge."

No Prohibition On Importing Of Cheese

OTTAWA (CP)—The government no longer will hold New Zealand to its 1952 undertaking not to import its cheese off the Canadian market.

Trade Minister Howe made the statement Monday in the Commons in reply to a question by Harry C. White P.C.—Middlesex East. Mr White asked if any changes had been made in the agreement permitting the import of New Zealand cheese in view of a Canadian surplus.

"There is no prohibition on the importation of cheese," Mr. Howe said "There is a duty on cheese but New Zealand can import all the cheese into Canada who can do so over the duty."

Mr. Howe's verbal arrangement was made early in 1952 under which New Zealand agreed not to ship cheese to Canada, while Canada was having difficulty with the British market.

(At the time of the arrangement the British were buying Canada's surplus and few market outlets However, the marketing problem now has improved and some cheese is being exported)

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said he wanted it "completely understood" that he was not with the statement made by Mr. Howe.

There have been reports that 2,250,000 pounds of New Zealand cheese now is on its way to Canada. The reported shipments have drawn strong protests from cheese producers)

Child Evangelism Fellowship Holds Teachers' Training Class Meeting

The first meeting of the Teachers' Training class, sponsored by the Child Evangelism Fellowship of the East Central Ontario division was held last evening in the Y.M.C.A. assembly room with approximately 54 present, including representatives from the United, Anglican and Evangelical churches of the city, as well as Mrs. Irene Williams, former director of Eastern Ontario, and Mr. Charles Leach, chairman of the Eastern Ontario division and member of the Provincial Board both of Kingston.

The meeting, which began with a bounteous pot-luck supper, took the form of demonstrating the method of successful teaching of the Word of God to children, adolescents and adults, by means of flannelgraph, and story telling for the children; by discussion, project, question and answer, for the adolescents or teenagers, and by lecture and discussion for the adults.

Mrs. Williams, who acted as narrator for the various slides showing the right and wrong methods of teaching, prefaced her remarks by pointing out the difference between a day school teacher and a Sunday school teacher. The day school teacher imparts knowledge, while the Sunday school teacher introduces the child to a living person, the Lord Jesus Christ.

REQUISITES OF A S.S. TEACHER

The requisites of a Sunday school teacher are: a clean vessel; a prepared instrument; willingness of mind, which God honors; and knowledge of Christ in a personal experience; of the Bible; of yourself and of the child; dedication, a complete surrender of all your faculties for God's use, and then spiritual power by means of the Holy Spirit working through you.

The teacher must know that which he would teach, and the principles of preparation for teaching which includes as study helps, the Bible, the quarterly, Bible dictionary, atlas, and concordance and other helps that assist. Begin to study the previous Sunday, and study the lesson daily; Plan your lesson to suit the age level you teach; select an overall aim; by wise and tactful guidance for the child; for the adults, practical solutions for difficulties from the Word of God; and for the old age provide spiritual comfort to meet their needs. Select specific aims; what the pupil should know; feel; and do, by the presentation of Bible knowledge, by illustrating and applying the facts to the needs where the child wishes to act upon this knowledge and to make use of it.

SOURCES OF HELP

Gather your materials from news clippings or colorful pictures; records or films flannelgraph stories, and object lessons, and by pooling of materials as used in co-operation by the different departments of the Sunday School.

Select your method of presenting the lesson either by story telling; discussion; lecture; project; research or recitation, and suit the method of presenting the lesson to the age level of those whom you seek to teach.

Two flannelgraph lessons were given, one by Mrs. A. Haines on the "Death of Moses," and one by Mrs. E. Mumford, on "The Crossing of the Red Sea," which demonstrated the method used in teaching done in the Good News Clubs.

Mr. Leach spoke briefly outlining the work done by Child Evangelism, and the planting of the Gospel seeds in the minds and hearts of the little ones.

Following the supper, a singsong of Gospel choruses, led by Mr. Dougherty, with Mrs. Williams as pianist, was greatly enjoyed.

The next meeting of Child Evangelism will be held on January 24th at the Y.M.C.A.

Royal Visitors Always Make Things Easy For Others

By PEGGY THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Entertaining royalty presents social problems, but they are eased by the fact that royal visitors always make things easy for others.

Mrs. T. C. A. Hislop, wife of the New Zealand high commissioner to Canada, says this has been her experience.

She was hostess at a reception for Queen Mother Elizabeth at which the royal visitor met other Commonwealth representatives and their wives during her Ottawa visit a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Hislop likes to recall a little incident at the reception by which the Queen Mother set everyone at ease.

RIGHT COLOR

Escorted to a sofa, the Queen Mother picked up a cushion and, showing her pleasure, remarked it was the same shade of maroon as her dress.

"Now wouldn't it have been dreadful if it had been yellow," Her Majesty said.

This was a tribute to Mrs. Hislop's foresight and a reward for the weeks of advance work she put into the reception. Enhanced by this human touch everything went like clockwork.

Mrs. Hislop, a dimlouive, auburn - haired woman, is no stranger to planning parties.

Her husband was mayor of Wellington, capital of New Zealand, for 13 years. She was active in many women's groups there. At this involved considerable entertaining, standing her in good stead for her duties here.

NEED ORGANIZATION

The key to success in entertaining:

"I think that to do anything properly you must have organization."

In the weeks before she was hostess to the Queen Mother, Mrs. Hislop checked with the royal household every detail from the number of guests to the refreshments to be served.

NEW YORK (AP)—The average American woman owns less than four pairs of nylon hose—and they all look alike.

The fault, says president W. F. Williamson of the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers, rests with merchants and manufacturers who have "put the American woman in a "uniform" as far as stockings are concerned.

Women don't buy hose the way they buy hats, shoes or automobiles, Williamson said in a speech prepared for the 46th annual meeting of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Instead, he declared, the average woman waits until her old stockings wear out. Then she'll buy two pairs of exactly the same weight and color as her old ones and she'll use that hosiery the same way too. She'll use it while lounging on the floor, while playing golf. She'll wear those same sylons to the county fair and to the church social and perhaps while pruning the roses."

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

FORMAL INVITATION VS FORMAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Please explain to me how a wedding invitation just to the church should be answered. That is, how should a relative respond? And how should a friend of the family respond?

2. Also please tell me if this is true: That a wedding invitation to the church is only an announcement of the marriage of the couple. —Bewildered.

1. A formal invitation to the church ceremony only . . . the invitation that reads "the honor or of your presence" . . . requires no answer. (If the church wedding is so small that the invitations are personally-written notes, then of course one replied by a personally-written note, of acceptance or regret.)

2. That an invitation to the church ceremony is to be considered an announcement of the marriage is not supposed to be true. . . but actually nowadays this is sometimes the idea. For example, when the wedding is to be a large one, the marriage ceremony to take place in a large church, and with invitations sent to all the relatives and friends on the lists of both families, then it may be considered unnecessary to send announcements also. Another important point of view about this procedure is that since it is really more of a compliment to receive an invitation to the church ceremony than to receive a formal announcement of the marriage, invitations, instead of announcements, are sent.

ACKNOWLEDGING INTRODUCTION OF CLERGYMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I were invited to a single large buffet dinner given by a friend of ours, [illegible] suburb near here, in honor of the Presbyterian clergyman who has very recently come to her church. The hostess, who in my judgment knows what's what, introduced the clergyman as "Mr. Robinson." My husband and I acknowledged the introduction by saying "How do you do, Mr. Robinson." I heard several of the other guests nearby do the same. I did hear a few of them say, "Reverend Robinson." Which form of name was correct?—Alice T.

"How do you do, Mr. Robinson" was the correct form of introduction-acknowledgment, the correct form of name to use. Your hostess gave the proper name-cue when she introduced the clergyman as "Mr. Robinson."

MARKING OF TWIN BEDSPREADS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm about to order twin bedspreads for the bedroom in our new house. The woman in the department store told me that I should use my initials on both bedspreads. But I should think I should have my husband's bedspread marked with his initials. What is proper about this?—Emily D. C.

Household items of this kind are correctly marked with the wife's initials, E D C . . . designed as a monogram if you wish, with the last initials in the centre and much larger than the other two initials. Or, if you prefer, use only one initial, the surname, in a size of proper proportion.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HE WANTS A DIVORCE — SHOULD SHE AGREE?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a wife of 34, and the mother of three children.

My husband insists he loves me yet he swears he'll go out with other women. We have quarrelled over this incessantly, and have even separated three times in the past two years, but we always made up and tried again. It has never worked out, though. Now he has asked me for a divorce.

I love my husband, and I am sure he loves me. I want to make him happy, yet I don't want to lose him. Shall I give in to what seems to me to be a crazy whim of his, or go on living a life of nothing but loneliness and heartache? Is it so wrong for me to want to be wanted?—Mrs. A. N.

Dear Mrs. A. N.: Of course it is not wrong for you to "want to be wanted"; everyone does. But, at the same time, frankly, it certainly does not appear to me that your husband does want you. You say you are sure he loves you, yet he asks you for a divorce so that he can be free to go to some other woman. Does this sound like love?

Since you are so unhappy now, and so lonely, do you honestly think you would be any better off if you were actually divorced? Is it really worth it to you to hang on to a man who seems to want to get away from you? What happiness can there be in that?

If you are only 24, it is perfectly possible for you—even though it would be hard, of course—to find new happiness, either by yourself with your children, or perhaps eventually with another husband. Many women have been faced with this problem and have worked out of it and, in the end, found themselves happier than they ever were before. You can, too, if you have sufficient determination and will power.

TAKE YOUR CUE FROM THIS CHAP'S BEHAVIOR

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a fellow I like very much who never asked me out, although I saw him frequently and we talked on the way for a soda or something like that.

Then one night when I happened to meet him at the store he took my class ring and tried it on. He then gave us his, and said very nonchalantly: "You keep mine, I'll keep yours." I thought he was just kidding, so I went along with the so-called joke, but after waiting a week for something else to happen and hearing nothing, I asked him for my ring and he gave it back rather reluctantly.

Now he practically ignores me, and it's very awkward when I meet him in the halls at school. If I try to say hello or talk to him, he just says hello and walks away. I really don't see much cause to think that he likes me, except that, for awhile, he did seem to, and then he took out, and then there was the ring incident.

I want to know why he ignores me now and I want to be friends with him, at least. I think that there might be something bothering him, but I want to know whatever it may be.

Dear V.O.: I would advise you not to "go about it" at all. It's never a good idea to try to force into anyone's mind, if that person doesn't seem inclined to open up and talk freely and frankly.

Your best plan is to follow this chap's lead and just say hello in a friendly way whenever you meet him and let it go at that. Let him be the first to make a move toward a more friendly relationship, if any is to be made, and keep yourself busy and active with other interests. That will get you farther than trying to figure out a new approach to him.

Unfinished Items From 1954

By Mary Moore

There is some unfinished business that has to be brought to a logical conclusion in this column. I am going to devote today's space to finishing up that business.

In the first place I promised to give you, last Thursday, the remainder of Jane R.'s letter dealing with Oven Menus for Two, and forgot. Jane R.'s closing comments were (this is a continuation of last Wednesday's column):

"You can't do much overnight preparation for the Ham Scallop. Ham, however, I thought it advisable to cool the sauce before pouring it over the ham and potatoes, seeing it had to sit all day in the oven. However it turned out grand.

". . . the foregoing are based on the theory that by browning the meats (except the smoked ham or course) they are partially cooked and can thus sit unrefrigerated all day until the oven turns itself on.

"I also prepared scalloped potatoes and pork chops (browning the chops overnight). They turned out fine—didn't get soggy by sitting in the oven as I thought they might.

". . . I might say I am a pressure cooker fan—and always try to conserve vitamins. Usually but small potatoes I bake in their jackets with the Swiss Steak and Spareribs meals, but it doesn't take long to prepare cook potatoes on arrival from the office. Dinner still gets on the table in better time than if the main meat course were not cooked.—Jane R."

Thanks again, Jane for sharing the results of your painstaking experiments with us. I have made extra copies of Jane R.'s Automatic Oven Menus for Two for anyone who cares to write and enclose stamped envelope.

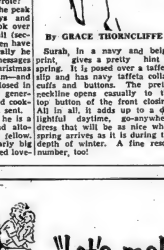
LIMEY THE LIL

I have a message for you, but you don't have your surname to go with the address you sent me. Please send me your surname for mailing purposes.

Now comes the fun part. It is fun but it is a puzzle too. How can I thank you for the lovely things you sent me, and the charming messages you wrote?

Pete was home during the peak of the receiving days and promptly and busily took over the job of opening the mail (secretly I was delighted to even have the flaps slit.) Naturally he would see most of the messages you wrote on your Christmas cards—some including him—and the dainty hankies enclosed in several. He also tested generously the sample cakes and cookies and other goodies you sent.

I tell you this because he is a discriminating tastes, and altogether a very thoughtful fellow. After opening a particularly big batch of mail that contained lovely tributes he said "Mum I guess I just don't appreciate you half enough." To which I replied with alacrity "Exactly what I've been telling you for years—now get up and love love." However, I got a little fed up with all the bowing and scraping that followed—especially when I was handed in and out of the car as if I were 80 instead of a demure little 18.



Thanks everybody for your warm messages and generous gifts. One disadvantage in this kind of work is that I can't meet my reader friends just rarely. However we have a good time this way and as long as the status stays quo (to quote Marianne) I'm content and hope you are. From all accounts you seem to be.

A DAYTIME PRINT DRESS

BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Surah, in a navy and beige print, gives a pretty hint of spring. It is posed over a taffeta slip and has navy taffeta cuffs and buttons. The pretty neckline opens casually to the top button of the front closing. All in all, it adds up to a delightful daytime, go-anywhere dress that will be as nice when spring arrives as it is during the depth of winter. A fine resort number, too!

GATHERS FOLK-LORE

Folk-Lore History of N.S. Gathered by Helen Creighton

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—From the highlands of Cape Breton to the fishing villages of the south shore, Helen Creighton gathers a folk-lore history of Nova Scotia that isn't found in the history books.

She seeks the soul of the province, the joys and sorrows, storms and droughts that afflicted the lives of the people and now are recorded only in song and story.

For 26 years Miss Creighton has poked into the out-of-the-way nooks and crannies where song and story is handed down through the generations.

VANISHING LEGENDS

Her work is a race against time. Radio, and now television, have done much to replace the old songsters and yarn-spinners who once provided the entertainment in the tiny villages.

From her window high on a hill overlooking Halifax harbor Miss Creighton can watch the ocean liners of today slip majestically in and out of port while she listens to recorded voices, steeped in age, tell of the not-too-distant past when barques, schooners and brigantines flitted gracefully across the same water.

But this is only in winter-time. During the summer she travels hundreds of miles around the province, Miss Creighton looks a lot younger than her 51 years. She has had three of her works published and has another book of songs being prepared. In 1932 her first work appeared, "Songs and Ballads of Nova Scotia." Eight years later came "Twelve Folk Songs from Nova Scotia" and in 1950, "Traditional Songs from Nova Scotia."

TAKES SOME COAXING

Last summer she made a trip to New Brunswick and recorded the songs in one week. It's done on a tape recording machine.

The little lady with the ready smile and the easy manner just moves into the kitchen or the workshed with her subjects.

Her oldest singer was a 99-year-old Negro, her youngest an eight-year-old boy who sang in Gaelic.

Miss Creighton, recognized as one of the outstanding authorities on folklore and songs in Canada, joined the National Museum of Canada in 1948 and since then has recorded and re copied 1,479 different songs, in English, French, German, Gaelic, Indian and Negro dialect.

Miss Creighton praises the government for its "foresight" in having the songs gathered and preserved for a time when "we will have only these records to tell of some of Nova Scotia's most colorful past."

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

OILY SKIN: A COMMON BEAUTY PROBLEM

When a girl has a shiny nose that defies the efforts of the powder puff, when her forehead beams and her chin looks as if it were buttered, she is convinced that this state of affairs tops the list of beauty problems.

She is the victim of overactive sebaceous glands. To an extent these glands protect the skin from the effects of exposure to strong sunlight and flaying winds. Like the sweat glands, they help to keep the body from losing heat too rapidly.

From the blood streams they pick up elements that unite and form what is called sebum. This substance is necessary for the health of the hair; without it the shafts would be dry and brittle.

During the teen years these glands are especially active. If their exudations become fairly solid they clog the pores, attract atmospheric dust, and then blackheads form.

Soap should be used freely, especially at bedtime. There should be a rich, thick lather and it should be frictioned into the flesh with the fingers. All the suds must be rinsed away, first with warm water, then with cold. After a drying it is wise to apply a soda solution, a teaspoonful of ordinary baking soda dissolved in a cup of water, applied with cotton balls, and allowed to dry on.

In the morning only a tepid rinsing is necessary. After a gentle drying, apply witch hazel. It will act as an astringent, discourage the exudations of oil and help the pores to contract.

If the skin is chapped and it is necessary to use a soothing cream it should soon be removed with tissues, never allowed to remain on overnight.

Priests, Indians Trappers View "Saint Joan"

MOOSONEE (CP) — Shaw's "Saint Joan" was served up on a make-shift stage to an audience of trappers, priests and Indians while thermometers outside registered a nippy 30 degrees below zero and the northern lights shimmered in the sky.

The first-nighters were brought by snowmobile and dog team last Thursday night to this town on the southern tip of James bay.

Father Leopold Morin flew 00 miles south from Fort Severn to watch the Canadian Players Troupe begin its three-week tour of northern Ontario. He will also visit the mission here.

The stage in the quonset-style public school auditorium was constructed of borrowed lumber destined for a mission far up the Hudson bay shores.

BOY SCREAMS

Indian maids in brightly-beaded attire, youngsters, and some old-timers unable to understand anything but their native Cree, mingled in the audience with the whites who now call Moosonee home.

At one time, when drums rolled backstage, one little boy screamed and an Indian toddler in front took up the rhythm, beating his knees with his hands. Most of the children watched in awe and gradually moved closer and closer to the stage.

Actor-director Douglas Campbell said the audience reaction was "one of the most exhilarating experiences of my career."

"They were wonderful," he said.

Old Cavalry Men To Mount Copters Instead of Horses

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. army is calling on the old cavalry to ride again, mounting helicopters instead of horses, to scout the enemy on battlefields of the atomic age.

Men and machines of the first squadron of the new flying cavalry are being assembled, to go through their training paces at Fort Bragg, N.C., early this spring.

Old-time troopers combined their fading memories of horse cavalry exploits with the atomic warfare tacticians' demands for dispersion and extreme mobility in planning the new unit.

The first squadron will be organized with about 200 men, formed in three troops and a small, mobile headquarters. Their mounts will include 15 or 16 light and elusive two-man helicopters, about eight larger rotary wing craft and a number of light tanks or self-propelled guns.

After the last horse cavalry unit was disbanded in 1944, cavalry disappeared from the United States Army battle order except in the cavalry of the First Cavalry Division, a designation retained for historical and sentimental reasons by that infantry outfit.

Army officers say that neither the infantry nor the armored forces were always too happy about the reconnoitring (scouting) work done by earth-bound tanks in the Second World War. When the rugged terrain of Korea halted the scouting tanks in their tracks the army undertook a serious re-study of old cavalry manuals.

Plea of Self Defence Accepted By Magistrate

SARNIA (CP) —A 45-year-old mother of seven pleaded self defence Monday at the trial on charges of wounding her husband by stabbing him Christmas Day.

Mrs. Norah Rogers of No. 40 highway, blamed the fight on her husband's drinking.

Charles Stuart Rogers spent four days in hospital suffering a four inch-long wound under his left arm inflicted with a paring knife his wife was using to prepare Christmas dinner.

Magistrate J. C. Dunlap dismissed the charge when testimony by an independent witness corroborated the accused woman's story.

ADMITS TO BINGE

Testimony given from Rogers by defence counsel Hugh Garrett showed he had been on a two-month binge financed by $3,200 he received from his mother's estate in November.

Asked how much of the money he had left Rogers replied "$10.90." He testified he had been spending weekends with a "girl friend" in Port Huron.

Mrs. Rogers said that after an argument her husband pulled her to the kitchen floor, kicked her, sat on her, slapped her face until her nose bled, and threatened to kill her with the knife. In the struggle, he was cut.

Producer of Masquerade Party Says Celebrities Good Sports

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Most celebrities are good sports, as good as you'd find anywhere, says producer Herb Wolf of ABC-TV's Masquerade Party.

Wolf, who disguises famous people to try and stump the panel on the Wednesday night show, cites Admiral Richard E. Byrd as an example.

When the admiral agreed to appear he asked what disguise Wolf would like him to wear. Wolf recalls that he thought immediately of a penguin because of Admiral Byrd's Antarctic exploits but hesitated lest the famed explorer think it too undignified.

"But he came up with the suggestion himself," Wolf relates. "He is just as regular a fellow as you'd ever meet."

FOOLED BY EX-MODERATOR

The panelists sometimes miss one that should be easy. For several months Douglas Edwards was moderator but had to give up the spot because of the time required for his newscasting activities. Dore came back a few weeks later masquerading as King Henry VII of England, a panelist who had been with him on the show week after week flubbed completely.

The makeup and costume folks do a pretty good job even there, as when Eva Gabor was disguised as a gypsy lag. Buff Cobb suggested that she kiss fellow panelist Bobby Sherwood to give him an added clue, but Sherwood balked and moderator Peter Donald warned, "You'll be sorry." And Sherwood was, when the glamorous Gabor removed her disguise.

DISGUISE IS CLUE

The disguise always has a connection with both the masquerader and the historical figure he represents.

Senator and Mrs. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee were disguised as President and Mrs. Andrew Jackson, who also came from Tennessee. Senator Henry Jackson of Washington masqueraded as George Washington and Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois as Abraham Lincoln.

If there are celebrities who are stuffy, Wolf says "I've never met one." He says he thinks their willingness to appear on the show is a fondness shared by most Americans for masquerade.

Ever feel a little confused over the color TV situation? Then take a look at these estimates by industry officials for 1955 color set production:

Max Balcolm, board chairman of the Radio-Electronics - Television Manufacturers Association: "a few hundred thousand"; board chairman Don Mitchell of Sylvania: "100,000 to 300,000"; Ross D. Siragusa, President Admiral Corp.: "from 100,000 to 300,000"; Dr. Allen B. Du Mont, president of the network and set manufacturing firms bearing his name: "I don't believe color receiver production will go much over 50,000 units in 1955."

Only about 20,000 color sets have been made so far.

Police Sergeant Reinstated As Chief of Police

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — London township police sergeant Douglas McGuire today was reinstated as police chief by township council.

McGuire decided last week to withdraw an application before the Ontario Supreme Court which sought to nullify township council's findings in a police investigation of the department which began here last fall.

Action today climaxed a series of events that saw McGuire demoted to sergeant after council began its investigation of police affairs. During the investigation two township police constables—Alfred Gillian and J. G. Fuller—also resigned and were later replaced by constables Jack Murray and Howard Harris, from the Stratford city police.

Council today was also expected to consider the status of constable Murray. The officer stated he had received a letter from McGuire asking for his resignation which so far he has refused. Murray is represented by Brian Edwards of Stratford. It is understood Murray's resignation was asked for after he was involved in an accident with a township police cruiser on off-duty time.

Jap Will Stop Importing Ore From Texada

TOKYO (AP) — Kyodo news service reported Monday that Japanese iron and steel manufacturers have decided to halt import of iron ore from Texada, B. C., in the fiscal year beginning next April 1. Texada is 50 miles northwest of Vancouver.

Kyodo said the action would reduce the import of Canadian iron ore to four or five per cent of the total imported by Japan, as compared with the current 40 per cent (about 1,900,000 tons).

Kyodo said Japan would import only 200,000 tons of iron ore from Canada, through Vancouver, in fiscal 1955.

The report could not be confirmed from other sources.

Bad Manners Cause Most Of Accidents

REGINA (CP)—Chief Constable Arthur Cookson says "plain bad manners" cause most accidents.

"It is true that speed, lack of skill, drinking and imprudent driving cause a larger number of fatal deaths, but not nearly as many as bad manners," he said in an address to a service club.

The chief has his own names for drivers who cause accidents.

Heading the list is the "bull" who always has to be first. He's the man who squeezes into an intersection and roars away from it in a burst of speed. Next is the "dawdler," the driver who takes the slow lane and coasts along at 15 miles an hour, oblivious of drivers who want to pass.

BAD PARKING HABITS

The "selfish parker" is the driver who parks his car in front of a fire hydrant, squeezes between cars so that automobiles in front and back of him are unable to get out, and denies other motorists their right to a parking space by hogging metered stalls.

Other drivers who get into trouble are the "social drinker" who does not realize and sometimes doesn't care that his reactions are slowed, and the "yapper," the man who always has to carry on a lively conversation complete with gestures when driving.

Chief Cookson says the "sleepy head" who drives when he is tired creates a definite hazard to pedestrians and traffic. The "timid Willie" and the "nervous Nick" are always in a dither.

Dutch Elm Disease Hits Lindsay Area

LINDSAY.—Land owners in the Lindsay district are being advised by officials of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests that a new tree disease has reached this province to strike at the principal tree of roadside and fence bottom, the white elm.

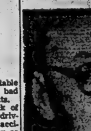
The disease is believed to have originated in Asia and spread across Europe in the 1920's, killing elms in great numbers. In 1930 it was discovered in the United States and in 1944 appeared at Montreal. The disease arrived in shipments of elm veneer logs from Europe. Since then it has spread throughout the St. Lawrence Valley and the eastern United States until, in 1951, it was found near Belleville, Niagara Falls and Weston.

"We can assume that in a few years the disease will cover all areas of Ontario where elm grows," says District Forester W. A. G. Thurston, of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

The Dutch elm disease has been very destructive in northwest Europe, killing up to 70 per cent of the elms but in North America conditions and different varieties of elms may prevent great damage, Mr. Thurston believes. In Connecticut, where the disease has been active for 15 years, about one-quarter of the elms have been infected or killed. Some diseased elms recover. "Forest pathologists do not believe that Ontario elms will be wiped out as were the chestnut during the blight in the United States some years ago. However, as the elm is such an important and prominent shade and ornamental tree, the new disease is regarded with some concern.

SPREAD BY BEETLE

"The Dutch elm disease," says Mr. Thurston, "is a fungus which develops in the wood causing death to the branches. Leaves wilt and turn yellow and the wood becomes discolored. The tree may die in one season. The fungus is spread from tree to tree by the elm bark beetle which carries spores of the fungus on its body.



"It is impossible to identify the disease in the field because of its similarity to other minor diseases. If elms show signs of wilting in summer, the owner should send samples of twigs, wood and bark of the infected parts to the Division of Forest Pathology, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, for identification. All trees known to be infected should be cut down and burned to prevent further loss. Park and shade trees should be kept in good condition with all dead branches removed and burned.

"When the disease was first discovered in Canada, efforts were made to wipe it out but these were abandoned when its extent became known. Now we must accept this imported plague along with the starlings, carp and sowthistle."

Congress Urges Members to Reject Arms Program

OTTAWA (CP)—A delegation of leftist Canadian Peace Congress today urged members of Parliament to reject the Western plan to rearm West Germany.

Led by James G. Endicott, a Stalin peace prize winner, the group circulated a brief among MPs arguing that the entry of a rearmed Germany in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "will touch off a catastrophic armament race."

The congress brief was signed by Mr. Endicott, who met reporters after the delegation had left.

Mr. Endicott, who said the rearming of West Germany will set off the third world war, announced he will place a wreath at the National War Memorial "to make this another memorial of Armistice Day."

He said all members of the congress Toronto delegation have decided to wear the poppy in meeting with MPs.

Capt. A. Wilson New Commodore Steamship Lines

MONTREAL (CP)—Capt. A. Wilson of Sarnia, master of the St. Thunder Bay, has been appointed commodore of the Canada Steamship Lines fleet, it was announced Monday night. He succeeds Capt. T. S. Patterson who retired Monday after 51 years as a service on the Great Lakes.

Capt. Patterson joined the steamer A. E. Ames in 1904 and has since commanded some of the largest vessels ever to ply the lakes.

The company also announced the retirement of Capt. Percy Beatty, master of the Sir James Dunn, after 46 years of service—34 of them as ship's master.

Men Unrelated

BRADFORD, Ont. (CP) — Allan Mason arrested Allen Mason Monday night.

Const. Mason of the Ontario Provincial Police picked up the second Mason on a drunk-driving charge after an automobile chase near this town 35 miles north of Toronto.

The men are unrelated.

Fraud Charge Laid Against Naughton Man

TORONTO (CP) — Police said today a man who insisted on saying grace over restaurant lunches has been charged with fleecing two Toronto men of $8,000.

Sanford Durant, 46, of Naughton, Ont., 10 miles southwest of Sudbury, was charged with fraud.

Police said an advertisement last November asked for "two religious Christian gentlemen to associate with me in a business venture. . . ." It mentioned large profits.

PROFITS FOR MISSIONS

Huggins and Kaye met a distinguished looking man who talked convincingly about religion.

They told police he said he had just completed a rural survey for the United States oil company which had encouraging results. He said he was anxious to form his own sales business and needed $8,000. Ten per cent of all profits was to go for missionary work.

Police said he promised the two men $1,000 each when directors of the company was formed. They quit their jobs.

Leper Inmates Wrest Control From Officials

PORT OF SPAIN (AP)—Police reinforcements were sent by speedboat to Trinidad's leper colony on Chacachacare island Monday when 300 inmates were reported to have wrested control from settlement authorities.

Reports reaching the mainland said an order ousting superintendent Dr. Michael Corros had created such hostility among the lepers that the nuns who care for them had been forced to seek police protection.

The health administration of this British island ordered the superintendent to leave the colony Friday, pending an answer from London to a cable requesting that he be recalled. The patients lasted an ultimatum, "Corros or nobody" and then took control themselves, reports received here said.

A dispute over administration of the colony came to a head over the Christmas holiday when Corros allowed some of the inmates to visit the Trinidad mainland despite protests by the governor.

Refugee Family Will be Allowed To Stay Here

OTTAWA (CP)—A refugee family from Jordan with a newborn baby will be allowed to stay in Canada as non-immigrant visitors for a reasonable period, Immigration Minister Pickersgill said Monday.

Mr. Pickersgill made the statement after William L. Houck, Liberal member for Dufferin-Simcoe in Niagara Falls, appealed to him on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Faried Hori, now in Niagara Falls.

The Haribs came to Canada from their Arab homeland two months ago on a six-week visitors' permit. Their son Jamal was born Jan. 1—Niagara Falls' first 1955 baby.

The immigration department has extended their permit until the family is in condition to travel. After his interview with Mr. Houck, Mr. Pickersgill declined to say what "reasonable period" would be granted.

Mr. Houck said the family up to now has asked only to be allowed to remain as visitors but he hopes they will apply as immigrants.

NON-CONFIDENCE

CCF CHARGE

For the CCF, Mr. Coldwell added another charge that the government has returned deliberately to the deflation-line policy of uncontrolled and unplanned private enterprise. It had "failed to undertake the economic planning necessary to cope with the serious problems now facing the Canadian people."

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC—Hamilton West) introduced her own bill on equal pay for women.

External Affairs Minister Pearson tabled copies of the Paris agreements on West Germany which Parliament will be asked to ratify. Discussion of the agreements will start Jan. 20.

LEFTISTS LOBBY

Meanwhile, about 500 delegates of the left-wing Canadian Peace Congress lobbied in an attempt to persuade members to vote against the plan for rearming West Germany. Congress chairman James G. Endicott of Toronto said several members, whom he did not name, promised to oppose ratification.

Prime Minister St. Laurent hinted there will be several procedural changes to speed House business. He announced plans to send the spending estimates of five or six government departments to a special committee for study before they reach the Commons.

But the throne speech debate was the big event.

Mr. Rowe, for nearly 30 years member for Ontario's Dufferin-Simcoe constituency, criticized the government's economic policies in an hour-long speech.

"The dark realities and the dangerous trends that are stalking before the people of this Dominion," he said, "are all carefully ignored and recklessly disregarded in the speech from the throne."

"MERE PALLIATIVES"

Announcements in the throne speech of increases in wintertime supplementary unemployment insurance benefits and of an expanded public works program were merely palliatives for unemployment.

"It's like giving the baby cough medicine and leaving the window up."

Canada last year moved from a position of exporting more than she bought to an unfavorable trade balance of more than $200,000,000 in the first eight months of 1954. Meanwhile, unemployment increased.

"We cannot afford to continue a policy of levying taxes when similar taxes are not being placed upon our foreign competitors. . . ."

"The Canadian worker sees electrical, steel and textile products coming in from countries such as Japan while plants in which his father and grandfather worked are closing down."

Mr. St. Laurent replied that Mr. Rowe's ideas of a strong fiscal policy reminded him of former Conservative plans for protective tariffs "although the word protection was carefully avoided."

Expanding trade was necessary to Canadian prosperity but that could not be achieved by high tariffs. Trade had to flow both ways, and barring Canadian loans abroad, high imports had to go along with high exports.

"Not very much" to alleviate unemployment could be done by public works spending. Something was needed to stimulate the economy generally.

At every session opening for the last dozen or four years there had been concern about unemployment. But each time the situation improved as the season advanced and there was reason to expect this again.

TRADE POINT

Mr. Rowe had argued for greater trade with the United Kingdom. But some British imports, such as textiles, were precisely those which Mr. Rowe had said were undercutting Canadian prices.

The Canadian people could not believe "that a high protection policy would help us expand our markets or cure the unemployment which exists in some of our industries."

The British market was not lost. British still wanted to buy from Canada but her dollar shortage limited imports from Canada and the forthcoming Commonwealth prime ministers conference could do little to cure the problem. Convertibility of sterling and dollars could be achieved through operation of economic factors which depended on various trends.

"ROOT PROBLEMS"

Mr. Coldwell said the root problems of unemployment won't be solved by higher supplementary payments of unemployment insurance, though that eased suffering. The government was locking the stable after the horse was gone.

Parliament should have been called into session last fall to study declining farm income and rising unemployment. The two were related. Net farm income had fallen 40 per cent in three years while unemployment rose each year.

Mr. Low urged some system to give farmers a fairer share of the national income. In 1953 farmers got less than 10 per cent of the national income although they formed 20 per cent of the population.

The government should provide a system of flexible price supports for farm products as long as it maintained protective tariffs on industrial products.

2 FIREMEN HURT

HAMILTON (CP) Five companies of firemen fought a fire three hours Saturday at the Gurney Scale Company building here. The company manufactures industrial scales. No estimate of loss has been given. Three firemen required treatment for cuts and bruises.

Former Mayor Called 'Litl: Caesar'

TORONTO (CP) — The new mayor of Toronto implied Monday that former mayor Allan Lamport is a little Caesar.

Mayor Phillips announced he will ask metropolitan Toronto council today to go after power to fire "little Caesars" on the Toronto Transit Commission.

Mr. Lamport is one of the commissioners.

SEES DISEASE LINK

LONDON (Reuters)—The British Medical Journal says United States and British experiments have shown a "clearcut relationship" between smoking and heart diseases. The Journal declares: "The stretch of the association is less than observed with lung cancer, but owing to the large number of cases recorded, there is no doubt about its statistical significance."

National Hockey League Score Records Look Like Canadiens' Roll Call

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

TWO IN A ROW!

Erwin Duncan, spearheading the Memos' "D" line of brother Edwin and Ted DeGray, popped home the puck with less than two minutes to go in Kingston last night to give the Memos a 3-2 victory over the fading Goodyears. It was Ott Goodyears' third defeat in a row and their sixth setback in the last nine starts. The Goodies bowed twice to the loop-leading Cornwall Colts over the week-end.

The Goodies appeared to be well on their way to victory with a 3-0 lead late in the second period. Then the Memos struck. They had exerted terrific pressure on Johnson in the Kingston nets after some comic-opera officiating had quelled a near Donnybrook.

Peter Jones finally crashed the Kingston defence and goalie Johnson. He picked up "Red" Doran's long centre pass and sifted through with Arnie Dugan to score.

A little better than 60 seconds later, Ted DeGray, a roving chappie, bounced a Kingston pass-out and slammed the rubber home for the tying goal. It was a nip-and-tuck battle from there in with both sides battling desperately for the winner. Tony Partid, who substituted for the Memos in the nets, twice outgeneraled Murray when the fleet Goodyear forward raced in alone on the Belleville citadel.

Then came the "D" line's million dollar marker with the clock ticking off the seconds, and the Memos had wrapped up their second victory of the season over their arch-rivals from Roddenville.

Over 2100 of the Kingston faithful saw the squads battle, brawl and bounce each other in a typical Kingston-Belleville game. In the second period, Senior of Kingston, and the Memos' Bob Wilson started some fisticuffing after a blue-line crash. Referee Maurice Walsh thumbed the culprits off for five minutes, but the lads had scarcely settled in their seats than war broke out in the honeypot.

It was stated that Senor swung a left hook at Wilson, and Manz apparently promptly retaliated. Fans and the gendarmes got in the fight and players rushed from the benches. Everybody got in the fracas except the goalies, Jake Wade and Ted Nicholson.

Manager Art Casterton got in his lick and was promptly given the heave-ho out of the game. Wilson and Senior were tabbed with game misconduct penalties and the Memos' Frank Bettiol was also plastered with a game misconduct. Looked like a jolly old night, all around.

The victory put the Memos back on an even keel in third place with the surrending Whitby Wrens when they meet tomorrow night on the latter's ice. The Wrens have struck their stride of late, having won their last five outings. Their biggest achievement was the 8-4 thumping they gave Brockville on the latter's ice last week. The Wrens have added some strength since their last jaunt with the Memos and it appears to be just what the club needed. Right now they are the hottest teams in the group, so tomorrow's game should be one for the archieves.

The winners will vault over the Kingston Goodyears into second place as both Memos and Wrens are but one point in arrears of the Casterton men.

BOWLING

Topflight bowlers of both sexes of the city will converge on Kingston this month to take part in the regional zone of the annual Molson Bowling Classic.

Last year Jim McKenzie, one of the city's crack keglers, won the regional singles championship and came up with a highly creditable display at the finals held at the Sportsmen's Show in Toronto. By virtue of his performance last season Jim has been seeded into the regional finals. Some fifty keglers of the district will take part, with the winner representing the region and the top six entering the playoffs as a regional all-star team.

Bowlers of this city, who have qualified for regional playoffs on January 29th, include: Cec Hardwick, 1226; Joe Legault, 1187; Bill Bateman, 1183; Alex Kells, 1180; Leo Labelle, 1154; Harry DeRushie, 1148; Ron Saylor, 1115, and Vince Sagriff, 1106.

Lady bowlers, who will take part in the regional playoffs on January 22 in Deseronto are: Jean Mulvihill, Hilda Laurenson, Barb Foster, Marion Mundry, Kay Maynes and Gwen Bellis.

Individual winners and teams will compete in the Ontario championship bowling held at the Toronto Sportsmen's Show, with provincial titulatic taking part in the Dominion championships later in the season.

Boom-Boom, Beliveau, Rocket Top Off Goal-Getting Parade; Olmstead, Mosdell Are Next

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League's new issue of scoring records, released today, starts out like the roll call of Montreal Canadiens.

The four Montrealers who have been monopolizing the top positions since the official weekly issue of Nov. 9 were joined last week by left-winger Bert Olmstead.

With five now leading the parade, all that is needed to make a complete team is to toss in goalie Jacques Plante, who was almost becoming the forgotten goalie of the league. But on an individual basis, the gangling Montreal netminder's average is best.

WAS LAID UP

A fractured cheek bone shelved Plante for 18 of his team's 42 games. In those 18 games his three substitutes allowed 47 goals, a goals - against average of 2.61. Plante's average for 24 games is 1.58 which means the least number scored a goal a game more against Canadiens during Plante's absence.

For purposes of the Vezina Trophy, Plante faces a terrific task if he is to overhaul big Harry Lumley of Toronto Leafs. The trophy, along with $1,000, goes to the goalie who has played the most games and on the least scoring upon.

Lumley's consistency has kept him in the lead. He has missed only one game and his goals against average is 1.71; his personal average is 1.32. Terry Sawchuk, who has played in all of Detroit Red Wings' games, has a 1.97 average.

FAMILIAR NAMES

At the front of the scoring procession are the familiar names—Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffion, Jean Beliveau and Maurice (Rocket) Richard. Fourth place had been held by Ken Mosdell until Olmstead bounced in ahead of him last week with a collection of seven assists.

Olmstead's outburst also halted the climb of Gordie Howe of Detroit, who missed six games through injury and is trying to fight his way back to the scoring title he won the last four seasons.

Geoffrion is leading the goal-getters with 27 and has 22 assists for 49 points, three more than Beliveau. The Boomer scored three goals and four assist last week, while big Jean scored five times and had one assist. The pair were on the same line.

The official record shows Richard failed to get a point, although in press reports he was credited with an assist in the New York Sunday night. A wired report to the NHL from New York on the scoring didn't list an assist for Richard; the score sheet has not yet been received.

21 GOALS

Richard thus is still credited with 21 goals and 17 assists for 38 points, one more than Olmstead whose total of 36 assists leads the league in that department. He has scored seven goals.

Mosdell, with five assists last week, now has 36 points. Howe slammed in three goals, but collected no assists, to run his total to 34 points.

Chandleon retained their four-point margin over the Red Wings by winning two games to Detroit's three starts. The Detroiters did exactly the same and now have 46 points to Montreal's 41. Toronto Maple Leafs won, lost and tied in three games and trail Detroit by seven points.

Dower, who scored his 22nd straight victory, weighed 16 pounds and Koch Germany's flyweight and bantamweight champion, scaled 118½.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Marilyn Bell, Toronto swimming star, was honored as the "woman athlete of the year" for her sports achievement and broadcasters at a March of Dimes dinner Monday night.

The 17-year-old Canadian schoolgirl, who swam 44 miles across Lake Ontario from Youngstown, N.Y., to Toronto last summer, was presented with a plaque in honor of her achievement.

Miss Bell was cited for her "remarkable accomplishment in becoming the first swimmer ever to conquer Lake Ontario."

More than 1,100 persons attended the star-studded sports dinner which raised more than $20,000 for the Polio Fund.

Marilyn, in a brief acceptance speech, described the occasion as "one of the top thrills of my life."

LAUDS GIRL

She credited her coach, Gus Ryder, who accompanied her to the dinner, for her success.

"Without the help and encouragement of Gus I never would have been able to finish that swim," she said.

A full roster of sports luminaries, past and present, attended. Among them were Joe McCarthy, former New York Yankees manager; Johnny Antonelli, New York Giants pitcher; Karl Spooner, Brooklyn Dodgers pitcher; Gabe Paul, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds; Paul Andrews, light heavyweight contender; Arnie Johnson, former Rochester Canada basketball player; Joe Primeau, former Toronto Maple Leafs hockey star; and Shelby Mann, national 100-metre free-style champion.

KEY TO CITY

But it was Marilyn who was the belle of the dinner and the toast of the town Monday. Mayor Steven Pankow presented her with the key to the city and proclaimed the day "Marilyn Bell Day."

"The key is the symbol of our people," the mayor said.

Pankow gave Marilyn a bouquet of roses which she later presented to a polio patient during a tour of the University of Buffalo's Chronic Disease Research Institute. Marilyn, who wants to become a physiotherapist, chatted with young patients there and at the Crippled Children's Guild.

As for her swimming future, Marilyn told a reporter there will be other swims—but not across Lake Ontario.

"Those swims are too treacherous," she said. "You never know what the lake is going to do."

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN
by Elmer Ferguson
Even the proximity of death and disaster from overhanging black clouds of Armageddon cannot completely wipe out an inborn love of sport. For this dips down deep into the roots of man.
Last summer we saw one of the finest examples of the fashion in which sport can set aside the terrors that may suddenly plunge a country into chaos, when all of Europe outside the Iron Curtain practically went berserk in celebration of West Germany's 3-2 victory over Hungary for the world soccer championship.
Hungary's team from behind the Iron Curtain hadn't been beaten in four years. The Hungarians were regarded as a certainty to win again. Early in the going they led 2-0, while in soccer is tantamount to a lead in hockey. But the West Germans rallied and eked out a 3-2 triumph. An Associated Press story from Frankfort declared the reaction was like the World's Series, a heavy-weight championship and the Kentucky Derby rolled into one."
Chancellor Konrad Adenauer sent a congratulatory telegram to the team. Theodore Heuss, President of West Germany, announced that a silver laurel-leaf medal awaited each member of the team on their return. On their return, the conquering heroes of the soccer field were given a reception of which royalty would be ashamed.
Perhaps this outburst of enthusiasm was prompted by the fact that a team from behind the Iron Curtain, an arrogant, unbeaten favorite, had been plunged into defeat by a team that represented freedom. Perhaps it was the traditional reaction that accompanies victory for the underdog. But whatever political significance may have attached to the game, it still was a tremendous tribute to the deep-rooted appeal of sport.
Here are the West Germans and the Hungarians, both practically sitting on the H-bomb. Whatever their political philosophies, these peoples have had a rough time from generations back. For them, it has almost always been war, or threat of war.
If anybody should be nervous, continental Europeans are the ones. Yet they declare a holiday with complete equanimity when a soccer team wins a critical game, and there is dancing in the streets with the not-les-distant threat forgotten, temporarily at least, as sport enthusiasm chases away the nightmare of an uncertain future.

Gad, What Next! Argos Will Wear Girdles

TORONTO (CP) — Trainer George Stockwell says Toronto Argonauts of 1955 not only will be the best football team in Canada but "they will be the best equipped with the most modern, most streamlined, most expensive, most everything there can be most of!"

And that includes girdles "like women wear."

Stockwell, just returned from a trainers' gathering in New York where he looked over the latest in player equipment, said:

"Argonaut players will wear the girdle next season. It's the kind a player can step into. It's made of two-way elastic, it's form-fitting and very light."

The girdle, of course, is not designed primarily to pull in the tummy but to help prevent injury. Argonauts will also get new helmets, face-guards, sweaters, pants and cleats.

Will Represent Lady Curlers

CHATHAM (CP) — Woodstock and Sarnia rinks Monday won the right to represent southwestern Ontario women curlers in the Ontario Tankard final at Toronto early next month.

The McIntosh rink of Woodstock and the Cole quartet of Sarnia topped six other western Ontario curling teams in regional playoffs here. They competed against rinks from London, Brantford and Chatham.

Woodstock players were Mrs. M. F. McIntosh, skip, Mrs. J. D. Innes, Mrs. M. A. Bernath and Mrs. W. S. Finlay.

Sarnia players were Mrs. R. G. Cole, skip, Mrs. J. Garvey, Mrs. R. Smith and Mrs. Harold Potts.

It outdates hip pads.

Stockwell says Argonauts will also get new helmets, face-guards, sweaters, pants and cleats.

Memos Regain 3rd Place With 3-2 Win Over Kingston In Brawling Battle

Near Free-for-All Features Bitterly-Fought Senior Fray; Erwin Duncan Scores Winner

KINGSTON — Kingston Goodyears, still slumping, absorbed their sixth setback in their last nine starts when Trenton Metropolitan Memos posted a 3 to 2 victory over the Douglasmen last night in the Community Memorial Centre. The result shoves the Memos into a third place deadlock with the Whitby Wrens in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "B" Eastern Group where those oncoming challengers are only one point behind the runner-up Goodyears and four off the Cornwall pace.

The game had the earmarks of hectic ascent positions in the race but they do not submerge the fact that during the second period the wildest outbreak in many years marred an otherwise thrilling display. The fuse that launched disorder was ignited when Bob Sexsmith allegedly attacked Bob Wilson in the penalty box after both had been handed majors for fighting. She scene that followed defies lucid explanation but it can be told that the referees, Maurice Wylie and Ivan Locke, were unable to get order out of chaos until fourteen minutes had elapsed.

In view of the suspicion that twenty players, some of the fans and manager Art Casterton were involved in the ruckus the referees would have been justified in establishing an all-time record in dishing out penalties in a bunch, but according as it may seem they inflicted match misconduct sentences on Senior and Wilson and also ordered Frank Bettiol of the Memos out of the game. Casterton was also banished from the bench and it is understood he will be summoned to the OHA executive.

Jack White, who had, owing to illness, been absent from the game during the first intermission, was in the dressing room when disorder came but he was rushed back into uniform in an emergency. The Memos will be credited with but they hung on gamely over the second half to outscored the Goodyears by 3 to 0 and skated away with a well-earned triumph.

ANNOUNCED VERDICT

Referee Wylie finally announced his verdict when order was restored. Bob Londry drew a penalty for unsportsmanlike conduct during his absence the Memos did everything except score. Londry returned at 14.30 to see Senior swoop mid-ice for high-sticking and when he showed his displeasure was assessed a misconduct.

At 12.42 Douglas was chased for slashing and two seconds before the game back Senior, assisted by Jake Wade and Doran, made it a 2-1 affair.

With the Memos at full strength the Belles launched a determined attack and tied the game up as the locals defensive zone and it was when Tommy Goodfellow made a long-range-out that Dewey Gray gained possession and drove home the tying counter.

A series of thrills featured the third period in which the goal keepers made seemingly impossible saves. Davey Jones drew a penalty at 5.45 and when he was away Toppazini whipped a fast shot against a post. Two seconds after Jones returned Murray struck a post. Erwin Duncan met the same fate at the other end of the ice surface and on the return rush Murray skated to the goal mouth but missed the target. Then Murray, Don Bellefeuil, Toppazini were all credited in succession but on the next dash Edsel Dunbar fired the shot that won the game.

With 58 seconds to go Douglas took out Londry and stocked on six forwards to carry the play. Three face-offs were forced in the Belle's defensive zone but the Memos hung on grimly and skated away with the night's payoff laurels.

Belle-the-line clashes staged during the second intermission. Clint Tinkess circled the ice surface in 3/5 one-fifth seconds and established a new record. Last Saturday Toppazini led with a 16 4/5 mark, but that time was equalled last night by Frank Bettiol of Belleville. Don Senior raced the distance in 18 3/5 seconds in the be juggled the puck and lost precious fractional time.

The visitors absorbed eleven of the 20 penalties called and in the collection were a misconduct and two game misconducts. Seven sentences were inflicted in the first period; twelve in the middle session and only one during the final 20 minutes.

Top point-getter in the keenly fought struggle was Ted De-Gray who got a goal and an assist. The Duncan twins were restricted to a goal and an assist but that counter was notched by Edwin at the 18.32 in the last period and it settled the issue.

Standout star of the game was goalkeeper "Tony" Parisi. His work was sensational and he made remarkable stopping of close-driven pucks that prevented Ted Donnelly, Murray, Don Bellringer and George MacGregor from scoring in their first visit.

Jack Bellefeuil also manufactured several dangerous attacks but Parisi, after Bellefeuil broke away, was equal to the occasion.

Duncan banged the rubber into the twin.

MacGregor opened the tallying at 3.05 in the first period during an attack in which Ted Nicholson and Ted Toppazzini also figured. The Memos looked uncertain from the first period. Senior a fast gait after MacGregor had tallied and indicating that they weren't going to meekly surrender to the locals. Four of the seven penalties in the last round were allotted to the visitors.

SCORED SECOND GOAL

Don Murray shot Douglas into a two-goal advantage at 3.37 in the middle period. "Nobber" Day was penalized at 5.13 and a misconduct was shoved to Senior. Jerree Locke when Day protested the decision. At 6.26 Senior and Wilson tangled and were handed majors. After passing through the gate the battle was renewed and some fans and many players rushed to the scene. The referees were soon in the clinch of the milling and in the din, like a calliope, the "Voice of the Centre," could not get a hearing.

The teams:

Belleville — Goal, Parisi; defence, Mackey and Muckler; centre, Ed Duncan; wings, Kirby Senior and Don Bellefeuil.

Lions Prexy Opposes Split Gate Receipts

VANCOUVER (CP)—Don MacKenzie, re-elected Monday as president of the B.C. Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, says he is opposed personally to sharing gate receipts with prairie teams.

He told a questioner at the annual meeting of the B.C. club that the executive had never seriously considered the question of split gate receipts.

He said he felt such a plan would take away the incentive from fund-raising groups sponsoring entries from Calgary, Winnipeg, Regina and Edmonton.

HAVE AGREEMENT

Lions have an agreement now whereby $12,500 is set aside against the possibility of teams losing money when making the long trip to Vancouver. MacKenzie said he had heard rumors Saskatchewan Roughriders were short and might request financial assistance.

A financial statement read at the meeting showed B.C. with a profit of $47,726 for the year ended Nov. 30, 1954. The loss took in 783 in exhibition clashes.

3356.333 in league games and $66.

Coach Annis Stukus, who has been signed to his second term as coach of the Lions, said they were going to get players they need this year.

In their first year in the WIFU, Lions won a single game while dropping seven. They also set a one-game attendance record.

Russians Expect Strong Field In Speed Skating

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet sports authorities are looking for a solid field for the world speed skating championships to be held in Moscow March 19-20, and the Russians and United States will also compete "because we know the Americans are very good in the sprints."

The Russians will defend the world championship they won last winter in Japan. The field of competitors here will be large because more entries are expected from Europe and transportation is no problem as close as Japan.

Russian ices Boris Shilkov and Oleg Gontharkov are expected to be in top form and they also have a number of rising stars coming.

Preliminary entries for the Moscow championships close Saturday and the deadline for final registration is Feb. 7.

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto Marlboros and St. Catharines Teepees play a two-way tie today for first place in the standings of the Ontario section of the Canada-Laurier Cup junior hockey play.

Both teams have 20 points, although the Marlboros sported a better goals for-and-against average. They have 22 goals and 14 against, compared with 24 and 25 respectively for the Teepees. Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks are last in the three-team Ontario section, second place of their Canada-Laurier Trophy games.

In the Quebec section, Quebec over Trois-Rivieres Flambeaux and a six-point margin over Montreal Junior.

Frontenacs have 12 points.

Gaints Seek Three More Toronto Players

TORONTO (CP) — New York Giants of the National Football League are after three more Toronto Argonaut players, bringing to six, the number of Canadians on the Big Four team invited to try out for the United States team.

Halfback Bill Bewley, centre Elgin Hirst and linebacker Ken Porter, three first-year men with Argos last season, said Monday they received feelers from the Giants this week. Earlier, New York had asked back Johnny Prudhomme, Jack McGee and tackle Don Shaw to try for a spot.

McFarland, Argo top college draft choice who led the Big Four in pass interceptions last season, said he was offered $7,000.

Hirst, up from Toronto Balmy Beach in the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union, said his letter didn't give any figure, but said NFL linemen averaged between $5,000 and $10,000 a season.

Porter said he didn't get a hint as to what salary he might get. None of the three was inclined to rush to New York. They indicated they wouldn't do much about the offers.

Marty Marion Tabs Indians 'Team to Beat'

CHICAGO (AP)—Marty Marion, new manager of the Chicago White Sox, is building one of the strongest hopes and tabs Cleveland as the big team to beat in the 1955 race rather than the defending champion New York Yankees.

"Although the Yankees got Bob Turley, Don Larsen and Bill Hunter," said Marion, former St. Louis Cardinal manager, "and the Louis Browns manager and White Sox coach, I see Cleveland as our chief rival.

"As a whole, the entire American League is going to be a lot stronger. Detroit and Boston look good with their young players jelling."

Marion believes the White Sox have improved so much through added strength that a pennant is not out of reach.

Wrigley Made 'Big Deal' Say Experts

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The consensus among baseball forecasters is that owner Phil K. Wrigley of Chicago Cubs has made the most important deal of the winter in matching that lively 75-year-old, Clarence (Pants) Rowland, from the presidency of the Pacific Coast League and installing him as supreme boss of his ball club.

One Chicagoan with whom we talked since the appointment was announced says there is every expectation that Pants will be around and will take hold with a very firm hand and that there will be great changes in the cast of the Cubs' present second division organization before another season has passed.

Rowland, through a lifetime of association with the game in practically every capacity, takes over his new post with admirable equipment. He was the first minor leaguer ever to step into a big league baseball job without having spent a minute in the big time. Joe McCarthy made the same leap with considerable success, but Clarence beat him to it by a decade.

In his first year in the American League, 1915, Rowland brought the Sox home third. The next season he finished in strong second place in 1917 his club not only won the pennant but hung a defeat on New York's Yankees in the World Series.

When the Sox dropped to sixth in 1918, Rowland resigned, received his connection with the club and never again was to manage in the big show, though he spent two years as pilot of Columbus in the International Association before becoming an American League umpire in 1923.

During the year he was calling 'em on the field, Rowland gained the reputation of being one of the most able and popular officials.

For the last 21 years, first as boss of the Pacific Coast club and more recently as league president, Rowland has remained an extremely important and influential figure in the game.

Coates Wins Split Verdict Over Savoie

MONTREAL (CP)—Carl Coates of Baltimore, Md., fought even a split decision over Armand Savoie of Montreal in a 10-round lightweight boxing match at Montreal's Mont St. Louis Auditorium.

Coates weighed 141 pounds while Savoie, former Canadian lightwelterweight champion, tipped the scales at 138½.

There were no knockdowns and it was a rough fight. Coates was hitting bout turned into a close-range scrap. Savoie only looked really good in the seventh round when he cut loose with a few hard punches.

East, West for Grey Cup Final Say Country's Writers, 'Casters

By GAYLE TALBOT

TORONTO (CP)—The Grey Cup final, a last-Saturday-in-November tradition in Toronto, should alternate between the East and West starting this year, say the country's sports editors and sportscasters.

Balloting on the subject in the Canadian Press year-end sports poll, only eight of the 113 participating voters voted to keep the game in Toronto. At least one in each of the Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union cities joined in the almost solid country-wide vote for the switch.

A few figured arrangements couldn't be made in time to make the change in 1955 and suggested 1956 at the earliest. Many mentioned Vancouver's Civic Stadium as the locale for the first final to be played in the West since the cup became national in 1921.

READY FOR ANYTHING

The subject is certain to be discussed at the Canadian Rugby Union annual meeting at Vancouver in March and the CRU, governing body of the game in Canada, is prepared for anything. It needs only a vote of delegates to make a decision.

CRU officials, aware of demands in some football quarters for a change in venue, made it clear three years ago when it was written into the constitution that the final "shall be played in a city and on grounds to be selected by the executive" of the CRU. Previously, the constitution stipulated that the game would be played at Toronto Varsity "if available, and if the stadium was not available it would be played on grounds selected by the CRU executive."

Vern McGeer, sports director of the Montreal Gazette, opposed the alternate East-West idea and said he preferred two games, one in the East, one in the West on following Sunday. Tommy Shields of the Ottawa Citizen also balloted but said he favors some arrangement for a two-game series."

Bobby Hewitson of the Toronto Telegram said the East should not alternate between East and West "year in and year out but perhaps the odd game should go to the West." He added that alternating year by year would take it away from the build-up of the game—the pre-game dinner, parade, etc., which cannot be built up to a year-by-year basis."

Harold Atkins of the Montreal Star voted yes and added it should start "as soon as Ottawa involved can assure they have the facilities and administration to handle the game." Vince Lunny of the Montreal Herald also voted yes but said that league schedule must end earlier. "How about Vancouver in 1955 and Montreal in 1956?" he asked.

Milt Dunnell of the Toronto Star said the game should alternate "if the West wants it" and "when they want it."

REGINA VIEW

Scotty Melville of the Regina Leader-Post voted yes and said: "If the western mild weather continues on the prairies, otherwise Vancouver is the only spot in 1955, the CBC permitting."

Straight "yes" votes were received from Steve Douglas, CBC-TV, Toronto; Frank Starr, CJAD, Montreal; a "yes" from Ed Sheppard, Daily News, Truro, N.S.; Clayton Browne, St. Catharines Standard; John Berger, CKLB, Maisonneuve, Que.; Joe Sperling, CKNO, Edmonton; Joe Carbury, CKXL, Calgary, and Jerry Keplan of the Kirkland Lake Northern Daily News.

"Soon as possible" votes came from Jim Vipond, Toronto Globe and Mail; Cam McKenzie, Saskatoon Star-Phoenix; Cam Church, CKSO, Hamilton, and Ed Finn, Western Star, Corner Brook, Nfld.

Jack Daly of CKOY Ottawa and Ted Bearne of the Brantford Expositor said a change shouldn't be made until the West can provide seating accommodation comparable to the 27,400-capacity Toronto Varsity Stadium.

Among those voting for a switch in 1955 were Bill Westwick, Ottawa Journal; Ted Fortin, Ottawa Le Droit; Art Ward, CKUA, Edmonton; Al Shaver, CFRN, Edmonton; Alf Cottell, Vancouver Province; Keith Matthews, Vancouver Herald; Erwin Swangard, Vancouver Sun.

Gord Hunter of the Calgary Herald voted for Vancouver in 1955 and Frank McCool of the Calgary Albertan believes it is overdue in 1956. Johnny Esaw of CKRM Regina voted for 1956 and said the game should alternate between Vancouver and Toronto only."

As a symbol of his faith in the sea as a source of food and wealth, John Sweeney plunged into the icy surf near Halifax New Year's day and planted a flag of Nova Scotia in the ocean floor 60 feet down. He made the plunge in a frogman's suit as the sea registered 32 degrees. He said he felt that Nova Scotia has a right to have its flag planted "under the sea because that is where a great deal of our wealth will come from." (CP Photo).

Printers Punish Puck Pitifully

Twelve of the Ontario Intelligencer greatest "hockey sheet" took to the ice for an hour last night and staged one of the tightest battles seen in Memorial arena in many years. When the final bell rang and the bodies were carried from the ice, Bill "Le Gros" O'Brien's All-Stars had hung a narrow 15-14 setback on Garry "Gordie" Alexander's No-Stars.

The All-Stars featured such all-time "greats" as Myles "Long Al" Morton who came up with a terrific game between the pipes in gaining his first victory since 1946, captain and defenceman O'Brien and his partner in crime Gerry "The Rookie" Unger. The forward line was composed of Howard "Leo the Lion" Keely, Paul "Bighip" Munro and Don "Toddler" Weeks. Upper and Skelly provided the scoring punch with 6 goals each while Munns, Weeks and O.Brien tallied once each on the empty net.

The No-Stars were without a goaltender so Manager Ivor Iles the latin of defeat. Doris "Powderpuff" Hill and Yvonne "The Rover" Christopher were members of the team limping to the bench while Bob "Terrible Ted" McAdam was a mell of stone back of the blueline. Art "Boom Boom" Culloden, Alexander and Lyle "Bones" Thompson formed the "ACT" line. Booth Boom rifled home eight goals with Gordie, Terrible Ted and Bones getting two each.

The big star selection as picked by the captains was Culloden, Morton and Upper with honorable mention to Skelly and those dashing females, Hill and Christopher, who displayed great form.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The latest musical sensation in the movies is a 26-year-old tenor who got start singing in the shelter caves of war-bombed Malta.

The new star is Ornste Kirkop, who landed the coveted lead in "The Vagabond King" opposite Kathryn Grayson in his first movie.

Kirkop, barrel-chested and self-assured, has a clear, powerful singing voice. He has sandy hair and blue eyes, and weighs a muscular 175 pounds.

The tenor, in costume for "The Vagabond King," told me the story of his rise to singing fame. He speaks English with a trace of accent; also Italian, French and his native Maltese, which goes back to ancient Phoenician.

CAVERN QUARTET

"When the bombs started to fall in Malta during the war," he related, "we went into the caves. Sometimes we would be there all day and we had to find something to do. My four brothers the also has five sisters) formed a band and I often sang with them."

"After the war, things went back to normal," he recalled, "but I always had opera companies come from Italy and now it was suggested that Malta start its own opera company. Someone remembered that I had sung in the caves and they asked me to take part in the new company."

A retired tenor tutored him for a year, then Kirkop made his debut at 19 in "Cavaleria Rusticana." Offers started to come from Italy, and He decided to take one. The boy embarked for Rome and returned on the same boat, homesick and scared.

He finally returned to Rome for study under a famous coach. His opera performances brought him to the attention of British impresarios and he made his English debut in "Rigoletto" in Leeds. His fame soon spread and he scored a hit with the Sadlers Wells opera and at Covent Garden, where he sang for two years.

I asked how he came to the attention of Paramount.

"They read the reviews of this new singer," he said, shifting to the third person, as operatic stars often do. "The critics said he was the best new voice in England since the war. They said that he had a tall and handsome, that he could act as well as sing."

Kirkop made a test for Paramount and was given a seven-year contract. It gives him permission to return to opera if he is discovered in his movie career.

Need a New Car

With every car manufacturer in the land urging the public to buy the latest example of mechanical perfection, it is a positive delight to hear that a new car is actually being given away. Perhaps it is not fair to suggest that the automobile will be handed out with the morning mail. However, we have seen details of a simple contest in which the public can win such a prize, and that just about amounts to the same thing.

The free car is a brand new 1955 Nash Metropolitan. . . the car with the big car performance and the amazingly low gas consumption. It will go in the winner in a contest being run in connection with the showing of "The Purple Plain" starring Gregory Peck which starts showing Thursday at the McCarthy theatre.

Larks' O Beck Convinced 'Rifle' Will Be Back With Alouettes

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Vic Obeck, vice-president of Montreal Alouettes, said Monday he is convinced that from a legal standpoint in every way Eteberry will be back with the Big Four club next season.

Quarterback Sam caused no little consternation and confusion the biggest mid-winter flap football has seen in many a day by signing with Chicago Rockets then reversing his field and signing with the Als.

Obeck also said that coach Doug (Peahead) Walker "has already signed some of our key men and we expect others." In addition Walker has been in contact with more than a dozen top college players in the United States.

STRONGEST YET

"Walker is convinced that we will have a stronger club next season than we had last, especially with replacements for certain positions," said Obeck.

Richardson's new contract with Alouettes is for two years, which means the club already has signed up his option for 1956.

"He has said he wants to play here again and we feel he will," said Obeck. "I won't try to explain why he signed with Hamilton. When he was here recently he seemed satisfied when we talked things over and said only he wanted to talk with his folks first. Perhaps he became a bit upset. He made a mistake, but we all make mistakes."

"SOLID GROUND"

"We feel we are on solid ground legally and we will stand behind the contract he signed with us. . . .

"We feel it significant that the contract he signed with the Canadian of the National Football League was not signed by anyone of the Cardinal management. It merely had terms filled in and was mailed to him; no Cardinal signatures, no witnesses."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When H comes to defence bidding, two bridge players are on "de" fence. They are ready to fall in either direction. This is the feeling that usually avoid if they really knew opening bids.

A defence bidder should have the same kind of hand as he might hold for an opening bid. He is grounded for sound opening bids he is in a position to learn defence bids easily.

If he knows what it takes for one opening bid or one or two or three, he has a way of showing such a hand if he is defender. The only difference is that he does not use the same words to show it.

However, there is one type of hand now shown by an opener that a defender can show what I guess is a defender must show all kinds of hands an opener can show and also a hand opener can not show.

What is this hand a defender can show that an opener does not attempt to show? It is a hand that has tricks enough but not quite big enough cards for a sound opening one bid.

How does defender show such a hand? Simply by bidding his own suit after his opponent has opened the bidding. Such a bid is known as a simple overcall; simple meaning without a jump.

♠A K Q 6 5
♦10 6 4 2

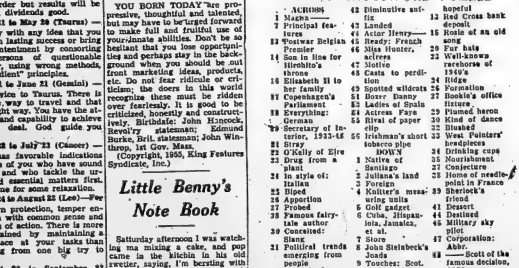
As defender you make a simple overcall of one spade. Note that you have a could of five tricks that an opener would show with a bid of one, But you lack the high cards for an opening.



Thus, if somebody else had not opened the bidding your hand is not strong enough for an opening one bid. As a defender, however, your bid in a suit does not promise what it takes for an opening.

Fear not that you will be misunderstood by players of another system. All systems do the same thing if they are good.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 12, 1955

March 22 to April 20 (Aries) — Important influences evident that can be most helpful for a middle-of-the-week day. You may have to exercise extra patience and work harder but results will be worth it, dividends good.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Don't toy with any idea that you can reach lasting success or bring inner contentment by consorting with persons of questionable character, using wrong methods, or "expedient" principles.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Heed advice to Taurus. There is only one way to travel and that is the right way. You have the attributes and capability to achieve a great deal. God guide you rightly.

June 22 to July 21 (Cancer) — Today has favorable indications for those of you who have sound motives and who tackle the urgent and essential matters first. Make time for some relaxation.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — For your own protection, temper enthusiasm with common sense and keenness of action. There is more to be gained by maintaining a steady pace at your tasks than switching from one big try to another.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — The day is rich in possibilities for intelligent and clever management, for improving your talents and gathering worthwhile knowledge. Smile, have faith, no matter the weather.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Charity and forbearance prompt us to do big things in an humble way, not boasting or "showing off" but quietly proceeding with duties, accepting even extra responsibilities with chess, good will.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — You as all or us need more than technical knowledge and training to properly handle the needs and problems in everyday life. Right spiritual and mental development is also necessary.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — You have the natural ability and good humor that can, when put to full use, add fresh interest, inspiration to whatever you are doing. Be honestly ambitious, always motivated by good.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — You can make this day productive, gainful merely by handling your initiative know-how quietly, without strain. Even in seemingly small tasks there is often important reward.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Steadiness of purpose and effort stressed if you are to get desired results from both duties and personal matters. Familiar activities, essential daily tasks, home interests favored.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — This may be an exciting day but it can also be a frustrating one, with sound matters, essential business and work interests sponsored. Showy gains are not always proof of true advancement.

YOU BORN TODAY are progressive, thoughtful and talented, but may have to be urged forward to take full and fruitful use of your innate abilities. Don't be so hesitant that you lose opportunities and perhaps stay in the background when you should be out front marketing ideas, products, etc. Do not fear ridicule or criticism; the doers of this world recognize these must be ridden over fearlessly. It is good to be articulated, honestly and constructively. Birthdate: John Hancock Beverly statesman; Edmund Burke, Brit. statesman; John Winthrop, 1st Gov. Mass.

Little Benny's Note Book

Saturday afternoon I was watching ma mixing a cake, and pop was in the kitchin in his old sweater, saying, I'm berating with energy, I think I'll put it to work by doing something useful around the house and incidentally saving some money. Half of the high cost of living is due to the low expenditure of energy, he said.

Goodness, William, what are you thinking of doing? ma said and pop said, Well, I might put another shelf in the hall closit.

For land sakes what a gassly idea, ma said. Your hands would be a mess of splinters and the house would be a shambles of sawdust, and after the shelf was up you'd find it was on an impossible giant with the ends of nales sticking through to catch on things. The strap on the vacuum cleaner is wobbly. I can fix it myself, but maybe you'd like to attend to it, William, she said.

That's child's play, pop said. We've got a lot of left-over paint in the garage, and you've been wanting to have the kitchen repainted. I'll save a wopping painters bill, he said, and, ma said, But I'm busy in here, and besides, you'd have my kitchin spoiled like a proverbial leopard, and you'd be so covered with paint yourself that you'd have to take a bath to get it off.

I may have to foot in pure turpentine. The silver needs polishing before our dinner party Thersday, I'm sure you could do a good job on the knives and forks with an ounce of concentration, William, she said.

Yes gods, what a thought. I'd be a wreck, pop said. I think I'll take myself out for a nice bracing walk, he said.

The result being he took a nap instead.

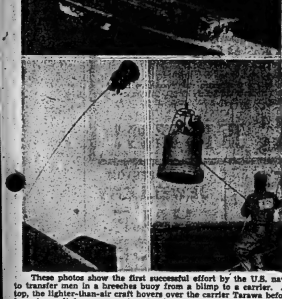
IN HONOR BURNS

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — Scotsmen from every continent are headed for Edinburgh to honor the memory of Robert Burns, their national poet. A festival opens here this week to honor the poet who died in 1796. It is being sponsored by the Burns Federation, a group which includes 367 Burns clubs and Scottish societies throughout the world, with a membership of more than 50,000.

PLENTIFUL SUPPLY



These men and hundreds like them who depend on the fish of Great Slave lake for their livelihood have no worry about the future. Scientists at the fisheries research board annual meeting in Ottawa said the lake will continue its annual output of 9,000,000 pounds for years to come. The lake is the fifth largest in North America. (CP Photo).

LOADING GRAIN

SUCCESSFUL BLIMP-TO-BOAT TRANSFER

These photos show the first successful effort by the U.S. navy to transfer men in a breeches buoy from a blimp to a carrier. At top, the lighter-than-air craft hovers over the carrier Tarawa before lowering relief crewmen aboard. Three men are shown (bottom, left), dangling 300 feet up in the basket suspended by wires from the after-end of the blimp's cabin. The relief crew (bottom, right), comes in for a "landing" on the flight deck of the flattop after being lowered from the airship. Men are lowered from the blimp on lines connecting them with the carrier.—Central Press Canadian.

CAMPBELLFORD

Truck Skids Into Hydro Pole

Campbellford—Slippery streets were believed to be the cause of an accident which occured on Dundas Ave., South over the week-end, when a truck skidded into a public utilities pole, snapping it off.

Driver of the truck was Joseph Toth, 26, of R.R. 1 Campbellford. He was driving east on River St. and stopped at the intersection of Dundas. Unable to get his truck started forward on the slippery street, he backed up, made a run at the intersection, turned left on Dundas and skidded completely around. The tail gate of the dump truck he was driving struck the pole, snapping it off near the base. Only damage to the truck was a dent in the tailgate. Chief Constable Rose investigated.

WORKMAN BURNED

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Janis Jakijan, 47, of nearby Weller Park, suffered burns to his legs and hand Saturday when a blowtorch ignited the tar-covered roof he was repairing.

Neighbors smothered the fire in Jakijan's grease-covered clothing. He is in hospital in fair condition, officials said.

HEADED HOME

Eight of the 10 crew members of the Newfoundland coastal vessel Studera—Prince II, rescued off Bermuda rest in Montreal on their way back to Newfoundland. The liner Queen of Bermuda picked the men off their sinking vessel.

SET JET ENDURANCE RECORD OF 47 HOURS IN AIR

The four-man crew of a U.S. Stratojet bomber have their feet on the ground again at Fairford Royal Air Force base, England, after setting a new endurance record for jet aircraft. The B-47 shuttled between Britain and North Africa for 47 hours, 35 minutes, covering 21,000 miles. Attached to the Strategic Air Command, the craft was refueled in mid-air by flying tankers. The crewmen are (left to right): Col. David A. Burchinal, Washington, Pa.; Major Forrest A. McCoy, Torrington, Wyo.; Capt. Stephen Franko, Struthers, O., and Major Pat H. Earhart, San Antonio, Tex.—Central Press Canadian.

Parole System May Be Changed After Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP)—Changes may be recommended this year in Canada's parole system, now being studied by a committee of experts headed by Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada.

The committee's report may be given to Justice Minister Garson during the current session of Parliament. However, it is unlikely the recommendations will be announced at the time. Such reports of committees appointed by cabinet ministers rarely are made public.

In the 15 months it has worked the committee has visited penal institutions and studied the probation systems of the United Kingdom and Belgium.

OPINIONS STILL COMING

Submissions still are coming to it from provincial attorneys-general or magistrates responsible for penal institutions, prison wardens, prisoner rehabilitation societies and penitentiary commissioners.

"The report will be given to the justice minister as soon as all these views have been studied," Mr. Justice Fauteux said in an interview. The committee will hold hearings but whether they will be public has not yet been decided.

He said the committee found the month-long visit to Britain last August "very instructive." Some advanced features of the British penal and probationary systems however might not be applicable to Canada.

Other members of the committee are Joseph McCulley, former deputy commissioner of penitentiaries and now warden of Hart House at the University of Toronto; J. Alex Edmison, assistant principal of Queen's University and former president of the Canadian Penal Association, and William B. Common, Ontario chief prosecutor.

EXAMINING APPLICANTS

Informants say the committee may possibly recommend establishment of a parole board or boards to interview prisoners who seek tickets of leave. This work now is done by officers of the justice department's remission service. They might recommend more liberal allowances for good behavior. Prisoners' time off for good behavior now is six days a month for the first year and 10 days a month for succeeding years. Thus a man sentenced to 15 years will get out in 11 years, four months and 20 days if he earns all his time off.

Persons serving life sentences usually are freed after serving between 10 and 20 years.

Problems facing the committee include the divided jurisdiction between federal and provincial authorities on penal matters. Some provinces have modern penal systems which include prison farms, technical schools for young offenders, and other types of institutions. Other provinces have only county jails where young and old prisoners are kept.

CAMPBELLFORD

Three Children Slightly Hurt In Car Crash

Campbellford — Three children were slightly injured on Saturday when two cars collided on an icy road in Percy Township.

A car driven by Thomas E. Duff, 45, of Percy Township, was travelling east on the Wilson Settlement road and was in collision with a car driven by Clinton, Thain, 29, also of Percy Township travelling west. Thain tried to turn out to allow the Duff auto to pass, but could not steer his car out of the icy ruts in the roadway. The Thain auto slid into the left front of the Duff car, doing about $250 damage to the other car, about $100 damage resulted to the front and left of the Thain auto. Eight-year-old Edward Duff received a cut on the forehead, and two children riding in the Thain car, James and Rosalid Thain, aged three and two respectively, received slight facial cuts and bruises, but none of the injuries was of a serious nature.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H.® The price is only $1.19 a tube including an applicator. The cause to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember — if not entirely satisfied — your money will be refunded promptly. *Trade Mark

Electoral Reform Proposed By Mendes-France Helpful

By ALLAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARIS (CP) — Proposals for electoral reform announced by Premier Mendes-France look like a significant opening move in the developing battle of French internal politics.

With the debate on German rearmament out of the way, party lines are being tentatively drawn for what may emerge as a protracted parliamentary struggle between the traditional right, coalescing in opposition to the prime minister, and a new non-Communist left rallying to his support.

It is freely stated in France that P. M. F., as he is widely called, is a doomed man politically. His opponents, principally right-wing Conservatives and members of the Roman Catholic party Mouvement Republican Populaire who have largely governed France since the end of World War, expect to bring about his fall soon after the parliamentary recess.

Some of the premier's own supporters say the only hope is for him to be defeated now and come back strong in preparation for next year's elections.

POLITICAL CONTRADICTION

It is here that the proposed electoral reforms may be significant. If approved by the French assembly, their effect would be to substitute a single - constituency system for the present combination of proportional representation and the majority system, thus placing greater emphasis on individual deputies and less on parties.

To an outside observer, the most baffling feature of the present French situation is the apparent contradiction between the prime minister's popularity in the country, which nobody denies, and his lack of support in the assembly. It may be asked how parliament can flout the people's will without danger of reprisals at the polls.

The answer, up to now, has been that the present complicated system prevents the voter from penalizing flagrant deputies. Instead of casting his ballot for one candidate, he has to choose a number from lists put up by the parties. The return of the pre-war method, known as le scrutin d'arrondissement, would restore the old emphasis on individuals.

CAUSES CONFUSION

On a recent journey in France, this correspondent spoke to many persons of differing political sympathies who insisted that the lack of a sensible method of voting lay at the root of the country's troubles. Their hankering for the old "scrutin d'arrondissement" was repeatedly emphasized.

Whatever reforms may result, not all the premier's followers share the general gloom about his early fall. The left-wing l'Express, launching a series of interviews with the editor Andre Malraux, sees hope for the future in a possible new alignment of political forces drawing inspiration from such figures as Malraux, Mendes-France and Francois Mauriac, another author described by l'Express as a "leader of the Christian left-wing."

Such a party or grouping would be leftist but non-Communist, a combination that some observers feel has long been one of France's great needs. The lack of such a force has led many persons reluctantly to support the Communist party as the only "effective" way of registering dissent.

FEATHER WEIGHT

Vote to Strike

BRANTFORD (CP)—Members of Local 397 of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) employed by Brantford Coach and Body Ltd., voted Monday night in favor of strike action to support demands for a new working agreement with the company for some 180 employees.

Union officials said the vote was 96 per cent in favor of striking if agreement cannot be reached. No deadline was set and union representatives hope to meet with management today in an effort to renew negotiations.

HAVE CHICKEN POX

HAMILTON (CP)—Thirty Indian and Eskimo children were to have arrived in Hamilton Tuesday for treatment at the sanatorium.

Instead, most of them will be receiving treatment at the immigration hostel in Quebec City for chicken pox.

Mines Minister Says Fortunes Of PC's at Low Ebb

TORONTO (CP)—Mines Minister Kelly of Ontario said Monday night the fortunes of the national Progressive Conservative party are at what is probably an all-time low ebb.

He told a meeting of the Toronto and District Young Progressive Conservative Otteneil that the federal party needs a program that will appeal to all Canadians.

He said the party's stand on natural gas was the type of thing that was needed. He said George Drew, national Progressive Conservative leader, was the first to favor the northern route for the natural gas pipeline from Alberta.

Warrants Issued

MONTREAL (CP)—Judge Rene Thebergs Monday issued warrants for the arrest of six Italians and one Canadian in connection with the smuggling of Italian immigrants into Canada before 1953. Two men, Gustave D'Errico and Pascale Petrocca, already have been fined in the case, which drew headlines when first revealed here in 1953.

Names of those covered in the warrants was not disclosed.

NEGRO APPROVED

WASHINGTON (AP)—The board of directors of the National Press Club voted Monday night to approve election to club membership of Lucile B. Lautier, correspondent of the Atlanta Daily World and the National Negro Press Association. Lautier would be the first Negro ever to belong to the club, a social organization of newspaper men in the capital.

Whitney Man Is Missing

WHITNEY, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police Monday organized a search party to look along a 100-mile stretch of highway leading south from this village through Algonquin Park for Keith Hamilton, 25-year-old electrical contractor.

Hamilton was last seen Wednesday on his way home from a business trip to Toronto. A Whitney resident told police he passed Hamilton's car between Cobalt and Peterborough.

15 DEAD, 18 MISSING IN AIR ACCIDENTS

Venezuelan Plane, Machine-Gunning San Jose, Downed

Three Bursts Aimed at Home Of President Jose Figueres

Telegram Only Way To Get Phone

GLEN COVE, N. Y. (CP)—Fred Copeland was alarmed Tuesday night to receive a telegram from a friend in nearby Manhasset asking him to phone him at once.

Seeing the family telephone from one of his teen-age daughters, he called his friend. "Get your family off that phone," said the friend. "I've been trying to reach you for two days."

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—An air raider described as "a Venezuelan pursuit plane which came from Nicaragua" machine-gunned San Jose today and then was shot down by anti-aircraft fire, the civil guard announced.

The raider, which looked like an American-built P-47 Thunderbolt of Second World War vintage, buzzed the downtown area of this capital city and loosed machine-gun bursts at a residential sector.

This came as government troops battled in the north to clear a rebel band from the Villa Quesada area, about midway between San Jose and the Costa Rican-Nicaraguan frontier.

Three bursts were aimed into the section surrounding the Costa Rican White House, the home of President José Figueres.

The plane was climbing rapidly as it passed over the San José airport control tower. A lumbering DC-3 of the Costa Rican Airlines, armed with machine guns in its side doors, took off in pursuit.

FAILS TO EVER

A civil guard communique said the raider was downed by anti-aircraft artillery and fell in the Los Abogados river about 100 miles northwest of San Jose.

Shortly the plane approached San Jose from the south, the command said it came from a Nicaraguan airfield.

The command recommends that the inhabitants remain at home and keep calm," it said, "because open anti-aircraft defenses will give a good account of attacking planes."

(Costa Rica's delegate to the UN was informed from San Jose that invading forces captured two small port cities on the Pacific coast. The delegate, Ambassador Don Jamin Nunez, identified the cities as Puerto Soley, near the Nicaraguan border, and Puerto Cortez, in the southern part of Costa Rica. He said also invading planes had machine-gunned Turrialba and Cartago.)

LAUNCH ATTACK

There was an earlier report that government troops had launched a dawn attack on the rebel forces that seized the Villa Quesada area. The government declared, however, it announced the rebel force—variously estimated between 400 and 700 men—were retreating and withdrawing slowly to the heart of the town where government troops bolstered by ammunition flown in by a Costa Rican plane from the U. S.-controlled Panama canal zone.

There was no immediate mention of casualties.

President Jose Figueres' government had pressed its offensive early today to quell the revolt at Villa Quesada, a Costa Rican town at the edge of a wide jungle belt along Costa Rica's frontier with Nicaragua.

Villa Quesada and some nearby villages were taken over Tuesday by minor forces of the government spokesman described as "pressure from Nicaragua." A small detachment of the civil guard there was overwhelmed.

The 33-year-old native of Poland was killed when a car ran over him while he was changing a tire on his automobile. The car didn't stop.

A man in a nearby bulling told police he heard the sound of the impact and ran outside to see only two vehicles, a bus and a late-model, grey Chevrolet, pulling away. Police said tire prints on the body indicated he was struck by the car.

All Parties Join To Speed Aid To Jobless

Increased Payments Forecast This Week

OTTAWA (CP) — Larger and longer unemployment insurance payments for some winter jobless may be in effect this week.

The Commons is clearing the way for their adoption—with cooperation of all parties — and the government hoped for passage before the weekend, retroactive to last Monday.

The improvements are included in a bill to amend the Unemployment Insurance Act, introduced Tuesday by Labor Minister Gregg. It provides for the first measure passed at the parliamentary session that opened Friday.

The Commons spent 90 minutes discussing the proposal, then resumed the debate, started Monday, on the speech from the throne and on two non-confidence motions against the government by the Progressive Conservative and CCF parties. Both motions criticize government handling of unemployment.

INCREASE BENEFITS

The unemployment insurance measure will increase the amount and duration of benefits and supplementary benefits paid between Jan. 1 and March 15 to persons normally qualified for benefit but whose regular period has run out.

The supplement have been in effect since 1951 on a basis of between 67 and 81 per cent of regular benefits.

Under the bill today this percentage is to 100. It also establishes a minimum period of 60 days—or 10 weeks—for weekly benefits, compared with a minimum of 18 now.

Depending on the recipients' wages, the new scales will range between $4.20 and $17 a week, with dependents granted $4.80-$24 for those with dependents.

The estimated additional cost, if winter unemployment reaches last winter's level, is $20,000,000 a year. This year it was $12,000,000 a year ago. The excess all will come out of the $360,000,000 unemployment Insurance Fund; there will be no increase in employee - employer contributions.

OPPOSITION COMMENT

While the measure was welcomed by all opposition parties, spokesmen, for the three groups said it should have been introduced much earlier to provide more jobs. It was described as a stopgap which would not bring the basic solution of raising employment.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC—Hamilton West) said the bill "is only for her party, and George Hahn (SC—New Westminster) said it should have been introduced and passed as a sitting last fall so it would be in effect by now.

Mr. Gregg replied he doubted this would have been more useful than adopting the extensions now.

He also rejected suggestions from Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) and Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon-Northwest Territories) for setting the cut-off time for the over-all period of benefits at April 15. He said the actuarial soundness of the insurance fund must be preserved.

Student Leader at Quaker College Slays Colleague, Result of Pranks

SWARTHMORE, Pa. (AP) — A cloak of shocked calm settled over this Quaker college town today while police delved into the series of events that ended in a slaying of a 19-pound shot-put ball against his door, the use of home-made bombs and the finding of a pistol in his bed out a window.

Shortly after the initial shock of the shooting had worn off, reported Dean Everett Hunt, of the college learn Bechtel had a record of mental disorder and that he had been treated briefly in a state hospital four years ago.

Detective Earl Allen said Bechtel told him he felt other students were persecuting him and that he considered Strozier the ringleader of the group.

Strozier, 20-year-old junior from Wilmington, Del., was killed Monday night when the shot-put ball crashed through the door of his room and struck him in the head.

Bechtel, 21, was arraigned on a charge of murder and held in $25,000 bail for a hearing Jan. 19.

Allen said Bechtel told him he had made the bombs and had fired a shot from a window of his room at Strozier's door.

Allen said Bechtel told him he had thrown the pistol out the window after the shooting.

Bechtel's parents were notified of the arrest by telephone.

Allen said Bechtel told him he had been "picked on" by other students.

Hunt said Bechtel had been a student here since 1951 and had been "a good student."

RCAF Rescue Crew Bucks Heavy Waves Off Cobourg, Probing Report Plane Down

TRENTON (Special) — Three members of an RCAF Search and Rescue team are bucking heavy waves in Lake Ontario at Cobourg in a 15-foot open boat in an investigation of an oil slick on the lake off Lone Point, 15 miles east of Cobourg harbor.

An unconfirmed report is that an aircraft plunged into the lake about 200 yards offshore some time early this afternoon.

"If there is an airplane down there definitely is not one of ours," said S/L Roy Woods, public relations officer at Trenton, in a telephone interview at 1.30.

Enquiries have been sent to Buffalo and Cleveland about possible missing aircraft.

Three years ago, a passenger plane with 23 persons aboard made a forced landing in a field about five miles east of the Lone Point after the pilot lost his bearings in a storm. There were no injuries.

An RCAF Otter observation plane dispatched to the scene early this morning reported an oil slick in the lake, A Dakota fleet aircraft circled the area to direct the rescue boat and at 1.30 an RCAF Search and Rescue Expediter had taken over the task of directing the search from the air.

Air-to-ground and air-to-boat radio contact is being maintained.

Slushy shore conditions and rapidly-worsened launching of the RCAF's 13-foot outboard motorboat near the site of the suspected crash and the launching had to be made in Cobourg harbor more than four miles west.

In the boat are Cpl. Smith, Cpl. Hall, Killoran and A/C Joe Rooney. They are equipped with grappling hooks and have more than 100 feet in length. They hope to be able to determine whether or not a plane crashed at the site of the oil slick.

Early reports of a crash drew immediately to mind that of Lac Cas' Point. No bodies and no wreckage have come to the surface.

Silence Cloaks Fate of Ship Leaking in Stormy Atlantic

HALIFAX (CP)—Silence today cloaked the fate of the leaking British freighter La Orilla, leaking and listing in the stormy North Atlantic since 24 miles south of St. John's, Nfld.

Capt. J. L. Bradford, master of the 2,241-ton merchantman, radioed Tuesday that gales and giant seas punched a hole below the waterline and water was pouring into No. 2 hold.

He said the ship had a 12-degree list and there was a danger her cargo would shift.

Two American military ships, the largest freighter and a Halifax tug rushed to the La Orilla's aid, but reports were vague as to the rescue crew decided to abandon ship.

Messages from Capt. Bradford made no mention of leaving the ship.

The 446-foot La Orilla, launched in 1942 at Sunderland, England, is owned by Burns Marks Ltd., of London. At various times she has sailed as the Cheltenham and Empire Envoy.

Hammarskjold Flying Home To Report to UN on Mission

By GENE KRAMER

TOKYO (AP)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold flew homeward over the Pacific today on his way to report to the United Nations on his efforts to free 11 Americans and other UN prisoners held by the Chinese Communists.

He is due in New York Thursday. The date for his report has not been announced.

Hammarskjold and his party stopped in Tokyo less than an hour on the trip from Peiping to New York.

He has refused steadily to give any indication of the results of his four talks with Red China's Premier Chou En-lai, but a UN headquarters, a high aide said the Swedish diplomat made progress. However, he advised giving the situation "a little time."

The aide said Hammarskjold has not yet decided whether he would be identified, said:

"He has made progress toward the goal set for him by the General Assembly—to 'make, by the means and methods best suited to him, cautioning and unremitting efforts' for the release of the 11 fliers and other UN command personnel still detained.

"The trouble in Peiping were useful toward this end. They established a basis upon which further progress can be made."

The aide said diplomatic officials said the mission apparently has only finished the first step toward the negotiations for men held by the Chinese Reds.

OTTAWA (CP)—An opposition trade and commerce member from a western Ontario cheese - producing area Tuesday lamented importation of New Zealand cheese to Canada.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) told the Commons during the throne speech debate he does not understand a statement Monday by Trade Minister Gordon that the government no longer considers it necessary to hold an Ottawa Agreement arrangement to keep-its cheese off the Canadian market.

The agreement, a pact made with New Zealand early in 1932 when Canada had a big cheese surplus and few market outlets for it.)

"The circumstances under which the request was made have changed," Mr. Howe said. "New Zealand was pressing to be relieved from that verbal arrangement and I think we ought to be in a very good ground for insisting that it be continued."

However, Mr. Nesbitt said cheese stocks in Canada now total about 46,000,000 pounds, up approximately 1,000,000 pounds from last year. At the same time 2,250,000 pounds of New Zealand cheese was en route to Canada.

"I recall that during the last election campaign the minister of commerce informed the dairy farmers in my part of the country that they could eat their own cheese," he said. "Now he adds injury to insult when, in effect, he says they can't eat it, they will have to eat New Zealand cheese as well."

"I fail to understand how the minister of trade and commerce can change his mind as situations has changed or how he can intimate, the position we are in at present time."

Canadian cheese exporters increased their own efforts in 1953 were able to sell 10,000,000 pounds of cheese to the United Kingdom. None was sold in 1954.

"I cannot understand," Mr. Nesbitt said, "why the importation of this cheese by apparently the Canadian government-controlled agency, escaped foaming waves that the present circumstances of such great surpluses of cheese in this country."

Canada might have to import New Zealand products to maintain balance of payments in trade between the two countries. But the government could have been more careful in permitting import of cheese at the present time and allowing the verbal arrangement with New Zealand to end.

Frost and Allan Deny Toll Roads Being Considered

Michigan Not Pressing For Action by Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost and Highways Minister Allan today denied that toll roads are being considered by the Ontario government.

It was reported Tuesday night that toll highways are being "seriously considered" and are "inevitable."

"This is definitely not correct," said Mr. Frost.

He said the government has an open mind on the subject and views from time to time the extension of toll highways in the United States.

Mr. Allan said:

"As far as I know, the subject is not being actively considered by the government."

The premier said there is a segment of the Ontario Good Roads Association which favors toll roads. This group suggested toll roads be studied by the government.

SOME FAVOR TOLLS

Elsewhere it was learned that several interests favor the idea of auxiliary favored tolls. But this group has been told privately that the Ontario government is against tolls.

Some minor officials in the highways department also are reported to feel that tolls may be the ultimate in financing the cost of modern fourlane highways.

The rumor that the state of Michigan is putting "friendly pressure" on the Ontario highways department for introduction of tolls also was denied by the premier and Mr. Allan. "It is not supported by any state," he said.

Mr. Allan was out-given for the need of toll roads was that Ontario will not be able to afford to construct building super-highways. It now has 250 miles of four-lane, controlled-access highway.

But the premier said gasoline and licensing tax, subdivision of $110,000,000 a year, will be sufficient for the building program for some years to come.

J. L. Zoller, highways financial comptroller, said the report that super-highways cost $1,000,000 a mile was far out of line.

The four-lane roads cost between $500,000 and $600,000," he said.

Fit to Stand Trial

He is charged with the shooting of Stanley Padgham, 21, of Hamilton last Nov. 28. The shooting occurred in a home where Campbell and Padgham were playing with her mother.

The issue of whether Campbell was mentally fit to stand trial was raised by defence counsel Victor Carrano after the accused jury had returned a true bill.

The trial continues.

2 Planes Collide Near Cincinnati Killing 15 Persons

73 Jump from Flying Boxcars; Two RAF Planes Are Missing

STEWART BASE, Tenn. (AP)—Engine blazes in two United States Air Force C-119 Flying Boxcars marred a paratrooper airlift to Alaska Tuesday with a flaming crash here and a forced landing in Montana.

A total of 68 paratroopers and three airmen parachuted to safety from the two planes, but two of the crew of five, which crashed—presumably the pilot and co-pilot—still were missing today in an air force investigation probed through the smoking wreckage.

Thirty-five airborne infantrymen and their crew members jumped when an engine burst into flames shortly after the twin-engine craft took off here.

Only hours earlier, 33 paratroopers had used their chutes when an engine caught fire on their plane near Miles City, Mont. The pilot, Capt. T. G. Johnson, piloted the plane to the Miles City airport without incident.

The two Boxcars were part of a fleet of 80 ferrying 3,000 airborne troops from Fort Campbell, Ky., to Alaska—one of the largest movements for Operation Snowbird, a winter exercise. Fort Campbell troops and both jumps were members of the 502nd Airborne Infantry Regiment.

The crash injured seriously three miles from the base. Witnesses said the plane spun nose-first into the earth, then burst into "a great mushroom of fire and smoke."

Lieut. James Reynolds, platoon leader of the paratrooper aboard, said his men thought it was a drill when the crew chief ordered them to prepare to jump. The men followed briefing instructions exactly and 30 seconds later the passenger compartment was empty.

"I don't know what happened to the pilot, but he did a good job," said Reynolds. "He gave us all the time we needed."

The crippled bailed out at 8,000 feet and came down in near-freezing weather over an area of broken timber, rocks and across. Most landed on the base.

TWO PLANES MISSING

LONDON (CP) — Two four-engined RAF bombers carrying 16 men disappeared over the wind-whipped Atlantic on a routine night sortie on practice search flights, it was announced today. It is feared the aircraft, which left Britain at 1 p.m. EST Tuesday, crashed in the sea.

The Shackleton bombers left the St. Eval RAF base in Cornwall early Tuesday afternoon. The last contact message from one of the planes came at 1 p. m. Coastguard stations and lighthouses were close together.

BURLINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Fifteen persons were believed to have been killed today in a mid-air crash between two large airplanes several miles southwest of the greater Cincinnati airport. The airport is 12 miles southwest of Cincinnati.

One of the planes was a Trans World Airlines ship en route to Dayton, Ohio, was Cleveland. The other plane was not identified immediately, but was believed to be carrying 62 persons.

The other plane, a Douglas DC-3, was understood to have taken off from Battle Creek, Mich., with 48 persons aboard, bound for Cincinnati.

Sturgis, Mich., and co-pilot Edward Agner, Battle Creek, aboard. The information came in a telephone call to the airport at Battle Creek.

LIST NO CANADIANS

Paul Smith, Columbus, TWA passenger representative, said it was the line's first domestic accident since Dec. 1, 1944.

Civil Aeronautics Authority control tower at the greater Cincinnati airport said it had no knowledge of the crash, the former plane having taken off before the other.

John Hedrick, operator of a flying service and one of the first men to fly over the scene, said he doubted there were any survivors. He said the bodies lying about a 200-yard area.

OWNERS IDENTIFIED

Lacy Smith, Burlington, Mich., the National Carbon Coated Paper Co. of Sturgis, Mich., identified the DC-3 plane as belonging to that firm which took off at 7 a. m. EST from Bettiger Field at Battle Creek.

The plane was to have proceeded to Lexington, Ky., to pick up Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Van Lennep, wealthy Detroit race horse owners, and then to Miami, the former Frances Dodge, is an officer in the firm which owned the plane.

The plane then was scheduled to carry the Van Lennegs to Del Mar, Calif.

Both Werkhaven and Agger are survived by wives and two children. They were employed as test pilots on bomber projects at a Sturgis airport outside Detroit during the Second World War.

PLAN JET SHIP

LONDON (Reuters)—Plans for converting the world's largest passenger ship into the world's first all-jet ship were announced Tuesday by the Cunard Steam Ship Co. Its owner's engines will be replaced by a 5,500-horsepower gas turbine.

Snowplows Clear Away Seaweed Deposited by Gale on Highways

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A savage sea storm that slapped dozens of wharves into rubble, appeared to be settling down today but not before it left the worst coastal mess in living memory.

The jagged rock and rocky coasts of eastern and southern Newfoundland fishermen are trying to untangle the useless twisted timbers that once were fishing stages and wharves. In other outports only stout posts show where wharves stood. At seven buildings have been chewed to matchwood by the storm's waves and reports are still coming in.

But not every fishing village was demolished. Many, for unknown reasons, escaped foaming waves that reduced their neighbors' wharves and highways in other places.

Five stretches of highway were washed away during the sea storm which reached its peak Monday. At least two washouts occurred on the railway line, and an eastbound express was held up for more than four hours Tuesday as workmen filled the gap.

At the entrance to St. John's harbor, two freighters, the Nova Port and Bedford II rode out the giant swells for two days before slipping into the narrow entrance and safety Tuesday night.

Both ships were in Port Harbor, in Conception bay, when the storm struck. Waves reached 100 feet across the sloping coastline.

The building—with most of its stood treasure—was eventually sucked out to sea and torn to bits.

Five small fishing villages in Ferryland, on the east coast, met a similar fate. Five wharves in the community went with them.

Highways, bordering the coast in the eastern part of the province were strewn with undersea rubble Tuesday, and even sections of highway disappeared away the seaweed, timber, rocks and trash that was deposited by the mountainous seas the angry water.

In some places rocks 10 inches in diameter were bounced on the breakwaters, snapping off chunking and scaling up on the highway. Huge jagged pieces of pavement torn from a 60-foot stretch of destroyed highway, were heaved across nearby railway tracks.

No one was reported injured,

Mayor Proposes Reversion To Committees of Whole But Decision Is Postponed

An amendment to the present procedure by-law which, if passed, would see a reversion to the former principles of committees of the whole will be placed before city council by Mayor John Both.

The proposed amended procedure by-law sees the first introduction to council last night at a special meeting called to make appointments to the various civic boards and to consider two by-laws, but the by-law was read only after an attempt to block its introduction on technical grounds was turned down by council.

Alderman Ralph Graham rose to a point of order pointing out that under the procedure by-law under which council was now operating before a by-law can be dealt with there must be a week's notice of the intended motion.

"The one week's notice has not been given," stated Alderman Graham.

"We can deal with the by-law if we have suspension of the rules," replied Mayor Both.

APPEALS TO COUNCIL

Alderman Graham still objected, however, and he appealed to council as a body to settle the matter.

Alderman Argue declared that before he could vote for suspension of the rules to have the new procedure by-law introduced he wanted to know what the proposed changes were. "I'd like to know exactly what we are getting into," he said.

The mayor stated there were several changes proposed but the main change was a return to the committee of the whole system.

Alderman Graham returned to the council as a whole acting on every committee's report to the present procedure of having separate committees.

There followed a spirited discussion on whether the new by-law could be properly introduced until finally Mayor Both appealed to the city solicitor.

Solicitor J. A. Pringle noted that council members were masters of their own procedure and could suspend the rules if they wished.

Alderman Forrester supported Alderman Graham in his objection to the by-law being introduced on the grounds that it was contrary to the present procedure by-law. "How can it be introduced without a week's notice?" he asked.

NEEDS CAREFUL CONSIDERATION

On the solicitor's advice that the rules could be suspended to allow the by-law's introduction Alderman Moxam declared that if the proposed by-law called for a return to all committees meeting and acting on each committee it would need careful consideration.

He noted that he had been a member of the special committee which about five years ago had given lengthy consideration before recommending the setting up of separate committee. The committee came to the conclusion that the committee of the whole system was cumbersome.

"I admit that under the system of a committee of the whole all members of council know what is going on all the time, but actually it is not possible for all members of council to know all the city's business. The committee at that time felt it was advisable to have separate committees."

He went on to point out that the system of the present separate committees was not gone into haphazardly and that able council members had given it careful consideration.

URGES POSTPONING DECISION

He suggested that the proposed amendments not be considered at this time as it would be extremely difficult for new councillors to realize so early in the year the tremendous amount of work which committees must do.

He went on to point out that under the committee of the whole system aldermen were subject to "pressure groups" with result that votes were often changed between the time of the committee meeting and the regular meeting of council.

Again stressing the importance of the matter receiving careful consideration Alderman Moxam asked how council could decide in five minutes what it had taken five years for experienced councillors to decide.

Alderman Graham again rose to speak on the matter but was ruled out of order by the Mayor who pointed out the alderman had already spoken once on the subject.

VOTE TO SUSPEND RULES

Alderman Tice seconded Alderman Moxam's motion for suspension of the rules to allow the by-law to be read a second time. It would not approve of the by-law. The motion was carried 10-3 on a recorded vote asked by Alderman Hyde.

Approving the motion were Aldermen Clarke, David, Granduge, Hyde, Keegan, Moxam, Tice, Cabe, Safe, Smith, Tice and Mayor Both. Opposing were Aldermen Argue, Forrester, Graham, Hyde and Keegan.

Solicitor Pringle-prompter then read the proposed by-law, taking well over half an hour to read aloud its closely typewritten pages. Among the amendments proposed in the by-law were that the committee of the whole system and another giving the mayor power to preside in conducting council meetings.

Alderman Graham observed the mayor following the by-law closely as it was being read by the clerk. "Council is being led by the nose on it."

But many of the council members felt they would prefer to have a by-law calling for so many amendments to the present procedure.

Alderman Safe said he for one would like to see the present procedure by-law although he might feel able to do so on certain specific matters.

DIFFICULT TO VOTE AT ONCE

Alderman David said he had been glad to hear the by-law read as it would be difficult to vote on the matter at once.

"Up to a point it may be desirable for every council member to be familiar with all the work of council but I doubt if they would be able to vote at once on everything I would like to see what is done in other municipalities," he said.

Alderman Keegan noted that council may get "bogged down" under the present system but agreed he was tempted to keep up with the business of all committees. Alderman David explained that he was concerned with the appointment of council committees. Then if it was not satisfactory council could consider the proposed change.

Alderman Moxam said he also was concerned that the new by-law before voting on it.

VOTE NEXT MEETING

In view of the opposition shown by council members against voting on the by-law Mayor Both said if council did not vote on the by-law at this meeting it would be asked to do so at the next regular meeting.

Referring to the change proposed by the by-law in returning to the committee of the whole system, Mayor Both said he believed such a system for the Belleville council was inferior in its thinking to those in other cities "two or three times our size."

"They do not have long drawn out meetings. I think that it is not a case of the amount of work done but a case of getting to the procedure."

He went on to note that under the present system of separate committees aldermen are frequently being asked "Have you heard of this or that," while under the proposed change everyone would know what is going on in council.

He expressed the opinion that the change would simplify the work of council in that it would be in a position to hide anything.

Replying to the objection I am not asking council to vote an this matter. I will do so at the next meeting," he said.

SAFE READY TO VOTE

Alderman Safe again asked what the special changes in the by-law were and was told by Mayor Both the main change was that in reference to the committees.

"If that is the only change then I am prepared to vote," replied the alderman. "Council will remember that last year I voted to change for the committees of the whole system."

But Alderman Argue declared the suggested change was a major one of much importance and should be dealt with at a special meeting of council. He stated that all councillors be supplied with copies of both by-laws so they could compare them.

Alderman Argue observed the by-law had obviously taken a tremendous amount of work and he wanted to know if it had been copied from those of other municipalities.

He was told by the mayor that some of the new by-law had been copied from those of other municipalities but he declined to state which municipalities.

Alderman Graham said he was in accordance with Alderman David and observed that the proposed changes were extensive.

Militia Officers To Participate In Exercise

Saturday and Sunday next district militia officers will participate in "Operation Battleaxe" at the city armouries.

A map-table tactical exercise to instruct officers in tactical manoeuvring, the operation will be attended by officers of the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment, 27th Technical Squadron, RCEME, and the 23rd Independent medium battery. Present will be Major J. F. Cummings, Capt. H. G. Eastern Ontario Area, Kingston.

Officers and company commander of the Rusty Pete last night attended a planning officers training conference at the armouries to plot training of the regiment for the next three months. Among those present were Major Cummings, Col. Everett Fairman, C/O of Capt. Hugh Campbell, regimental training officer.

He also thought it would be advisable to proceed under the old system and then during the summer to study or consider the proposed changes.

URGES NAMING COMMITTEES

He observed that many members of the city was extremely urgent and suggested that committees should be appointed.

"That is a matter of opinion," returned the mayor. "I think there was nothing to stop present the adoption of the budget without the appointment of committees."

Alderman Hyde noted that the council was still operating under the present procedure by-law and stated that the appointment of finance be was not prepared to act without a finance committee being formed. He accordingly moved that appointment of committee members be presented.

This is a special meeting called only for the discussion of the by-law," returned the mayor.

Solicitor Hyde disagreed, pointing out that the meeting had been called to appoint members to the various committees and boards and again asked that council committees be appointed.

He appealed his request to council and asked the mayor to show in the procedure by-law where he was out of order. If this could be shown he said he would withdraw his request.

MOTION IN ORDER

The opinion of the solicitor on the matter was asked by the Mayor. The solicitor said he thought Ald. Hyde was right.

"We are bickering over nothing." Alderman Hyde told the mayor. "You asked for the opinion of the solicitor and you're asking for the vote."

After some discussion over the wording of the motion, council on a recorded vote supported Ald. Hyde's motion for committee members to be named.

Supporting that motion were Aldermen Argue, David Forrester, Graham, Grandzone, Hyde, Keegan, Safe and Tice. Opposing were Aldermen Clarke, Humphreys, Moxam, Mozzam, Smith and Mayor Both.

Mayor Both then introduced two pieces of motion, one being he would introduce a motion at the next council meeting that the present procedure by-law and the other for introduction of a motion to adopt the committee system by-law.

Alderman Keegan noted the notices of motion had been presented during the wrong order of business and there was no further comment on the matter.

Council then reverted to the third order of business for appointment of council committees of members.

No appointment was made from council to the Bay of Quinte High School board to replace Alderman David, it being decided this matter would be decided at the by-

Roy Sills Elected Chairman Bay of Quinte H.S. Area Board

Mr. Roy Sills, one of three representatives to the board from Thurlow township, was named chairman of the Bay of Quinte High School Area Board at their organization meeting held in the board room Tuesday evening.

Mr. Sills succeeds Mr. George Wright, who had acted as chairman of the board during 1954. Mr. Wishart will act as vice chairman for 1955.

Committee chairmen approved by the board were: property and school management, Clifford Barber; finance, Arnold C. Campbell; property and supply, James B. Durrant; transportation, Archie Greenley; sites and accommodation, Harold C. Seldon.

Mr. A. G. Drysdale and Mr. Wallace Bell were re-appointed for two years to the advisory vocational committee; Mr. Drysdale to represent the employers and Mr. Bell the employees.

The new chairman was escorted to the chair by retiring chairman George Wright and Mr. Sills in expressing his appreciation to the board for his election as chairman, Mr. Harry Davis of Bridge Street Church conducted the installation.

On recommendation of collegiate principal R. A. Hamilton it was given the purchase of four new text books. The books, issued by Nelson Publishing Co. Ltd. are: "World History," "Selected Latin Readings", "Geography of Ireland" and "Canada and the Modern World."

Authorization was also given by the board for motorization of the school bus, a 1955 model machine shop, this being part of a program to convert all shop machines from the present pulley drive. Cost will be $175.

ACCEPTS OFFER

The board accepted an offer of $23 for the former hack saw which has been replaced by a power saw.

A letter of appreciation will be forwarded to the Northern Electric Company for their donation of a used drawing and reproducing machine.

Board members approved of a motion endorsing any action of the student organization which would reduce smoking at school functions.

For the future guidance of board members a motion was passed ruling that experience in private schools gained by teachers in the Belleville area will not count.

The resignation of board member William Baldwin, who is going to Chalk River to do research work, was accepted.

A letter will go to the clerk of Tyendinaga township asking that roads in that township used by school buses be given priority when the snow plowing and sanding.

Secretary-ship was renewed in the School Trustees and Ratepayers Association. The second Tuesday in February was set for next regular meeting.

Neither of the two appointments proceeded without incident with the exception of the election of members for the Industrial, Tourist and Publicity committee by acclamation of the whole board.

The mayor asked that appointments of his committee members be referred to a later meeting as there were persons outside of council that he would like to see on the committee. As chairman of the committee of the whole, however. Alderman Argue ruled that Alderman Hyde's motion called for appointment of committee members and he directed they be named.

When Mayor Both declined to name his own committee members the appointments were formally made out by Alderman Hyde and the appointments were approved by council, with the chairman to have power to add.

IN MEMORIAM

MARSH — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Agnes Marsh, who passed away January 12th, 1951.

Dear God, forgive a silent tear,
A fervent wish our Mom was here,
There are others, yes, we know,
But she was ours and we loved her so.
Sadly missed by her daughters, Ruth and Jean.
Till her new mansion we may see,
And give her all our love.
Precious memories from
Daughter and son. 712

POWELL — In loving memory of my dear husband, Arthur Powell, who passed away January 13th, 1954.
I have only your memory, dear husband
To remember me with, I'm sure,
For you took your secret with you
When you left me so lonely and poor.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by wife. 713

Police Return Arrested Man To Stand Trial

Police Inspector J. C. Hayes and Detective Harold Reid of the Belleville police department, were in Peterborough this afternoon to return Wilbert Moon, to this city in connection with the theft of mail from the Stephens Adamson Manufacturing company on June 25th.

Moon was arrested in Peterborough yesterday at the request of local police. He will appear in police court here this morning with James Arnold, 20, also of this city, who earlier this week was arrested in connection with the mail theft. None of the mail has been recovered, police stated.

Two Retiring Members of H. S. Board Honored

The Bay of Quinte High School Area Board expressed its appreciation to two retiring members at a social function held Tuesday evening at the Quinte Secondary School. Presentations were given to Alderman Enos David, who retired from the board to contest for an aldermanic seat at the last municipal election, and to Dr. William Baldwin, who will go to Chalk River for research work in the field of medicine.

Attending the dinner prepared by the domestic science class were boards trustees and their wives, together with Principal R. A. Gry and Mrs. Gry, Principal H. C. Hicks and Mrs. Reid, and Vice Principal D. C. Stirling and Mrs. Stirling along with board secretary R. O. Dulmage and Mrs. Dulmage.

Mr. Roy Sills and Mr. David attended the function with their wives.

Arrangements for the dinner party were by last year's board chairman Mr. Wilbert Hobart and Roy Sills, chairman-elect, with Mrs. Hobart acting as chairman. Entertainment was by two school students with Bobby Wells playing several trumpet solos and Helen Burkitt, who did a Blackstone Illusion with 10 pieces of black magic numbers.

In a humorous speech, Mr. Sills expressed the regret of the board in losing two of its members. Mr. Baldwin's departure was presented with engraved silver trays. Both men made suitable replies thanking the board members for the gifts.

Following the program the wives present stayed on at the school to inspect the new building, while members of the board retired to the board room on the first floor for their organizational meeting.

Mayor, Council Guests at Kiwanis Club Luncheon

Mayor Bolt introduced the council and following his address committee chairman Gerald Hyde (finance), Ben Safe (public works), Bram Humphreys (housing and planning) and Mrs. Effie McCabe (welfare) spoke briefly.

In his address Mayor Bolt called for co-operation of citizens in promoting Belleville as a location for new industry.

"No alone cannot accomplish what many can if they take the same line," he said.

The city industry badly, though not as urgently as other communities.

"We are not hit by unemployment like other places," he stated. However an unemployment situation does exist and securing industry we may assist in curing that problem."

He also said he "welcomed criticism when it is constructive and for the benefit of all concerned."

What he intended to do in the coming year depends entirely on council, he told the meeting. "It is a matter of expressing your views whether you can put it over or not," he said.

"Anything I can do will be for the betterment of Belleville, in my opinion," he said.

Ald. Hyde backgrounded the organization of his department.

"Speaking personally, it is my duty to help council set the tax rate as low as possible, consistent with the needs of the people, and that is what I intend to do, Mr. Hyde concluded.

Ald. Safe noted that many of the city's asphalt roads are in "a very bad state of repair," in particular Bridge, Front and Dundas streets. A major factor is the condition of disrepair he attributed to provincial traffic and said that council should secure aid from the province for resurfacing work.

Front street also needs repairing, he claimed, since the cost of patching it "is terrific."

"This year's council should lay plans for the repaving of some of the city's asphalt pavements even if the work were not started this year," he said.

Ald. Humphreys said that city planning depends on the citizens of Belleville.

"We must all, and I believe we all will, work for one purpose."

EISENHOWER AND TARIFFS

President Dwight D. Eisenhower has asked Congress for the power to make "moderate, gradual and reciprocal" reductions of U.S. tariffs.

It would be all too easy to over-estimate the importance of this request.

In the first place, there is no certainty that Congress will grant the president this power.

In the second place, even if Eisenhower is clothed with the desired authority to reduce tariffs, he has made it quite plain that reductions will not be to the interest of all or sudden tariff reductions would not be to the interest of the United States," he said in his message to Congress. There is little reason to interpret this sentence as merely a sop to appease believers in high tariffs. Rather it appears to be the firmly-held belief of Eisenhower himself, and of his economic advisers.

Any reductions which are made will be moderate. It may be, though, that even moderate reductions would permit some countries to increase their sales to the U.S. Just a slight tariff cut might convert an unprofitable market into a profitable one.

Any reductions will be gradual. They will, however, be in a single direction and a step, if not in time be a step in the right direction. It is to be hoped that Eisenhower's request that the authority be granted to reduce tariffs would be "subject to the presents peril and escape clause provisions." These provisions set forth that any U.S. industries greatly damaged by tariffs cuts can seek an upward revision of the cuts.

"Seek and ye shall find" has been the experience of most U.S. industries under this clause.

In short words, President Eisenhower wants to be able to cut tariffs providing these tariff reductions do not permit other countries to compete successfully with U.S. industries in the home market. This may seem a commendably reasonable stand to any citizen of the U.S., but it does not hold out any great promise to other nations which are striving to discover some method by which they can earn a quantity of dollars to pay for all the goods they would like to purchase from the U.S.

In cutting tariffs the point to stop is not when any home industry is hurt, but when the home economy, as a whole, is hurt.

If everybody at home is protected, nobody outside will reap any great benefit.

AN OVERDUE REFORM

James Brown, Liberal member for Brantford, has proposed an amendment to the Indian Act which would extend the right to vote to all Indians on reserves.

The reform is long overdue.

All Indians living off reservations are entitled to vote. This is clear. The government does not consider that an Indian, by reason of his race, is somehow unfit to exercise the franchise.

During the war, the response from Indians to the call of their country was exceptionally high. All war veterans living on reservations may now vote. They have earned that right. Their wives are also granted the same right. And so should these men by their service in the forces purchase this right for all their race, and not just for themselves and their wives? Why should their fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters and children not enjoy the same privilege?

Indians who pay income tax can vote. Surely this is indefensible? Since when has wealth been a requirement of the right to vote? It is hoped that these Indians have been given the franchise not because they are wealthier than some others, but because they are sharing in the country's burden. Even more must the government do it? It believes that those Indians who do not pay income tax manage to escape taxes in their entirety.

Any special privileges which are accorded to Indians living on reservations cannot begin to pay the debt which the white man owes the Indian for usurping his homeland. These special privileges should not be advanced as an excuse for denying the Indian the full right of a Canadian citizen.

C.C.F.'s BRIGHT NEW STAR?

The Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives had better start grooming their bright young men for 1975—or thereabouts. There is competition on the horizons.

Although he did not believe in free enterprise, nobody ever said that J. S. Woodsworth, the father of the CCF party, lacked energy or was afraid of work. There is now evidence that with the Woodsworth family it is a case of "like grandfather, like grandson."

Vancouver has a new monthly tabloid. It will feature police news. The editor recently stalked into the detective office at police headquarters and demanded information about the robbery-murder of a Chinese grocer. He was not the least perturbed by the fact that relations between press and police are somewhat strained in Vancouver, one press photographer having recently spent some time in durance vile.

Besides being editor of the new monthly, he runs a free lending library for neighbors and friends and has written, directed and staged a four-act play, "Birth of Our Christ."

He is Alan Woodsworth, aged 10.

There's none where peonies used to grow
And on the maple bough,
Where grass was green short while ago
The boys are skating now.

There's silence where a thrush would sing
And robins built their nests.
Now every lovely flowering thing
Is sleep, unbroken, rests.

Jack-in-the-pulpit frost has reached
Among the spreading ferns,
His final, shrewd sermon preached
Until the spring returns.

That death is but a form of sleep
We learn when winter's gone.
And thus it teaches us to keep
Our faith that life goes on.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IMPORTANT PEOPLE

Every once in a while I read an account of an event—usually written by a "society" reporter—telling that "all the important people were there." When I read those items I want to know what makes people important, and isn't it interesting pretty nice to say that all the people who were important made up the party?

I know there are those who consider a man with lots of money to be important people. And if he is a famous writer, or artist, he can well be called important. But I am thinking of a different kind of importance. I read of a judge selling a woman a dress—what her business was and her reply: "Thank ing care of my eight children. I would call such a person genuinely important. Who are more important than our mothers—all mothers?

And how about the scientists and investigators who have little or no time to devote to social matters, working long and late that they may discover new ways to important cures, and the alleviation of human pain? People who work with courage in their hearts, and ever ready to give a word of comfort and hope to those who need, and who never count the cost in strength when they can happily administer to the welfare of others—such ones are God's important people.

People are not important merely because they pay out money, publicity folks to get their names and pictures into the newspapers and so attract attention to them. Many such people never earned a dollar of their inheritance. People who do things that are important, and who make the world better for others, and to lend their influence for every good cause these are the people. The school teacher, the policeman, the local physician, the store keeper, scores of such, are all very important, and we ought to honor them!

Life in The Year 2,000

(New York Times Magazine)

The British Royal Society of Arts decided to hold a competition on what life would be like in the year 2,000. Entries were received from all over the world: the prophets included clergymen and doctors, engineer and architects, schoolboys and housewives.

What follows are some of the more general predictions.

A device will have been invented to prevent a distance in the fission of atomic nuclei, and thus will counter the dangers of atomic bombing.

Radio therapy will be the basis of medical diagnosis and treatment on the theory that all viruses and bacteria radiate detectable energy on fixed frequencies related to their particular species.

The greatest advance in medicine will have been the recognition that physical and mental diseases are connected and must be treated together.

Virus infections will still be rampant through their tendency to mutate and produce ever new treatments.

Hypnosis will be the accepted means of banishing physical and emotional pain. An illustration: a couple on a honeymoon escape from a top-story fire; the man, who cannot be sedated, suggests to the conditioned woman that she should climb up a rigid ladder, thereby providing him with a plank on which to creep via a window to safety. He then rescues the "plank."

No specific subjects will be taught in schools; education will consist largely of environmental therapy.

Hypnosis will be used as a mechanical aid to learning.

Great importance will be attached to the study of dreams as a result of the development of television and recorded talks.

The traffic problem in cities will be solved by the use of rooftop roadways. Automobiles will then use the roofs of residential buildings all of the same height, thus saving road and building space.

Underground roadways will be for heavy traffic only, vehicles which do not run along the rooftops.

The rocket letter post will make possible return mail to Australia in a single day.

Pedestrians will move quickly along main streets on automatic moving walks. Pavements in main streets will be raised to first-floor level to form pedestrian roadways for any traffic below and passengers can transfer from one to the other by the top deck.

Airports will require much less surface area as planes will come a way will be underground.

A Channel tunnel will connect England with France.

A new drug will have produced a variety of giant-sized animals. They will live a short time and will be fierce and great appetites, but these will be met by a new type of farming.

Whales will be kept in captivity, bred and herded like cattle.

Timber will be cut electrically, by a beam of electric charge, to any desired shape, thus avoiding the double process of sawing and planing.

Spraying and dusting soil with special preparations at the time of seed-sowing will have done away with the need for weeding.

Farmyard manure will have almost entirely disappeared as a fertilizer by sewage sludge and many industrial waste materials.

Domestic heating and ventilation will be controlled by covering each house and garden with a plastic shell entered by an airlock.

Sources of domestic heat will be confined to wind and solaar energy.

House lighting will be provided from fluorescent walls.

Advertisements will be projected on the night sky and space will be sold by reference to position.

Solid plastic tires will have succeeded the pneumatic type.

The coal industry will have had a revival but coal, instead being burned as fuel, will be used entirely for its various chemical derivatives. Practically no coal will be employed for heating. Coal will no longer be burned on the ground because, apart from the waste involved, it has been discovered, that, with oil, tobacco and radioactivity, coal smoke is responsible for cancer.

A start will have been made in the underground transportation of coal in the bulk of storage of electricity.

A vegetarian diet will be compulsory in order to avoid cruelty involved in meat production.

Conventional distinctions between different types of meals—breakfast, lunch and dinner will have disappeared.

Packaged foods will be the basic diet. In time only the foodstuffs turned on sale in the cook will prevent the disappearance of effect and natural foods.

Sea monsters will be cultivated as food and the British product will be acknowledged to be the best. Whale meat and the farming of plankton will have developed into a highly-organized activity.

There will be edible acorns and sugar will be made from wood; the use of wood for anything but fuel will be prohibited by the United States.

Painting will be a universal form of entertainment.

Family life will have been revived by the motor car.

A new human species will appear as a result of mutation, with long heads and four arms, the better able to assimilate the complexities of modern civilization. The finest qualities in man will thereby be doubled.

Reconcile These Claims!

(Montreal Gazette)

Maybe because masculine minds are too literal, this department is confused about woman's proper role. A topic which engages the time of Miss Marjorie Richardson, a pretty model from Ottawa.

Miss Richardson points out that the American woman's share in the kind of lives that enable them to look trim without the help of a corset and other "soft living" contributes to figure problems; that she is "pampered enough already" and they overeat."

But now comes our ungirded confusion.

For while Miss Richardson says women are weighty from want of exercise, that isn't the way we hear from the women about our lives. Unanimously, they allege exhaustion by virtue of an excessively daily round of cooking, baking, mopping, cleaning, laundering, shopping, sewing and baby-raising, to say nothing of the ironing and mending, to care and feeding of a husband.

So something is wrong somewhere in this equation in avoirdupois (quick, Henry, the dictionary!)

If Miss Richardson is right, then let's face it—the ladies are fibbing. They aren't overworked at all. If the ladies are right, then it is the former spokesperson is that dietary science is wrong and exercising bears no relation to the proper placement of curves on the feminine torso.

Somebody, we agree, will join us in praying for enlightenment on this problem. For the proper answer gives promise of a bright new world. That is, if mildly becomes flabby and shabby and too flabby for hubby, he will have two courses to pursue on th basis of this enlightenment-to-come: (1) Revert it as he's been doing for life; more happily, or (2) really put that woman to work around the house! love.

Got Fine Response To Appeal For Cards

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Through the medium of your publication I would like to express our sincere thanks to the people of Belleville and district for their overwhelming response to our request for old Christmas cards for distribution to the various children's hospitals in Toronto.

You will be interested to learn that to date we have received over 20,000 cards which will be forwarded to Toronto via Smith Transport Limited, through the generosity of Mr. John A. Boyle, their district superintendent.

As you will appreciate, the cards sent in to us will provide a great deal of enjoyment to the sick and shut-in children in these hospitals.

We would also like to express our thanks to Mr. George Carver, your carrier boy, and to all of the other members of your staff who assisted us in our efforts to achieve the wonderful results obtained from our canvass for such a worthy cause.

bite. I've never lived farther north than Canada is, but I know a lot of folks who lived five years in the Arctic and I think I know more about first aid for frostbite than anybody else.

He told me about it after he returned home. Another thing he told me was that neither he nor any member of his party ever had anything more malevolent than could call a "cold", although they endured more exposure to cold and wet than even our hot stove philosophers have experienced. Don't try to brush this off as explaining that of course my friend and his party were "hardened" to it, for the truth is that "we had been infected as soon as we arrived" in the Bathurst and repeatedly during the fall with colds" already from coming to some new settlement of whites or Eskimos. I caught one of these colds while at the house of . . . the Hudson's Bay Company's trader in the Arctic (I'm quoting from Stefansson's The Family Arctic).

Now I can't remember whether it was in his book or in conversation that Stefansson told me that him thirty years but I still don't know how to spell or pronounce his name.

Stefansson told me this, but the answer he made to my question of frostbite. Just warm your hand under your armpit and hold it on nose or cheek for a moment, then the same with the other hand. Or for frostbite fingers, hold in the armpit for warmth and gently wash the dry hands for a moment, repeating the warming and brushing till color returns to the blanched white.

Never apply ice or cold in any form. Don't rub the frostbitten part. Just knead it gently.

It is well to bear in mind that the circulation of the blood and overzealous first-aid treatment may do more harm than good. To continue any active treatment after color returns to the blanched, whitened frostbitten fingers, nose, cheek, foot or toe is to invite infection and inflammation.

An old superstition, still entertained by some physicians, suggests that the "frozen member should be thawed out, gradually, in immersion in a cold bath (temperature 45 to 50 degrees F), the water being kept cold by adding snow or ice occasionally" a hair of the dog that bites you.

Dr. Alfred Blalock, who often treats your frozen fingers in this manner, is an authority, but without secondary effects." That typical German medical phenomenon, Sauerbruch, has with the elementary physics I learned in high school, Canandaigua Union school, that was, but anyway the German doctor's reasoning is comical, don't you think?

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MORE THAN A CREATURE

What is man? Adam Smith, the great economist, said that man is an animal that makes bargains. The English statesman Burke said that man is an "animal that cooks his victuals. Alexander Hamilton declared that man is a reasoning rather than a reasonable animal. Many modern teachers call man just another mammal. "Men are but children of a larger growth," said Dryden. And Byron declared that man is but "dust, ashes, frailty, alike unfit to sink or soar."

The Bible says that man is a combination of heaven and earth. He is made out of common clay, but this common clay became a soul. He is a fallen creature, viewed morally, for he has disobeyed God and comes far short of what he ought to be or ought to do. But he is created in the image and after the likeness of God.

Christian theology is that Christ was the God-man. He was the perfection of human nature, the likeness of God. What Christ was in perfection we are in imperfection. We are to be like Him and we are to be blessed not on the basis of our achievements but the basis of our striving. God is not so interested in what we become as in what we are striving to be.

Among all God's creatures, man alone appears to have a destiny which is linked to God. We are to remember that we are sons of God now and this not yet appear what we shall be.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On the bus yesterday, a very elderly man, who had been a keen golfer in his younger days, was telling the conductor of my father sat down beside me, and I at once congratulated him on his cheerful appearance.

"Got the trots," he said. "I'm just on my way home from seeing my lawyer. And I do feel a little cheerful at the idea of a man about my will, which I haven't looked at in nearly twelve years.

"I was never so surprised in my life. I had no idea of the things I had laid down in it.

"Did you change it?" I enquired.

"Change it, no! I tore it up and be gloated.

"I heard lately," I put in, "That a man writes three wills in his life. The first one, he leaves everything to his wife; the second, a brief few years later, he leaves a life-interest to his wife. The last one, he leaves everything to charity."

"Not me," said my old friend. "I've got a comfortable home for life, a pretty fair estate to leave them. But what I've just done is to cut out all the verbiage, all the provisos and ifs and buts. I took out all the strings. I left everything clean and whole, no strings attached.

"Good for you!"

"Really," he added, "I had no idea what an old stinker I was when I made that will. I can see by that will that I was trying to run everybody's life for them. I was a real busy-body's life for them. I was a real busy-body from a funny old coot! Thank goodness, I went down town today. It fairly gives me a pain to see to think I might have died the past couple of years. What would everyone have thought of me?"

"No strings attached, eh?" I said sarcastically.

He smiled out the bus window, chuckling.

"Do you know what I would have looked like to them? I would have been remembered like an old Egyptian mummy, all tied up in strings."

He shook hands with me as he got up to leave the bus.

"Cooh!" he said.

GEESE OBSCURE SKY

HUMPTY DOO, Australia (CP)—Massive clouds of geese, measuring as much as three miles across, are defeating efforts of an American-British - Australian company to make a barren tract of northern Australia bloom with rice. The geese eat the rice as fast as it is sown, and guns by day and lanterns, flares and explosions by night have failed to control the birds.

TWO SAVED FROM DEATH

CAIRO (Reuters)—The Egyptian revolution command council Tuesday night commuted to life imprisonment the death sentences passed on three Moslem Brotherhood members last Sunday. Keeping Busy Best Way To Enjoy Life

VICTORIA (CP)—Keeping busy is the way to enjoy life, says Mrs. Kate Mather, who retired as occupational therapist at the Wimbiped Psychopathic Hospital to engage in various activities.

Small and vivacious, looking younger than her 60 years, she hooks rugs, does weaving and leather work and makes Indian dolls. Occasionally she opens the doors of her home to sell some of her handicrafts.

She formerly had her arts and crafts store at Banff, Alta., and for three winters lived with the late Emily Carr, author and painter, at the latter's Victoria studio.

Mrs. Mather has some of the Carr paintings and enough letters, anecdotes and data to fill a book about the artist who died in 1945. "Some day," she says, "I'll do it."

"People should begin preparing for old age at 40," said Mrs. Mather. "Forcible retirement is just crazy. Most people die before they have learned to have fun."

St. Michael's B.S. Hears Report Elects Officers

The annual report of St. Michael's Benevolent Society was given by the president, Mrs. Frank Fitzpatrick, at the meeting held on Monday afternoon in St. Michael's Academy.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick stated that all all calls for assistance had been looked after with clothing, old and new, blankets, bedding, fuel and food. Special mention was made of Mr. Eric Cooper and his helpers, for the toys they donated and which were distributed by the Sodality members; of Mr. McEvoy, grocer, for donation of a crate of oranges and of 3rd Pack, Boy Scouts and Cubs for oranges and cookies. The response to the cash collection taken after all the Masses, on December 12, was most generous and helpful. Milk was supplied during the winter months at the Academy and to families needing it.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick gratefully acknowledged the assistance given her by all the officers of the society. Five members will sew and prepare baby clothes for distribution.

The election of officers, committee reports, and an address by Mrs. George Stobie will feature the 10th annual meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital, to be held in the Masonic Hall, Foster Avenue, Wednesday, January 19, at 1.30 p.m.

The meeting not confined to members only, will be attended by representatives of city and county governments, the Belleville Ministerial Association, the hospital's Board of Governors, the administrator and superintendent of nursing at the hospital, and delegates from the women's organizations in the city which serve the hospital.

It will be the first time that an annual meeting has been held at a luncheon.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOUNG FOLKS SHOULDN'T BE IN SUCH A HURRY!

I wonder if young people will ever be willing to accept the fact that a decision to marry is something that shouldn't be made in a hurry. It's not likely they ever will, I'm afraid. For the urge to rush into is something they are sure, at the moment, will be permanent and undying, is such a deep-seated instinct in youth, that probably only experience, and the years, can teach them.

Even so, it seems to me there is a point of rashness that one might reasonably expect a young person to recognize, and, recognizing it, should stop short and consider whether or not it's really wise to go further. I know of one young woman who would have saved herself a lot of heartache if she had had the good sense to do this. She writes:

"Last summer I met a young man with whom I did a lot of dated him every night, and in a week I had my ring. Soon we set our wedding date and I began to buy things for my trousseau. We told everyone.

"Wendie was all I ever wanted. He was good, honest, true and he treated people wonderfully. I don't believe he had any enemies.

"Then all of a sudden it happened. He began running around with my best girl friend. It nearly killed me, but I didn't say anything, because I thought he would get over it and be sorry. So I just pretended I didn't care what he did.

"This girl lives right across the street from me and I see her all the time. She's always talking to me about this boy, and one time I even cried in front of her, and she thought it was funny. I know she doesn't love him or even want him. It's only that she wants to show me she can get my man.

"I wish I could do something to stop my heart from hurting. What would you suggest?"

So there it is, and here is what I would say to this girl:

I am very sorry that you have had such an unhappy experience, but I am not suprised that you did have it. You see, a whirlwind romance which brought you a ring at the end of only a week is rarely to be trusted. It takes a very great deal longer than a week for the average couple to know each other well enough to be able to judge, with any accuracy, whether they really love each other and would be suited to each other as man and wife.

It's only natural, of course, that you should be deeply hurt over your boy friend's behavior, but he obviously rushed into this engagement impulsively and then found he was not really ready for marriage.

Try to remember that almost every young girl has some sort of similar experience before she develops the maturity and judgment needed for choosing a husband. This means that, somewhere you feel now, you will definitely get over it and find someone else later on. Let's hope it will be someone more mature—and that you'll be, too.

In the meantime, have the stamina to go out with your other friends and to let Wendie do it if he pleases. But make it perfectly clear to him that you realize he was not ready to consider marriage and that your engagement is automatically ended. Speak to your girl friend casually when you see her, but don't be drawn into discussing this deep.

Just go your own way, taking part in all the activities you can, and have too much pride and dignity to show people that this has thrown you. The more active you keep yourself, the sooner you will get over this disappointment and the sooner the way will be open for a new interest.

Thanks are overdue to Margaret B. and G. M. for bringing to my attention MPF—Multi-Purpose Food. Up until two months ago it is something I had read about. Now, thanks to these two alert girls, it is something I am keenly interested in.

I promised these two readers that I would find out about MPF and if possible discover a Canadian source of supply.

Since MPF is manufactured and distributed by a non-profit organization and is world-wide newsworthy, news about it in this food column is indicated. J. L. Trumbull, Ltd., 1455 Howe St., Vancouver 1, B.C., purchase MPF from "Meals for Millions" Foundation in Los Angeles in bulk, and repackage it for Canadian consumption. Trial package 25c.

WHAT IS MULTI-PURPOSE FOOD?

The non-profit Meals for Millions Foundation introduced MPF and it is "only source for its dictation. The Foundation's objective is to encourage MPF production in food shortage areas to relieve and prevent malnutrition and starvation. MPF was developed at the California Institute of Technology to provide at minimum cost (5c), in minimum bulk (2oz.) a high-quality, palatable protein food fortified with minerals and vitamins. Two oz. dry weight of MPF provides 1-3 of the recommended daily allowance of the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council (United States) for protein, calcium, iron, vitamins A, B-1, Riboflavin, B-2, Niacinamide; also 1-3 of the minimum daily requirements for an adult man as established by regulation of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for calcium, iron, phosphorous, iodine, Vitamin A, B-1, Riboflavin (B-2) and D. It also provides 200 calories, Vitamin C has not been added because it is unstable in cooked food.

Two ounce dry weight of MPF is called a "meal" because its nutritive value compares favorably with that of most "meals" It is preferably used however as an ingredient in accustomed dishes either to increase their nutrition value or to replace more costly animal proteins (meat).

(Does it make you as hopping mad as it does me to hear American people called money mad? They may chase after the almighty dollar but let them hear that somebody is hungry in Tajikanese or Timbuctoo and they'll chase just as wholeheartedly for food for them, and what's more deliver it!)

To come to grips with this fabulous new nutritish booster right in our own Canadian kitchens here are some

SUGGESTED USES FOR MPF

1. Mix with flour when making gravy. Use instead of crumbs to sprinkle over fish before frying and in casseroles. (To make such accustomed ready-made crumbs would be enough to make some of us throw our hands.) 3. Use in soups, stews and chowders. 4. Use in combination with meat and fish in making meat balls, meat and fish loaves.

Lack of space forces me to be brief and sketchy. Suffice it to say, I have whetted your curiosity, and will add MPF as an ingredient to many of my made dishes in the near while and let you know my reactions. Goodness knows I may even get smarter. There's certainly plenty of room for improvement. After a study conducted at the Lewis Adams School at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, teachers reported that the weight, height and school achievement of pupils receiving soup fortified with MPF all improved.

I think we would be well-advised to get on the band wagon.

Beauty

HOME MANICURING TIPS

With household help disappearing from the land, many mothers of small children find it difficult, if not impossible, to spare precious hours for these delightful sessions at the beauty shop. They give sets, even permanents. But home manicuring isn't easy and with heavy work to do, finger nails are not always in the pink.

The trouble is that not all women have the proper implements. You don't shape the nails with a dull file, or remove hangnails with ordinary small scissors. One needs a flexible file of high grade steel and sharp, curved, needle-point scissors.

Besides these two items one should have orangewood sticks, emery boards, nail white pencils, cuticle cream, polish and polish remover.

It is a mistake to start with a hand washing. Soap and water make the nails soft and shaping becomes difficult. After removing the polish, use the nail file, working from side to center, forming a neat oval.

Pass the orange wood stick under the nails then give them an extra filing with an emery board. Then you are ready for a soapy scouring to soften the cuticle. Use a small brush to stimulate the circulation of the blood under the nails.

Before applying a cuticle cream, use the orangewood stick lifting the flesh gently. If you flush up any little shreds, remove them, pointing the ends of the scissors downward.

Be gentle—et the nail bases, so as not to injure the matrix. Never cut the cuticle, ever.

Remove the cream with soap and water and see that the nails are thoroughly dry. Now is the time to put on the polish. Let the brush run on so you will have only a light film. When it has dried, put on another.

SHOULD SHE GIVE A SHOWER NOW?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I would like to give a shower for a girl who was married two months ago. The news that the wedding was to take place was not given until two weeks before the date, which did not allow enough time for a shower to be given before the wedding. The bride and groom were away three weeks after the wedding and then came the holidays and it didn't seem suitable to give the shower then. That means that the shower would be given more than three months after the wedding, and some of my friends think it is not proper to give a bridal shower so long after the wedding. Please give me your opinion about this. — S.P.

The opinion of these friends of yours is the important opinion . . . for they would know best the circumstances. There is no rule against your giving this shower. If you invite only a group of the most intimate friends of the bride. But if in that small group there are some who disapprove of the shower and therefore might not want to come, it doesn't seem a very happy beginning for your plan. If you find there are more opposers, you might consider giving a tea or other party in honor of the bride, or perhaps a late-Sunday-afternoon party in honor of the couple.

The regular monthly meeting of the combined Home and School Associations of the Sir Winston Churchill and the Queen Victoria Schools was held Monday evening in the Sir Winston Churchill School.

A short business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Nell O'Neal, who welcomed the many guests, wishing all a prosperous and happy year.

Mrs. J. E. MacKeen had many good books from the Courtice Memorial Library that parents could borrow. Mrs. Dyble informed the meeting that there are 223 members in the association.

The Association was also reminded to start thinking about its annual Children's Fair to be held in the spring under the convenorship of Mrs. R. Doogan and Mrs. Luck.

ATTENDANCE PRIZES

The attendance room prizes were awarded to the class of Miss Young at Queen Victoria School, and the class of Mr. Dyer at the Sir Winston Churchill School.

A five-minute role play followed in which two of the members demonstrated the correct and the incorrect way to telephone a newcomer to the district and invite them to the Home and School meeting. Mrs. B. Kerr demonstrated the incorrect way, which provided much amusement for the audience, and Mrs. W. Bray then demonstrated the correct way.

Mrs. K. Rowe read a letter from Mrs. Burley, president of St. Michael's P.T.A. on the disapproval of crime and horror comics, asking for the association's co-operation for suppression of crime and horror comics, after which she introduced the guest members, Mr. Murray Irwin, head of English Department at Albert College; Mrs. Orr of the Queen Mary-Prince Charles Home and School Association, and Mr. R. E. Follwell, local lawyer, who presented different types of so-called comic books, and discussed them.

COMIC BOOKS BANNED

Mr. Irwin mentioned that in certain sections of England and Scotland comic books are banned. He asked the parents and teachers, "What do you want in life for the children in your care?" and suggested the answer "happiness and maturity." He continued to say that comic books show hate. Children must learn to choose wisely and asked: "Is the aim of education to find out what the children like, and to give it to them or is it to give them literature to help them learn and mature?"

"Good literature can give us the best in human nature and noble vision. "Comic books repeat what has been noticed in that they show more interest in better reading. He pointed out that many parents do not know what their children are reading.

Mrs. Orr then presented a resume on so-called harmless and love' comics. She stressed that for the mere sum of ten cents, a child gets something which pleases him—color, pictures, story and action. It is easy to read. Most of all the child gets a commodity of barter.

She mentioned certain classics including Julius Caesar comics, which cost 13 cents and are somewhat better than others. They are perhaps easier to read as an introduction to the better work, but lazy reading, and she did not concede that they would bring the child to read the original classic. Mrs. Orr then told of the Biblical stories portrayed in comic book style. She said that while they were not harmful the coloring was in most part crude, and the action often mediocre and poor; the English is often poor and the spelling no help at all. She told of the love comics which are aimed at teenagers—not only aimed but loaded! She chose one in particular and read a story from it of a girl with poor background who tried to seduce a good boy; who later found out, and forgiven, and they lived happily ever after.

The many scenes mentioned in it were suggestive of indecency. The only decent thing about it was that the girl was converted from a hussy to a model flapper. The sad thing was that life just doesn't work out that way, and it is misleading to the youth who read it. These books give wrong ideas that these tactics mentioned might work if you wanted something badly enough; such tactics as making yourself attractive, spending all your money on clothes, and if all else fails you can elope and escape parental authority.

HORROR COMICS

Mr. Follwell then gave his summary of so-called passion or horror comics. He said crime comics seemed to have been taken care of in Belleville—that he couldn't find any—but that these horror comics were just as bad. As far as he was able to ascertain there has been no ilink in Belleville between reading comics and committing crime. There are some 450 horror or mystery type comics available and the few he read were really gruesome and cause fear in the reader. In passing, he also felt that sensational news such as murders and sex crimes should be suppressed in the newspapers, T.V. and radio broadcasts, since they are bad for children.

Mr. Follwell pointed out that some of the comic books were marked with a stamp "approved by comic code." However, these books are not comics at all. Legally, anyone commits an offence who prints or sells crime comics. It was when one distributor was jailed for selling these books that the distributors, alarmed, formed the "Comics Magazine Industry of America," and secured the seal code in corner of the books.

The distributors in Canada have been to Ottawa and have asked for an advisory board to have publications read and approved as to whether they may sell them or not. The distributor wants comic books screened for his own protection as he cannot possibly read the 450 books he has on his shelves. Ontario has no form of censorship at all. Some publishers are trying to regulate the type of books printed but some are trying only to make quick money.

TOO MUCH PARENTAL APATHY

Mr. Follwell also read one of the horror stories which was a plan for cold blooded murder with details as to what happened. He said there is too much apathy among parents and others; that many do not know what the children are reading.

Mrs. O'Neal called on Mr. Fairman, who summarized the talks and said that he felt crime and horror comics were detrimental to good sound character building. Little do parents realize the drastic effects these comics have on minds of children. He mentioned a case he knew of where a boy who suffered had numerous comics in his room and had spent hours on how he could do it before committing the crime.

"Comic book reading demoralizes, gradually and tends to kill. Never before has Canada held such a prominent position in the world as today. If youth is to be the future leaders of our country the best reading is none too good for them.

GOOD READING SUPPLIED

Mr. Fairman pointed out that the Board of Education supplies good supplementary reading books in quantity. Boys and girls today read earlier in life than we did and have more trash available to read. They need good reading. The comic books spoil the student for English classes. His powers of concentration are weak from too much TV, too much comic book reading. He can't be bothered to read and analyze better reading. It is easier to get it the lazy way. He begged parents to take an interest in what the children read and the education that the schools are doing their part.

Mr. Fairman thanked the panel members and Mrs. O'Neal added her thanks and asked that the association write to Mr. Frank Follwell, federal member in Ottawa, objecting to the comic books sold to children.

Refreshments were served. Mrs. Garlepy and other mothers of Mr. Dyer's pupils were hostesses.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1955.

Federal Govt. Will Probe Entertainment of Officials

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will try to ascertain whether any federal officials were entertained at a summer home by a construction firm negotiating for contracts.

Prime Minister St. Laurent made the statement in the Commons Tuesday after the matter was raised by Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton).

He said he was "very much surprised" at the disclosure, in a judgment of the income tax appeal board turned last Saturday, that such entertaining of unnamed public officials occurred.

AMOUNT DEDUCTION

Board member W. S. Fisher reported that the unidentified company had sought a $27,705 deduction from 1951 taxable income for alterations to the summer home "where officials and officers of the various government bodies could be entertained prior to negotiations of government contracts."

The judgment added:

"I express no opinion as to why it should be necessary to entertain public officials in order to obtain contracts . . . but apparently the appellant—and, no doubt, its competitors—have found that such entertaining has been not only necessary but also beneficial from a business point of view."

At the opening of the sitting, Mr. Fleming asked whether the government investigated the use made of the summer residence.

WILL INVESTIGATE

Mr. St. Laurent said he will try to find out what was said at the hearing by the tax appeal board—held in private at the request of the company—and whether officials of his government were entertained.

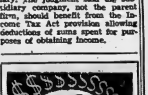
"I have never heard any suggestion that it was considered to be necessary by anyone to have a residence to entertain government officials," he said.

The board's judgment did not locate the residence, but it is understood it was in Quebec province.

The contracts involved went to a subsidiary of the company and for this reason Mr. Fisher ruled out the deduction claim by the parent company which only rented construction machinery to the subsidiary. The judgment said the subsidiary company, not the parent firm, should benefit from the Income Tax Act provision allowing deductions of sums spent for purposes of obtaining income.

GIVES DEATH CAUSE

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Crown Attorney C. C. Savage said Monday that Joseph Nelson, 56 whose body was found last month in his trailer home in east London, was the victim of a heart seizure the same day he died of an abdominal hemorrhage from a ruptured liver. First reports indicated Nelson might have suffered external violence.



$286,377 FOR PUBLICATIONS

OTTAWA (CP) — The government spent some $286,377 in the last fiscal year for newspapers, magazines and various other publications, information tabled in the Commons by State Secretary Pickersgill shows the largest expenditures were made by the defence department. It purchased $49,078 worth of newspapers and magazines.

ATTENTION, MOTORISTS!

TORONTO (CP)—Deadline for renewal of car registrations and operators' licences in Ontario has been set for Jan. 31, government officials said Tuesday.

Court Hearing Appeal Against Conviction

TORONTO (CP)—Hearing of an appeal by Anastasio Tripodi of St. Catharines against a murder conviction in the strangling of his wife last July 27, started Tuesday in Ontario Court of Appeal. It is expected to be concluded today.

Tripodi was sentenced to be hanged Jan. 25.

A statement admitted as evidence at the trial quoted Tripodi as saying he killed his wife because he was convinced she had been unfaithful to him in Italy.

In the statement he said he saved enough money to bring her to Canada so the children would not be abandoned in Italy.

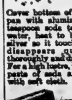
Police Brutality Case Withdrawn

TORONTO (CP) — Two men whose complaints of police brutality last October were aired at an eight-day hearing pleaded guilty Tuesday to charges of having liquor in a place other than their homes and were fined $20. They withdrew their complaints against police.



Charges of obstructing police and causing a disturbance were withdrawn against Robert Wright, 31, and Richard Griffin, 29, arrested Oct. 25.

The man were picked up after a Toronto Argonaut football game. An unruly crowd surged on to the field as the game ended and police constable James Cowie suffered a fatal heart attack in the confusion.

During the inquiry last fall, Wright and Griffin told Mr. Justice W. D. Roach they were beaten by police after their arrest and denied access to legal counsel for several hours. Mr. Justice Roach's findings have not been made public.

Woman Wants Adoption Order Set Aside

TORONTO (CP)—A mother who gave her child to a cousin four years ago wants her son back, she said Tuesday.

Mrs. Joseph Lubansky asked Mr. Justice John L. Wilson of the Ontario Supreme Court to set aside an adoption order of September, 1951. "Under the order her 4½-year-old son, Raymond, was given to Mrs. Mary Taylor of Woodstock.

"I heard the child was mine and no one could take it," Mrs. Lubansky said. "I was only gifted it to my cousin to keep for a while."

Mrs. Lubansky, who doesn't speak English, testified through an interpreter that Mrs. Taylor agreed to take Raymond from her because the Lubansky family had difficulty in finding a home in Toronto. Now she can't get the child back.

The family arrived in Canada from the Ukraine in 1949 with one son. In July, 1949, Raymond was born.

The hearing is continuing.

Member Claims Federal Cabinet 'Clammy Lot'

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal member of Parliament, with tongue in cheek, said Tuesday night the federal cabinet is a "very clammy lot."

"We can not find out a single, solitary secret," Elmore Philpott, member for Vancouver South, said during the throne speech debate. But he suggested members' wives might have more success.

He said Liberals have no way of knowing from the cabinet what will be done. But he added: "I remember Lloyd George (former British prime minister) once said that there were never any cabinet secrets, because every cabinet minister he had ever known, except one, told the cabinet secrets to his wife—and the one exception told them to other men's wives.

"And so it was suggested that the way to find out any cabinet secret was to send your wife around to the wife of a cabinet minister and you would soon find out what happened."

CROSS PACIFIC IN KETCH

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (Reuters) A former United States Navy man and his crew of four amateur sailors were towed into harbor here early today after a five-month voyage across the Pacific from Los Angeles in their 44-foot ketch. RELIEF PROMISED

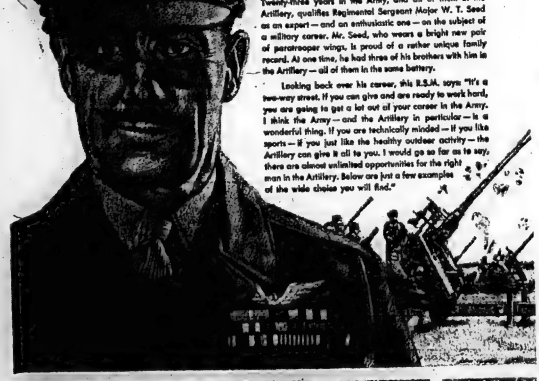
For Arthritic and Rheumatic Pain

New relief without pills by greaseless, odourless, stainless cream.



Toronto, Ont. (Special)—Discovery of an exciting new method of relieving pain has been announced here. Science has now developed a cream that gets down a new way to bring relief from arthritis, rheumatism and muscular aches and pains right under the brand name "InfraRUB." This new scientific preparation can mean relief from these pains without the need of pills and other internal medication.

InfraRUB does not merely set up a surface irritation but penetrates the "skin barrier"—goes to work to relieve pain deep down where nerves and joints. The bloodstream carries the soothing medication right to the seat of trouble where it actually helps stop many pains—assisting congestion and pressure.

Another feature of InfraRUB that appeals to so many people is its ease of application. No long and painful rubbing is necessary as InfraRUB penetrates in a few seconds and vanishes with a person's light massage. InfraRUB leaves no oily film or pungent odour to cause colour on the skin. Users find they are able to put on clothing in complete safety immediately after application.

Written medical reports on the success of this new help for painful suffering from rheumatic and arthritic pains and general muscular aches and pains have been prepared, based on months of cases in British and French hospitals. InfraRUB users claim almost immediate relief from rheumatic and arthritic pains, sore muscles and joints.

Now for the first time, InfraRUB can be obtained without a prescription from your local drug store for only $1.39. InfraRUB is guaranteed to give hours of comforting relief from arthritis, rheumatic and muscular aches and pains or your money refunded in full.

"There are almost unlimited opportunities for the right men"

First Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment

Twenty-three years in the Army, and all of them in the Artillery, qualifies Regimental Sergeant Major W. T. Seed as an expert — and an enthusiastic one — on the subject of a military career. Mr. Seed, who wears a bright new pair of paratrooper wings, is proud of a rather unique family record. At one time, he had three of his brothers with him in the Artillery — all of them in the same battery.

Looking back over his career, this R.S.M. says "It's a two-way street. If you can give and are ready to work hard, you are going to get a lot out of your career in the Army. I think the Army — and the Artillery in particular — is a wonderful thing. If you are technically minded — if you like sports — if you just like the healthy outdoor activity — the Artillery can give it all to you. I would go so far as to say, there are almost unlimited opportunities for the right men in the Artillery. Below are just a few examples of the wide choice you will find."

Wireless and other forms of communication are taught in Signallery.

Surveying is still another interesting subject to learn in modern artillery schools.

Teamwork is the key to success of Canada's field gunners.

You are eligible you must be 17½ to 40 years of age, obtain permission to 45. When applying bring birth certificate or other proof of age.

U.S. Will Be "Slow to Anger" Says Dulles

NEW YORK (AP)—State Secretary Dulles said Tuesday the United States will be "slow to anger" in dealing with Red China of freeing of American prisoners.

Dulles spoke of the bitter controversy with Red China in a speech about peace before a luncheon celebrating the centennial of the Young Women's Christian Association.

In his prepared remarks, he gave no clue to what United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold has reported on his negotiations in Peiping which ended Monday. Hammarskjold flew there in a move to win freedom for 11 American airmen who fought for the United Nations in the Korean war.

Dulles said Americans "eagerly await" Hammarskjold's return from Red China along with his report on the outcome of his mission. This flying visit "critically involves issues of humanity and justice."

He added:

INJUNCTION HEEDED

"Our own nation makes its contribution to the peaceful settlement of these issues by heeding the Biblical injunction to be 'slow to anger.'"

Dulles said there is "too much complacency" by freedom - loving democracies in efforts to insure a lasting peace.

"There will never be permanent peace so long as men and nations reserve for war their greatest effort, their most sacrificial endeavor."

Ever wonder why baby puts most everything he can manage into that sweet, rose-bud mouth? The experts tell us that the mouth is baby's "first great teacher." With it, he gets the first taste of one of the great pleasures of life; comforting food. Next, "mouthing" teaches baby texture and shape. When little teeth make their debut, gnawing is the first step in learning how to chew.

Safety first. You'll feel easier if you keep baby's horizon clear of all easy-to-swallow objects. Pliable, washable toys, small enough to chew (but too big to swallow), help keep baby "mouth happy."

Strengthening subject. Meat, as you probably know, is one of the best-known sources of the complete proteins so vital to growth and the development of all body structures. All Gerber's Meats for babies — both Strained and Junior, are rich in strength-giving proteins. Made from selected savory cuts, they're specially processed for minimum fat and fiber . . . are easy as milk to digest. All 100% meat with just enough broth to give the pleasant texture and flavor babies like. 6 Strained Meats. 3 Junior Meats for tots with a few teeth.

Short cut to longer life for little clothes. An ingenious mother writes: "When Barbara outgrows her dresses, I turn 'em off slightly and use them for blouses under little jumpers. They're charming."

Vitamin C . . . easy as 1-2-3. No squeezing, no straining to give baby the precious Vitamin C he needs every day. Gerber's Strained Orange Juice is specially processed for babies. It's made from tree-ripened oranges, selected for uniform Vitamin C content and the mild, fresh-fruit flavor tykes take to. Carefully pasteurized and finely strained so it can be fed from bottle, cup or spoon.

Lowly Rangers Will Dig Deep Into Exchequer To Get Player Strength

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WHITBY TONIGHT

Licking their wounds, but none-the-less defiant after their solemnoids down Kingston way Monday night, the Memos take off tonight for Whitby where they tangle with the Wrens to decide second, third and fourth places in this ever-changing senior "B" standing.

As matters stand now, the Cornwall Colts are out in front by three points. The Kingston Goodies are holding down second place with 33 points, one ahead of the Memos and Wrens, who are stalemated in third slot with 32 each. A win for the Memos will hike them into second place, two points behind the Colts and one in front of the Goodyears. The same applies to the Wrens. The losers drop back to fourth place.

In case you're superstitious, in the last five games played, the home team has been defeated.

THE O.M.H.A.

A concise, rather handsome booklet came to this department yesterday. It is crammed full with pictures, team photos, officials' "faces," advertising, records, etc. It is the annual constitution booklet of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, "the largest minor hockey association in the world."

A disinterested person would likely skim through its pages, pause at a picture or two, ignore the ads and toss the book lightly aside.

But to those of us who have more than a passing interest in the hockey fairer of the country's megapolises, the little book represents much more than a parade of pictured teams, officials, figures and other data.

It is a brochured packet of facts accumulated during a year of hard work, sweat, toil and sometimes near tears, by a group of men who year after year give of their sweat that youngsters like yours and mine can get the proper opportunity to play the winter game they so dearly love.

It is a far cry from that small group of men who got together back in 1940-41 and merged the struggling Ontario Juvenile Association and the Bantam and Midget organization to the present powerful organization that is now known around the world for its outstanding achievements in the realm of minor hockey. It has leaped in twelve small years from one classification (juvenile) to the fifteen it now embraces.

How could the venture fail with such hard-working stalwarts as the Hipwells, the Matchetts, the Lukes, the Morrisons, the Welchels, the Christies, the Parkers and other minor giants pulling together in a common effort?

We in "Upper Canada" are singularly proud to be associated with such an organization and the outstanding men who are its bulwarks. It was only a few short years ago that we struggled along doing the best we could in an effort to get organizational order out of minor chaos.

Then one day the magic wand of the OMHA waved over the north of the woods, and behind, behind the picture changed almost overnight. Sam (Tweed) Curry stepped into the breach and through dint of word work and perseverance got the machinery in motion. Later Sam was made a member of the OMHA executive.

Yet later, Albert Watkins of Peterborough, a yeoman worker, was elected to the executive body and the roots of the OMHA started to seek new ground.

Here in Belleville organization got under way and in the first year some 300 youngsters were brought under the organizational sparks. The Belleville Intermediates Division and "Red" Doran, with such stalwarts as "Boller" Lloyd, Don Stanton, Harry Rollins and a dozen others went to work. Suffice it to say over 600 youngsters are playing organized hockey this season in the city alone.

Sam Curry found that business would not permit his carrying out the executive duties so he turned over the reins of office to equally-capable Doug Patterson of Stirling. Doug has proven to be an indefatigable worker and his efforts join with those of Mr. Watkins in organization of the more northerly districts.

With the installation of artificial ice in the Marmora arena, efforts to organize minor hockey in that area have been facilitated. Mr. Patterson, who was re-elected to the executive last year, is again doing yeoman service and with men like him at the helm the good ship will scarcely run aground.

So it looks like the OMHA is in for another record-breaking season. Last year some 13,000 youngsters operated under its banners and there seems little doubt that number will be exceeded this year.

So a great big doff of the columnar chapeau to such "fiends for work" as secretary Jack Christie, the rest of the executive and especially those unsung men who work quietly along the byways and in the smaller places, who are doing such a fine job for the youngsters of their communities.

PT. ANNE - JUNIORS

Earl Anderson's Point Anne Cementmen and Bill Gault's Belleville Juniors clash head-on in what should be a Trent Valley thriller in Memorial Arena come 8.30 this evening.

So far the Pointers have had little trouble in mopping up all opposition and have defeated every team in the league at least once, thus sitting atop with seven wins and nary a loss. The Juniors held down second place with the RCAF Flyers.

These same two teams met last Wednesday night and after the city crew had held the Point Anne power under control for one period, superior scoring ability and experience proved too much and the Ox-Pointers walked off with an 11-3 win.

"It will be different this time," quoth manager Gault, "the boys were disorganized once they started to get behind and did not play their positions at all in the last period. Our fellows can outskate the Cover line all night if they just remember to do it, so you can bet it will be a different score tonight."

Boucher Given Green Light With 'Any Amount of Money' To Produce A Winning Club

By ACK BESS'
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — New York Rangers, tired of being pushed around by other clubs in the National Hockey League, vow they will dig deep into the cash reserves if necessary to acquire players who might bolster their lowly position.

General manager Frank Boucher told a hockey writers' luncheon Tuesday that he had been authorized to go all out "with any amount of money" to produce a winning team. Instructions to this effect were given him by John Reed Kilpatrick, president of Madison Square Garden Corp., owners of the Rangers.

The Rangers are in fifth place in the six-team league, and have won only one game in their last 20.

SEES IMPROVEMENT

"We have no intention of throwing in the sponge," Boucher said, "and no intention of going out for help when there is no help available." He predicted that the Rangers' position would show a decided improvement within 10 days.

Boucher's statement to outside assistance concerned deals made earlier this year under which some of the players have helped Boston and Chicago with players. These deals left the Rangers "pretty empty" of top-calibre players available as trade bait, Boucher said.

The Rangers claim their only offer of help came from Toronto Maple Leafs and that involved minor league players in the Leafs' American Hockey League farm club at Pittsburgh. Ranger officials plan to scout Pittsburgh but are not optimistic.

FAILED ON MOORE

Boucher described efforts the Rangers made to obtain Dickie Moore from Montreal Canadiens: "We did our best but we couldn't get him. We were told that a top-notch (Ranger) leftwinger would have to be part of the deal. . . I've tried other deals, too, but didn't get anywhere."

Kilpatrick told the luncheon: "We have been doing and will continue to do everything physically possible to strengthen our team. Our moves and our personality cannot be discussed."

There are certain players he is particularly interested in. He indicated he may have feelers out for their purchase.

Kilpatrick said he feels some effort should be made to equalize "opportunities" between teams in Canada and the United States.

TV INFLUENCE

Saturday night television and radio broadcasts have a great influence on young Canadians and they naturally want to play in Montreal and Toronto.

There were recently hundreds of thousands" of unofficial scouts who direct players to either of those two teams, he said. The success of Detroit Red Wings was due principally to a few "workhorses" who kept the team in the running.

Kilpatrick said that as of Feb. 13 the Rangers will start their Sunday home games at 7 p.m., instead of 8.30. The earlier time was experimented with last Sunday and the largest New York crowd of the season, 13,807, turned out to see the Rangers play Montreal.

Ciesla Sparks Teeps to Victory; Guelph Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hank Ciesla, captain of St. Catharines TeePees of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league, is surging ahead in the league's individual scoring race.

Tuesday night the lanky six-foot-two centre added two goals to his record to spark TeePees to a 5-1 victory over Galt Black Hawks at Galt. Ciesla now has a record of 35 goals scored in 30 games, away ahead of Bob Barlow of Barrie Flyers with a 31-game, 85-goal record.

In the league's other game, Guelph Biltmores took their fifth straight victory of the season over Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks with a 6-1 win at Guelph.

SMALLEST CROWD

Ciesla scored his goals before 600 fans, Galt's smallest Junior A crowd this season.

The Guelph-Kitchener game was near the halfway mark before the Biltmores scored. They then ran in five goals before Canucks replied.

Bill Sweeney scored twice for the Biltmores. Singles were added by Wimpy Roberts, Bill McCreary, Ron Duvell and Bob Forhan. Art Schmidt counted the lone Kitchener goal.

Referee Jim Boddy tossed out Canuck Coach Bill Ullach in the final minute when Kitchener was penalized for having too many players on the ice five times in a row.

Marty Marion Predicts Flag For Chisox

CHICAGO (AP)—Marty Marion, former shortstop of St. Louis Cardinals, Tuesday finally became official 1955 manager of Chicago White Sox. He at once predicted a pennant season for the Pale Hose.

Vice-president Chuck Comiskey at a press conference disclosed Marion, 37, had agreed to a one-year contract to guide the Sox who finished third last season, 17 games behind the pennant-winning Cleveland Indians.

Although terms were not disclosed, it was learned Marion rejected a flat salary and signed for a salary-plus-attendance bonus.

This was believed similar to the estimated $25,000 plus five cents for each admission over 1,000,000 that Paul Richards received before leaving the Sox to become boss-man of Baltimore Orioles.

TICAT PRESIDENT

HAMILTON (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, who quit playing with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four to become president last year, Tuesday was re-elected president for the 1955 season.

Charley "Chan" No. One Boy Confident of Riders' Success

By BERNIE DUPRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Charles Andrew (Chan) Caldwell, Ottawa Rough Riders' new coach, apparently has learned early that the capital's fans take their football seriously. They insist on at least a coniciding Big Four team.

The 34-year-old Caldwell, who played and coached at the University of Tennessee, said after signing a three-year contract with Ottawa that if he can't make a success of the new job nobody can.

He has a business-like approach the fans should appreciate. He talked with player prospects in the United States even before coming from Knoxville, Tenn., for an interview with Riders' executive.

LENGTHY LIST

When the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union was reorganized in 1945 after three inactive wartime years, the Rider coach was the late Rosa Trimble.

Trimble, described as a "thorough gentleman" by old-time club officials, was a big success in the 1930s and early 1940s, leading the club to playoff spots almost every season.

But by 1945 Canadian football was professional. Trimble, a telephone company man, couldn't square the job with his time devoted to the club and resigned after the season.

In 1946 Riders brought in Fred Baldy Baldwin who had some previous success as coach of Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ont.

Baldwin was paid off four days before the opening game and George Fraser, a Rider guard for 16 seasons, was appointed coach. "The players under Baldwin were getting Saturdays off and were not getting into shape," one official said.

In 1947, Riders hired Sammy Fox, an American who lasted the season. When he left he told one of his players:

"When I came up here I thought this was a bush league and got off on the wrong foot. If I had to start over it would be different."

Wally Masters, an American who had played and coached in Ottawa was brought up from the defunct Ottawa Trojans of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

WANTED NEW PLAYS

Masters, now living in Montreal, got the team into the playoffs fairly regularly but there were no championships.

It was the same old story. Fans wanted to see new plays.

The club then hired Crowe, who had coached Baltimore Colts in the National Football League.

The next season Crowe's club made the playoffs but was eliminated. In 1953 they just missed the playoffs.

The rout came down last season when Riders won only two of 14 games. That was the end of Crowe.

Tex Coulter Goes to Giants

NEW YORK (AP)—Dewitt (Tex) Coulter, the big tackle who quit New York football Giants two years ago to play in Canada, will return next season.

The Giants revealed Tuesday that Coulter had signed a 1955 contract. His recently announced his "retirement" from Canadian football to enter the construction business in Dallas, Tex.

Coulter is the second player from Montreal Alouettes to sign with the Giants within a short time. Alex Webster, the leading scorer on the Big Four, signed 10 days ago.

Coulter, a six-foot, five-inch, 260-pounder, was voted the Big Four's most valuable lineman last season.

Canadian-American Imports May Be Ousted By Big Four

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Canadian-American player may be missing from eastern Canada football this year.

The import question, including the rule on Canadian-American, likely will provoke considerable discussion at Saturday's Big Four annual meeting at Montreal, but just what policy will be adopted is anybody's guess.

One thing appears certain, though. Canadian-American imports, those who have played four consecutive seasons in the country, probably are on the way out. Three now are allowed on each club.

The Canadian Press sounded out club officials Tuesday on the stands likely to be taken at the session and out of it came word that most are against the Canadian-American rule. Some indicate they will go for a straight 12 imports, two more than new permitted. Others want to cut the number.

Bill Ross, president of Toronto Argonauts, said: "I would like to see the Canadian-Americans go out." On imports, he commented: "We think a lot want 12 and if that's the number it's okay with us. If it's 10, that's okay, too, but there will be a lot of discussion on the question."

Said Jake Gaudaur, president of Hamilton Tiger-Cats:

"For many years we've been advocating a policy of fewer Americans and we'll adopt that stand this year. We asked for six last year and we feel that a reduction probably next year would allow more Canadians to play.

"But we must pay tribute to the Americans. Basically they've made our game what it is today."

"We're for 12 imports."

He added, however, that Als didn't want any strings attached, such as the Canadian-American rule. But he would like to see a special committee set up to give consideration to cases where a man who has been in Canada "quite a few" years, has settled down, raised a family, built a home and got into a business.

Joey Giardello "Fired, Hired" In One Breath

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania state athletic commission Tuesday suspended middleweight contender Joey Giardello for 75 days and then, in the same breath, reinstated the fighter on payment of a $500 fine.

Frank Weiner, chairman of the commission, said that Giardello's actions outside of the ring were detrimental to the best interest of boxing.

Weiner said that the commission had decided to give the boxer an opportunity to prove himself and to continue in the ring, by allowing him to pay a fine in lieu of his suspension.

Giardello's suspension and fine resulted from an assault on a gas-station operator last Oct. 29. He is to be tried on assault charges. Giardello denies that he was involved in the brawl.

Powder-Puff Punching Jimmy Slade Never A 'Bride' Not Even A' Maid'

By BILLY MacPHAIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Jimmy Slade, who punched his way from street brawls in the Bronx to tease with titles, admits he may be boxing's best spoiler, but never a champion.

"I always was a powder-puff puncher. I beat most guys by outsmarting them. Just keep moving and hitting."

"I guess I am a spoiler," Slade lamented in an interview on arrival here Tuesday night to clash for the second time with Canada's heavyweight champion Earl Walls in a 10-rounder at Maple Leaf Gardens Jan. 17. He will be substituting for James J. Parker of Barrie, Ont., who had to withdraw from what was to be a title bout because of influenza.

In their last fight, at Madison Square Garden in 1950, the 182-pound Slade outpointed Walls who will have a 14-pound weight edge next Monday.

"I don't know how this next one's gonna end. Walls is a lot better since our first go. All I can say is I'm gonna do my best."

Slade, 28, and winner of 26 of 38 bouts in six years campaigning as a light-heavyweight and heavyweight, has derailed some dangerous challengers while never achieving a title shot himself.

"I beat Don Cockell and Harold Johnson and both these guys are pretty good," said Slade who has also battled Dan Bucceroni and Hurricane Jackson.

A loss to Archie Moore, in 1952 before Moore became light-heavyweight champion, and another recently to hard-hitting Floyd Patterson, helped trip his title plans.

For Slade title dreams never fade.

"Before I quit I want a chance at the light-heavy or heavy champ if might be able to make the grade in my next five bouts."

Argonauts Plan Early Start For Canadians

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts plan an early start to develop Canadian talent for the 1955 Big Four football season.

Team manager Harry Sonshine announced Tuesday that Argonauts will hold an indoor training clinic in February or March, the earliest on record, as the first step in a campaign to build up Canadian player strength that has made them the most feared club in the country. The club will follow up in May with regular spring practice.

"We have some tremendous prospects among our college draft choices and juniors," Sonshine said. "They are so good every Canadian will have to fight for a job. None of last year's Canadian boys can take anything for granted. They'll have to make the team on their merits and their desires."

Floyd Patterson Needs More 'Beef' If He Wants Crack at Heavy Title

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It behooves Floyd Patterson to begin putting on some solid weight pretty soon if the dazzling young boxer from Brooklyn is to live up to the generalties of those who have been saying for the last several years that he can't miss winning the heavyweight title.

The "new Joe Louis" weighed only 186 pounds the other night when he bombed middleweight Willie Troy into submission. While it was a very impressive performance in every respect, the fact remained that Patterson was fighting at only a little more than he scaled when he swept the 165-pound championships in the 1952 Olympic Games at Helsinki.

That strikes this corner as slow progress in the weight department. Even though the lad has just turned 20, it is high time he began making his move.

The Joe Louis to whom Patterson is being compared was a big man to begin with. At 20 the Brown Bomber weighed some 15 pounds more than Patterson does at the same stage, and he went steadily up to the 200-pound class.

UNHAPPY POSITION

The youth from Brooklyn finds himself in an awkward spot. He's too big for the middleweight division, in which considerable money can be made, and he's not yet nearly experienced enough to mess with the likes of Archie Moore, the ruler of the 175-pounders. He's got to pull himself up to that table and start eating if he's ever to reach a high-income bracket.

Though he is nothing to compare with the picture fighter that Patterson is right now, Paul Andrews, the 24-year-old former paratrooper who stopped Boardwalk Billy Smith in Miami Dec. 28, could well prove the more valuable property of the two if the Brooklyn beauty continues to lag on the scales.

Andrews, a natural 180-pounder now, is being trained and managed by Joe Louis, and the former champ appears to have taught him a lot about the manly art since he took a jumping from Joey Maxim in Chicago late in November.

GETS UNLIMITED CONTRACT

KINGSTON (CP)—Frank Tindall, head football coach at Queen's University, has been given a contract to coach as long as he wants. At a meeting of the athletic board Monday it was unanimously decided to set a precedent by awarding Tindall a no-limit contract.

Tindall has coached Queen's for eight intercollegiate seasons, seven of them in succession. Last season his senior Golden Gaels lost to Western Ontario Mustangs in a sudden-death championship semi-final.

When you hear the word overcall in bridge think of a defensive bid. The word simple in bridge does not refer to the player but to an expression that means without a jump.

So, a simple overcall is a defensive bid without a jump. It is a non-jump defensive bid in a new denomination by an opponent of the opening bidder. It may be in a suit or in no-trump.

A hand that makes a simple overcall is a hand that could not have opened the bidding. So, what is promised by such a defensive bid? What are the requirements for a simple overcall?

Culbertson says: 1½ to 2½ honor tricks, a suit as good as K-Q-8-3-2 or Q-J-9-8-3, a hand containing four winners if not vulnerable; five winners if vulnerable, with a suit such as Q-J-9-8-3, or Q-J-2.

If the bid must be two instead of one, he says, it needs more honor trick strength and another winner, all of which is based on finding partner with two tricks vulnerable; three tricks not vulnerable.

Goren says: in overcalls the prime consideration is not the point count value of your hand (as with openings and responses) but rather the texture of your suit.

Thus, his simple overcalls are determined by judgment in each case. Its flexibility depends on the immediate purpose of the call; whether it is for aggressive, defensive, or interference aims.

Accordin' to Gordon, a simple overcall of one presents the same five tricks that any one bid shows (six tricks if the bid must be two) but the hand does not include four high cards with two sure tricks.

When south opens with one heart your simple overcall is a spade with the west hand shown here:

♦ 9 8 6
♣ 5 3 2

You have a choice of three different methods by which to size up this bid. But all agree in principle.

TV Keeps an Old Guy Young Says Veteran of Stage, Screen

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—At an age as they might be," and not as good when most actors are thinking of retiring or already have, Charlie Ruggles is doing five television shows a week and has no thought of quitting.

"It keeps an old guy young," says the veteran of stage, films, radio and TV. He will be 63 Feb. 8 and has been acting since the age of 11.

"I've never known anything but work," he related during a break in rehearsals for his daytime "The World of Mr. Sweeney" on NBC.

Doing five TV shows a week "is very exacting, but I like it well. There's always a sense of satisfaction when you see something develop in which you have a part."

To be near his TV work, Ruggles and his wife moved to a New York hotel and gave up their home and orange grove in California where they had lived 22 years.

LESS OPPORTUNITY

Ruggles is one of many veterans of stage and screen who played a dominant role in TV in its early years, but he says "there's tremendous talent among the youngsters."

However, "their opportunities for getting experience are not as good as when he was a youngster, in the era of stock companies and radio vaudeville.

"I've always been glad I played 'Uncle Is Dry Bones,'" says Ruggles. The experience had been a big asset in TV with its requirements for fast memorizing of scripts.

Radio-TV editors polled by Radio Daily have Daily picked Jackie Gleason and Lucille Ball as man and woman of the year in TV and Arthur Godfrey and Eve Arden in radio.

CBS-TV has come up with "Professional Father" as replacement for "That's My Boy" in its effort to attract viewers away from Georgie Gobel on NBC at the same hour. But if the first show of the new series featuring Steve Dunne as the father who is a child psychiatrist is a sample of what's to come, Gobel has clear sailing. Professional Father seems to be afflicted by virtually all the ailments that have plagued the flood of filmed situation comedies coming out of Hollywood, from canned laughter to slapstick to downright dullness.

AT THE CAPITOL—Dorothy Malone and John Ireland starring in The Fast and the Furious, the story of a hunted killer who plans an escape as a race driver in a dash across the border. The Fast and the Furious comes to the Capitol Theatre Thursday for the first city showing. On the same program is Technicolor "The Man From the Alamo", starring Glenn Ford, Julia Adams and Chill Wills.

Future of Showing Movies Underwater is Not Promising

By BOB THOMAS

SILVER SPRINGS, Fla. (AP)—It may be fun, but there doesn't seem to be a future in showing movies underwater.

After participating in the world's first underwater premiere of a movie—it may well be the last—I don't think it will be replaced by swim-ins.

The picture, was "Underwater!" a Howard Hughes epic starring Jane Russell. This Florida resort was chosen for the premiere because its crystal-clear water would permit projection of a film.

So a half-hundred professional divers, not-so-sensible members of the press and the film's stars, Miss Russell and Richard Egan, shivered on the shore, squishing their feet on and swim fins poised.

LONG WAIT

After a long, cold wait the film started rolling in the glass-enclosed projection booth.

Down we went.

What did we see? Darn little. A bunch of jokers thrashing around in the water. Some weeds floating by. A buried sailfish. Bubbles in the crazy humanz.

Everything had a blue appearance, as though the actors were working on a freezing stage. Anyway, it was an enjoyable if chilly experience.

And you couldn't hear the dialogue. RKO technicians had carried on about installing sound speakers above and below the water. Glug, glug. That's all you could hear under there. Who wants to attend a movie when all you can hear is glug, glug?

MONEY THEORY

Hughes has made an art of the theory that you have to spend money to make money. In this case, he has spent an estimated $65,000 to send off his latest movie starring Miss Russell. The citizens of Silver Springs went all-out in hospitality.

RKO, which is owned by Hughes, flew two planeloads of press and players from Hollywood. Two other planes carried passengers from New York.

Aside from the film's stars, the celebrities included Debbie Reynolds, Mala Powers, Lori Nelson, Gordon (the new Tarzan) Scott, and a scattering of starlets. Photographers had a field day, both above and below the water.

CAUSED BY SHRIMPS

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP)—The Westchester county health department reported Tuesday that a shrimp salad was the cause of illness in the food poisoning of 305 persons at a pre-Christmas party at General Foods, Inc., headquarters here. The report also said too much perishable material was prepared by an outside caterer too far in advance of the party.

Indians Earn Tie With Mercs; Dogs Nip Falls

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stratford Indians of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league stretched their unbeaten streak to four games Tuesday night, but it was touch and go all the way.

Harry Dawes's second goal of the game came with only 41 seconds remaining in regulation time to tie a game with Owen Sound Mercurys 4-4. It sent the teams into a scoreless overtime period.

In the other OHA game Windsor Bulldogs continued to a 6-2 victory over Niagara Falls before a Windsor crowd of 2,200.

Bulldogs jumped to a 3-1 lead in the first period and scored three unanswered goals in the second.

Early Keyes, who hadn't scored a goal all season, splurged with three to pace the Bulldogs. Jim Peters scored a pair and Chuck Henderson added the sixth. Eric Unger and Lorne Ferguson counted for Cataracts.

AT THE McCARTHY—"Forrester will not give in. He takes Carrington on his back, gives the wounded man the last of the water, and together they stagger on." This dramatic scene from "The Purple Plain" shows Gregory Peck in his finest role as Forrester, the disillusioned ace Canadian pilot attached to the R.A.F. Filmed in Burma in realistic Technicolor, it introduces Burmese beauty Win Min Than in her first screen appearance. "The Purple Plain" shows for three days at the McCarthy theatre, commencing Thursday.

Mayor Probes Discrimination In Minor Hockey

QUEBEC (CP)—Mayor Wilfrid Hamel called for a report from the Municipal Playgrounds Association Tuesday after an alderman charged that untalented youngsters who wish to play hockey are allowed on city rinks only once a week.

Councillor Gaston Flibotte said that in order to play hockey, children from six to 16 "are forced to sign cards with the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association for a period of five years."

"If the children are not shit to become ranking players, they can only use the rinks once a week when the rinks are available," he said. "The Victoria Park gymnasium was built with city funds for the children of Quebec City, and not for holding matches between clubs coming from outside or affiliated to organizations of the QAHA's calibre."

TO AMUSE THEM

Lionel Fleury, president of the QAHA and of the playgrounds association's sports committee, said that hockey teams are formed among the youngsters "to amuse them and not to make professional hockey players out of them."

"It could happen that a youngster who has enough talent decides later to make a career in hockey," he said. "This happened in the cases of Camille Henry and Michel Labadie, who learned their hockey on association rinks."

Henry and Labadie both play for Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League.

Mr. Flibotte said he plans to fight against allowing the playgrounds association to continue under the present system. He said he will propose that an aldermanic committee be set up to run the association "to the advantage of the children."

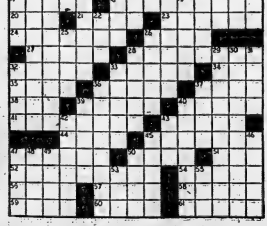
Little Benny's Note Book

I started to walk to the bus with Benjamin Franklin to go to school, and he said, I hope it don't just miss a bus, because I ought to get to the office a little erly this morning for one reason and another. However, I refuse to hurry. Hurrying is not only contrary to my nature, it's agenst my principals, he said.

Well Jimminies, pop, you might just miss one by about a second, if you don't hurry, I said, and pop said I wouldn't want that to happen, but on the other hand I wouldn't want to hurry, Benjamin Franklin said. Start the day in a hurry, it will end in a flurry. So for Pect sake why worry?

Well G, if Benjamin Franklin said it, it must be true, I said. Benjamin Franklin invented electricity, he was smart, I said, and pop said, He was smart enough to invent electricity just late enough to make sure that he wouldn't be around to be annoyed by the telefone bell. That's about as smart as you can get, pop said.

Which just then we saw about a block away, and I said, Oh boy, pop, the only way you can catch it is by running, and it's pritty hard to run without hurrying.



Benjamin Franklin a l s o said something els on the subject, pop said. He said, He lives to file another day. If he files and runs away, But if the same man runs toward, It's 10 to one he'll get aboard.

And he started to run as fast as he could, being pritty fast when he tries hard, and I watched to see what happened, and he just exactly made the bus.

Proving Benjamin Franklin was rite.

Rehabilitation Work Damages Marsh Is Claim

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said today rehabilitation work by the provincial government is doing more damage to some parts of the Holland marsh than the ruin caused by the hurricane Hazel flood last Oct. 16.

Mr. MacDonald recently completed a tour of the marsh, rich farming land 35 miles north of here. The marsh was covered with between five to 20 feet of water last fall.

The water was pumped out by November and the government then started dredging a 17-mile canal which rings the dikes.

"Tons of spoil are silt, decaying matter of various kinds, rubbish, water, along with clay dug up from the bottom of the canal, has been dumped over the dike onto the private properties," Mr. MacDonald said in a statement.

DESCRIBES DAMAGE

He said one farmer's tool shed and greenhouse, undamaged by the floods, now are total wrecks with eight feet or more of this "soup" around them.

Homes and other buildings are close to the dike, and all the yards around them are being filled with muck and, in many cases, half buried, he said.

The government wanted the canal cleaned before the spring runoff which could bring a repetition of the floods.

The marsh is split by Highway 400 which runs north from here to Barrie. The canal has been cleaned on the smaller, western side of the marsh and work now is being carried to the eastern side.

RUDING LAND

Now bulldozers are being brought into operation to push the excavated muck, some four feet deep, back over an acre or so of the rich farm lands," said Mr. MacDonald. "This may result in permanent damage to gardening areas greater than that suffered in hurricane Hazel.

"Most of these small growers have lots of only 10 acres, so that the narrow margin of economic survival, with existing farm markets and prices, may well be wiped out."

Frost Denies Report

TORONTO, (CP)—Premier Frost Tuesday denied a published report that Hon. G. Arthur Welsh has resigned as Ontario liquor commissioner and provincial secretary.

The report said Col. Welsh would become sheriff of Ontario county which includes the automotive city of Oshawa, and that W. M. Nickle, Progressive Conservative member for Kingston, would be taken into the cabinet.

Asked about the report, Mr. Nickle said:

"I have heard nothing about it."

FIRE DESTROYS HOME

Conservatives Propose Coast Guard Service

OTTAWA (CP)—A coast guard service for the Great Lakes was proposed in the Commons Tuesday by an Ontario Progressive Conservative.

Wallace Nesbitt, member for Oxford, said the government should provide some sort of protection for the thousands of persons who sail on the lakes during the summer.

Fish tugs equipped with ship-to-shore radio could be used for patrol work and a meteorological service established to warn boat owners of storms. No storm warnings were provided now.

In addition, persons around the lakes had no one to go to in event of an accident and there was no authority to order rescue operations.

"This is a situation that is quite serious and is likely to increase rather than decrease because people who live in the Ontario towns and cities of western Ontario are using boats more and more on the Great Lakes. Their knowledge of navigation is dependable. They should have some supervision and should be looked after by some type of coast guard."

Pay Entertainment

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Speaker, Rene Beaudoin, has been permitted to run up a bill of $3,600 in each fiscal year for official entertainment. Previous speakers paid for entertainment out of their own pockets.

This was disclosed Tuesday in a report tabled in the Commons by its internal economies committee. Mr. Beaudoin will be required to present signed vouchers covering the entertainment costs.

RETURN TO PRISON

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Dennis M. Dixon came back to the Texas state penitentiary and asked that his parole be revoked. He was let back in. "I thought I'd better get back in before I get into some serious trouble," remarked the 48-year-old man who entered the prison in 1939 on two charges of murder and four charges of burglary. Since his parole in 1946, he explained, he had been unemployed 18 months, his wife had divorced him and he had been drinking too much.

NO "INTENT"

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—A judge Monday dismissed two charges of first degree robbery against a Buffalo police lieutenant on the ground that "criminal intent" was lacking in the alleged robberies. Judge Michael F. Zimmer said Lieut. Daniel C. Keane was a diabetic suffering from insulin shock and that the officer's diabetic condition "could cause him to go berserk as he did."

This is THE MARK OF A NEW AGE!

That big, bold Sweep-Sight Windshield — curving back to vertical corner posts — is easy-to-see evidence that Chevrolet has cast aside the tradition of the past to start a whole new age of low-cost motoring. It's smarter to look at — safer to look out of — and it's only part of Chevrolet's new outlook for '55!

Yes, Chevrolet brings you a whole new outlook in low-cost motoring for 1955! It's best symbolized, we think, by the sweeping expanse of windshield that widens your view of the road and lets you "see through" the corners for greater safety. But there's more to it than this — a lot more.

The car with the new idea!

Besides widening your view of the road, the Motoramic Chevrolet broadens the whole horizon of the low-priced car. It was built around the idea that a car doesn't have to be high-priced to look, ride and perform like it. A lot of time and sweat went into the building. A lot of old traditions went out the window because they didn't measure up to this daring new concept. Trust Chevrolet to have the resources and the skill — yes, and the courage — to break so completely with the past.

Everything's new in Chevrolet!

Everything — from its tubeless tires to its lower top. There's new beauty with that long, low "it's go" look! New fun underfoot with the new "Turbo-Fire" V8 and the new "Blue-Flame" six! A new choice of drives — new Overdrive, Super-Smooth Powerglide (extra-cost options), and new standard transmissions! A wonderful new ride! New High-Level ventilation! But we can't even begin to give you the whole story here.

Look who's stealing whose thunder!

Chevrolet's stealing the thunder from the high-priced cars in more ways than one! Come in, drive it, and you'll see why the Motoramic Chevrolet starts a new and exciting age of low cost motoring. This you're going to love!

MORE THAN A NEW CAR... A WHOLE NEW CONCEPT OF LOW-COST MOTORING!

GOVT. MAY FACE LEGAL PROBLEMS IN INVESTIGATION

Information May Be Confidential Under Act

OTTAWA (CP) — The government may encounter legal problems in an investigation of an income tax appeal case disclosing that public officials were entertained at a Hollywood-type retreat in the Quebec Laurentian mountains by a construction company seeking contracts.

A possible problem exists that the record of the case, heard in private by the income tax appeal board, may be confidential information under the Income Tax Act. One report says the government may have to take a reference to the Exchequer Court of Canada to obtain the information.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told reporters in the house of commons Wednesday that the government already has anticipated possible difficulties in obtaining additional details. The only public document available at present is the tax appeal board's judgment.

STUDY ALL ASPECTS

Mr. St. Laurent said "law officers of the crown are studying all aspects of it (the case) to determine our precise legal position."

He added that he plans to "go the legal limit to get all the facts."

He announced in the Commons Tuesday that the government will investigate whether any federal officials were entertained at the private residence mentioned by the unnamed company. He said he will attempt to ascertain what was said at the closed hearing of the tax appeal.

The appeal board judgment said the company had sought a $27,789 deduction from 1951 taxable income for alterations to the retreat "where officials and officers of the various government boards could be entertained prior to negotiation of government contracts." The board disallowed the deduction on the ground that the contracts were let to subsidiaries of the company.

Mr. St. Laurent said present practice under the Income Tax Act when appeals are heard in private is to keep the board record of proceedings confidential.

NOT INTENTION

However, he added: "I feel confident I can answer he anybody's intention that the law be used in such a way as to harm anybody's doors."

A spokesman for the income tax department also said it has been the board's practice not to divulge the information in the file to the private. The board's judgment was the only public document.

He said sections of the act covering the operations of the board do not mention confidentiality or actually state that the board has specific authority to order records to remain confidential.

However, he said Section 91 of the act gives the board authority to hear appeals in private at its own discretion. The section also says the board must hold a private hearing if such a request is made by the appellant. Another section prohibits disclosure of a taxpayer's income tax return.

16 MISSING

LONDON (AP)—An air ministry spokesman said two RAF bombers vanished early today while on a training exercise and 16 men believed lost at sea. Each carried a crew of eight. The four-engined planes left the air base at Lossiemouth for Cork on the south coast of Ireland.

Winds and Waves at Cobourg Delay RCAF Search for Plane

TRENTON, (Special) —Investigation of an oil slick in Lake Ontario near Cobourg by an RCAF Search and Rescue team who called off yesterday afternoon because of icy winds and high waves.

An attempt to reach the slick by a three man team in a 15-foot outboard motor boat was called off when six foot waves threatened to capsize the craft. The men, covered with ice, returned to Cobourg harbor after covering about 10 miles in the four mile journey from the harbor to the slick located 20? yards off Lucas' Point.

An unconfirmed report that an aircraft plunged into the lake off Lucas' Point some time early Wednesday morning.

"If there is an airplane down it is definitely not one of ours," said S/L Ron Woods, public relations officer at Station Trenton, Wednesday afternoon.

No word had been received this morning of planes missing from Buffalo or Cleveland.

Late Wednesday afternoon, two Cobourg residents, Jack Bowerman, tire salesman, and Gordon Holloway, grocery store delivery boy told RCAF officials on the scene that they had seen a fireball cross over Cobourg from west to east about 5.15 p.m., Tuesday and then to drop into the lake.

They said that the fireball came from a great height. Their report led to speculation that an experimental plane from the Bell Aircraft Co., at Buffalo might have crashed into the lake.

A year ago an experimental plane capable of doing 1,400 miles per hour crashed into Lake Ontario about 10 miles off the wrecked plane washed ashore at Picton.

The RCAF took its rescue boat back to Trenton Wednesday night but resumed the search at noon today.

Yesterday's attempted search was featured by aircraft ground and air-to-boat radio communication between an aircraft circling the oil slick, a jeep on Lucas' Point and the rescue boat.

Slushy shore ice and high waves prevented launching of the search boat Wednesday afternoon at Lucas' Point and the launching had to be made in Cobourg harbor more than four miles from the site of the oil slick.

RCAF weather reports indicated that calmer weather can be expected today although freezing temperatures were expected to hinder the search party.

EASTERN ONTARIO LAUNCHES DRIVE FOR INDUSTRY

40 Communities Unite To List Advantages

OTTAWA (CP)—Some 40 communities of eastern Ontario, describing the area as the "heart of Canada's multi-billion-dollar market," today launched a world campaign to attract more industry.

Five thousand copies of a handsomely-illustrated booklet, outlining all the best of the triangular area of 10,200 square miles, were rolled off the press to be mailed to businessmen leaders in most parts of the world. The theme: You can grow wealthy by locating in eastern Ontario.

The booklet, with its maps and detailed statistical analysis of every community in the area, is the product of the Eastern Ontario Development Association, which is working partly under a $10,000-a-year subsidy from the Ontario government.

OTHER REGIONS LATER

Other provincial development regions are to be set up by the Ontario government later.

The booklet says bluntly that "no area of Canada offers industry quite the same strategic advantages enjoyed by eastern Ontario."

"Situated almost in the geographic heart of Canada's two greatest markets—Ontario and Quebec—and only one hour from the United States' largest market, with the St. Lawrence seaway bringing the world to its doorstep, with the world's first atomic power plant within its boundaries, with hydro power in unequaled favorable location for industrial development."

The booklet, touching on eastern Ontario, the booklet says the whole area's population is 1,000,000. While its population of 15,000,000 was still not large, "the next few score years will see it rapidly populated double."

HEART OF EVERYTHING

"Eastern Ontario is virtually the heart of everything. It is the heart of Canada's mass markets with the U.S. markets nearby, it has about the best water transportation, the best commercial areas, fine highways, reasonable and realistic taxes, all the advantages of modern living, a temperate climate, room for expansion, a stable labor supply from its 625,000 people and fine community facilities."

And since Canada's Chalk River atomic plant is located in eastern Ontario, the booklet says it should be the first to benefit from commercial use of atomic power, when, the booklet says,

And this day is believed to be not far distant."

Train Passengers Marooned As Gales Sweep Britain

Roads Blocked and Cars Stranded in 45 Counties

LONDON (Reuters) — Nearly 700 passengers from two snowbound trains were marooned Wednesday night in a lonely country station in the north of Scotland by a blizzard which swept across much of Europe.

The trains were snowed in on the coldest night of the winter about 20 miles from Wick, Scotland's northernmost town.

The passengers trammed through the blizzard to a nearby station where they huddled around a waiting room fire. Meanwhile, a snow plow tried to cut a path over the tracks to rescue them.

Vicious snow squalls hit many other parts of Britain after temperatures sank in 10 months. Roads were blocked and cars stranded in 45 counties. Early morning temperatures had risen from 12 below zero to 24 above.

PLANES HELD UP

Fog added to the difficulties of travel, and Scottish airlines circled over London airport for up to half an hour waiting their turn to land. Hundreds of passengers on their way to the Continent had their mail airliners had been "de-frozen."

Snow covered Londonderry in Northern Ireland, ran out of coal and about 9,000 homes were without heat. Up to 20 tons of coal was due from England later today.

In Europe, German and Swiss mountain dwellers stood by for expected avalanches after rain and snow lashed their Alpine regions most of Wednesday.

Flood warnings from rivers swollen by recent heavy rain and melting snows in the Vosges mountains cut roads and rail lines and isolated several villages in eastern France.

In Greece, some 380 houses have been collapsed by earthquakes in 100,000 acres in the northern part of the country. Damaged villages are being supplied with food and blankets by air.

TWO DROWNED

Two of the five-man crew of the 50-ton Icelandic fishing boat Sigurdingur were drowned Wednesday when their vessel sank after collision with the 6,985-ton British trawler Kingston Pearl off Iceland, it was reported today. The Icelandic vessel's wireless brought ships rushing to the aid of the 1,985-ton Kingston Pearl. Others which reported it was "cracked amidships" in the heavy seas. The Pearl was in the central North sea, it called for immediate assistance.

All ships off the North sea island of Heligoland were asked to watch for a missing 40-foot motorboat from the 1,818-ton Norwegian ship Vard in heavy seas near the island. The British steamer Cadman Sahib reported sighting a small vessel overturned about 10 miles off Flesmark.

In London, water from fire hoses froze on the pavements today when firemen extinguished a blaze which caused $10,000 damage in a furniture factory.

Windsor-Niagara Toll Road Being Studied, Frost Admits

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost said today the Ontario government is studying an engineering report on the possibility of building a toll road between Windsor and the United States border in the Niagara area but is not negotiating with anyone concerning such construction.

"As a matter of fact, no private interests in the United States has offered to construct a toll highway in Ontario," the premier said in reference to published reports.

"The nearest approach to such a thing is an engineering report which was given to the government, which emphasizes that the report is merely a preliminary feasibility report and that further study is necessary in nature.

SEEK INFORMATION

"The matter of toll roads however is now a matter of study of three departments of government, namely, the treasury branch of the department of economics and the committee on revenue, the department of planning and development and the planning section of the department of highways.

"The purpose is to obtain every bit of information which can be applied to this study."

The premier said modern toll roads such as the Pennsylvania turnpike in the United States, by no way should be confused with the old toll roads.

NO CABINET STUDY

"The construction of toll roads in no way implies that the same should or has to be done by private interests. It is quite feasible that the same be undertaken by public authorities."

Mr. Frost added that the province's study of toll roads has been on the technical level and has not been considered by either the treasury board or cabinet.

U.S. Air Force Launches Jets From Trucks

BALTIMORE (AP)—The United States Air Force doesn't need long runways any more to get its fighter jets into the air. It can launch them from a 39-foot platform mounted on a truck.

The idea, force announced today that it has launched F-84 Thunderjets from what it calls "portable launching platforms during tests at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

The tests, conducted by the air research and development command and Glenn L. Martin, used the same principle and equipment employed to launch Martin's Matador, a pilotless missile.

The "secret sauce" is filled with propellant is attached to an F-84 and the plane rained into launching position on the platform by mobile cranes.

The plane's turbo-jet engines are raced at full speed, then the propellant in the "booster bottle" goes into action, and the plane a rocket kick that sends it off so swiftly that it is airborne almost instantly.

Spain May Send Observer to UN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Spain, barred from the United Nations by the General Assembly decision in 1946, is considering establishing a permanent observer at UN headquarters, U. S. diplomatic sources reported today.

The sources, who refused to let their names be used, also said the chief delegates of the United States and France have informed Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold that they would favor such action by Generalissimo Franco's government.

Weather Clear Over Ice on Which Nine Eskimos Marooned for 9 Days

OTTAWA (CP) — Clearing weather was in prospect today in the northeast corner of Hudson bay where nine Eskimos and seven hunters have been marooned nine days on drifting ice at the mercy of subArctic cold.

But 275 miles northwest of Coral Harbor on Southampton Island, where an RCAF Lancaster has been kept from the search by heavy fog, the weather outlook was reported "not too good."

Whether the plane takes off depends on the pilot's judgment, and every passing day lessens chances that the lost hunters can be found alive.

Government men familiar with the Arctic speculated Wednesday that the men, without dog teams or kayaks, cooking equipment or a change of clothing, may be dying or dead of exposure.

But some hope was held by Supt. H. A. Larsen of the RCMP, who skippered the schooner Nascopie on her Coral Harbor-Fort Ross patrol.

"I've heard of Eskimos surviving for more than eight days when they were cut adrift," he said, "but they had equipment and a change of clothing."

Supt. Larsen is keeping in touch with the men by radio from the RCMP post at Port Harrison, on the eastern shore of Hudson bay about 200 miles south of tiny Cape Smith Island where the Eskimo hunters were set adrift with only their harpoons and rifles.

The nine set out Jan. 4 to hunt with dogs and sleds, kayaks, stone cooking lamps and a change of clothing for the women and boys from since. The equipment was found on shore where the ice broke free.

U.S. Planes Ordered to Make 'Pacific Flights' to Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—The United States and its Latin-American allies are making last-minute efforts today in the wake of spreading fighting and widespread attacks in Nicaragua, Costa Rica.

The state department announced in Washington that it has ordered U.S. planes to the battle area to make "pacific flights" over the neighboring republic.

Across the border, Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza continued to deny the Costa Rican accusations, charging fighting in Costa Rica as a "civil war." Somoza said he has ordered all situation.

rebels crossing his borders disarmed and all Costa Ricans in the Nicaraguan army to be arrested on sight.

Fighting flared at half a dozen points Wednesday and planes strafed nine Costa Rican towns, including the capital. Unofficial estimates placed the rebel ground force at 1,000.

The Costa Rican general staff said that at Villa Quesada "many of the enemy planes have been shot as loyalist forces claimed to have captured the enemy from the town of 3,500 about 40 miles from the Nicaraguan border. It was seized by the rebels Wednesday at the start of the revolt.

Radio Tobias reports said a rebel force today was moving down the inter-American highway from Rivas, only 10 miles from Nicaragua. The towns of Penas, Blancas on the small port of Puerto Soley, all near the Nicaraguan border, were reported in enemy hands, but the general staff voiced confidence it could handle the

Two Men Found Dead in Auto Which Left Road

WINGHAM (CP)—Two London men were found dead in the wreckage of their late model car this morning at the intersection of Huron 4 and 5 highway, eight miles north of Teeswater.

Dead are Thomas A. Cooper, 40 and Leonard Prosser, 40.

Discovery of the tragedy was made by a highway employee on his way to work when he noticed the checkered car had gone missing. Investigating he found the car had jumped the ditch and had hit a hydro pole.

U.S. Will Keep 'Decisive Forces' In Far East

TOKYO (AP) — The United States will keep "decisive forces" ready for instant launching in the Far East if aggression appears to be long at any needed, Gen. John E. Hull, U. S. Far East commander, said today.

Hull, speaking before the Tokyo Correspondents' Club, said recent changes in the Far East were made to exploit the full power of American air forces and to provide the means of "shifting them within hours over great distances."

Hormel Acquitted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Handsome George Hormel II, 26, pleaplaying scion of the millionaire meat-packing family, was acquitted by a jury Wednesday of a marijuana-possession charge.

Hormel, who said he had been framed and tricked into a confession by narcotics officers, was arrested last Sept. 10? Officers said they found 13 marijuana cigarets in his car.

Held by Police On Two Charges Of Woundings

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Romanew, 26, of Toronto is being held by police on two charges of wounding with intent following the stabbing of a customer and the proprietor of a poultry store with an 8-inch butcher knife here Wednesday night.

Nikolai Kuchmaher, 26, the proprietor, and Paul Rosengarten, 29, suffered slight stabbing with the knife wounds. Neither was in critical condition. Stackhamer was stabbed four times in the chest, back and right arm. Rosengarten was stabbed once in the back.

Police said a man entered the store during business hours and started an argument with Stackhamer. The man picked up the butcher knife and stabbed him.

Three men chased Romanew for four blocks and held him for police.

A 'Crazy Idea'

HAMILTON (CP)—A city official said Wednesday Ottawa Mayor Charlotte Whitton's suggestion for "sprinkling" snow-clogged city is "crazy idea."

Mayor Whitton said the answer was to get some birds and spray them with luminous paint.

"It would be the last act of the rest of the flock," she said.

Bill Hunt, municipal sanitation director, refused to take the suggestion seriously.

"We've seen white robins and albino sparrows," he said. Starlings would soon get used to the bright fellows.

EVACUATE 250

BOUCHERVILLE, Que. (CP)— Twenty homes evacuated 250 residents Tuesday night when flames swept through a convent in this town 15 miles east of Montreal. Police said no one was injured in the fire which destroyed the convent board and burned for two hours before being brought under control.

Drive for Annual Wage Expected To Head Demands

DETROIT (AP)—United Automobile Workers' bargaining negotiating 500,000 General Motors workers, opened negotiations to prepare strategy for negotiations which one union leader said will be "the most significant in the history of our union, or any union."

The drive for a guaranteed annual wage is expected to head the list of demands when the companies will formulate at separate bargaining sessions with three-day sessions and wage increases also will figure in the discussions.

Both parties are preliminaries for contract negotiations with General Motors Corp. and the Ford Motor Co. this spring.

The current GM contract expires May 29, while the Ford pact runs out June 1. Negotiations may begin 60 days before expiration.

Costa Rican President Rejects Duel Invitation Relayed Via Saskatoon

SASKATOON (CP) — An enterprising Saskatoon radio station Wednesday relayed a duel from invaded Costa Rica Wednesday night and got from him a rejection of the challenge by the chief from president of neighboring Nicaragua.

"He must be crazy," exclaimed President Jose Figueres when informed by station CKOM that Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza had issued the challenge earlier Wednesday night at a press conference in the Nicaraguan capital of Managua.

Figueres told news editor Harvey Tate, who placed the long-distance call, that there is "nothing personal" between him and President Somoza. He would not, he said, "waste powder and shot from a rifle at the border of the two quarrelling Central American states and fight a duel."

Asked if there was any possibility of him going to the border to meet Somoza and work out a peaceful solution, Figueres said categorically that there was not. The dispute was an "international matter" and he was leaving it up to the jurisdiction of American States.

Figueres said there is no question of Communist elements being involved in the dispute. It was a fight for "dictatorial leadership."

'Hello Girl' Lets Hair Down Setting Record

VICTORIA (CP)—Mrs. Eileen Sinclair called up reporters Wednesday night and let her hair down.

It measured 29 inches—probably the longest in Canada.

The tresses far outdistanced those of Shirley Thomas, 15-year-old daughter of Ontario's minister of agriculture, whose 41½ inch locks were thought to be the longest in the country.

Mrs. Silvester a telephone exchange operator at British Columbia's legislative buildings, said she has not cut her hair since she was 12 years old. She will not say how long it was, but, however.

It takes her from 10 to 12 minutes each morning to do her hair. Even at that she thinks long hair is easier to look after than short hair. Once before it stays down for the rest of the day. She is not bothered with bobby pins in curls and frequent permanents.

She intends to let her hair continue to grow.

Flying Saucer Was Plane With Beam Light On

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—A bush pilot admitted Wednesday he was the author of stories of the latest "flying saucer" seen in these parts.

Reports of mysterious flying objects and lights have been numerous here and in nearby Cobalt and Haileybury since Dec. 26.

However, the pilot, who asked that his name not be used, said he was not responsible for the earlier reports.

He said he played his little joke Tuesday night because he knew the reports were "jittery" about unidentified flying objects.

DIRECTED BEAM

"As I flew back to base at 500 feet," the reporter quoted the pilot as saying, "I remembered how jittery the people of north Cobalt were over flying saucers. I just couldn't resist the temptation of putting out my plane lights and directing a beam of the landing lights to the ground."

Man Electrocuted

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Hugh T. Hicks, 28, of Niagara Falls, Ont., was electrocuted Wednesday when he came in contact with a 25,000-volt wire.

An Ontario Hydro mechanic, Hicks was believed to have touched the wire as he attempted to save himself from slipping while working atop a 15-foot ladder.

Woman Chokes To Death During Drinking Spell

TORONTO (CP)—Police said today an unknown woman choked to death a woman originally believed strangled actually choked to death after several hours of drinking.

They said Madeline McDonald, 36, formerly of McIntreal, died on the way to hospital after being found barely breathing in a downtown rooming house.

Held by police investigating the death was the room's room-mate, Mary McFarland, 30, of Toronto. She was released on bail pending mental examination.

Neither woman was employed.

Police said they found Miss McFarland and her father, George McFarland, in the house soon after the latter called and told them Miss McDonald had been strangled.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Cold weather will continue throughout the province today, with a few very light snow flurries except in the lee of the lakes where more frequent and heavier flurries may be expected. Somewhat milder air which is overrunning the Prairies, and will bring change of clothing, may be dying some snow to northern regions.

Scouts Prepare For Camping During Summer

A meeting of the local association of Boy Scouts was held in Christ church parish hall on Monday, January 10. The president, O. C. Owen, was in the chair.

A. Chafe and Al Gardiner gave a very interesting and instructive talk on camping. Mr. Gardiner stated that there are 500 Cubs in Belleville and that about 150 would probably go to camp this year. For the past five years A. of C. Phil Allcorn has been the responsible head of these camps with Mrs. Ashley as Camp Mistress. A very successful combination.

Mr. Lancaster, the treasurer, presented his report, showing that finances are in a healthy state.

Donations to assist Scouts from necessary district income were gratefully received. It was stated the New Horizons Jamboree have been promised by Mr. Lancaster, of the C.N.E. and by Mr. Lang of the 8th. Outing-Style Informant up to collecting paper to bring a Scout out. Cubs helping Scouts and Scouts helping Cubs.

The Regional Commissioner Mr. Archie Lewis made the following announcements:

Cub Leaders' Course, Trenton, January 14 and 15; Scoutmasters' Course, February 21 and 22; Western Area Conference, Belleville, March 11; Provincial Council of Presidents' Annual meeting at Gravenhurst, June 24 and 26.

Dr. J. Russell Scott has generously offered a piece of property to the group for a national camp site. Scouts are very grateful to Dr. Scott for his help shown by all branches of scouting.

Swimming at the YMCA opened last Thursday and will continue every Saturday at 2 p.m. Mr. Trainor is the very careful instructor. Glen Stewart will be back with the group next week. A slight injury prevented his attendance at the opening.

The next meeting will be on February 14, at St. Thomas'.

William Bailey Installed Pres. Canadian Legion

For the third consecutive year the Belleville branch of the Canadian Legion hailed William Bailey as branch president at the installation of officers for 1955 at the Legion Hall here last Friday night.

An active member, Mr. Bailey joined the Canadian Legion after he was demobilized from the army at the end of World War 11. He served on the executive and was first elected president in 1953. He also is deputy commander of zone F-3. Once again last night he was called before the installing officer and pledged to fulfil his duties "faithfully, fearlessly and in a non-partisan manner to the best of my ability."

Installation of the officers was performed by Robert Reid, secretary of the provincial service bureau of the Canadian Legion, assisted by Mrs. Reid and by Harry Fraser, president of the Deseronto branch, and Jack Taylor, commander of zone F-3 and James Drysdale, Toronto.

Members of the executive later returned Chris Leggat as secretary for 1955. Pat Philips succeeds Mr. Leggat as branch treasurer.

In a brief speech Mr. Bailey expressed his appreciation for his election and told the members: "I hope I can be worthy of your confidence in 1955." He was installed by Mr. Reid.

Prior to the installation ceremonies a new member, Albert Fisher, was inducted into the Legion by president Bailey.

In a short address zone-commander Jack Taylor stressed to the meeting the importance of becoming acquainted with the work of the Canadian Legion.

"You are members of an organization that is unique, (an organization) that is based on comradeship only," he said.

He pointed out that the legion strives to make its members more zealous of those ideals, which caused their comrades to lay down their lives.

By taking an interest in the Legion's work he said, you are "your attitude towards the work of the Canadian Legion will change and it changes with the attitude of the Canadian Legion."

President Harry Fraser of Deseronto extended an invitation on behalf of his branch to the members to attend the ceremonies to be held in Deseronto shortly.

Installed by Mr. Fraser as sergeant-at-arms was Fred Hodge. Treasurer Philip was installed by Mr. Green while Mr. Drysdale inducted the executive; ni R. Blair; F. Daniels; W. Slater; L. Furney; C. Marriatt and Ed. Burling. First and second vice-presidents Les Digby and Bill Keenan were installed by Len Taylor

Dogs Hunt Rats Costing Queen Her Wristwatch

Now staying at the Royal Family's country house here, the Queen and the Queen Mother Tuesday stopped to watch farmers threshing barley in a field.

Because rats make homes in the stooks of grain, the Queen lifted her two dogs over the fence to let them go after the rats.

She and her mother and the dogs left after 15 minutes. Ten minutes later they were back, looking for a watch the Queen lost when she pulled out her gloves during the hunt.

Norm Garbutt Bids Goodbye, Dan Cox Welcomed to District

Store managers, members of district headquarters of the Brewery Warehousing Company, Ltd. met at the Hotel Quinte last evening to bid goodbye to Norman Garbutt, district manager, who is being moved to London in a similar capacity, and to welcome Danny Cox, former N.H.L. star and member of the Port Arthur Bruins club, who will own the Allan Cup, who will take Mr. Garbutt's position in this district. Ted Jones, manager of Napanee, was master of ceremonies and filled that position in a capable manner.

Also hidden goodbye was Claude Knight of Napanee, who has been manager of the Napanee outlet for some years, and who was retired from active duty at the end of the year. The district over which Ted Jones is manager extends from Whitby on the west to Napanee on the east including Peterborough, Campbellford and Bancroft in the north. Those present at the enjoyable affair were Dick Prince, Kingston; Norman Cox, Belleville; William Purtelle, Picton; Claude Knight, Napanee; Norman Garbutt, Belleville; Ted Cole, Penetang; Paul Lawrence, Lindsay; Fred Genereux, Belleville; J. C. McLean, Peterborough; N. E. Clark, Peterborough; C. V. Johnson, Campbellford; Cliff Wills, Peterborough; Keith Ling, Whitby; R. B. Clarke, Oshawa; J. J. Walsh, Prescott; Ross Clarke, Toronto; Fred Saunders, Kingston; Joseph DeLary, Belleville; Burt Vance, Tweed; J. C. Battams, Gananoque; Fred Genereux, Barrie, Cobourg; W. J. F. Mitchell, Port Hope; Bruce Simpson, Belleville; L. F. Dilkens, Lindsay; J. E. Fow, Trenton; J. W. Donald, Oshawa; Bob Godwin, Kingston; Ken Harrison, Kingston and Cecil Bonnetta of Belleville.

NEW EXECUTIVE HEARD

Danny Cox, the new assistant district manager, told the gathering that the name of the district had exceeded his expectation. He hoped that the several store managers would accept him as a friend and that all would be able to work out the several problems in an amicable manner. He wished for Mr. Garbutt every success in his new position in London and "My only ambition in coming here is to be accepted into this fine group" he said. Mr. Cox, since completing his hockey career, has taken a keen interest in recreation for the younger elements and he will no doubt prove a welcome addition to the city.

Norman Garbutt, a native of Prince Edward County but a Bellevillian by adoption, found it hard to say goodbye to a group he has been with both as an ordinary employee and in an executive position. Mr. Garbutt has taken a keen interest in civic and service club affairs and is a past president of the Kinsman Club. He was connected with the Shell Oil Company for some years and for a time operated a service station at the corner of Foster Avenue and Dundas Street East. He joined the Brewers' Warehousing Company some years ago and rose in rank through application and ability to district manager.

HATED TO LEAVE

In saying goodbye, Norman remarked that, from the time he joined the company and had a few words to say on every manager in the district with whom he had personal contact. The reminiscing was thoroughly enjoyed by the gathering and some tall tales were heard. He praised his district manager, Ted Jones, and all the while he had worked with for so many years. He did not forget his former manager, Murray Davis, in his remarks. "I hate to break the ties that I have formed in this district this time must move on and I will take away with me the kindest remembrance of a place and people I have learned to love and respect."

On behalf of the managers and friends gathered, Norman was presented with an electric razor and the best wishes of the whole district. At another presentation Mr. Knight was the recipient of a beautiful wrist watch. Both replied suitably with Mr. Knight reading some of his poetry and Norman the famous "golf story" which brought down the house. Ted Cole, manager at Napanee, replacing Mr. Knight, was welcomed into the district by the management.

The gathering enjoyed a cocktail party previous to the fine dinner served at the Hotel Quinte after which the boys had a social hour before regaining to their homes. It was a grand party.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Stock market trading, up to noon the fastest in almost two years, slackened off a bit in early afternoon.

All sections of the market made moderate gains with industrials and western oils leading the trend.

Socialists Win Jamaican Vote

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) The Jamaican socialist party rode to power Wednesday with an election verdict which spelled the end of 10 years' rule for William Bustamante's conservative-minded Labor party.

An English-educated lawyer, Norman Manley, 61, will take over from Bustamante, a prime minister with a substantial majority in the House of Representatives.

Manley's coalition, the People's National party, won 18 seats to Labor's 14 in the 32-seat House, according to unofficial results.

BENIAH (BEN) YOUNG

Frank Follwell, M.P., presented Beniah (Ben) Young, of Trenton, with a cane bearing the inscription on a silver band; "Presented to Beniah Young, 101st birthday, Trenton Liberals." Walter Turner of Belleville, and Mrs. Marie Ingle, Trenton, members of the party were on hand for the presentation.

Mr. Young, Trenton's only living centenarian, received a message of congratulations from Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent. It read: "I have learned from Dr. F. G. Robertson, M.P., and Mr. F. S. Follwell, M.P., you are today celebrating your 101st birthday anniversary. I send my congratulations and every good wish on this occasion. With kind regards."

Senator Fraser, who was not able to be present for the anniversary presentation, sent a telegram of congratulations.

CONVICTED OF ASSAULT

TRENTON, (Special) — James Choy, a Chinese waiter at the Star Cafe, here, was ordered to pay $7 fine and cost totalling $13 when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Willis on an assault count yesterday.

Choy according to testimony of the defendant, Oswald Peverett of Trenton, hit him in the face, with a ketchup bottle during an argument about payment for a meal.

Follwell Wants Senators To Retire at 75

OTTAWA (CP — Frank Follwell, Liberal Commons member for Hastings South, is renewing an attempt to have senators retired at the age of 75.

He put on the Commons order paper today a resolution to amend the British North America Act to this effect. A similar resolution proposed by Mr. Follwell last year died on a tie vote.

Senators now are appointed for life.

Seven Hillcrest Residents Guilty Of Coal Thefts

It was expensive coal for seven Hillcrest residents who this morning appeared in county magistrate's court on charges of stealing coal from the Canadian National Railways.

All seven of the men were given suspended sentence for six months after pleas of guilty were registered and were assessed $17 costs. One of the men will pay $20 costs.

Although railway police said about 30 bags of coal were missing from two piles the seven men were charged with stealing only a small portion of this. Magistrate T. Y. Wills noted the costs levied would amount to about 45c per lb. for the coal the men were charged with stealing.

Railway police said the coal had apparently been stolen for personal use and there was no evidence that it was being sold.

Crown Attorney R. D. Arnold, K.C. noted that the stealing of coal from the C.N.R. had grown to "enormous proportions" and the railway wanted it stopped.

In assessing costs Magistrate Wills said that this would be a warning and noted that future offences of that nature could mean a jail term.

Police Blotter

City police have arrested Gordon Fralick, 32, on a charge of stealing a car owned by Harvey Robinson of Trenton. The car was said to have been taken two days ago with Fralick being arrested yesterday by police.

Fralick appeared in county magistrate's court today and was remanded for next week when he asked for legal representation.

Police reported that the automobile of Mac Smith had been stolen last night from behind his service station on Dundas St.

A small black and white puppy was struck by a car on Macdonald St. The puppy died later at the animal hospital. No owner for the puppy was established.

Eisenhower Asks 4-Year Extension Of Draft Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today asked Congress to extend the draft law four years, grant pay increases to "career" servicemen and create a powerful United States military reserve to deal with any "aggressor or criminally unwise as to attempt attack."

The president set out the administration's military manpower program in two special messages, saying the measures he proposed would give the U. S. the "proper military posture" for the first time in peacetime.

He said extension of the selective service law, due to expire June 30, "is necessary because experience demonstrates that active armed forces of the size we must maintain cannot be raised by voluntary enlistments alone."

Major parts of the proposed reserve program had been disclosed late last year by the defence department. The chief feature is a plan for six months' training each year of about 100,000 young men who would go directly into the reserves.

"The penalties of our unpreparedness have been manifold—in treasure, in blood, in the heartbreak of a mighty nation buying time with the lives of some of the present said. "Now, in an uneasy peace, we can and must move toward this proper posture—at tolerable cost, with due regard for tradition, financial conditions of man plans or the material economy."

Strong Winds Slow Leaking British Vessel

HALIFAX (CP) — Strong northwest winds slowed the British freighter La Orilla today as she steamed slowly into Halifax harbor after a bout with a north Atlantic storm that holed her plates.

Montreal Shipping Co., Halifax agents for the 7,000-ton merchantman, said she was last reported 280 miles away and expected to make port Friday night.

The deepsea tug Foundation Josephine II is escorting the crippled freighter with portable pumps unit to cope with the torrents of seawater pouring into the freighter's No. 2 hold.

Water sloshing into La Orilla's cargo of lead concentrates created streams of mud-like sludge that poured into the vessel's own bilge pumps and put them out of commission.

La Orilla sailed last Sunday from Halifax for Le Havre. The vessel brought her to a standstill Monday about 280 miles south of Cape Race, Nfld., and the captain reported in a later that his plates had caved in.

New Liaison Officer

OTTAWA (CP) — A British-born aviation scientist who led Canada's development of air-to-air guided missiles will take over next summer as senior liaison officer in the United States for the defence research board.

The board announced today that Dr. J. J. Green, chief of its armaments and aeronautics division, will succeed retiring Brig. Harold E. Taber, 59, on the Canadian joint staff in Washington.

OTTAWA'S TAKING WAYS

If Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa ever takes a trip to British Columbia, do not be surprised if she is kidnapped and held for ransom.

The ransom demanded would be fairly steep, too. But Westerners will know that Ottawa has the money to pay the demand. It is their money, which was hijacked.

Nothing new about Ottawa hijacking a payroll? No, no, we are not talking about the Federal Government but about the City of Ottawa, and the money that has been wrested from the West by search warrants, not by income tax forms.

The technique is simple.

Lotteries are illegal. The criminal code says that lottery receipts may be seized "wherever found." National headquarters of lotteries are in Montreal and Quebec City. When a Vancouver resident buys a lottery ticket—as many of them do despite a brisk police drive against the practice — the cash is bundled up and put on a train heading east. The train passes through Ottawa. In the capital Morality Inspector Ubald Sauve and his men search the trains.

They discovered the technique three years ago when they hit a $70,000 jackpot. Since then, apparently lottery operators have been taking precautions. Nevertheless the Ottawa police manage to rack up an annual "take" of about $50,000 according to the Vancouver Sun. Most of this is said to come from Vancouver.

All the loot goes into the Ottawa city coffers and Mayor Whitton has suggested that it be used for the advancement of culture in the national capital, an attitude towards gambling revenue which many poker-playing husbands have discovered to their sorrow is not confined to Miss Whitton but is apparently common to most of her sex—unless, of course, the game in question happens to be hinged instead of poker.

GERMAN MIGRATION IS TWO-WAY

Nationhood dies hard.

That is being proven again in Germany—which is not among the countries with a lengthy national history. In spite of this fact, the modern German thinks of his land as one country, and not even the Iron Curtain has changed his viewpoint.

That appears to be the explanation for a rather surprising announcement from Bonn, the capital of West Germany. The West German Refugee Ministry says that every month between 6,000 and 7,000 Germans leave West Germany to settle in the Russian zone.

This, says Refugee Minister Theodor Oberlaender, is "in no way an alarming development but rather a return to normal conditions in German movement of population."

He cites easing of living conditions in East Germany, following the revolt there on June 17, 1953, as the reason for the increased number of Germans prepared to live under the rule there. In that period, about a thousand West Germans crossed the border each month.

In contrast to the 6,000 to 7,000 West Germans who monthly move to the East, in December over 8,000 people from East Germany officially sought permanent homes in West Germany. West Germany's net gain is population in this interchange of persons was thus comparatively small. But it must be remembered that East Germans moving to the West have to evade Communist police.

As evidence of the Communist attitude towards such migration there comes a story from Munich. A Czech refugee says that the Communists have rewritten the classic Grimm's fairy tale, "Hansel and Gretel."

Instead of being trapped by a witch, Hansel and Gretel are now pictured as finding themselves in the "hostile, capitalist West" as being made slave laborers. They escape and flee back to the "People's Democracy." The moral—never cross the border.

THE TAFFY-PULL LOOK

"Hi yah, sweet stuff."

We do not know whether that is considered an acceptable style of greeting among the hoi polloi of the younger generation. But if it is not, we predict it soon will be.

We base our prophecy on a fashion report from New York, which informs us that the "taffy-pull look" is the vogue for 1955. It is described as "like a straight strip of taffy being pulled gently till it begins to stretch out in the middle."

With a happier life than you than I.

And pleasanter tasks than the

If you weren't yourself and to "There's something more I can

Who is the fellow you'd rather Had I the courage I could be, too,

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

EXPECT

We ought to an order our mind that our whole viewpoint would be one of expectancy. So that no matter what the objective, we would let it be achieved! There are people who are always expecting the worst. By so doing they undermine their entire will to win.

Many years ago on one of my visits to Miami Beach, Florida, I was introduced to Gene Tunney. At that time he was little known, excepting as a promising fighter who might be heard of later on. I had many talks with him and was impressed with his ideas and ideals. One day I turned to him and said: "Gene, you will be the next World's Heavyweight Champion." He looked rather surprised at my statement and in the most matter of fact manner, replied: "Why, Mr. Adams, that is exactly what I intend to be!" In six months he was.

Expect the best and you'll get it, or its near equivalent. Let no one defeat you in your purpose, not even yourself! Plan to edge out all failure. The late E.W. Howe of Kansas once said: "Success is Easier Than Failure". It is—if you must keep your eyes set to see things far ahead.

It has been said that the Lord helps a cheerful giver. I have an idea He loves more the cheerful winner! The most natural thing in the world is to want to become more efficient and a bigger, more useful and influential human being with the oncoming of each new day. Expect those plans and dreams of yours to come true and they will. They nearly always come true to the one of faith and will.

Never acknowledge there is any obstacle that you can't overcome. Keep expecting and you are liable to run into new fields that will additionally test your spirit and caliber. Plan on nothing but the best. Keep your chin up and look forward. The best is ahead not behind.

Added Winter Woe

(New York Times)

Several things about winter are not good. There is the weather, which is uncertain, often violent. There are bills, which always seem to be more numerous, and larger, than bills in the summer. There is the scenery which is, generally speaking, bleak and unattractive. And then there are winter clothes. To be specific about winter clothes: they are cumbersome and not especially attractive. Even so, the winter clothes belonging to gentlemen are known to be borrowed by ladies to the extent whatever clothes never are.

In winter milady does not seem to mind borrowing shapeless or ill-fitting garments so long as they are warm. And the winter clothes of men, who are practical, are warm. Therefore men discover that their clothes are borrowed whenever

It may be that woman is born with a sense of property less keen than that given to man. Perhaps it is only when the lady of the house "borrows" a man's sweater that she has been find himself a new one. For it becomes clear, in the deep mid-winter, that to women the word "borrow" does not mean what the dictionary says it does. For example, suppose a man arises on a Saturday morning, and, after shaving, starts taking himself presentable enough for a Saturday, looks in a drawer and wonders if a shirt to wear around the house. He cannot find it. He complains, and he may be informed in a matter-of-fact way that the lady of the house "borrowed" that shirt on Thursday.

Now that answer obviously does not explain where the shirt borrowed on Thursday is now. It does on Saturday, nor does it explain why the shirt was not returned in time for Sunday. But the sort of answer understandable only to another man, and the question of the missing machine shirt is further pursued it may turn out that no one knows where it is or that the borrower considered this garment in need of cleaning, in which case it doubtless will not return home until the following Wednesday, just in time to be "borrowed" or lost again before the next weekend arrives. This is the sort of shirt which the "borrower" would not look at twice in summer, but in winter is eagerly sought and appears upon milady with the sleeves pushed not rolled—up to the elbows, like the sleeves of a sweater.

Perhaps one should say like the sleeves of the sweater that also was "borrowed". for some quiting on a cold day—the sweater that one planned to wear one's self and could not because the lady of the house had, by "borrowing", hidden it. The sweater that for the lack of which one suffered a severe cold in the chest.

In suburbs where market is visited by housekeepers in informal attire, winter and summer, any morning when the lord of the manor is toiling in his office to make possible sound financial relationships with the grocer, milady no doubt may be seen shopping clad in a "borrowed" plaid cap, a "borrowed" shirt, a "borrowed" leather jacket and perhaps even "borrowed" gloves or mittens. Come Saturday when the lord and owner of these things is to wear them to putter around the house he will receive them with difficulty if at all.

The lady of the house has evolved a theory that her helpmeet does not need so many warm winter clothes—including his imported muffler—borrowed by her. In this he does not mind —if only borrowing were followed by a little returning. His rowing is a friendly exchange, if it can be made to work by custom. But unfortunately there are few articles of feminine wearing apparel that "borrow" the house may borrow (and in a backhanded attempt at character building, decide to return) and therefore the borrowing of man's warm garments does not fit in with the counterpart. It helps not at all for a man to buy casual winter clothing for himself in the hope that he will still be "borrowed" for the lady of the house, wearing the same, need merely explain to her friends that her husband has cold tastes. They will understand, because they, too, will be wearing their own shirts, cardigans and jackets, just to keep warm. Spring will put an end to these raids on man's winter wardrobe, and it cannot come too soon.

Tito's Visit Important

(New York Herald Tribune)

The tide in the affairs of Yugoslavia which has carried Marshal Tito through the Palace and Gateway of India and into the council chambers of New Delhi has been some time in the making. Long-term trends in Yugoslav foreign relations incident to the signing of the Balkan pact and the settlement of the Trieste question have run parallel with it. Most important though, had been the growing rapprochement between Belgrade and Moscow since the death of Stalin.

The rapprochement is by no means one-sided. Tito's references to the Soviet government in recent speeches have been markedly cordial. He has hailed the "peaceful policy" of the Communist regimes; sent greetings to Moscow on the latest anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution; rejected participation in the North Atlantic alliance on ideological grounds; opposed "new blocs and formations" in Europe which threaten the existing balance; proclaimed that Yugoslav policy is "against division, for peaceful co-operation and peaceful co-existence.

For his part, the Kremlin-Inform has abandoned anti-Yugoslav propaganda; radio Moscow station "Free Yugoslavia" and elsewhere. Soviet satellite forces have been withdrawn from Yugoslav border areas. The Soviet line has re-established its Yugoslav economic links. Maxim Z. Saburov, Soviet Deputy Premier, has made a cordial visit to Yugoslavia in recent months. As head of what he calls an "active independent country in the international field" he doubtless finds much in common between his position and that of Prime Minister Nehru. The outcome of their conversations, potentially of gravest import to the participants and to the rest of the world, is awaited with interest.

Being Late Bank of Genius

(Chicago Tribune)

With deep regret we must report that the world's symphonic program notes were not of a highly moral nature. Consider, for example, what was said of Ludwig von Beethoven and his "Eroica". The Concertgebouw in the House":

"The work was completed barely by the time of the performance, the players' parts not being ready until the night before, and even when they were found full of mistakes," reports the learned Mr. Borowski.

"The rehearsal took place at the last moment—when the audience was arriving, in fact; but even with these drawbacks the performance was a success, and Beethoven was called out repeatedly."

We consider the facts concerning Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart and his D minor Concerto for Piano.

Of the man and the work we are told:

"As had happened frequently before, he had put pressure on his concerto was ready for performance only a few hours before the concert at which it was to be played. . . . The composer's pupil, his daughter Josepha Hofmann, in Salzburg, an account of the proceedings. 'Wolfgang wrote the letter, played a new and excellent piano concerto from the copyist was copying yesterday. . . . Your brother did not have time to write out the trumpet parts because he had to look over the copying.'

It is probable from this that if you steadfastly put off till tomorrow what you can do today the chances are rather good that you are a genius or will soon become one.

Hard Heart Worst Sin

(Listowel Banner)

Some of us get drunk, and that's bad; some of us lie like dogs, and that's worse; some of us love money more than we do truth, honor and goodness, and that's worse still; some of us practical and dodge our taxes, and that's worse still; though among the elect it is sometimes considered a virtue. But the crowning sin of all is a hard, unloving heart and a soul without charity for the sufferings and needs of others, unless when others are crucified, and which attempts to hide its secret by self-pitying and pious declaration.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

ONE MUST BREATHE TO LIVE

Everybody knows or thinks he knows how to breathe but the antics of some people when the medical examiner asks them to breathe deeply are comical. As an educated "educated" person all of us have about the diaphragm.

Belly breathing practiced every day improves circulation, brings down or keeps down high blood pressure, helps tense, restless folk to relax and fall asleep.

Regular practise of belly breathing two or three times a day—that is, six inflations at each session—will counteract some of the ill effects of the sedentary habit, such as various veins, the hemorrhoidal state and menstrual difficulties in young women.

People who do no honest work but live by their wits or on the bounty of others generally age prematurely because they are not interested in the preservation of youth while they still have any, and it is a little late by the time they have cultivated a fixed habit of living when they could well afford to walk to and/or from business every day.

These prematurely old folks, who have inherited or acquired a "sedentary habit" which fills the teen agers today have demolished —that it is not ladylike and refined to appear at work or play in suitable attire—suffer constantly from oxygen deficit, slow metabolism, shallow breathing, torpid circulation. Many of them complain of early morning headache—which three or four inflations of the bellows (belly) will generally dispel before you can say The Lord's Prayer in Latin.

The belly breathing exercise is beneficial in bronchial asthma, emphysema, chronic bronchitis (winter cough of the elderly) and bronchiectasis (dilation of bronchial tube or tubes). It is advisable also for any one confined to bed for weeks or months.

Strength for the Day

A RIGHT BEGINNING

Do you ever help the youngsters in the evenings with their mathematical problems? If you do, you know that there is one unfailing rule you have to observe—you can never make a mathematical problem come out right if you don't start at the right place.

So many lives are jammed up, damaged, and frequently ruined because the individuals in question don't start their living at the right place. They get the idea that the most valuable thing in life is money, and that the way one gets his money is of slight consequence compared with the getting of it. They push for pre-eminence and power over other people. The wise road and cocktail highway are already jammed to jam for any one confined to bed for weeks or months.

Probably more people spoil their lives by refinement than by any other one thing. Every project starts with the question: "What am I going to get out of this? Will this bring me pleasure or will it involve me in a necessity for sacrifice?"

Our Lord counseled his disciples to seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, declaring that all things else would be added. The kingdom of God means the rule of God in the worshiper's heart—the rule of unselfish love, of righteous living and of faith.

Start at the right place if you want to come out at the right place.

By GREGORY CLARK

There is a traffic cop who lives near me, and I occasionally give him a lift down town in my car, on my way to the police station to which he is attached. He has many surprising ideas.

"It isn't the inexpert or stupid driver who causes most of the accidents. It's the expert driver."

"Expert!" I protested.

"Well, those who claim or pretend to be expert drivers," said he. "They are expert to this extent, that most of them think they consider them experts. And if they were put through a police test they would certainly agree with flying colors. They would definitely be classed as expert drivers. But it is strangely enough, in my experience, these experts are the cause of the great majority of accidents of all kinds."

"Explain," I invited.

"They feel so expert," explained the policeman, "that they fancy they can do anything with their cars. No inexpert driver, no stupid driver, would ever step up on the inside or wrong side of another car, at a stop light, in order to get past and beat the procession when the light changes. If you look at those drivers, whenever they do that to you, just notice what they are like. They are smoothish, wise-guys, experts. Yet they kill and injure more people, cause more collisions and damage than almost any other type of offender. The inexpert or stupid driver would think of trying to pass or cut-in traffic when there is the slightest risk involved. It is the self-conceited expert who takes chance. He's smart. Why, he can handle his car in any situation. And then, boom!"

I remarked that, now that I came to think of it, I had never met anybody who claimed they were poor drivers. Do all motorists conceive themselves to be experts?

"You know those big signboards we see around, 'asked the policeman,' "with safety slogans on them? I'm just busting to see one with one that says: "You are stupider than you think!?"

Hair Will Come In Two Tones

(Niagara Falls Review)

If you see friend wife or girl friend with two-toned hair or see it glaring luminously in the dark, don't be alarmed or imagine there is something wrong with you. It simply means that she is following the very latest fad. Of course, what is supposed to be hair styling.

A so-called authority on the "hair do" in Paris, Antonia, is quoted as saying that the new fad shuns look's and favors two-colored hair-dos. She may appear with one half of her head colored one way and the next another, or basic colors with contrasting shades above. One side could be red and the other green. The stylists predict that the favorite contrasting color will be apricot and platinum, light pink and deep red.

We can hardly wait to see what the girls look like with such gaudy trimmings, but we're fearful that some of them may look as if they have only half-heads.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Tabernacle W.M.S. Elects Officers

The January meeting of the Tabernacle United church W.M.S. met in the church parlors on Tuesday with 16 members present. Mrs. May opened the meeting reading "One generation goeth and another cometh, but the earth remaineth."

The Rev. Ray Bowley, minister of the church, conducted the installation of the new officers for the year 1955, as follows: honorary president, Mrs. Bowley; past president, Mrs. A. D. Archibald; president, Mrs. W. D. May; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Archibald; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. G. Brickman; recording-secretary, Mrs. E. S. Frost; treasurer, Miss Myrtle Johns; Christian Stewardship secretary, Mrs. A. H. Fisher; Temperance and Citizenship secretary, Mrs. T. Skeggs; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. Paul; membership secretary, Mrs. C. Hogle; Community Friendship secretary, Mrs. G. F. Lent; supply secretary, Mrs. N. H. Robb; literature secretary, Mrs. W. Baird; "Missionary Monthly" secretary, Mrs. F. Isard; press secretary, Mrs. E. S. Frost; pianist, Mrs. Duff and Mrs. Lent; social convener, Mrs. R. Conn.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. May.

The yearly report was given by the treasurer, Miss Johns, which showed the allocation met and some over, so the whole amount of $573 was sent to headquarters.

Recording secretary, Mrs. Frost gave her yearly report of ten meetings held and ten reports sent to the press, 150 calls recorded for the year. One meeting report was sent to the "Missionary Monthly" by Miss E. Horton.

Mrs. Fisher spoke on "Stewardship."

Mrs. Skeggs spoke on "Christian Friendship" and Mrs. Paul gave a report on the number of cards sent to the sick and shut-ins and thank-you cards and letter received.

The packing of a bale for Korea was discussed and good used clothing or new, asked for to be brought in so the bale may be sent soon.

The study book "The Church in India", chapter four, was then taken by Mrs. May, assisted by Mrs. Lent and Mrs. G. Brickman, "Evangelism in India."

'Canadian-American Relations' Topic at Women's Canadian Club

"The merits of the United States are great and profound in this atomic age, which has brought her into leadership in the world today, unsought by herself, but for which she is most capably endowed," stated Herbert A. Mowat, member of the National Executive of the United Nations Association in Canada, last evening before a fine assembly of the Women's Canadian Club in Bridge St. United Church S.S. auditorium.

The speaker, who was introduced to the club by the president, Mrs. W. L. Langlois, hastened to add, that when speaking of the relations between Canada and the United States, he was not making a special plea for the latter and its government; and that if any prejudice did exist for him, it was an anti-United States prejudice which had been planted during his school days in Toronto.

In those days it was the fashion to pour girls and boys to be very British and very Canadian, and after serving in World War I, his sense of Canadian nationalism became most intense.

Another factor in this intense nationalism, was that often it had been suggested to him during his boyhood that he should do some given thing as the United States had or did it, a reason sufficient to find some other way of his own for doing it.

NATIONALISM HAS FAILED

"Nationalism," said Mr. Mowat, "has failed humanity; it is the greatest menace of today; security has ceased to be a national matter; no one nation can secure the safety of its people, they are dependent on the international factor of this atomic age. Even the USSR cannot give security to its people; Canada is dependent on the international factors for preservation."

Russia has sought by every means possible to drive a wedge between the United States and the allies. In Korea there was a notice saying, "Yankees Go Home." She uses every vituperative method to strip the free world of its ally, the United States.

In order to better understand the Canadian-American relations it is necessary to examine the status of the two countries in the world community. Within the past year Canada has been the star witness to the real character of the United States, and this evidence has had the power of correcting the attitude of many toward the U.S. caused by the defamation of character hurled at her by the Communist sources all over the world, but mainly from the USSR. It is also sickenly repeated from these propaganda sources that Canada regards the United States with suspicion and hostility, becoming progressively so as she is the victim of Wall Street, and the victim of U.S.A. imperialism.

From 1945 to the end of 1953, development in Canada, in capital investment was $29,500,000,000 and from 1947-53 the investment in Canada was $20,000,000,000. The total investment of the United States' capital in Canada since Canada became a nation, is $9,000,000,000 and in time after World War II development, the capital investment was 85 per cent Canadian funds.

MOST UNSELFISH POWER

The Right Honorable Louis St. Laurent before the New Delhi parliament last February, gave the friendly hand to the United States when he said: "The United States, much the most powerful nation in NATO is its leader. . . the readiness of the U.S. to assume the responsibilities of a major power had been of great benefit to the free world. . . It is the most unselfish power to play the role of leader, and has no other ambition but to live and let others live in mutually helpful international and internal peace.

At Geneva, last April, the Honorable Lester B. Pearson added his testimony that "the United States is neither aggressive nor imperialistic, and has respect for other countries."

Another fact that the United States is not antagonistic is that she allows Canada to speak her mind on strategic matters. Washington is dominated by the USSR but Canada, is the greatest influence of all the other nations with the U.S.

TWO MOST POWERFUL NATIONS

Canada and the United States are the two most powerful nations outside of Russia. They are peace-loving nations, which is the one bond valid to NATO, an organization for the common defence of all. Each power armed for that defence and each effective only in united war effort, and each one so armed that it is impossible for aggression for the fulfilment of nationalistic ambitions. All members of NATO are sealed for perpetual peace with one another and all have submitted to an imbalance of armament, effective only for defence in united action with others. This plan gave the sanction for the re-armament of Germany. Had this treaty existed among the 14 nations previous to Word Wars I and II, there would have been no wars.

Canada and the United States may be brought closer together through their abundance of natural resources, and their capacity to employ these resources.

RAISE STANDARD OF LIVING

To raise the standard of living in the underdeveloped countries of the world, a two per cent per annum would require a capital investment of $15,000,000,000 per annum. From the savings of the two and one quarter million people concerned there could be saved $5,000,000,000 per annum, and $10,000,000,000 could be had from the developed countries. This could be done by maintaining a high rate of taxation while armaments are being reduced, but the reward of lasting peace through the stabilizing of the underdeveloped countries could be worth the sacrifice, by doing away with poverty and disease. It is pure nonsense to have political stability in countries who have nothing with which to help themselves.

"The nearer the United States and Canada get together to help the less fortunate countries, the closer they will become. Let us learn up with the United States to achieve blessings of peace in a world of nations united for peace," concluded the speaker.

Mrs. Buchan voiced the appreciation of the club to the speaker for his splendidly illuminating address.

Avondale H-S Assoc. Hears Two Fine Topics

The regular monthly meeting of the Avondale Home and School Association was held Monday evening at Avondale school with a large crowd in attendance.

President, Mrs. Ralph Knowlton, cordially welcomed those present and wished all a happy and prosperous new year and gave a short talk on "Parent Education."

At this time the meeting was turned over to Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bird, who were in charge of the evening's program. Mr. Bird introduced two fine speakers, Mr. E. R. Valcamp, chairman of the Board of Trustees of No. 2 Sidney, whose topic was "Duties and Responsibilities of the School Board." This subject was explained fully after which members were invited to ask questions which were ably answered by Mr. Valcamp.

The second speaker was Mr. Byron Harder, deputy reeve of the township of Sidney, whose subject of the evening was "Our Township and Its Government." Mr. Harder, too, explained in detail his chosen subject. At the climax, he also, invited questions which he answered most satisfactorily.

These two gentlemen were given a hearty ovation which they richly deserved.

At this time, Mr. Ken Bird led in a questionnaire which tested the memories of the residents surrounding Belleville.

Refreshments were served by the mothers of Grade 4 pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dickey, Thurlow, Wed for 50 Years

A modern five-roomed bungalow would be more in keeping with the needs of Mr. and Mrs. George Dickey, 9th concession Thurlow, than the big 13-roomed brick farm house in which they have lived for the past 22 years.

It was at their spacious farm home that Mr. and Mrs. Dickey on Tuesday observed their 50th wedding anniversary when they were "at home" to members of their family and to a wide circle of community friends.

Due to ill health Mr. Dickey has been retired from active farm work for the past eight years, but it is different with Mrs. Dickey. "I can't retire," she said. "It takes all my time to keep this big house clean."

When asked how many rooms the big farmhouse contained the bride of 50 years hesitated and replied "about twelve."

Tuesday the couple received an array of handsome anniversary gifts from members of their family and from friends in the Bethel church community. As an anniversary gift Mr. Dickey presented his wife with a lovely gold wrist watch. "It's the first gift I bought her since we were married," he said with a twinkle in his eye.

On their anniversary the couple received a message of congratulation from the provincial secretary and also a telegram from the secretary to Governor General, the Hon. Vincent Massey. Guests were present from Hamilton, Peterborough, Hastings, Campbellford, Havelock, Belleville and other districts.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickey are natives of the Hastings district in Percy township, and they grew up on farms only half a mile apart. They were married at the Presbyterian manse in Hastings by the Rev. D. A. Thompson, who for 50 years ministered in the same church.

TOOK TO RAILROADING

Mr. Thompson baptized us and then married us," Mr. Dickey said.

Although he grew up on a farm, Mr. Dickey took to railroading shortly after his marriage and for many years was section man in the Hastings area. They moved to Belleville for 13 years and when a further transfer came sending him to Napanee Mr. Dickey quit the railway and turned to farming. That was 22 years ago.

A section hand received but 90 cents per day when Mr. Dickey started with the railway. "And we were on call 24 hours a day," he said. Shortly afterwards the wage was raised to $1.10 per day.

"People didn't spend so much money then as they do now," was the comment. "When you got a dollar you hung on to it."

The couple admitted, however, that a dollar went a great deal further then than it does now. But they are appreciative of modern day conveniences and Mrs. Dickey takes great enjoyment from their television set, "particularly the wrestling matches."

Failing eyesight and hearing makes it impossible for Mr. Dickey to enjoy the TV. Mr. Dickey is 74 while his wife is 73.

The couple have four sons and three daughters. Two of the sons, Earl and George are in the construction contracting business but find time to do the farm work on their father's farm. Another son, Vernon, works in Belleville as an electrician, while the fourth son, Everett is a railway employee at Belleville. The daughters are Mrs. Elva White, Belleville; Mrs. Burton Fader, Havelock, and Mrs. Morden Brough, of Zion Hill. There are 13 grandchildren.

FOXBORO PRESBYTERIAN GUILD-W.M.S.

The first meeting of the Foxboro Presbyterian Guild and W.M.S., in the New Year was held on Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Roy Bartlett. Miss Wait was in charge of the meeting and Mrs. Carl Keighen the pianist.

The whole meeting was in keeping with the 23rd Psalm, which Mrs. E. Lyons read.

Mrs. Bill Barrie gave a splendid paper on "The Lord is My Shepherd".

Plans were made for the social meeting and supper for the congregation to be held the end of the month. Thank-you letters and cards were read from the sick and bereaved. It was urged that all members attend the W.M.S. rally at Belleville on

C.W.L. Enjoys P-L Supper, Hears Reports

On Monday evening, in St. Michael's academy, a pot-luck supper was enjoyed by a record attendance of members from St. Michael's subdivision of the Catholic Women's League. Convenors of the supper were, Mrs. W. Harris and Mrs. P. Cleary.

The regular monthly meeting followed with Mrs. E. Logan, presiding. Mrs. R. Burley, 1st vice-president, stated a paid up membership of 412; and that some of the councillors have not as yet completed their collections. The league mourns the loss of five deceased members during the past year.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

A detailed financial statement was given by Mrs. J. Z. Boyd and the correspondence was read by Mrs. A. McFee, Convener, Mrs. J. Farrell, reported on The Canadian League, and progress on the marathon bridge was outlined by Mrs. V. McIntyre.

The Regig club dances will be chaperoned by Mrs. P. Cleary and her committee in February, with Mrs. J. R. Kelly assuming this work for the month of March.

Reading from the league magazine, Mrs. Burley quoted the pastional president, Mrs. Fred Drake, LL.D., as follows—"It is disheartening at times to find, all across Canada, Catholic women, fortunate enough to have received a high education— an education which trained them for leadership—devoting their leisure time and best efforts to the promotion of secular programs to the almost complete exclusion of the work of the apostolate. These ladies do not seem to heed the admonition "to whom much has been given, much will be expected". . . May we hope their numbers will decrease through their realization of what grave dangers a growing secularist view of life threaten our freedom."

QUEEN OF HEARTS BALL

The forthcoming Queen of Hearts Ball is being convened by Mrs. Burley, assisted by Mrs. H. E. Barrett. Helping with ticket sales is Mrs. G. O'Connor. The decorating of the hall will be assumed by Mrs. E. Bowers.

Rev. F. Murphy concluded the meeting briefly; adjournment followed, and a social evening with games, arranged by Mrs. E. Logan, was enjoyed.

The next meeting of St. Michael's subdivision will be held on Wednesday, February 16, in St. Michael's High school.

Monday, January 10.

The sympathy of the meeting goes out to one of their members, so recently bereaved, in the passing of the late Mrs. Roy Blakely.

Mrs. Johnston brought the meeting to a close, after which the hostess served refreshments, and a social half hour followed.

The first gathering in the new year, was held by the Belleville Women Teachers' Federation, on Wednesday, in Latimer's Tea Room.

After the business meeting, the president, Grace Houston, suggested the Queen Elizabeth school staff proceed with their evening's program. Olive Elson, who was one of 50 delegates in Ontario to attend the "Ontario Association for Curriculum Development," held in Toronto, last October, gave her report on same. Mrs. Jean Szczerba favored the group with a solo "The Little Dutch Tile", followed by Bernice Blue, who aided by colored films, gave an educational account of her recent motor trip down the Gaspe Peninsula.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

COMMONSENSE CAN SQUARE THE TRIANGLE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A girl I know asked me if I would write and tell you how I feel about each other. Here are the facts:

I like this girl very much, and she says she feels the same toward me. But she is going steady with another fellow and does not want to hurt him. She knows if she tells him about me, it will hurt him very badly, but if she doesn't, she will hurt me.

I know you don't think it is right to go steady so young. I don't either, but this girl does. We understand each other very well and get along fine, though, so would you please tell me what I can do and what she can do. All three of us are 15 years old. — D.F.

Dear D.F.:

The best that you feel as you do about going steady makes me believe you are very much a lot of commonsense. So why not take a commonsense view of the triangle?

And my idea of a commonsense view is that you suggest to this girl that she tell her boy friend that she has come to realize that it would be best for her, while she is still so young, to be free to go with anyone she likes. Even to tell that she would like to go out with him occasionally, but she would also like to have dates with other boys, and both of you should be willing to have her do this. There's no reason why she should mention you specifically if she is going to be wise enough to date several different boys. If she will leave "going steady" until she is a few years older, and let it be known generally that she is doing just that, nobody's feelings are going to be too badly hurt.

Since you say this girl asked you to write and get my opinion, perhaps she will be ready to take my advice. I certainly hope so, for I see no other way to solve your problem.

WOULD SHE BE RIGHT OR WRONG TO MARRY HIM?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 25, and very much in love with a young man three years younger than myself. We have been going steady for one year, and he has asked me to marry him, but I hesitate because of the difference in our ages.

He insists that the difference in our ages is a matter, and, actually, he talks and acts like a much older and more experienced man.

Would I be doing right or wrong if I agreed to marry him? — Doubtful D.

Dear Doubty:

This is not a question of right or wrong, but one of his and your own happiness or unhappiness. Which of these you would have, if you and this young man were to marry, depends upon whether you are congenial, have the same interests and standards, feel a sense of satisfying companionship when you are together, and are attracted by about the same sort of people, and not up on your ages.

Conventionally, of course, a marriage is supposed to get off to a better start where the girl is younger than the man, the theory being that at 21, for instance, a girl is about as mature as a man of 24. If you reverse the thing, it would mean that, at the present ages of yourself and your young man, you are relatively much older than the mere three years between you.

But this doesn't always follow, by any means, and there have been many instances of happy and successful marriages between an older woman and a younger man. Main thing is, as I have already said, to be sure you have similar tastes, standards and interests, and might add, that you do not feel maternal toward him, nor he look up to you as an older sister.

COMPLEXION CARE FOR THE REDUCER

About this time of the year, you may decide that it is high time for you to climb on the diet wagon and make an effort to regain your slender silhouette. This invariably comes to the majority of women in their forties.

The wise woman will diet under her doctor's supervision since he will advise daily menus to cover all the necessary food elements but which will starve fat cells. These prescription meals will measure up to the calories required for well being and there will be no loss of energy as happens when a fresh diet is followed.

Fats, sweets and starches will be cut down to the minimum, since they are the arch enemies of the heavyweight.

Even if reducing goes on slowly, the facial tissues must have extra special attention. The court an older face is too high a price to pay for a younger-appearing body. The dissolution of tissues will cause the skin to become loose and, unless something is done to keep it taut, and the underlying fibers strong, tiny lines may form.

Preventive measures consist of generous lubrication with a heavy cream-and-lotion combination that will line the flesh and stimulate the circulation.

The cream you use for cleansing your skin is not suitable for massage as it lets the fingers slip and slide instead of offering resistance, so use a heavy massage cream.

After washing your face with a bland soap, rinsing and drying, spread the cream over the neck up along the jaw line, doing circles over the cheeks and forehead. Be careful not to force the flesh up around the eyes.

Then do brisk hammering motions from collar bones to the forehead hair line. While the cream remains on have a friction with an ice cube.

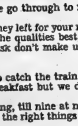
Oranges Are Vitamin-Packed

By Mary Moore

At 5 minutes before 9 I sliced at the counter in our corner fruit market and watched a little drama. It was quite time on Christmas Eve.

A half-an, bashful, thin young man looked in at the window and his eyes stopped at a little triangle of 3 happy-faced angels. He opened the door and asked the proprietor if he insured English accent the cost of the oranges. "3 for 29". "Might I just have those three, sir?" They were stowed in a paper bag, the young man paid out exactly 29 cents from a gloveless hand, smiled a broad satisfied smile to all in sight and said "Merry Christmas" and he whipped out the door.



I watched this all quite openly and when I turned to pay for a head of lettuce bluffed out the tear in my nose, I was extra loud "Merry Christmas Harold" to the proprietor who is an old friend.

I went home to my family, but I don't remember one step of the way for I was thinking of three lucky little ones that because of that eager young man, and whose stockings were going to be filled by Santa in the morning with those oversize oranges.

I suppose you are thinking that I'm getting soft in the old wishful sentimentality into that little purchase, but I'm not ashamed. Maybe you are right. I don't know, but I had an English father who used to roll an orange between his palms. When it was soft and warm he would call merrily "Who wants me to peel them an orange?" We would all shout "me, me, me," so it meant he had to do four every time he offered to peel one. My father ever loved filling the yawning cavities of his little pets more than ours.

Since then Vitamin C has been discovered in them and the citrus fruits that grow in sunny climates contain it in abundance. Here's once a year a friend of our family sends us a crate of large sugar eaten so sweetly by the Moores during the month of January is the main reason why we do not have colds in these hard Canadian winters.

So can we call me a crack-pot with my gracious permission but do try our succulent cold-preventive too.

Like 9 out of 10 leading cover girls, lovely Agnes Kendrick prefers pure, mild SweetHeart, the soap that CARESSES all your skin. She says, "Its more luxuriant lather keeps me fresh all day!"

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BECKMAN

GIVING TIPS WHILE TRAVELING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend and I are traveling together by train for two days and two nights. In this circumstance is it customary to give a single tip each time a contributing half, should each one tip individually?

— Traveler

Individual tipping is best, and is customary.

SAME GODPARENTS FOR TWO CHILDREN IN THE FAMILY?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please answer this question, to settle an important discussion we are having: Are the same two godparents, husband and wife, ever asked to be godparents for two children in the same family?

— Godmother

This would be most unusual, and unless for some special reason, would, I should think, be unwise, not practical.

SHOULD BRIDE'S DAUGHTER BE HER ATTENDANT?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter, older than I am, is to be married soon, for the second time. She is maid of honor at her first marriage, and she has asked me to be matron of honor at her second marriage. She also has a 14-year-old daughter and she would like her to be an attendant also. But we're wondering if it is considered correct to have more than one attendant at a second wedding. If you advise us that two attendants aren't correct, would it be proper for her to have her 14-year-old daughter as her only attendant? — Sister

If your sister is a widow, it would be quite proper for her to have you as matron of honor and her 14-year-old daughter as junior bridesmaid. But when the bride is a divorcee, it is not considered in good taste for her to have the daughter of her first marriage as an attendant at her second marriage.

TOMATO JUICE COCKTAIL AS FIRST COURSE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm cook and waitress as well as hostess, and like most other women who have these three responsibilities, I'm always trying to figure out short-cuts that are really correct.

(1) Now I'd like to know if, when tomato juice cocktail is served as a first course, it is correct to have the cocktails already placed at the individual places before the guests are summoned to the table?

(2) My sister says that when a tomato juice cocktail is served as the first course, the glass containing the juice cocktail should be put with the water goblet, at the right of the plate. I've never seen this done. Correct? — J.S.

(1) It is correct to have the tomato juice cocktail glass put on a plate at each place before the guests come into the dining room.

(2) I've never seen this done either. Not correct. The tomato juice cocktail is regarded, as you say, as a first course . . . not as a beverage.

GREAT BOOKS DISCUSSION GROUP

On January 3, Mr. K. G. M. Ross led the opening discussion of the year. The subject was "Songs of the Volsungsand the Nibelungs", a translation of Icelandic sagas by William Morris.

These folk-lore stories overflow with gory struggles, supernatural occurrences, werewolves, wide-shouldered heroes and deeds of valor. The main theme seems to be the struggle for power and how far one may go to achieve it.

The leader made a difficult subject more than interesting, and the discussion was lively for two hours.

On Monday, Mr. William Argue with Shakespeare's Macbeth, carried on the theme of the struggle for power. All the old collegiate and college questions were mulled over with a few additional slants that came up with more years and experience.

Macbeth was read at a timely season when it has not only been shown recently on television but is also one of the collegiate plays being studied this year.

There were 13 members present with Dr. Martin in the chair.

Mayor Locke Tells Citizens Hospital Nearly Out of Debt

CAMPBELLFORD—The inaugural meeting of the Campbellford town council was held in the council chambers on Monday morning. Attending clergyman was Rev A. E. Toombs of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Mr. Toombs spoke on "The Christian and Public Life." In his address to the new council, he assured the members that the public expected each to work for the good of the community "It is better too fail in a cause which is good, than to succeed in one which is evil." he said.

Mayor R. J. Locke thanked Mr. Toombs and welcomed the old and new members to the council table. He also paid tribute to Clerk John F. McGregor, who retired at the end of the year.

Speaking of the Memorial Hospital, Mr. Locke said he hoped this year would be able to get along on a grant of $300 a month from council, instead of the $450, which they received last year. "The buildings," he said, "would be completely paid for when the federal government paid the balance of its grant to the institution."

The mayor named a striking committee, consisting of Reeve D. R. Maybee, Deputy Reeve F. M. Rutherford and Councillor Isobel C. Tatham. Following this, the meeting adjourned until 7.30 p.m. to allow the council to accept the invitation of the Rotary Club to be their guests for luncheon.

The first move of the new council, when it reconvened at 7.30 p.m. was to appoint a five-man court of revision. Mayor Locke appointed Reeve D. R. Maybee, deputy-reeve F. M. Rutherford, and councillors Wm. R Nicholas; F. S. Linton and George Vice to the court.

Reporting for the striking committee, Reeve Maybee named the members of council chosen to head the various committees of council for the coming year. It was decided that the committee heads would select their own committees.

DEPUTATION HEARD

A deputation headed by Mel McKown of Seymour township asked council to consider paying a portion of the road costs of the 6th concession of Seymour. The delegation said that they had interviewed the Seymour township council and that body seemed in favor with the idea. It was pointed out that this section of road carried heavy traffic, and that dust had become a serious problem. The town would pay for approximately one-fifth of a mile of cold-mix surfacing, which is about half the distance to be paved. It is expected that Seymour township will pay for the other half. On motion of the council, the matter was left to the road and bridge committee.

Councillors F. H. Macmillan and George Nicholls were named to the Community Arena board. Other appointments to the same board confirmed at the meeting were Hector Macmillan and Bruce Fairley of the Rotary Club; Graydon Bell of the Kinsmen Club and Alex MacDonald and George Ibbby of the Canadian Legion.

Councillor George Nicholls reporting for the arena board said that the board had asked him to request council to pay the insurance premium on the arena. This premium, amounting to $325, for $13,000 coverage, exclusive of wind damage, is now paid by the arena board. The board said that with their other commitments, they considered the insurance too much of a burden, and wanted council to assume the responsibility, in view of the fact the building was an asset to the town. Councillor George Vice supported the request.

LENGTHY DISCUSSION

A great deal of discussion followed, during which Reeve Maybee said he believed the committee should be responsible for raising sufficient funds to cover the insurance. He said the board should make an effort to do this, then come to the council for assistance if they did not succeed. Councillor Macmillan was of the same opinion as Reeve Maybee, saying that the board should come to the council for help if they needed it, whether the council paid the premium or not.

Councillor Rutherford, who has served on the arena board, said he believed the board should pay for their own insurance. He pointed out that the electricity was donated to the arena and that the board should stand on its own feet. Councillor Tatham said she would back the request that the town pay the premium. She pointed out that the board members donate a great deal of time and that the job, big as it was, should not be treated as a business. She said that no budget was set aside for providing recreation for the young people of the town, and that the contributions made by council to pull the arena out of the red was the only money spent on the town children as far as recreational facilities were concerned. Councillor Nichols said that a great deal of money is spent in keeping the building in repair, and making it an asset to the town. They also provided free skating to the children, which cut down the revenue to some extent.

Finally, a motion by Councillor William R. Nicholas, seconded by Reeve Maybee, that no action be taken on the board's request was carried by a five to three vote.

Council set the rate for truckers and snow loaders used in snow removal at $2.50 and $3.00 per hour respectively.

A letter was received from R. J. A. McGregor, claiming damages estimated at $12.00, occasioned when a snow loader struck his truck, while McGregor was attempting to pick up mail during the regular collections on his route. He also complained that the police had refused him permission to travel along a certain street to pick up mail, and said this was a federal offence. This happened during snow removal operations when Mr. McGregor was asked to detour, around a street in which equipment was in operation. The matter was left with the police committee to investigate and report back.

ASKS FOR GRANT

Mayor Locke speaking on behalf of the Memorial Hospital board, asked for a grant of $300 per month, which is $150 less than last year. This was discussed at some length, and councillor P. H. Macmillan said he did not see why the council should be asked for a specified amount of money when the board had not presented a financial statement, or did not know how much money they would need. Mayor Locke stated he did not know just how the hospital was in the red, but said a financial statement was now in preparation and would be released at the annual meeting in April. He said that the amount of $300 was arrived at after studying the figures for last year, and anticipating the requirements for 1955.

Further discussion followed regarding higher rates for out-of-town patients, but both Mr. Locke and Councillor Linton, who is also a member of the board, explained that neighboring townships had donated toward the construction of the hospital, and that the board felt that patients from these municipalities should not be charged a premium rate. Mayor Locke said the hospital was actually a good industry as far as the town was concerned, and that about two-thirds of the staff were citizens. The request was approved on a 5-3 vote.

Council asked Mayor Locke, who by virtue of his office is a member of the P.U.C. board, to ask for a grant of $14,000 this year.

NEED OF FIXTURES

Councillor Isobel Tatham told of the need for additional office fixtures in the town offices, including more up-to-date equipment. It was discovered that a fund of about $750 was still on deposit in the bank, this amount being left over when the parking meters were taken out of the town some years ago. The property committee was instructed to ascertain just how much money was on hand, and to find out from clerk-treasurer, Kidon M. Ilbery just what additional office fixtures were needed. The committee was to report back.

The question of the assessment on the local banks was discussed, and it was decided to have the legal committee investigate this and see what action should be taken.

A special meeting was called for January 24, at which time the assessment roll will be received and reports of the various committees received, on the budget of 1955.

A by-law authorizing payment of $40 per month to former clerk John F. McGregor was passed.

The Rev. A. E. Toombs was re-appointed to a three year term on the library board. John H. Mara was also appointed to the board for the remaining two years of a three year term formerly held by Dr. C. C. Watson, who retired recently because of ill-health.

Following the passing of the pay sheet, council adjourned shortly before midnight.

Mendes-France Packs Bags For Visit to West Germany

By WEBB McKINLEY

ROME (AP) — Pierre Mendes-France packed his bags today for a visit to West Germany and talks with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer on post-war French-German differences. The energetic French premier carried with him partial Italian support for his controversial European arms-pool plan.

Mendes-France planned to leave Rome this afternoon by train, after two tightly packed days of conference with Premier Mario Scelba and other Italian leaders. He is due in Baden-Baden, Germany, where Adenauer is vacationing, early Friday.

WON AGREEMENT

During his talks here the French premier won Italian agreement in principle for his plan to set up a seven-country agency to control arms output and distribution within the projected Western European Union. France and Italy also announced records on several economic questions, involving trade, industrial co-operation and immigration.

Despite the promise of partial support, Mendes-France was reported disappointed in the reception given the arms-pool plan by Italian leaders. Sources indicated he had hoped for enthusiastic backing which might have aided him in getting approval from a less-receptive West Germany and Italy.

The plan, designed to prevent West Germany from over-arming within the WEU, comes up next Monday before a meeting in Paris of the seven countries which signed the still-unratified WEU treaty. In addition to France, Italy and West Germany, they are The Netherlands, Britain, Belgium and Luxembourg.

SHARE MANUFACTURE

The Bonn government has said it is ready to co-operate in sharing the manufacture of heavy weapons and in the standardization of arms among the treaty partners.

Bonn sources said earlier this week that in addition to the arms pool plan the Adenauer-Mendes-France talks will cover all outstanding issues between the two countries. These include:

1. Participation of West Germans in the economic development of North Africa; French-German economic co-operation in general.

2. The troublesome Saar question.

CCF Members Fear Quebec May Turn To Communism

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF Commons member says he fears Quebec may embrace communism.

Erhart Regier, Burnaby-Coquitlam, said Wednesday during the Commons throne speech debate that "the people of Quebec are going to wake up" and when the political tide turns there it is going to turn mighty fast."

"My greatest concern is that it may turn to the Communist party" said the British Columbia member, who visited Quebec province last summer.

"I contend there is no part of Canada that is as ripe for advances by the Communist party as the province of Quebec."

To illustrate his claim, he said that in an election—he did not say which one—as many Montrealers voted for Communist candidates as for CCF candidates.

Quebec residents were subject to double taxation. They did not have the education facilities they wanted and needed and they did not receive adequate health services.

Mr. Regier said Quebec is the sore spot of national unity.

He said Prime Minister St. Laurent as "this knight in shining armor who was once and for all going to rid the political scene of a certain man (Mr. Duplessis)."

He said that when the tax dispute reached the Commons last year Quebec Liberals were told to oppose full deductibility of the Quebec tax, and that when the fight in the House was won the prime minister would "put on this armor and go out and do personal battle and we will end up on top."

The guns were fired, he said, referring to a Quebec City speech on national unity last autumn in which Mr. St. Laurent criticized Mr. Duplessis.

". . . But what happened? I wonder how those Liberal members of parliament who put their faith in the prime minister feel about it now. They must be most humiliated indeed because from all appearances the premier of Quebec seems to have won a complete victory."

Mr. Regier said "progressive people" in Quebec looked forward to Mr. Duplessis' political demise.

"Then there was the utter humiliation and shame that all of us felt when it ended up in a complete turnabout in this hotel room in Montreal."

Beaverton Chief Guilty of Impaired Driving Charge

BEAVERTON, Ont. (CP)—Police chief Hector W. Reid, 42, known locally as Hector the Protector, Wednesday was fined for impaired driving and driving without a licence.

He was acquitted of a charge of drunk driving. Reid, the 245-a week, one-man police force in this community 15 miles southeast of Orillia, was suspended by authorities after being charged.

More than 100 residents crowded the courtroom Wednesday as chief Reid was fined $50 on the impaired count and $10 on the other.

AFTER ACCIDENT

The charge was laid after a car he was driving left the highway Dec. 23 and crashed through eight guard rails.

Evidence was that he failed to report the accident to provincial police.

Later chief Reid returned to the scene in a panel truck he borrowed without the owner's consent.

When provincial police asked to see his driver's licence he said he had lost his wallet. The next day he produced what was purported to be the serial number of his licence. It turned out to be that of his daughter's.

Defence attorney Bolton Marshall of Orillia, summing up for the defence, asked special consideration for his client's evidence, adding:

"The evidence should be believed on this occasion. Otherwise, how are we to feel about the evidence he has given in the past that has sent people to jail."

Humanist Talk On BBC Draws Sharp Criticism

LONDON (AP)—Britons heard a lecturer say in a BBC broadcast Wednesday night that "humanist parents" should tell their children:

"Some people now don't think there's really a God, any more than there's really a Santa Claus, though we often like to talk as though there was."

Mrs. Margaret Knight, a lecturer at the University of Aberdeen, spoke in the second of a series of talks on "Morals without Religion." Her first talk brought sharp criticism in sections of the press and from many listeners that the BBC was airing atheistic propaganda.

Mrs. Knight, speaking on a country-wide hookup but making clear she was directing her advice to adherents of scientific humanism, said:

"When the child asks what we believe, as he certainly will, we can say that we don't think there's really a God, but that many people think otherwise and that he can make up his mind when he's older."

In her first talk she had said: "To combat communism by reviving Christianity . . . is like trying to combat the belief in flying saucers by reviving the belief in witches riding on broomsticks."

Quebec Cabinet to Consider Double-Taxing of Income

OTTAWA (CP)—A plan to eliminate double-taxing of income in Quebec was expected to be considered by cabinet today.

Approval appeared likely.

The plan, which would end the prolonged tax dispute between the Ottawa and Quebec governments, involves:

1. Federal permission for Quebec taxpayers to deduct their full 15-per-cent provincial income tax from federal payments, instead of the maximum five-per-cent deduction now allowed.

2. Quebec agreement to keep its collection of direct taxes below a fixed ceiling, and a retreat from its stand that it has a prior right over the federal government in the direct taxation field.

IN DUPLESSIS LETTER

Study and negotiation of the proposal has continued since it was first outlined by Premier Duplessis of Quebec in a letter to Prime Minister St. Laurent following their meeting in a Montreal hotel room last autumn.

Secrecy has surrounded developments, but Wednesday a cabinet source said: "Things are working to a climax. Some action is expected."

Prime Minister St. Laurent said merely that "the matter is under consideration. I am not going to say anything while this problem is under consideration."

Informants said, however, that the proposed basis for settlement would come before cabinet today and that Mr. St. Laurent would inform Mr. Duplessis of the decision by letter.

All provinces except Quebec have tax agreements with the federal government under which they receive annual payments in return for sole federal use of corporation and personal income tax fields and —in all provinces but Ontario— collection of succession duties.

If the Quebec tax formula were accepted, it would be offered to the other provinces as an alternative to their five-year tax-rental agreements which expire in March 1957. However, they probably would stick to their more remunerative agreements.

It was understood the Quebec formula called for that province to limit collections of direct taxes to 90 per cent of what it would otherwise receive under a tax-rental agreement, with any surplus collections to be turned over to the federal treasury.

COSTS ESTIMATES

Cost to the federal treasury of permitting full deduction of the 15-per-cent Quebec income tax is estimated at about $13,000,000 more than the present deduction allowed, which amounts to between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000 a year.

Federal authorities estimate Quebec would be receiving about $180,000,000 in federal payments if she had signed a tax-rental agreement. Under the 90-per-cent formula, Quebec would be allowed to levy up to $108,000,000 in direct taxes.

This year Quebec will collect about $70,000,000 in direct corporation taxes. Her full personal income tax would amount to possibly another $25,000,000, or a total of $95,000,000 in direct taxes.

IMPORTANT TO DOG OWNERS

—re LEAN RED MEAT

A dog's craving for lean red meat is a natural craving for the rich protein he needs for normal health and development.

Dogs on a high protein diet show it in their glossy coats, their bright eyes and alertness, their general good health and happy disposition.

It is not how much but what you feed your dog which is really important.

If your dog is showing an unthrifty coat, lacks normal health and pep, consult your Veterinarian immediately. On the other hand such unfavorable symptoms may be due to lack of proper proteins, vitamins and minerals.

Lean red meat is most important, and this may be supplied economically by Ken-L-Ration, the complete and properly balanced food for dogs of all breeds.

Recommended by leading Veterinarians, Ken-L-Ration contains all known "dog health" proteins, vitamins and minerals.

For economy, Ken-L-Ration may be mixed with Ken-L-Meal, also a complete dog food, and which is rich in meat meal, meat flavor and nourishment.

Answers Knock, Discovers Seal Standing in Door

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Samuel F. Ashbrook and his wife heard a knock at the door of an upstairs apartment.

When Mrs. Ashbrook opened the door, she saw a seal, which gave evidence it wanted in. With a flip and a honk the animal entered, only to have Ashbrook remove his belt and put it around the seal's neck for a walk back downstairs.

A call to the animal shelter brought an understanding officer. He escorted the grunting animal to the ocean—at nearby Seal beach. Apparently unwelcome ashore, the seal plunged into the ocean.

Goals Scarcer Than Fans In New York As Rangers-Leafs Play 0-0 Tie

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

CATCHING!

The hockey virus "More fan support-or-we-will-fold", seems to be going the rounds, especially in the district senior "B" league.

A short time ago the Brockville Recorder and Times carried a story bemoaning the lack of attendance at senior "B" games and the Magodomas would have to close shop if more box-office support was not forthcoming.

Hints that the Cornwall Colts would do likewise have been sitting thereat, but yesterday Manager Ray Miron threw a story in the Cornwall paper, comes out flat-footedforwards a story in the Cornwall paper, comes out flat-footedforwards and that the Colts will fold unless an increase of 1,000 for the next two Sunday games is forthcoming.

"The hockey team's loss thus far for the 1954-55 season has reached nearly $4,000," says the story.

"There is no reason why the team should not come to see the games," said Arena Manager Ray Miron. "We are entered in a good, well-balanced, well organized league. Fans complained the Arena was cold. This year it is heated. Fans want a good team. Colts are in first place.

"Kingston Goodyears can draw well every game—usually 3,000 people. The Colts are the best drawing card on the road, and attendance records for every city but one have been established with the Colts as the attraction.

"It looks as if people here in Cornwall just don't want hockey," said club president Jack Dalboe. "We are not in this thing to make money as our finances for the past two seasons show. (The club lost $6,509 during the 1952-53 season and $1,- 455 on the "53-54 season as well as an initial investment of $3,850.)

"If hockey club, especially a winning one, is excellent publicity for the city," he continued, "as well as excellent entertainment."

"Ten per cent of all receipts from games played away are put in a kitty and at the end of the year this fund is divided among the seven teams in the league. At present this fund is only $4,200, which means Colts share would be only $600.

"The average attendance for league games to date is only 973. With exhibition games included the figure is 1,034—a far cry from the 1,000 fans needed to break even at the end of the season.

"When Montreal Royals came to Cornwall only 809 persons showed up to watch Colts fight them to a 5-5 tie. Their share of the gate this time was only $56.

"If Kingston can support a team, there is no reason why the people of Cornwall shouldn't be able to do the same thing," said Miron.

"We have never gone canvassing, and we don't intend to begin now. If the fans in Cornwall want to see hockey last —if they want to see the playoffs, they will have to give us their support.

"We need 1,000 for the next two games. If we don't get them, we'll just have to fold. We can't take a loss over the season of nearly $3,000."

AND THIS FROM CLINTON!

"It was a shock to many Uticans to read that the Clinton hockey season was running behind in attendance needed to keep the sport and the widely known Clinton rink alive. They will join with Vincent R. Corvo, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, in his expression of Utica interest in the village rink association," says the Utica Observer Post.

"The rink has brought great sport and exceptional skating facilities to Central New York and residents throughout the area should try to help the Clinton group pull through by attendance at games.

"A live community needs sport, and sport enthusiasm is a mark of a live community. In this case, the community is not just Clinton, although the village's residents bore the brunt of the volunteer rink building; the community is Central New York."

SAME IN OTHER PLACES!

And it is a known fact that all the rest of the clubs are on the short end of the attendance string, with the possible exception of Kingston. The attendance here is not, by any means, that required to make ends meet. The hockey is the best ever served to fandom here and Belleville has a strong contending club, much better than a year ago when attendance was much higher than this season. Just what do the fans want?

PLENTY OF ACTION!

For a chill-a-spill-a-thrill-a-minute action don't miss "The Fast and the Furious," now showing at the Capitol Theatre, it is the story of the famous Pebble Beach, Florida, auto race and is just what the title implies. Excellent screen fare for theatre patrons who like to have their spines kept jumping.

Goalies Worsley, Lumley Turn in Brilliant Efforts; Bruins, Hawks Play 1-1 Draw

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Just about everything was down in big-league hockey Wednesday night.

Only two goals were scored in two National Hockey League games.

Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers didn't fire one puck into the nets as they battled to a 0-0 tie before only 5,185 fans at Madison Square Garden. It was the first goal-less game this season.

Only 2,340 customers, the fewest ever to witness a Black Hawk game in Chicago Stadium, sat in as Hawks and Boston thrilled 1-1.

Only 19 minor penalties were handed out in both engagements.

GOALIES' NIGHT

It was a night for goaltenders at New York. Both Toronto's Harry Lumley and little Gump Worsley of the Rangers turned in brilliant games. Harry turned aside 32 shots in posting his sixth shutout of the season. Worsley collected his second shutout as he handled 36 Leaf drives.

The game developed into a conservative, hard-checking contest with both clubs attempting to set up scoring. But none developed.

The fifth-place Rangers muffed a good scoring chance in the third period when defenceman Tim Horton of Leafs was penalized at 4:44 and centre Rudy Migay joined him at 6:27. That gave the New Yorkers a two-man edge for 17 seconds. They couldn't do "anything about it.

STILL UNBEATEN

The tie left the third-place Leafs still unbeaten on New York ice in five games this season.

It was the first 0-0 deadlock at the Garden since 1942 and the second straight time that Lumley, who counted 13 shutouts last season, got to win the Vezina Trophy and top goaltending honors, had battled scoreless.

At Chicago, the fourth-place Bruins scored both goals. Right-winger Leo Labine shoved the puck into his own net at 9:10 of the first period to set the Bruins behind the eight ball. Red Sullivan of the league's leading Hawks credited with the goal because he was the last man to touch the puck before the miscue.

TIED IT UP

Centre Cal Gardner tied the game at 2:50 of the second session. Boston netminder John Henderson made 22 stops while Al Rollins in the Chicago nets kicked out 24.

Only nine penalties were called at Chicago by referee Bill Chadwick. Referee Frank Udvari thumbed 10 players—six Leafs—off the ice for New York.

RED RECORD

MOSCOW (AP)—Russian women speed skaters, who claim to hold all the current world records, continued to set new marks Wednesday, the Soviet news agency Tass reported. The latest record breaker is Tamara Rykova, who skated 1,000 metres in one minute, 33.4 seconds. The old mark, also held by a Russian girl, Khiadia Chtcheguleeva, was 1:36.3.

Canucks Whip Marlboros 3-0; Irish Lose

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Al LaRose, a Toronto Marlboro only a month ago, scored what proved to be the winning goal against his former mates at Toronto Wednesday night as Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks downed Marlboros 3-0 in an Ontario Hockey Association junior A game.

It was Canucks' fifth win of the season and goaltender Claud Dufour had an easy time turning away only 17 shots for his first shutout.

The win and loss did not change league standings for either team. Canucks remained fourth in last place while Marlboros still were in a fourth-place deadlock with Hamilton Tiger Cubs.

LaRose's marker was backed up by singles by Roger Dejordy and Irv Spencer.

BARRIE WINS

In the other game of the Ontario doubleheader Barrie Flyers held back a third period scoring surge by Toronto St. Michael's College Majors to take a 7-5 win.

It was a rough affair as referee Jack Shoppoff handed out 15 minor penalties and three 10-minute misconducts, nine minors and two misconducts to the Majors. The game was tied 1-1 at the end of the first period but Barrie exploded in the second for four markers, two coming fighting hard in the final stanza, only outscored Barrie 6-5.

Speedy Stephen Barlow paced the Barrie attack with two goals as the Flyers won their fifth place, one point ahead of Galt Black Hawks. St. Michael's remained on top three points better than St. Catharines TeePees and Guelph Biltmores.

George Ranieri, Ed MacQueen, Jerry Leary, Gerald Smith and Doug Vaughan were the other Barrie marksmen, Pete Buchnnan, Dick Duff, Ken Linseman, Pat Hanalgan and Ken Gribbon scored for the Majors.

Near Free-for-All in Dressing Room After Castellani Verdicts Mims

BY BILL NEWKIRK

CLEVELAND (AP)—Rocky Castellani's unanimous decision over Holly Mims Wednesday night was preceded over into a dressing room rematch as the Mims entourage burst into the winner's quarters screaming various versions of "we was robbed."

Castellani had been lounging in his robe. His eyes widened in surprise, and then he lunged to his feet, fists clenched, and muttered in flat, cold tones:

"I'll show 'em who won it."

Quick grabs by Castellani's trainers stopped what might very well have become a free-for-all, out of sight of the 5,346 fans in the arena and the 10,000,000 viewers who watched the 12-round middleweight bout.

CLAIMS BUTTED MIMS

Mims, along with his manager, Nick Trottso, and his trainers claimed that Castellani butted him in the chin twice and rubbed him on the ropes.

Castellani's manager, Al Nahman, said later the rhubarb "was the result of the heat of only the second round.

"They didn't really mean it. Everything's drone a out now. Everybody's happy," he ventured.

Castellani's victory, which probably earned him another crack at Bobo Olson's middleweight crown, was fairly impressive, for 1st Mims take the offensive in the early rounds, but outboxed in the last two and pounded him to the canvas for a mandatory eight count in the eighth round with a hard left hook.

SAYS OLSON AGREED

After the fight, Nalnman said Olson "has definitely agreed to fight Mims within the next 90 days."

"Maybe," qualified Olson's manager, Sid Flaherty, but set with the champion at ringside and watched the fight, Flaherty conceded that the only major obstacles in the way were arrangements, "money for instance."

The two managers should have little trouble reaching agreement on financial matters. Nalman, a wealthy salvage company owner, has guaranteed Olson's purse for the title bout last August in San Francisco's Cow Palace, and he has publicly vowed he's willing to do it again.

In the August fight, Castellani lost a 15-round decision to Olson, flooring the champion once and going down once himself. Nalman wants the return match held in Cleveland.

CASTELLANI HEAVIER

The 27-year-old Castellani, at 159½, was four pounds heavier than Mims, 26, in Wednesday night's fray. He was rated No. 2 among middleweight contenders, behind Joey Giardello, while Mims was No. 3.

A good left hook by Mims started Castellani's nose bleeding briefly in the third round.

Then, in the fourth, Mims started dabbing his glove at his left eye, as though something were in it. Castellani took advantage of Mims' trouble, darting in fast and pummeling him with several telling blows. From there on, Castellani had the fight well in hand.

Colts Snatch Argos' Soergel

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Colts Wednesday snatched Ed Soergel, a quarterback-safety man, away from Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football League.

A one-time Cleveland Brown who found himself overshadowed by Otto Graham and George Ratterman, Soergel played for Toronto in 1952 but went into army service that winter. He won all-army honors in 1953 and again last season.

Soergel had planned to return to the Big Four next season but changed his mind when he received an unannounced Baltimore offer.

Denies Forcing Boys to Sign

MONTREAL (CP)—Frank Dilio, registrar of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, said Wednesday that if youngsters in Quebec City are forced to sign QAHA cards before they can play on public rinks, it must be only a local ruling and the QAHA has nothing to do with it.

Dilio's comments followed a statement by aldermen Gaston Filbotte in Quebec that youngsters there can sign at 16 "are forced to sign cards with the QAHA for a period of five years if they wish to play hockey."

Dilio said that where "Mosquito leagues" operate in the province as organized groups and are affiliated with the QAHA, the youngsters sign cards. The cards are only to keep records straight. The top age limit in mosquito leagues is 10 years.

Dilio said there is no such thing as a QAHA card which binds a youngster for five years. All cards reach him and are for one season only.

Late Drive Falls Short, Memos Edged 6-5 By Whitby

Score Four in Final Chapter Of Penalty-Riddled Battle After Trailing 5-1 in Second

WHITBY (Special) — Whitby Wrens vaulted into second place in the senior "B" league standings here last night when they edged the Belleville Memos 6-5 in a penalty-riddled fray.

The Memos dropped to fourth slot, since Peterborough defeated Kingston 8-1 to drop the Goodies to third place.

A third-period drive that saw the Memos outscore Whitby 4-1 just fall short. They were trailing 5-1 going into the period.

The referees handed out 25 penalties which included 23 minutes, two majors and a misconduct, with the Wrens drawing 13 of the sentences.

SCORE SHEET

Belleville started off on the right foot as they scored the opening goal of the game as Erwin Duncan scored on a pass from brother Ed. and Muckler. The Wrens fought back and finally had their efforts rewarded as Attersley scored on a fluky shot that went in off a Belleville player. Less than a minute later Tom Green scored the first of three on another fluky shot. The score now stood with the Wrens out front 2-1 and it ended that way for the first period. There were nine penalties handed out in this frame including a misconduct to Bettini.

GET THREE IN SECOND

The Wrens really took command in the middle frame as they hemmed the Memos well in their own end of the rink and they scored a trio of goals without reply by Green, Gagnon opened the scoring in the middle frame as he took a pass from Semanski and slapped the disk home. Semanski added the second counter just before Gagnon getting an assist. The shot by Wally was really a beauty caught the goalie Parisi cold. Then at the 15.58 mark Treen scored on a pretty goal for the game to give the Wrens a 5-1 lead at the end of the second.

The Belleville team showed a lot more life in the third and they came right out and smacked home a goal at the 19 second mark. DeGray was the sniper on this one. The Whitby team pulled up their socks and came right back. Treen rapped his third one home on a three way passing play with Semanski and Etcher getting assists on the play. The Memos however took over from there and they gave the Wrens all they wanted and then little more. Ted DeGray, Macey and Dugan scored goals to cut the Whitby lead. The Best line however took over in the final minute of play and they rolled any chance of a face-off in the Whitby end zone so as to give the Memos a chance to slip in an extra forward. There were six minor penalties and a pair of majors in the final frame as the Wrens were ruling with an iron hand.

The line-up:

Indians Whip Dutchies 5-3 In Win Splurge

STRATFORD (CP) — Stratford Indians maintained their undefeated string since the beginning of the year, upsetting Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, 5-3 in an Ontario Hockey Association senior A game here tonight. It was the third consecutive loss for the Dutchmen.

Stratford now has won four and tied one in 1955. Bobby Mader, recently returned to the team after a lay-off due to illness, fired two goals. Hervie Dejordy, George Aitken and Dinny Flanagan were the other Stratford scorers.

Joe Schertzl, Charlie Brooker and Jim Logan scored for Kitchener.

It was the first win of the season posted by Stratford over Kitchener and kept the Dutchmen from moving into first place in the league standings. They remain one point behind Owen Sound Mercurys. Stratford is fourth.

Galt Has Hopes For Intercounty

GALT (CP)—Representatives of Galt Baseball Association, Inc., said Tuesday night they still hope to field a team in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League this year.

Operators of the club withdrew last year following an unprofitable season. W. I. Reid, president, told the annual meeting advertisements for sale of the club brought no response.

Twenty-five persons attended the meeting, including Mike King, former co-operator of Brantford Red Sox. Following the session he met with directors and speculation was that he may be interested in operating the Galt club next summer.

Association Bans 'Sleeper Play'

NEW YORK (CP)—The "sleeper play" or the "hide out" as it is known in-the United States was practically outlawed Wednesday as U.S. college football by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The NCAA rules committee decided that when the ball is ready to be put in play, all players on the offensive team must be within 15 yards of the ball.

The NCAA also liberalized the substitution rule by permitting any player starting any quarter to leave and re-enter once in that quarter.

Giant Stars Swing Fists, Instead of Bats

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Willie Mays and Ruben Gomez, key players in the New York Giants' drive to the National League and world series titles last fall, apparently were back on good terms today after a fist fight.

The two players, members of the Santurce club of the Puerto Rican League, engaged in fisticuffs during a practice session Tuesday.

Mays knocked Gomez down before other players stopped the squabble.

But today both players refused to discuss the incident and teammates said they had shaken hands.

"There's nothing to it," said Gomez. "We both consider the case closed and are good friends."

Newspaper reports said Gomez started the interference in a scrap between Mays and pitcher Milton Ralat. Mays pinned Gomez' left arm and threw a punch, knocking down the Giants' righthander.

London Majors Franchise Sold For $8,000

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Frank Colman, managing manager of London Majors in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League, bought the club Wednesday for a reported $8,000.

Colman purchased the franchise from Clare Van Horne and Bill Farmer. Archer, Jack Kelly, also has an interest in the club.

Colman, a native Londoner who later played major league baseball with New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates, said he hopes to have working agreements through his big league connections with Yankees, Boston Red Sox and Brooklyn Dodgers.

But the over-all policy of the Majors will remain the same, he said.

"We intend to give as many local players as possible a chance to make the team—and we'll probably sponsor a junior club as well. However, I don't think that will be possible until 1956."

Queen's Beaten By Clarkson

POTSDAM, N.Y. (AP)—Clarkson's unbeaten hockey team came from behind Wednesday night to defeat Queen's University of Kingston, Ont., 3-2.

Don Meredith and Ron Hermiston scored both Queen's goals in the first period.

All the Clarkson scoring came in the final period when Eldred Gutzmann, Jack Fortier and Ed Howe scored.

Bert Brooks made 44 saves for Queen's, and Don Cooper made 18 for Clarkson.

Clarkson's 10th victory, and the first start of the season for Queen's.

Trent Valley Hockey League

Scoring the only two goals of the final period, the Point Anne Cementmen kept their undefeated record intact with a very narrow 5-4 win over Bill Gaull's Belleville Juniors in a southern section TVL game played at Memorial Arena last night.

The Juniors had the Williams-Anderson crew to a 1-1 tie in the first period and outscored them 3-3 in the middle stanza but faltered just enough in the last period to allow the visitors two goals, one coming with less than two minutes to play.

The two teams battled it out on even terms in the first period with the Cementmen holding the post or firing by the corner on several good scoring opportunities. Timmy Williams got the league leaders off: to a good start at the 1.00 minute mark, netting Gerry Goyer's rebound into the open corner, Leo Goyer started the play.

A high-sticking penalty went to Bill Hurst and less than a minute later the Juniors knotted the score. Shaker Baker was the marksman, blasting one just on the inside of the post from about fifteen feet out. Goyer missed a great chance in the last minute of the period when he took another Goyer pass in the clear but his drive bounced off Ashley's pads and rebounded.

Earl Anderson's boys carried the play in the early minutes of the middle stanza and Jackie Warchaugh gave them a 2-1 lead after 57 seconds of play. He took Strahan's goal-mouth pass and slid it under Ashley's extended leg.

Bill Hurst made it 4-2 at 5.25.

Hurst was thumbed for interference at 4.58 and Goyer returned the clip and he had pumped home a pair to tie the score. Baker got the first unaslisted passing from behind the net and deflecting it by Ashley. Goyer, Leo St. Denis rifled one into the twine nine seconds later on a pass play with Stoliker and McKenna.

The final period featured end-to-end rushes with play speeding up considerably from the two previous sessions. Gerry Goyer tied the score at 4-4, with the clock reading 8.56, taking Leo's pass from the corner and beating Ashley. The same player's long pass from Gerry and Jud Semark at 18.35 before rifling a short drive between the outdoorman's legs to make it 5-4.

Ashley objected to Pat Gilmour taking a swing at a loose puck near the Belleville net, the two tangling on the ice and both receiving major penalties at 19.16 but no damage was done.

Leo and Gerry Goyer each had a goal and assist for the winners with Williams claiming one and one. "Shaker" Baker notched two goals in defeat, as well as playing a steady game on defence. Harvey Stoliker and Cameron McKenna each had two assists.

The teams:

Point Anne — Letman, Hurst, Semark, G. Goyer, L. Goyer, Williams, Strahan, Warchaugh, Doran, Graham, Hunter, Stewart, F. Marcile.

Belleville Juniors — Ashley, Murray, Baker, Brooks, Atkins, Stoliker, McKenna, Bryant, Fogarty, Petrie, Fox, Bovay; St. Denis, Buskard, Linton.

Scores Three For Springfield In Hornet Defeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Anderson of the Springfield Indians ranks as one of the leading scorers of the season in the Western League.

The 24-year-old left winger, who played with Edmonton in the Western League the past two seasons, turned in the three-goal "hat trick" Wednesday night to spark Springfield to a 5-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Hornets. The triumph enabled the Indians to regain sole possession of first place as Pittsburgh fell to second.

Anderson's three goals boosted his season's total to 20 goals in the AHL. Cleveland's Eddie Olczyk, who had been the top goal scorer, has 20.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Know your opening bids in bridge and you will know your bids as defender. The only new things to learn then is what words to use for showing the same kinds of hands you know as an opener.

Suppose you have a hand with the qualities for an opening bid of one. And suppose an opponent has already opened the bidding. How are you going to show your partner the kind of hand you have?

If you make a simple overcall (non-jump defensive bid in your suit) it would not show the kind of hand you have. Why? A simple overcall may be made without the strength of an opener.

So, to show a hand as good as an opening you must use a signal that distinguishes. The signal used is the word double; a signal that orders partner to bid and is thus known as a takeout double.

Culbertson says it shows: Three honor tricks in three suits; three honor tricks in two suits with a strong rebiddable suit; 2½ honor tricks with a five card or better support for all unbid suits.

Goren says it shows: No less than 13 points; that is, as good as an opening one bid. It shows a hand that will make a good dummy for partner or has a good substitute bid.

According to Gordon, a takeout double shows a hand as good as an opening one bid. Thus, although it may not be expressed in the same words exactly, all sound teachers mean the same thing.

South opens with a heart when you have this west hand:

♣K Q 6

If you made a simple overcall of one spade you would have the values for it. But you have more than that to show your partner. It is a hand that could have opened the bidding. Partner should know it.

So, how can you tell him? Not by a simple overcall. By saying double. Thus will he know your hand was strong enough to open if the opponent had not opened before him. Get the difference.

AT THE BELLE

"The Adventures of Hajji Baba," Exciting Tale of Adventure, Intrigue and Romance.

In "The Adventures of Hajji Baba," which premiered last night at the Belle Theatre, Walter Wanger almed the magic eye of the CinemaScope camera at ancient Persia, and has come up with an exciting and colorful spectacle of adventure, intrigue and romance.

Never before has the screen told of the centuries between the flying carpet era and that of the flying saucer. Now, CinemaScope takes you on a magic carpet into the mysterious Near East to tell a tale that's more fabulous than those of the Arabian Nights.

John Derek and Elaine Stewart, the principals in a large cast, give top-notch performances as the romantic couple who experienced a thousand and one adventures in this adaptation of James Morier's famous classic.

A highlight of the film shows audiences the fierceness of rarely shown wild warrior women as they encounter tumultuous battles with the soldiery of the Caliph. Beautiful and picturesque, in this vast spectacle, are the scenes of ancient Persian caravans crossing the desert and lavish interiors of the palaces and forbidden harems, all in color Deluxe.

In the title role of a resourceful rascal of a rogue, John Derek falls in love with the beautiful Princess Fawzia, enacted by Elaine Stewart. Her heart, however, is with a rival prince who, unbeknown to her, is trying to rule all of Persia by marrying her. In his efforts to convince her of this scheme, Derek finds himself involved in countless adventures. To accomplish his mission, Derek enlists the aid of Osman Ags, a caravan owner, expertly played by Thomas Gomez.

When Hajji and Fawzia are attacked by a band of warrior women, a savage battle ensues in which the two are captured and ordered to die by torture. Amanda Blake, as the leader of this army, gives a creditable performance, as does Rosemarie Bowe, one of her recruits, who sets the screen interest with a most exotic dance.

CinemaScope Shorts

Two CinemaScope shorts add to the enjoyment of the program, namely, First Piano Quartette, presenting a musical novelty enhanced by colorful settings, and Land of Legend, a fascinating Travelialk of Modern Greece.

Police Officers Plead Guilty To Six Charges

SARNIA (CP)—Two city police officers Wednesday pleaded guilty to six charges of theft involving more than $2,700 worth of merchandise from Sarnia stores.

Constables Sidney Blake, 34, and Douglas Morgan, 32, were remanded in custody until next Wednesday for sentence.

Crown attorney S. A. K. Logan said that a severe penalty be imposed on the two men, who admitted committing the offences while on duty, after using a police cruiser to transport loot to their home.

"They used their position to commit these crimes and have shaken the confidence of the public in our police force," said Mr. Logan. The two officers were convicted of stealing meat, cigarets, clothing, furniture and other household articles last December.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Friday, January 14, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—This should be an agreeable period for finishing incompleted matters, for tasks that perhaps were set aside. New undertakings, if important, can also be taken care of satisfactorily.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—This day can be pleasant as well as productive. Much is up to you, your willingness, initiative. No need to strain or overdo; just keep a steady, progressive pace and wind up with a good score.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Hold emotions and restlessness under control. Best results if you have a set objective and strive patiently, but firmly to reach it. Overfeeding one's self doesn't pay. Do your self justice.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Advice to Taurus pertinent to you today. There are many advantages to be uncovered and you can make reasonable headway in your occupation, also in additional tasks. Protect domestic interests. Be ambitious.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—This can be a full, responsive period. Equally favored are personal and family interests; sound buying, selling; some advancement in all worthwhile matters. Aim to achieve in your occupation.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Sharpen your usually keen mental acumen; today has fresh advantages for its use. Authors, journalists, critics, all those who earn their living by brain work are especially favored.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Interesting, some intriguing indications in your sector. You should use your intuition, keen self, and, quite likely, even more so than usual. Don't hesitate if you see a good opportunity.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Good openings for your fine ability but the day also has tricky spots, so don't delay in matters that are urgent. Keep alert, but without worry or anxiety. You can progress well now.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Some bright prospects, especially for familiar matters, finishing tasks so as to get a fresh start next week. New undertakings can also prove beneficial, if handled smartly, efficiently.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Read Scorpio. You have similar, offerings and restrictions today. Don't dally, where things should be started early; a well attended and balanced schedule brings returns. Good 1976.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—It is important that you put forth consistent effort and that you speed up in places where needed. The day is promising for your endeavors and personal interests if you work with it.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)— Be smart; scan your alloted program carefully, eliminate useless red tape and trifles, then go to work on essentials. Honest work will prove profitable.

You born today are likeable, considerate, generous, usually willing and ready to support any worthy cause. But you may tend to neglect your own interests by inactivity, letting things ride along. Watch this latter tendency because it can thwart the fine success than can and should be yours. Associate with those who spur you on—honesty of course. Shun time wasters. Keep studying, improving your knowledge and capability. You should never stop learning. Birthdate: Pierre Loti, noted French author. (Copyright, 1955, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma sighed sad to herself, saying to pop, Goodness, William, I mean oh dear, I feel as if I've wailed the whole day.

Certain days have impressed me the same way said and ma said, I lost a button off my camel hair coat, and they are the only buttons that could possibly look rite on that coat, so I spent the entire afternoon downtown trying to replace it. I looked high and low and near and far, but it seems that button is simply and completely irreplaceable, she said.

Maybe it's a form button, pop said, Why dont you write to Europe? he said, and ma said, Oh, you just think it's a meer bagtelle, I know by the way you sound.

Not at all, my dear, pop said, I know just how you feel, because something happened down at the office today that made me feel exactly the same. A young chap came in looking for a job, and I was quite impressed by his appearance, so when I asked him what his name was, you can imagine the shock I got when he replied, I.R. Harris.

What was so shocking in that, for land sakes? ma said, and pop said, But my dear, how can you possibly excuse such atrocious grammar? I tried to correct him as gently as I could. I said Surely you mean, I am Harris, but he was as stubborn as a mule. No, he said, I. R. Harris. Well, I did my best to keep my temper. I said to him, Well naturally, you are Harris, but suppose I was in your place, what would you think if I told you, I. R. Harris? And his only answer to that was, I'd think you were rite. My dear, it spoiled my whole day. But go on about the buttob, pop said.

I'll do nothing of the kind, and I've heard enough about your silly Harris, ma said.

Being the end of the subject.

Control Board Blocks Motion To Probe Suite

TORONTO (CP)—Board of control Wednesday blocked a motion by Mayor Nathan Phillips to have a full investigation of controversial Suite 1735 at the Royal York Hotel.

Controllers Joseph Gordah, Roy Belyea and Ford Brand indicated they did not want the board to deal with the mayor's motion. Controller Dodi Ballour, however said the matter had to be cleared up by the board—one way or the other.

Over the protests of controller Brand, Mayor Phillips said the motion would be forwarded to city council following normal municipal procedure. He added that board approval would add weight to his proposal.

The 1954 city council voted against a probe of the hotel room, said to have been used by a city hall clique on civic affairs. The newly-elected mayor re-opened the issue when he gave notice of motion at the inaugural meeting of the 1955 council Jan. 7.

At Christmas time he loaned his small planetarium to Smooth Rock United church, in Smooth Rock Falls, and a effective Christmas service was held. To simulate night when the angel visited the shepherds on the fields of Bethlehem, the church lights were extinguished and the planetarium was turned on, this dotted the ceiling with bright stars and the fragrant pine acted out under a star-lit sky. Deny U.S. Ship Fired at Planes

TAIPEH, Formosa (Reuters)—American authorities in this Chinese Nationalist capital today denied that a United States Navy destroyer fired on Chinese Communist planes this week near Nanklinsle and Nanchi Island.

Chinese Nationalist correspondents returning from Tachen Island, 90 miles north of Nanchi, had reported that the incident occurred early Tuesday while Communist planes were chasing a Nationalist tank landing ship on which they were travelling.

Nerves On Edge, Couldn't Sleep Well; Always Tired

Got Sick Headaches, Bilious Spells and Upset Stomach. "Nothing Like Syntona," She Says.

More and more people every day tell of the good results they get by taking a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound. Many men and women have used it time and again when they are not feeling well and say it is a medicine they can always depend upon for relief from common health disorders. Here, for example, is the recent report of Mrs. Bernadette Gibbs, 186 Center St., St. Thomas, Ontario, who said:

Sick, Bilious Attacks

"My experience is that Syntona is the most dependable medicine I've ever taken curing many years of trouble with weak, nervous, easily upset stomach.

"Sometimes the attacks were so bad I would get awful gas, bloating and sick, upset stomach. Often this would be followed by throbbing headache and dizzy feeling. I would be irritable and didn't feel like doing anything for days.

Read About It

"I had read in the papers about Syntona helping other people and although I had previously taken many things without benefit I decided to try this medicine. Now I am certainly glad I did because I have found that it very quickly helps my stomach, relieves the gassy sick feeling. Then the headaches, dizziness and nervous condition left me and I am soon feeling like myself again.

"Why not give this Pure Herbal Medicine a chance to help you, too. Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dalan The Druggist.

Entertainment House Is Called Hollywood Dream

MONTREAL (CP)—A Laurentian mountain retreat allegedly used by a construction firm to entertain government officials while negotiating contracts has been described as a Hollywood dream.

G. J. Fitzgerald in his Montreal Gazette column "On and Off the Record" says a person who has visited the retreat described it as a "Hollywood set-designer's dream."

He added:

"The entire property is protected by a formidable fence; and the only entrance is through a gateway constantly under guard. Admission is only after the visitor has been vouched for by the main lodge. Accommodation and entertainment is provided on a most lavish scale, with every possible convenience for the official being romanced.

"Greenhouses provide fresh flowers in profusion; and the entire establishment is air conditioned. It is staffed by an impressive array of servants, from butlers to handymen. Not one of them will discuss anything that transpires inside the fence, but stories of some of the parties there have been fabulous."

Robins on Binge Litter Streets Of Florida City

ANNA MARIA, Fla. (AP) — Robins by the hundreds have been on a binge here for several days.

The birds teeter back and forth on telephone lines, fall off, flutter feebly to the ground and remain there.

They fly against automobiles, and streets are strewn with their bodies.

Police can't account for the strange behavior, but Harry Varley, editor of the weekly newspaper, The Island, thinks the birds got hopped up on some kind of fallen fermented berry.

In Toronto accidents and injuries 1950 and 1954 amounted to 15,510—254 dead and 15,256 injured. Canadian casualties in three years of fighting Korea totalled 1,909.

The conference attended by more than 100 municipal traffic experts, is study proposals for greater traffic safety.

Ex-President's Son Commands Costa Rica Rebels

By CARLOS ESCUDERO

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—With fighting in Costa Rica four-days-old over at virtual standstill, an inter-American investigating commission reported today that the planes which bombed and machine-gunned Costa Rican towns had come from "foreign soil."

The finding was announced at the first formal Costa Rican report. Teodoro Picado, admitted in an interview in Managua, Nicaragua, that his 32-year-old son is commanding the rebel forces. The younger Picado is a graduate of West Point, the United States military academy.

The commission, reported finding "serious indications that arms and munitions have been supplied from a foreign source to rebel elements in Costa Rican territory." The commission did not identify the "foreign soil" or the "foreign source."

MADE CHARGES

The five-country investigating group forwarded its finding to the council of the Organization of American States. The council sent the commission to the scene to investigate Costa Rican charges of aggression by neighboring Nicaragua in connection with the fighting.

Nicaraguan officials have denied Costa Rican accusations that the Nicaraguan government armed, trained and equipped the rebels. They say the fighting is internal revolution.

The commission's findings will be cured by the OAS council as a rule in deciding whether action should be taken under the Rio de Janeiro treaty, which provides for joint action by the American states if any of its fellows is invaded.

The Costa Rican general staff reported that a rebel force of 300 to 400 men apparently was stalled today at Nicoya, on the Cruz, in the northwest tip of the country just south of the Nicaraguan border.

The rest of the country was reported quiet, with the government in control.

Three Persons Burned to Death In Small Shack

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Three persons were burned to death today in a small shack at Nipigon provincial police here said.

The report received at provincial police headquarters here identified two of the victims as Elner Asumus, 41, a Nipigon bushworker, and Hilda Brusin, 48, who was described as having lived with Asumus and worked in bush camps.

The third person, not immediately identified, was believed a brother of Brusin.

Police said the fire department at Nipigon, about 75 miles northeast of here, received a call at 7:45 a. m., but the shack was almost entirely burned when firemen reached the scene.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis:

A new low pressure area developing over the Dakotas will be cloud is spread over most of Ontario during the night, followed by more in northwestern Ontario. Insurance Bill Quickly Passed By Both Houses

Jobless Can Now Have Increased Benefits

OTTAWA (CP)—Jobless now can qualify for higher supplementary unemployment insurance benefits, approved swiftly by the two Houses of Parliament Thursday.

First measure to get final passage and royal assent at the session which opened a week ago, the insurance bill is retroactive to January 2. Persons qualifying for supplementaries will get them for the whole week.

The supplementary payments, which go to those whose regular benefits would have run out between Jan. 1 and April 15, are boosted by about 50 per cent. For the first year they averaged 50 per cent of normal benefits; after that they will be 100 per cent.

Also, those entitled to supplementaries will be able to get them for a minimum of 60 days. The minimum until now was 10 days.

Under the measure, the Commons resumed the throne speech debate.

SOME DEMANDS

The bill aimed at alleviating the effects of winter unemployment was only top-priority handling in the Commons and the Senate Thursday.

While all sections of the Commons reported there is pressure there were opposition demands that supplementary insurance should be extended further.

With the approval of the other three opposition parties, the Progressive Conservatives attempted unsuccessfully to have the April 15 cutoff time set back to May 15.

An amendment along that line by Lester Pearson, Gregg's bill, moved by Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC—Hamilton West), was defeated by Speaker Roland Michener on the ground it involved spending. Expenditure bills are a government prerogative.

George Hees (PC—Toronto Broadview) suggested also that the last three months of the year be included in supplementary payments.

"Hunger and hardship just don't understand this government's timetable," he said. "It's time for practical approval to people going hungry before April."

Mr. Gregg retorted: "I deny outright that the government is unconcerned about the welfare of its fellow citizens."

Child Crawls To Safety From Fire

TORONTO (CP)—An 18-month-old child crawled up a smoke-filled stairway to safety Thursday as her mother, relatives and neighbors were trying to rescue her.

Charlene Giavanni was left in the basement of her home to play for a few minutes while her mother went upstairs to do washing.

When Mrs. Giavanni tried to return to the cellar she was forced back by heavy smoke.

Mrs. C. E. Robinson, a neighbor, and Mrs. Giavanni were about to grope around their faces and work their way down stairs when the entrance appeared at the stairway in a cloud of smoke. The child was then brought up to the home to her face, hands and feet. Her condition is not critical, crew.

Four RCAF Bandsmen Return Home With Children Turned Into Cockneys

HALIFA X(CP) — Four RCAF bandsmen returned to Canada from England today after two years in the air force with wives "everything from planes to shoes" and heard their 10 children "turn into little Cockneys."

The four NCOs were the first Canadian Air Force bandsmen stationed in the Royal Air Force school of music at Uxbridge and they are its first all-wife-finished bandmasters. They landed here from the ex-Liner Empress of Scotland.

The quartet comprises Sgt. Horace Thomas of St. Catharines, WO. Ted Robbins of Toronto, Flt. Sgt. Ken Bowes of Vancouver and Flt. Sgt. Wilfred Boyce of Richmond Hill, Ont. All are married and each had his wife with him. Robbins, Boyce and Beard each has two children. Woods has four girls.

Boyce and Robbins are being posted to Ottawa. Woods will go to Toronto and Beard will conduct at Edmonton.

PC Suggests Revenue Minister Consider Resigning Post

OTTAWA (CP)—An opposition cry of scandal, coupled with a suggestion that Revenue Minister McCann consider resigning, is the latest development in probing into tax disclosure that public officials were entertained at a party given by a contract-seeking construction firm.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) said Thursday the case has "all the earmarks of a major scandal."

He said in the Commons Dr. McCann's department knew about it two months before it was disclosed last February and that the ministry should consider submitting his resignation from the government.

"This thing smells to high heaven," he declared. The people were entitled to a public investigation.

The income tax appeal board reported Saturday, in a judgment on a private-bank appeal, that a construction firm sought to deduct from its 1951 taxable income $67,189 spent on refurbishing a house and grounds in which to entertain public officials and others negotiating contracts.

The board's judgment identified neither company nor public officials and last Thursday Finance Minister St. Laurent said he will seek to ascertain whether federal officials were entertained. He said never looked out to the public."

he will "go the legal limit to get at the facts."

Mr. Fleming referred to newspaper reports which described the reception as "a Hollywood set-up, a banquet and entertainment of the finest, catering to every possible convenience for any official being romanced."

Dr. McCann asked whether officers of Ontario government highway commission were entertained there—an apparent reference to the recent Ontario roads contracts scandal.

Last week Ontario Highways Minister Doucett resigned, giving as a reason his ministerial responsibility for his department.

Mr. Fleming said the income tax appeal case arose in Dr. McCann's department "and his officers were acquainted with it two years ago." He has questioned the evidence in this case fell on deaf ears."

"If the minister is living up to Ontario precedents he might well consider that responsibility in matters of this kind is such that he ought to take some action, by his resignation to his excellency the governor-general or even what has happened here."

Mr. Fleming said there should be a full inquiry "if we are the past type of "hole-in-the-corner investigation the results of which have never leaked out to the public."

Irate Citizens at Vancouver Help Capture Bank Bandits

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charges of robbery with violence will be laid here today against three men captured in a running battle with helpful citizens and heavily-armed police after a Canadian bank was robbed of $19,000 Thursday.

Two of the suspects were scheduled to appear in Burnaby police court while police said the third, shot in the left leg by a citizen-gunman, will be charged at his hospital bedside.

Terror of the trio followed a wild chase in which a roadside sign crew exploded a heavy machine in front of the getaway car and another citizen hurled a fire-iron at the fleeing men.

After the gunmen forced the bank grader operator to back his machine out of the way, a telephone operation chased them in his truck at speeds up to 90 miles an hour until their car ran into a ditch.

All the bank loot is believed to have been recovered. Police said it was found in front of the bank and the rest in bushes where the suspects were captured.

The man will also be placed in identification lineups in connection with a recent rash of bank holdups here.

Eight banks were robbed at gunpoint of a total of $68,000 during a six-week spree starting Nov. 4.

More than a score of police were on the RCMP and city police in capturing the three men after they abandoned their car and ran into the bushes.

One man was shot in the leg as he tried to run and was captured on a nearby school yard, and the third was flushed by an RCMP tracking dog.

The bandits fired four wild shots at citizens who attempted to block their escape in front of the bank.

Two bullets were aimed at sheet-metal worker Herb Letang, who was using the hammer as they jumped into the getaway car.

Letang then was fired at by grader operator Ernie Atells, forcing the bank robber out of the way. Atells moved the grader in front of the car when he saw the three men jump from it and run over their heads as they entered the bank.

Unaccounted Flow of New Equipment to Depts. Criticized

OTTAWA (CP)—Watson Solar says federal public servants don't like using reconditioned equipment and though they are drawing thousands of dollars worth of new equipment and furniture through the works department, little is known of what furniture exists and is being put to use.

Canada's auditor general, the scrutineer of the government's multi-billion-dollar annual estimates, proposed in his annual report that each department be made physically and financially responsible for the equipment it draws.

The way matters are now, the auditor general said, there has been "exceptional storage problem" because of the tendency to ask for furniture and equipment actually in possession of other departments.

Mr. Solar indicate that few departments maintain records of furniture and equipment. Consequently it is currently not known whether all articles of furniture and equipment actually supplied by public works exist and are in use.

Mr. Solar was dealing with the fiscal year 1953-54, swept the entire field of government operations, picking out flaws, weaknesses and even some discrepancies in federal accounts.

He observed that in 1953 he had asked A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, to revise the corporation's books to eliminate weaknesses. The CBC with its radio and television operations spends $50,000,000 in 1953-54, but despite his demands, the accounts were still weak.

He questioned the power of Nelson Castonguay, chief electoral officer, to set fees and allowances for election officials, suggesting that Parliament should control these were powers with the cabinet.

Shifting to another field, he said the government had failed to keep a customs official at Snag Creek in the Yukon in a room rent for which it was paying $25,000 to build. He doubted the "regularity" of this deal.

He noted also that the defence department paid a commercial firm $20,000 to complete the Toronto Downsview airport, with the sum split 50-50 and Ontario governments when normally real estate deals of these amounts were carried on directly between government officials.

But one of his big concerns was the expansion of the public service.

The space under lease to the government in the Ottawa area had risen by 1,925,000 square feet from 950,000. Outlays for rent had jumped to $2,237,000 in 1953-54 from $800,000 in 1948-50.

Hammarskjold Says No Proposals Made by Chou

Lodge Expresses Optimism After Receiving Report

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold said today Red China's Chou En-lai raised a number of questions, including a UN post, during their Peiping talks—but that he definitely had laid down no conditions for release of the 11 American fliers held there.

The secretary - general told a press conference he had achieved what he was "learning at" during his visit to Peiping.

He described this as merely the first section of a continuing effort.

NO TERMS MADE

Hammarskjold said that in his opinion any improvement in the international climate is directly connected with the question of the leasing the American fliers and other UN-connected personnel held by the Chinese Communists.

He stressed, however, that Chou told police a man handed her a note reading "hand over the money / and fast" just before 3 p. m.

Mrs. Clarke screamed and the man fled.

While police investigated this would-be robbery, a man walked into the Bank of Montreal a few blocks away and handed a note to Miss Elsie Kutchka, the bonded teller, who promptly yelled "holdup." Miss Kutchka was held up in a similar fashion about a year ago.

At her scream, the intruder broke into a run. Harland MacDougall, a bank employee and former high school footballer, felled the suspect with the nicest tackle his manager, A. D. McLaughlan, had ever seen.

Barber Arrested For 2 Attempted Bank Holdups

MONTREAL (CP)—A 43-year-old barber held pending a remand in connection with two attempted bank holdups within 15 minutes in the busiest section of Montreal yesterday, police reported.

Police said the barber, Henri Thauvette was felled in a football tackle by a bank employee after the second of two holdup attempts was made on mid-town St. Catherine St.

Mrs. Hazel Clarke, 26, a teller at a Bank of Nova Scotia branch office, said a man handed her a note reading "hand over the money / and fast" just before 3 p. m.

Switzerland's Rain, Britain's Snow, Austria's Sunshine All Bring Woe

LONDON (AP)—Europe got a weather variety today that ranged from snow and bitter cold to freak warm spells and rain.

Londoners in southern England were blanketed by new snowfall. Temperatures were near freezing in a minor automobile accident when a cyclist was knocked off his saddled on an icy road. She escaped injury.

A snowstorm had brought traffic almost to a standstill, and her car bumped into a car ahead after rounding a curve. Neither vehicle was damaged.

As new snows covered parts of England, three trains still were stranded and almost all road transport was cut off in Scotland.

Spring-like sunshine returned Austria, bringing a danger of snowslides in mountain areas. Warm a rains swept Alpine districts in Switzerland that normally see only snow from November to April.

Thaws sent the Rhine and Danube rivers soaring to flood level.

In the snowswept Scottish highlands 70 passengers on two trains marooned since Monday were dug out by snowplows and brought to safety.

North sea gales sent small ships scurrying for shelter.

Hope faded for 18 men aboard a RAF reconnaissance planes lost on training flights over the Atlantic Tuesday night.

Red Cross Part in Hurricane Outlined to Annual Meeting By Assistant Commissioner

More than 100 persons attended the annual meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society held Thursday evening in St. Thomas' Anglican Church parish house.

Features of the meeting were the election of officers for 1955, a consolidated report of the year's activity of all committees, and an address by W. R. McAdam, assistant commissioner of the Ontario division of the Red Cross.

The report of the nominating committee and summary of the consolidated annual report, both accepted unanimously, appear elsewhere in this edition.

Chairman for the meeting was His Honor Judge J. C. Anderson, president of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross.

The part Red Cross played in the relief and rehabilitation of victims of Hurricane Hazel in the Greater Toronto area was the subject of assistant commissioner McAdam's address.

He prefaced his remarks on Red Cross work at the time by outlining briefly the extent of the disaster. He pointed out that the rains which saturated the area prior to Hurricane Hazel and the 200 foot rise in the Lake Ontario level from the shore of Lake Ontario produced a rapid run off in Hazel's record 7.2 inches of rain that turned Lake St. Clair and Etobicoke rivers into raging torrents.

Washouts of bridges and telephone lines and darkness complicated rescue and relief work.

Red Cross headquarters in Toronto went into action at once by sending the Hurricane struck by alerting its disaster units and welfare corps for a possible emergency. Extra telephone lines were installed during the night to help handle the flood of enquiries from all parts of Canada and the United States concerning the safety of persons in the stricken area.

CO-ORDINATED EFFORTS

Headquarters staff directed the shipment of food, clothing and medical supplies from the central warehouse to the areas hardest hit; channelled offers of aid from, the American Red Cross headquarters in Washington.

"It would be impossible and foolhardy to attempt to stockpile everything necessary for the next disaster of this magnitude," said Mr. McAdam, "but it is quite reasonable to have sources of supply, such as large department stores, available when our own basic warehousing stock is depleted," he stated.

"Calls for blankets to the branch section where were not for immediate distribution to the stricken, but to replace the depleted reserves of the headquarters' warehouse."

Canadian Red Cross spent $50,000 in the few days immediately after Hurricane Hazel struck," said Mr. McAdam, "but this doesn't even begin to represent the actual value of volunteer assistance rendered by Red Cross Society workers in co-ordinating relief activities.

Mr. McAdam also spoke briefly on the contribution which the Canadian Red Cross Society makes to the national and international scene.

He stated that the Belleville branch's contribution of $43,018 to divisional headquarters since 1952 was one of the outstanding records in the province.

WORK FOR DEFENCE DEPT.

National work of the Red Cross for the Department of National Defence includes provision of blood and blood products to the armed services; use of Red Cross Lodges by servicemen and their families; an arts and crafts program; emergency relief for veterans; and provision of sundries for servicemen overseas.

International work of the Red Cross includes participation in the disaster and emergency fund, provision of special foods, clothing and medical supplies; shipment of goods produced by the women's work and service centres; financial assistance to self-help programs by the acquiring of sanewsia and burley for the making of nets.

Mr. McAdam was introduced by Judge J. C. Anderson and the thanks of the meeting were expressed by William Hurst, Mr. McAdam's address was the broadcast by CJBQ, Sunday afternoon at 3.10.

A banquet in the parish house basement preceding the business portion of the meeting was served by Group B of the Women's Guild of St. Thomas' church.

A musical interlude was provided by pianist Gregory Butler, who played Chopin's Etude in C, Op. 10 No. 22; Edward McDowell's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2" and Aaron Copeland's "Cat and Mouse."

FIN PRESENTED

A homemaker's pin was presented to Mrs. Beatrice Smith by Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson.

A delegation from Whitney attending the meeting included Mrs. J. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Tom McCormick, Miss Louise Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Mellow and Miss Marjorie McRae.

Miss McRae presented a detailed report of the work of the Whitney outpost hospital during 1954 which included the history of the entire community served by the hospital to the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross for the assistance which it has given Whitney hospital in the past.

Lee Grills, chairman of the 1955 campaign, outlined briefly

Importance of Early Planting For Highest Yields Stressed

A one-day program for Eastern Ontario vegetable growers' district meeting, sponsored by canning crops to Belleville Collegiate Auditorium Thursday, making it one of the largest meetings ever held by a farm organization in the Quinte district.

The Conference, sponsored by the canning crop associations in 5 counties east of Toronto and the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Marketing Board, was the second of its kind ever held in Eastern Ontario. Growers attending heard leading authorities on soils, weeds and tomatoes discuss latest research developments of interest to producers of the three major canning crops of this part of the province.

Professor C. B. Sayre, chief of the vegetable crops division of the Ontario Department of Horticulture, Geneva, New York emphasized the importance of early planting for highest yield in peas. Professor Sayre also outlined research findings recently carried out at Geneva, showing the relation between time of harvest and yield which affects the income and profits growers get from their crops.

Co-Operative Housing Scheme To Be Started East of City

A new housing sub-division comprising about 10 houses is expected to spring up in the rural area immediately east of the city starting some time next spring.

The scheme for building boom it may be said there is nothing surprising about this. The fact is however that the houses are planned on a co-operative effort with the members doing a big percentage of the construction with the view of saving costs to the bone.

The new houses will be called Woodland Acres Co-operative with Ray Brule as president. Co-operative members have already applied for their charter, they have purchased the land for sub-dividing and will be all ready to start building as soon as mortgage money can be obtained through Central Mortgage and Housing.

PROPERTY PURCHASED

Approximately seven acres of farm land at Farley Ave and between Bridge and Victoria Ave. Bridge and Victoria Ave. have been purchased by the co-operative group and the property is now being surveyed and sub-divided. The lots will be of fair-sized proportions but will contain about 7,500 square feet.

Four or five different types of houses, including bungalows, one-and-a-half storey and two storey, both frame and brick, will be constructed. A supervising contractor will be hired to supervise the work done mostly by the co-operative members themselves. Costs are spared through bulk purchase of materials and savings in labor.

Local co-operative members got the idea of building their own homes from co-operative housing schemes operated at Lindsay, Peterborough, Lindsay and other centres. First meetings were held about a year ago and since then members have been studying co-operation techniques and are now ready to proceed.

REPRESENT WIDE RANGE

The local group consists of both veterans and non-veterans representing a wide range of trades and occupations. They are all under 40 years of age and have young families of varying sizes.

But they have one thing in common. That is an urgent need of a home in which they can afford. And they feel this can be accomplished through the co-operative housing scheme.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market made a modest advance today in heavy trade.

Western oils and base metals led the higher trend and industrials gained narrowly. Golds were mixed.

Gunnar Mines leaped to $11.75 and at 1 p. m. was selling at $11.62½, up 41 on the day on turnover of almost 30,000 shares.

Brokers reported rumors that the company might begin production of uranium ore on its Beaverlodge, Sask., property next June or July rather than in the fall as previously scheduled. The company officials said favorable weather conditions had speeded development and production might begin "sooner than previously expected."

Papers and utilities gained but manufacturers were a little easier. Consolidated Paper touched a 1954-55 high of $67 and Algoma Steel was up $1.50 at 1 p. m. Western Grocers was off 25.

Uraniums were mostly lower with small price changes.

Quick Action Prevents Major Fire in Shop

CAMPBELLFORD. —Quick action by Campbellford firemen prevented a major fire on Tuesday night, when an overheated stove set fire to a farm implement shop operated by James Heathcote on First street.

Mr. Heathcote said he had been painting in the building earlier in the evening, and shortly before ten everything was in order. He returned after ten to stencil a name on a tractor that had just been painted, but found his way into the building blocked by flames. He ran to his home a short distance away, and telephoned in an alarm.

Firemen arrived to find flames quickly gaining headway. Extinguishers were used, as well as pressure hose from the tank on the pumper. The burned out wall was chopped away and carried outside.

Damage was limited to the burned partition.

Typical Briton More Interested In Football Pools Than Atomic Or Hydrogen Bombs Says Editor

In England today, the typical man in the street is more interested in the result of the weekly football pools than he is concerned about being blown to bits by atom or hydrogen bombs, Oshawa newspaper editor, M. McIntyre Hood, told a meeting of Eastern Ontario vegetable growers here yesterday.

Speaking at the Eastern Ontario Canning Crops Conference at Belleville Collegiate auditorium, Mr. Hood, who is managing editor of the Oshawa Times-Gazette, said he had found during a trip to England last fall that while the people of England are "tremendously interested in what their leaders are doing to forestall the coming of a third world war, they do not talk about it. They do not worry about it. They go along hoping for the best and filling out their football coupons."

"If they have fear at all," he continued, "it does not involve politics. Rather it is fear of what the United States' fear of Russia might precipitate. They regard the United States as being far too war-minded, and in just one sense they do not wish their diplomats to be too closely tied in with those of Washington."

Turning to the effect of the Communist Party on English political life, Mr. Hood said, "One thing they do not worry about in Britain is the Communist Party. Sure there are Communists in Britain but are very few in number."

Mr. Hood told his audience that if a Communist in the United States behaved as English Communists do on their Hyde Park soap boxes they would be immediately clapped into jail but he added "the British do not bother and pillory their small band of Communists. The British keep a sense of proportion and find it pays best to ignore them. They deny them the public attention and thereby they would nearly love to have," he went on.

NEVER OFF DUTY

On his trip to England and the Continent last fall which he described as a combination vacation and business trip became "the editor of a daily newspaper in these stirring and special days is never off duty." Mr. Hood said he had an opportunity to observe at first-hand the critical political crisis that threatened the Mendes-France government in the debate over re-armament of Germany.

Terming French Premier Mendes-France "the man of the times in France, the man of the year internationally and indeed the typical 'Mr. France,'" Mr. Hood said, "Mendes-France has cut away the barnacles from the French ship of state. Barring unforeseen domestic complications, he should remain in office for some time yet and give France stable government," he predicted.

As for Mendes-France himself, Mr. Hood said he was sure he had had an opportunity to observe the French Premier in action and "he is a man of tremendous forcefulness" who still retains his youthful vigor and has gathered about him a Cabinet of other young men "with new ideas, enterprising and aggressiveness. The old-time diplomacy of Bidault, Schuman and Pleven (former French Premiers) has fled out of the windows of the French foreign office, and

THE DEMOCRACY OF THE FUTURE

The Perth Courier has mailed us a copy of an editorial entitled "The Democracy of the Future" and invited us to comment.

We shall be delighted to do so.

"We believe this is food for serious thought," the Courier says of the editorial. "Do you?" The answer is in the affirmative. Nevertheless we have reservations on many of the points at issue. We shall endeavor, as briefly as possible, to outline the Courier's suggestions and our reactions.

"One of the most ancient, and at the same time most valid, arguments against the democratic form of government is that it assumes every individual is equally qualified to vote, which is of course untrue," says the Courier. "The present system of voting makes it possible for the vote of a learned man, who has devoted much time and energy to the study of politics, to be completely cancelled out by the vote of a veritable ignoramus, who plants his X on the ballot as haphazardly as he might plant a cigar butt on an ash tray.

"The redistribution of voting power by a more equitable system, must be regarded as inevitable if democracy is to outlive alien forms of government," says the Courier. It predicts that in the democracy of the future "every man or woman will be privileged to write exhaustive examinations upon the democratic constitution, upon the structure of government, and upon politics generally. This 'means test' for voters, as it were, would also entail general education. The results of these examinations would determine the number of votes to which each person is entitled by virtue of both his knowledge and of his intelligence. Everyone, regardless of the examinations, would be entitled to one vote, but persons who tried the examinations would be entitled to additional votes, to a maximum of ten, in proportion to standings attained."

The suggestion sounds interesting; but who would draft the examination questions, and who would mark the answers? This system might give rise to some really fancy vote-stealing schemes.

The Courier suggests that examinations could be tried annually, by every citizen "who had not yet earned his full quota of votes."

Our comment: The use of the word "could" indicates that the Courier views writing these examinations as permissible, rather than compulsory, which at first glance would appear a reasonable procedure. Unfortunately many well-informed but easy-going citizens, of tolerant political faiths, would almost certainly neglect to write these examinations, while zealots of every type would race to the examination room, resulting in extremist parties receiving a vote out of all proportion to their real strength amongst the populace. There is also a second point. The Courier's editor says that examinations could be tried annually by every citizen who had not yet earned his full quota of votes. He appears to believe that an understanding of politics is like a bicycle or like learning to swim, that once attained it is never lost. This, unfortunately, is not true. A ten-vote citizen today might be a one-vote man a decade hence. Close study of political conditions would have to be continued throughout the voter's life, with examinations annually.

"Under the new system," continues the Courier, "it would be possible for citizens to cast their votes in any way they see fit; too, they would be able to vote 'against' one or more candidates, as well as 'for' others, thus registering more completely their desires."

Our comment: An excellent idea; but there are some candidates for whom even ten "against" votes per elector seems an inadequate quota.

This system would increase the cost of elections, says the Courier, but there might also be a corresponding reduction in the cost of campaigning, as it would tend to commercialized advertising of candidates as practised today, could never hope to be effective against an enlightened electorate.

Our comment: Any effort to fully inform the electorate of all issues would almost certainly make electioneering more costly rather than less, but it would be worth it if it were successful in its objective.

"Politicians of the future will campaign for support of the most intelligent groups in society—whence most votes per capita may be drawn—rather than for the support of particularly-indifferent majority. Their success, therefore, will depend almost wholly upon their true integrity and competence."

Our comment: A pleasing prospect. But politicians already campaign vigorously among those groups in society where the most effective votes per capita may be drawn. Because of the indefensible variation between the number of voters in rural and urban ridings, a rural resident's vote is often worth two or more votes in an urban riding. Why not correct this defect now?

"There is just one more point to be added to this vision of the future," says the Courier. "It needs flesh and blood, it needs implementing—it needs, in other words, the true citizen spirit, more and more of it."

It needs something else, too, something that the editor of the Courier has in abundance, an active interest in the political business of the nation.

Still, we cannot help wondering whether this division of the electors into different "grades" would change voting results greatly. There is no evidence that the votes cast for any particular political party contain a greater percentage of votes by learned men and fewer votes by ignoramuses, or vice versa, than the votes cast for any other party. If we are told that a man is a Liberal, a Progressive-Conservative, a CCF-er or a Social Crediter, we do not know whether he is a dunce or a genius. It takes all kinds of people to make a world and all kinds of people are also found in a political party—any political party.

There was some of the old time excitement at the skating rink when the Belleville Juniors trimmed the Port Hope team by a score of 5 to 3 in just about as hard and exciting a hockey match as one could wish to see. There was a weak spot in the whole lineup and every man on the team was full of fight and it was that same fighting that enabled them to pull the game their way at the last minute. GRATE FIRE

A grate fire and an easy chair!
With these the little worries skip.
For all the old-time friends are there,
And every burden I can drop.
The crackle of the logs ablaze
Is music as I watch their burn,
As memories of bygone days
In pictured pageantry return.

Again there streams a ship to sea
On which I sailed long years ago
When life seemed all ahead of me
And wider I had still to grow.
Again I leave the home behind
I knew before my years were many
And come to port at last to find
A land to love henceforth as mine.

I pass the statue of the free—
A memory time will never face.
The schools and church come back to me;
The new home that my parents made.
Old days, old friends of long ago
All, all once more are mine to share
When these two restful joys I know:
A grate fire and an easy chair.

Letter to the Editor

Thinks Farm Prices Will Follow U.S. Trend

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I have read that "Business and Financial Forecast for 1955" (by Roger W. Babson), in the news columns of your paper, with much care and the inescapable concern of a farmer who sees his costs mounting while prices have decreased or occasionally increasing—while his revenues tend to decline.

However, there was encouragement in the following picture: "7. Agricultural Equipment. This industry has been suffering from a decline in farming, but should now improve. Government-sponsored planting curtailment and price supports have reduced free supplies, and may make for higher agricultural prices later in 1955."

It seems to me that certainly farmers cannot avoid reflecting U.S. agricultural temperatures, and that if the above forecast factualizes it should help our primary producers to win a more appropriate share of the national income, which has steadily thinned over the last three years by which I've seen the figures; i.e., 13 per cent in '51 and fractionally less than 2 per cent in '53. This trend simply has got to stop, or there is no future ahead!

While writing may I just add that I got light from Mr. Babson's term of "Government" in the above quotation. Those who claim that President Eisenhower has "sold out" to labor and will get along well with a Democratic Congress, should remember the "Government" part of politics and, that I got inspiration from Mr. Babson's following quotation, note: "20. Conclusion. Develop Faith, Meditation, Health and Good Works—with more attention to your family—to create reserves for the days which seem to day-will come. Go to church!"

Gives Warning Pipers Coming

(Christian Science Monitor)

Americans all! Call in your children, tie up your dogs, stuff cotton in your ears! The Scots Guards Band will make a nationwide tour some time next autumn.

One piper and one drummer can drown out everything for a country mile around. Imagine 24 pipers, drummers and dancers to the number of 100, in one encampment, well descend upon a largely unsuspecting people all at once. Not many of the 24 are Australian across the Rocky Mountains from Denver to Los Angeles—but even above the din of a small-city birthday party, which is saying a great deal of noise, the capricious of those dancers; likely each bobbles 10 feet, or persuasive.

The effect on some people had best be left to the imagination and not to the pipers' description. The effect on us—well, exhilaration is the word, perhaps, then enjoyment. We'd call in our children only if we keep them running and busy with the band; tie up our dogs just to prevent their chasing and biting trees with the squirrels; stuff cotton in our ears only to remain ourselves upon joining the dancers and putting on an unseemly exhibition. (We don't know the steps.)

Welcome Scots Guards Band! Let the more timid souls with more sensitive musical ears join Robinson Crusoe in their mass! Well stay and be a man for a that—for ten weeks, anyhow.

Story Behind Empty Grave

(Manchester Guardian)

Lochmaben, Dumfriesshire burgh, has a curiosity—a tombstone in its old churchyard marking a grave in which no one was interred. A remarkable story is told locally of that memorial.

In 1801 the Emperor Paul I of Russia was assassinated, while voicing unfriendly feelings against Britain. Among those suspected of being in the assassination plot was A. Scol, James Andrew Hunter, of Lochmaben. The doctor managed to escape from Russia and made his way home. But even in Lochmaben he felt in danger of being tracked down by ruthless Slavs. Eventually, with the connivance of friends, he had a false report of his "death" published and was solemnly "interred" at a mock funeral in the local churchyard. After the episodes he moved to another part of the country and lived without fear of molestation under an assumed name.

World Helped By Discontent

(Windsor Star)

In 1907 an unruly Irish agitator by the name of James Larkin was accused of being a troublemaker. His divine mission, he bellowed in reply, "is to stir up discontent." He earnestly endeavored to fulfil his mission.

The reading of this incident in Irish brain is brought to mind first reaction was that people who foment discontent are a nuisance and that they should be suppressed, for instance, make a mission of promoting discontent—in free countries, that is, not their own.

Further thought, however, convinced us that Larkin's and the Irishman's contention that discontent can be a "divine mission." Hasn't the progress made in the world been due to men who were discontented with some condition or other? Do many who did stir up discontent about prevailing conditions?

The man who invented the wheel was discontented with carrying things on his back—or on his head. Those who invented the first ship, the first use of the wireless, the telephone and the automobile all were dissatisfied men. They were not satisfied with what they had.

The great discoveries in the medical field were made by men discontented with the ravages of disease. They sought to eliminate suffering and save lives.

The great political and economic reformers were men discontented with inequalities, frustration and poverty. They wished to improve the lot of mankind.

Contented men do not consult the time to experiment or be reformers. Contented men, of all the ages, have been smugly satisfied with things as they were. Believing in the status quo, they have fought with tooth and claw to resist change.

Contented men are not an unworthy attitude, if its inspiration and credit we give to discontent. But when discontent is destructive in its motive and purpose is it a virtue?

Probably only an Irishman could have invented discontent as a divine mission. But there was a bit of truth in Jim Larkin's righteous roar of indignation. He was accused of being only an agitator. He had sought to eliminate poverty and degradation in those pre-World War I days.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In Wagner's overture to Rienzi, the music begins with a single long, sustained note on the trumpet. The note begins softly, swells to the full tone and then fades away. It is one of the most dramatic of musical sounds.

I was talking yesterday with the musician whose job it is to handle the trumpet in that beautiful, sonorous passage.

"For days before the concert," he says, "I practise that opening thing. I get my lip, my embouchure, worked up into perfection. I dream about it. I think about it. I sleep, thinking about it. There, before me I see the huge symphony orchestra, all the fiddles, the basses, the woodwinds, the horns, all staring at me. I feel myself getting nervous and . . .

"It's a nightmare. The day of the concert, I do everything I can to calm myself and assure that note over and over. They are all in perfect. Out it comes, crescendo, fading—perfect!

"All the way downtown to the concert hall, with my trumpet on my knee, I try not to think about it. Backstage, I mingle with the brass, chatting and joking, and I can see that they all are trying not to show how scared they are, too. Then we get the bell and go on stage.

"How I wish I had tried out just a couple of toots before I came on! Instead, I'm all limp, tired, soft—my lips are dry, I lick'em and lick'em. My heart is pounding, I'm breathing heavily as I tightly fondle the trumpet.

"The conductor strides onto the platform. He steps up on the podium. I am in a whirl. It is all I can manage to concentrate to clutch the trumpet. The conductor lifts his baton, puts one hand softly in my mouth, my heart, my brain, my hands. I am about to lift the trumpet to the conductor lowers his baton, turns his back and looks at the audience, to quiet them. I lower the trumpet. The conductor faces us. He taps his baton with the baton. Now it comes! Somebody coughs in the audience. The conductor raises his baton . . .

"Then, anyway, it's a great wonder to me that the first trumpet call in Rienzi ever gets played."

THE HARM CODDLING DOES

Giving instructions for the prevention of chilblain, I let myself go far enough to say that a great many people wear excessive clothing in the winter, for the same reason they wear too much clothing at night, not because they need it for comfort but simply because it is winter.

Dr. Brady

and right there the mollycoddles started clucking at me and I hurriedly changed the subject.

I am reminded of the January day a medical student, name of Brady, boldly walked into a Main Street shoestore in Buffalo and asked the salesman for rubbers. Remember, that was the era of high schools or, as the Canucks over the river called 'em, "boots." The salesman told me that low shoes were in season in the winter time.

In the past half century there has been a perceptible change in the popular belief about "exposure", as evidenced by the inability of low shoes even in the winter, months, and, in communities where youth is served, perennial availability of clothing as light as you wish.

About twenty years ago I pulled here about the ill effects of giving young women about wearing decollete—the warning given by a distinguished Toronto throat specialist. My snide comment hurt the feelings of the good doctor and he wrote me a letter about it, which hurt my feelings —I mean the doctor was so so courteous and so gentle that I wanted to crawl back into the woodwork. Just the same, the notion that very little or scanty clothing or none, if the wearer is comfortable that way, has any effect one way or another on the wearer's immunity or susceptibility to any known disease or illness is ridiculous—and I'm glad you now poor geeks care to call me.

Take frostbite or chilblain, for example. Universal experience, and not just theory, has shown that the best way to prevent it is, wear the least, the lightest clothing or foot cover you find something that will protect the body but at the same time it is porous enough to permit free evaporation of perspiration when company comes and I have to sit in the parlor. socis, ya' earo,

Annual Meeting of Shareholders
The Royal Bank of Canada

1955 to be "Year of Decision" for Canada, Determining Economic Welfare for Years to Come, Declares James Muir

Prosperous Future Lies in Improving Competitive Position, Not in Hiding Behind Trade Barriers. Should be Broadened to Scope of Existing Agencies Provide Long-Term Export Credits.

The conviction that 1955 will be a "year of decision" in which the solution of immediate problems will have a tremendous capacity for good or evil in Canada's future was expressed by James Muir, Chairman and President, at the Annual Meeting of Shareholders of The Royal Bank of Canada. Only a rare combination of statesmanship and good fortune, he declared, could guarantee a proper solution of these problems.

"In a period of obvious inflation or deflation," said Mr. Muir, "it is comparatively easy to decide on the appropriate direction of monetary and fiscal policies when the major problem becomes that of choosing the combination that achieves maximum effectiveness with the least cost and dislocation to the economy. The really difficult decisions must be made at a time like the present when it is still unsafe to guarantee inflation entirely cured and still less so to assume that any serious danger of the moment is the gallopping deflation of the early 1930's.

ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

"The problems posed by the high cost economy become more acute with every increase in the competitive threat of foreign industry to Canada's markets at home and abroad. Pressure for protective measures becomes more insistent as the immediate effects of sharpened competition become apparent. I am still of the opinion that Canada's future lies on the side of improving our competitive position rather than isolating herself behind heightened barriers to trade.

"Increased protection is no answer. The inflationary cure of one dollar's high exchange value is general: it affects all Canadian producers. It imposes a tax on exports and a subsidy on imports. Protection helps only those Canadian producers who must compete in the home market against imports; it does nothing for our exporters except to subject them to a further loss of competitive cost and hence to a further limit on their ability to compete in foreign markets.

LONG-TERM FINANCING

"The noticeable decline in exports since 1952 may also be attributed to a number of interrelated causes: price declines, increased competition from low cost producers abroad, the recovery of industrial plant in war-torn countries, and the like. All these tend to reduce the rapid price relationships in the world market to Canada's disadvantage. But, in addition to the important matter of relative costs a new factor has been injected by Europe's post-war suppliers who are able, with government support, to offer long-term financing to their customers in the world market.

"In view of the importance to Canada, today and in the future, not only of maintaining exports, but of maintaining intact her industrial legacy from wartime expansion, it is fundamentally clear that definite action should now be taken to provide our traders with the credit facilities they lack. These facilities might take various forms but, in general, they could be provided by a corporation, owned partly or wholly by the Government, with the power to discount export paper of longer term than chartered banks can handle. The essential function of such a corporation could indeed be provided very simply by widening the scope and operations of existing government entities now active in assisting trade and industry.

FOREIGHT NEEDED

"We have the nature resources necessary to make our own efforts worth while; and so in the end our progress depends upon the quality and quantity of our human resources. I do not think we need have many doubts about the high quality of our human resources. There remains room for weighted policy in business and government to ensure not only that this high quality is fully and efficiently used, so as to realize fully our capacity to produce and prosper today, but that we achieve the proper degree of investment in the quantity of these resources available for use tomorrow. Above all, we must strive to create the economic environment that will both encourage, and enable the full advantage of, that growth in population and capital without which our standard of living and the great potentialities that lie in our wealth of natural resources.

"How we meet our problems in this year of decision will, as I have said, profoundly affect the direction and rate of Canada's growth. If the decisions we make are in keeping both with the

YEAR OF DECISION

"I believe that 1955 is a 'year of decision' in which our solution of immediate problems will have a tremendous capacity for good or evil in Canada's future," said Mr. Muir.

"During 1954 we have seen not only a defeat of inflationary forces in the economy but the reappearance, at least in a shadowy form, of the deflation-bogey of the 1930's. In January, 1954, it was generally the fact that an inflationary boom had already become, for some sectors of the economy, a thing of the past. Since then we have seen a rise in unemployment and a reduction of some magnitude in certain components of the National Accounts as well as in the Gross National Product itself. We have seen an increased competition in home and foreign markets from the revived industry of the United Kingdom, Western Europe, and Japan."

"Within an overall climate of political and economic stability, our own policy decisions in government and business during 1955 should be taken on account of four interdependent goals of an economic policy directed towards the economic welfare of the community. The first of these is to ensure that our human resources are not neglected in investment policy, that is, we should try to maintain a high and stable level of employment and employment. The second goal is to ensure that our resources, when fully employed, are allocated in such a way as to produce the maximum volume of goods and services and to bring these goods and services to market in the proportions in which consumers want them. The third goal is to ensure that all our policy decisions are consistent with an appropriate rate of economic progress and growth in the economy as a whole."

General Manager Reports Assets Over $3 Billion

T. H. Atkinson, General Manager, in reviewing the Bank's 1954 report, stated that total assets of The Royal Bank of Canada have now passed the three-billion mark. This, he pointed out, was a new record in the history of Canadian banking, and an indication of the bank's pre-eminence in the opinion of the public.

Deposits had also reached record totals, said Mr. Atkinson, pointing out that they now stand at $2,797,344,000. This total have been reasonable to expect a decline in loans to accompany a falling off in the gross national product," he commented, "but although the pace at which loans were expanding has slowed down, total loans have increased to a total of $1,188,022,047."

Mr. Atkinson said that for the first time, the revised Bank Act enables banks to advance money against new residential construction under the National Housing Act. "We had already outstanding in this category amounting to $22,672,393. We will. Actually our total commitment are something over $62,000,000 — the difference between the two amounts to be loaned as construction proceeds. This total represents approximately 40% of the total commitments of the Bank."

ROYAL BANK ABROAD

Mr. Atkinson reported that the bank's foreign branches had made further progress during the year, with most satisfactory results.

"In keeping with our past policy of extending our services to new areas where economic development warrants banking facilities, we have opened one branch outside Cuba during the past year and in the near future will open three more in the Caribbean area. This will bring the total of our foreign branches to 74. These 74 branches mean 74 trained representatives abroad whose services are at the disposal of Canadian businessmen to give them first-hand information on conditions in the respective localities. At a time when Canadian export trade has been declining as a result of increased and intensified competition from other exporting countries these 74 information centres abroad can be of inestimable value to Canadian exporters in expediting them through up-to-date and first-hand knowledge of local market conditions.

"Our foreign service is a source of great pride to us and, we feel, of great pride to the country. In the past 55 years, we have built up an enviable reputation abroad and are very much an integral part of the business life of the communities in where we operate; in fact, in some cases we are considered a local bank rather than a foreign one.

GREAT STAFF TEAM

"Including maintenance staff, technicians, and others with special duties, we employ well in excess of 15,000 people. They are united in a great and resolute team which takes second place to none. It was to this team to the pattern of the post-war period which has seen the emergence annually of increased volume and new business procedures to place increasing demands upon the staff. Again the challenge has been met with skill and devotion.

"We are proud of our staff, not only for what they accomplish at public counters and at their desks but for the services they perform unobtrusively and unsung in the hundreds of communities in which we operate. Every year we have files of heartwarming letters as eloquent testimony that their efforts do not go unappreciated."

realities of the present and with the needs of the greater Canada which can be seen in outline even now, there should be grave no doubts behind and, by making the decisions appropriate to greatness, bring greatness itself within our grasp."

TORONTO (CP)—Women's initiative has been responsible for two new products on the Canadian market.

The first, a housewife came up with a fold-away shopping bag and has turned to manufacturing them herself.

The Canadian Association of Consumers, the energetic group of women who keep an eagle eye on consumer products in Canada, has finally persuaded a dress maker-facturer to produce a high-oven model stove.

Billed by the manufacturers as "the range thousands of women helped design" the stove is on the market now.

The CAC polled housewives on the subject of stoves for two years. Said Mrs. R. W. Buchanan, Toronto, of the CAC national design centre:

"A certain misplaced emphasis on purity of the unbroken line appeared in the design of most contemporary kitchens. Everything in the kitchen had to be a uniform height which left little place for a big oven. Meanwhile housewives were breaking their backs lifting heavy roasts and pans out of low ovens."

The result of a CAC survey showed a majority of housewives in favor of bringing back the old-fashioned high oven. Findings were passed on to the Canadian Institute of Stove and Furnace Manufacturers.

They were reinforced by surveys made by Canadian and American home economics associations.

Finally an eastern Ontario firm designed an experimental model and put it on display at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto in 1952.

Urged by the CAC the stove manufacturers decided on the style for utility and came up with the high-oven model with burners on one side, oven on the other and a warming oven underneath.

Mrs. Phyllis Angel, who came to Montreal from England eight years ago, entered the light manufacturing business last fall because she couldn't find what she wanted in the stores. Her collapsible, wire-meshed shopping bag she decided to make her own.

It proved so useful she thought other women might want one too.

She selected a heavy nylon fabric with a rich sheen, which folded up easily to handkerchief size. The fabric retained its crispness and a snap fastener kept the bag neatly folded when not in use.

Several stores were interested after her sales talk and filed orders. Now she rents a sewing machine and employs one operator because she sews badly herself. She does all the packaging and selling.

Women's Activities

FRONT ROAD UNITED CHURCH—W.A.

The January meeting of the Front Road United church W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. T. J. Brown and Mrs. Clinton Brown.

The president opened the meeting with a cordial welcome, and the reading of a poem on the "New Year".

Business period was conducted. The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Gordon Bradshaw, gave her report and accepted the fees.

Mrs. Glen Bradshaw collected the flower fund and Mrs. John Botting conducted the devotional period using the Scripture. Others taking part were, Mrs. Roy Clazie, Mrs. Glen Bradshaw, Mrs. T. J. Brown, Mrs. Clifford Reid, and Mrs. Mitchell.

The meeting held a contest with Mrs. Mitchell the lucky one.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. G. Clazie and Mrs. Roy Clazie.

Next month's refreshment committee, Mrs. Glen Bradshaw, Mrs. John Botting, Mrs. Clinton Brown, and Mrs. G. Clazie.

After the close of the meeting, the hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

Women's Institute

RYLSTONE. — The January meeting of the Rylstone Women's Institute was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, on Wednesday, with about 20 ladies in attendance. Mrs. Spencer opened the meeting in the usual way.

It was decided to hold the Short Course "Brighten Your Home With Color", on March 1 at the home of Mrs. Gerald Barnum, instead of the regular meeting, for March.

A letter from Mrs. Gordon McPhatter, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, was read, regarding the A.C.W.W. Conference to be held in Ceylon in 1956. It was decided to donate $10 for equipment for Home Demonstration Centres in Ceylon villages.

PROGRAM

Mrs. Gerald Barnum was convenor for the following program: motto, "Ourselves in 1955" by Mrs. Roy Fry; reading, "The Gift that Santa Forgot," by Mrs. Ella Jones; piano solo, "Deep Purple", by Mrs. Clarence Thomson; contest, "Conundrum Tea", by Mrs. Gerald Petherick.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, and the lunch committee, Mrs. Clarence Thomson, Mrs. Carl Reid and Mrs. Gordon Meikleljohn.

Several from here attended the shower for Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Brunton, (nee Evelyn Johnson) in Springbrook Orange Hall on Friday night.

Judging from the tiny bit of sand put on the township roads, there must be an awful shortage of sand, in Rawdon township. It is a shame to think of the school buses having to travel over roads in the state they are in, loaded with children. It's enough to get the bus drivers heart failure. There have been several crashes and near-crashes on the township roads.

Messrs. Wilfred Spencer and Charles Stewart and Mrs. Charlie Stewart spent a few days last week in Toronto, where the men attended the Cheese Producers' meeting.

Mrs. Cora Reid was a recent visitor with Mr. and Mrs. William Logue, Foxboro.

Several of the officers and patrons of Rylstone Cheese and Butter company, visited Warkworth Cheese factory owned by Mr. Doug. Rowe on Monday. This factory was designed and built by Wilfred Spencer, the son of Rylstone, who are at present working on a new cheese factory on the English Line, near Campbellford.

'Crime Comics' Subject of Talk At Catholic W.L.

In a short talk to the members of St. Michael's C.W.L. at their recent last meeting, Mrs. B. E. Burley, president of Kingston Archdiocesan Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, asked for the co-operation of the league in the effort to stop evil crime and horror comics. She said in part "Are parents and teachers aware of the pernicious influence of crime and horror comics on the youth of today? Do you think your child is immune?"

These questions should be considered by every parent. A shocking book entitled, "The Seduction of the Innocent" by Dr. Frederick Wertham, Senior Psychiatrist for the Department of Hospitals, New York City, gives facts and cases covering these answers. Dr. Wertham states that the general opinion deducted after seven years' study is that the bad effect of crime comics exists for all children and may be executed along these lines: By comic incitation for the weak invitation to illiteracy; Crime comic books create an atmosphere of evil and deceit; They create a readiness for temptation; They suggest abnormal criminal techniques; They may tip the scales of maladjustment or delinquency.

Continuing, Mrs. Burley said, "Why not use your influence now? Why not send a letter of protest to the member of parliament for Hastings South, Mr. J. S. Follwell, at Ottawa, expressing disapproval of these comics and their publication and sale on newsstands locally, and Dominion-wide? It is encouraging to note that the local Home and School associations are co-operating in this effort which affects each and every child."

Girl Sororities Meet in Powder Bowl Contest

VANCOUVER (CP)—The girls have taken up football, and sports history will be made here Jan. 26 when two University of British Columbia sororities meet in the Powder Bowl Game.

The teams, Alpha Delta Pi, coached by U.B.C. Thunderbirds halfback Don Spencer, and Gamma Phi Beta, coached by Jack Hutchinson, Vancouver Lions halfback last season, will play hard-tackling All-American football rules.

The reverse twist of the unusual sports affair will be completed with male students taking over as cheerleaders for the girls.

Mrs. Hilary Colleen Kelly, 20-year-old physical education student, will signal strategy for Alpha Delta. Jacquie Trafford, arts student, will quarterback the Gamma.

Equipment and uniforms of the Thunderbirds are being borrowed for the event—all except cleats which the girls find too heavy for their feet. They'll use running shoes instead.

Proceeds will be used to rebuild Brock Hall, student centre gutted by fire last fall.

Color Blindness Almost Asset For TV Work

TORONTO (CP)—Edna Cherry, head of the costume designing department at the CBC television station here, says color blindness is almost an asset for television wardrobe work.

"We are used to translating every color into shades of grey," she said, "that probably we begin to wonder which is real."

But the 31-year-old designer says the TV viewers purchased before the theatre audiences make color coordination important.

HALOS ON SCREEN

Problems of the television wardrobe mistress are varied and involved. Light reflecting or halation is the biggest worry. White is particularly difficult to combine and to counteract it dress shirts are dyed light blue. In a close-up black is apt to halo too.

Cottons are a natural for television wardrobes. They can be substituted for any lightweight material except silk. Both the fabric and color have great versatility under TV lights.

Miss Cherry, formerly a fashion co-ordinator at a Toronto department store, said the same fabric of the same shade can be made to look several different ways just by lighting techniques.

A portable sewing machine, a designer and as many as six assistants are standard backstage equipment for most shows.

Skating Party Enjoyed By Good Companions

On Tuesday evening, the members of the Good Companions met at the Tabernacle United church once again donned their skates and warm flannels to hold their third annual skating party at the Quinte Skating club.

For an hour and a half, they cavorted and by a total lack of casualties it appears that age has no kind effect and the skaters have improved their technique. The non-skaters played games in the club-house lounge.

Excellent refreshments which were heartily received, concluded another successful outdoor event.

French Girl Happy in Life Of Domestic

TORONTO (CP) — Genevieve Engerbeau is a domestic and loves it.

"I'm one of the luckiest domestics in the world," she said, "with the easiest working conditions and the most considerate employers."

Genevieve left her home in Vendee near La Rochelle on the Atlantic coast of France two years ago. A beautician in Vendee, she did not earn nearly as much as the $100 a month plus room and board she gets here.

She spent several months in England before sailing for Montreal, where she was governess to four children until a month ago when she came to work for a Toronto family.

Genevieve has plenty of theories on how people should handle their maids and how domestics should handle employers.

Employers should bring a girl into their home before she starts, explain exactly what she will have to do, discuss free time and pay, tell her what her place will be in the home and her relationship with the children.

They should not call her "the girl" or pry into her private life, read her mail or snoop in her room.

The occasional word of praise works wonders, she said.

Her advice to other domestics: don't be a clock watcher; avoid gossip in general; never argue; listen to orders without answering back, even if you are right.

Petite, attractive Genevieve said non-English speaking workers are often so willing they deserve a raise in salary now and then, despite the language difficulty. The department of labor is helpful with information about government loans to newcomers and average salaries.

To employers with new Canadian help she advises patience and understanding.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

SPECIAL FEATURES FOR WEDDING ANNIVERSARY PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1. Next month my husband and I are to celebrate our Twenty-fifth Wedding Anniversary. We have planned to celebrate this important occasion, with a big "At Home" in our new home, but since it isn't finished we must postpone this and will have a housewarming later for our anniversary party we will give a simple dinner party in a charming old home here that has been converted into a restaurant. There will be about forty guests, relatives and intimate friends. Should there be place cards at such a dinner?

2. Is a wedding cake permissible?

3. If a toast is proposed, should my husband and I stand or remain seated? Am I right in thinking that it is not correct for us to drink this toast with the guests? And if a toast is proposed, should anything be served to this toast?—Natalye.

1. Yes, do have place cards. This means you can do your "home work" in making the seating-diagram, write the cards, and then before the guests arrive, place the cards. Much out your mind, this way. Any one may buy charmingly appropriate place cards for this so-special occasion, perhaps with a wedding design on silver-bordered cards; or write the names in silver ink on plain-bordered cards, and above the name write the dates-for-the-occasion: 1930-1955.

2. And do please plan to have a wedding Anniversary cake . . . this adds a sparklingly festive and charming theme-song to the Anniversary party. Yes, the "bride" and the "groom" cut the first slice together, and this is, as a matter of continuing-to-share. Then, if you wish, you may cut the rest of the cake to be served to the guests who have a friend do this, or a waiter or attendant.

3. Let's not say "if a toast is proposed" to you and your . . .subject, for if you feel there is any possibility one won't be proposed, make arrangements for one, and one prepared to do this. (If the best man at your wedding is to be present at this celebration, ask him to propose a toast; if he isn't, ask some suitable fellow.)

When the toast is proposed to you and your husband, and the guests rise, raise their glasses and drink the toast. You and your husband do not, since you are the toast. When the guests are seated your husband rises, and replies with thanks for you and himself. After this important toast "To the Bride and Groom," then may be other toasts as the guests wish to make them.

INTRODUCING HER STEPFATHER

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My mother has recently remarried. Most of my friends have not met my stepfather. How should I mention the word "stepfather" in my introduction? And should I mention my mother's maiden name, mention your stepfather's name in your introductions. For example, Mrs. Simpson, may I introduce my stepfather, Mr. Lane."

Or, more formally for the appropriate for most occasions, "Miss Clark,' this is my stepfather, Mr. Lane."

SHOULD SHE WRITE HIM FIRST

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I met a young man some time ago, we become good friends, and he was entertained in our home on three or four occasions. Before returning to his home, quite some distance away, he gave me his address and asked me to write to him. He hasn't written to me, and I thought it best not to write to him first. What should I do?—Jean.

"Information"

It's a pretty wise and logical idea, all things considered, that the one going away should be the one to write. And this is more particularly good idea when the one going is a young man. Your friend should write you first, should take it for granted that he would write you first, it was not courtesy for him to ask you to write first.

PROBLEM OF LETTER-SALUTATION

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My husband sent a very handsome present by a couple who live quite a distance from here, in appreciation of an important favour he happened to be able to do for the husband. The card enclosed with the present was a plain white card with "From Mr. and Mrs.—" written across the center. My husband knows the husband very well, both socially and professionally, but he has never met the wife (they have been married less than a year). He calls the husband "Bill," of course, but how would he word the salutation: "Dear Mr. and Mrs.—" (as they signed the card) or how? — A and B.

Since the present sending was doubtless planned by the husband, it would seem natural for your husband to frame the salutation:

"Dear Bill, I wish I could thank you and Mary suitably for the wonderful present you two thoughtful people sent me." Or, if he prefers, he may begin his note with "Dear Mary and Bill," since it is correct for him to call or refer to the wife of such a close friend of his by her first name.

TO INVITE GROOM'S RELATIVES AND FRIENDS TO SHOWER?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am planning a bridal shower. Please advise me if it is correct to invite the relatives and friends of the groom-to-be. I have heard pro and con on this question, and as I am to be matron of honor I want to make sure that I do the right thing.—Lily.

To a large general shower very often the hostess invites the relatives and friends not only of the bride but also the relatives and friends of the groom. If this number would be too many, you may invite only members of the immediate family of the bride's mother and sisters, the groom's mother and sister(s), and only intimate friends. Naturally it all depends on how large a shower you wish to give.

WHEN you teach your children to refuse rides or food from strangers, you must make their natural trust in people, "You might try ex-plaining that they aren't grown-up enough to say "No, thank you" to any treat offered by any one they don't know by name.

SELECTING A FACE POWDER

Says an attendant at a make-up counter: "Women are much too casual when choosing their face powder. Instead of matching it to the skin tone they are likely to pick out a shade that they think is pretty."

Figured out in dollars and cents it costs Miss America plenty to powder her nose. Cosmetics, vanity, salary, and the time it takes to wield the powder pad, she should make an effort to attain the flattering, velvety effect that she seeks so diligently.

Because there are powders of light consistency and others with a heavy base, the powder you use in skin also determines the choice.

Banishing shine is one reason, the basic purpose of face powder but it is also an important and glamorizing part of the art of making up.

The present day fad for pinky-pink shades continues—especially with women who have chucked the pastel pink and lavender tints of offerings range from the faintest tinge of rose to deeper tones that impart a more decided coloring.

When you next visit a make-up bar and study the shades on the array of colors in powder. You will find many that are flattering, rachelle, flesh, mauve, green and delectable golden tones for the sun tan lass to use in the summer and sun-lamp in the winter season.

The true blonde with golden baby blue eyes and apple-blossom skin is usually a devotee of flesh-colored powder, but she should experiment with a creamy rachelle that will really glorify her delicate complexion. With this she can use a bit of taupe close to the eyes and over the lids.

The skins of brunettes vary, but there is a shade of powder for all of them. The attendant at the make-up bar will compound a blend that will give softness and a character to the complexion. The formula will be recorded for duplication later.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THEY'RE RUINING THEIR MOTHER AND FAMILY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am writing to ask you what can be done to make parents realize that their children are destroying the happiness and health of three lovely families. The wife in the case is a relative of mine, and I am deeply concerned over the situation and would like to do what I can to help correct it.

The problem is that, two or three years ago, the husband began stopping off at taverns on his way home at night, and then, a little later, he would not only stop on his way home, but go out alone after dinner. Because she thought it might help if she went with him, his wife began to accompany him, and the upshot was that now they both come home at night so much the worse for liquor that the children have to get along the best they can by themselves.

What do you think I could do? — Mrs. W.

Dear Mrs. W.:

Nothing is more heartbreaking than to have to stand by, helpless, while people for whom you care are hurting themselves and those closest to them. Yet it is also heartbreaking, but very true, that no one can do anything for people unless they themselves realize that they need help, and seek it of their own accord. Talking to people in such a situation as you describe is almost never accomplishes anything but to promote friction.

The one thing I think you might perhaps do, outside of repeated arguing, pleading and scolding, is to wait for some moment when both these people are sufficiently sober, and then tell them that, if they cannot stop drinking and take care of their children properly, you will have to take the matter up with some family welfare organization. Tell them that children who are neglected and mistreated by their parents lose the responsibility of others, and that if the neglect and mistreatment continues the children can be taken away from them.

Having given this warning, say nothing more: befriend the children as much as you can, and if the situation does not improve, go to your local family welfare agency and ask them to take care. They may be able to do more than you can to bring these people to their senses, and if this cannot be accomplished, they will take whatever steps are necessary.

HER PARENTS DON'T LIKE HER BOY FRIEND

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About a month ago, I was going with a boy who is very fine, and I like him even better now.

The trouble is, though, that my parents are very fond of the boy in the army and don't want me to go with Bob. Whenever he comes around, they are very rude to him. I'm not interested in the boy in the army, and I cannot see why my parents won't let me go with Bob.

On the other hand, I do love Bob, and I don't want to lose him, but it is unbearable to hear the way my parents go on. I've always taken their advice and my intentions until now. I am 18 years old.

—J.E.W.

Dear J.E.W.:

Let me ask you this: Don't you think you are rushing things when you say that you "love" Bob after knowing him for a short time? You say that you were going with a boy in the army "about a month ago" and then you met Bob. So you can't have known this second boy more than a few weeks. Don't go overboard in such a hurry.

I agree that your parents' attitude toward Bob is puzzling and, perhaps, hardly fair. But it may be that they feel you are going too fast in your feeling for him and don't approve of that.

Try talking to them about it in a sensible and mature way, telling them that you are certainly not "in love" with anyone yet, but that you enjoy Bob's company as a lot of friends so you could learn to make wise judgments in picking them. If they see you are going to be reasonable about things, they may change their attitude.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I believe that some months ago you ran an article in your cookery column on the various types of fillings that are suitable to use when the sandwiches are to be made beforehand and frozen. I would be most grateful if you would send me this as I wish to make up sandwiches in advance for a large party.—C. S., B.

ANSWER:

I will give you the instructions I have from several different freezer manufacturers on freezing sandwiches. One tells us to "Spread day old bread generously with butter. Use meat, cheese or fish fillings. Package individually in moisture-vapor-proof wrappers. Storage time is 2 to 3 months." Another says "Chill sandwich fillings thoroughly before spreading on generously buttered bread. Thick layer of butter prevents filling from soaking the bread. Use fillings sparingly and avoid use of mayonnaise, jelly, and egg whites—any kind of which are usually unsatisfactory after freezing. Package sandwiches tightly in freezer bags, using moisture-vaporproof wrappers. Storage time is 2 to 3 months." Sandwiches may be placed in lunch boxes while frozen. They will be thawed by lunch time, but still cool and fresh. Sandwich fillings that freeze best are those made of sliced cooked meat or fowl, meat fish, cheese with relish or lettuce, or green pepper—or celery or other crisp salad plants that will be added when they are too soft to be appetizing.

LETTER:

Could I draw your attention to a dish which is good for the family at but a luxury—Rose's bread.

We buy a pig's head. . . Its we buy a cut in half, one mid-line . . . we cook it in halves not whole, brains are taken out separately. . . wash half-head . . . cover with salted and pepped cold water and bring to boil; . . . for gently 25 minutes to the pound, when flesh will be firm but not falling from bones . . . remove from water . . . it is now ready for final stage or may be put by 24 hours. . . when ready score the skin longitudinally, about ½ inch wide . . . place on baking dish face side up. . . and place under broiler a few inches below heating element. . . prop it with empty can so face side is near with element and will cook evenly. . . this cooking will take 20 minutes . . . at the end the flesh and cracklings are a beautiful combination of fine and crisp . . . which may be served in shallow slices by carving down the lines previously scored. . . It normally produces 4 enormous servings from one head—2 for large but less gluttonous servings. The other half-head we make into what is known as brawn in Australia. . . hers call it head-cheese. . . the brains usually for myself for Saturday supper. . . altogether the head provides 10 or 4 more large servings of better than average food. . .by the way the Canadian government has most pork with the cracklings on? . . .I would as soon think of turning my nose up at it. . . .thanks for your column. This family definitely enjoys your helpful comments.—H. D. P.

ANSWER:

We could do with a great many more like you H.D.P. It tickles the fancy and when small fry see it cooks and good providers write to me through this column, I know that that most butchers and in the large markets trim the rind from the fresh pork cuts to supply lay demand. It is only buyers and cooks like you who know about something about butchering that know enough to ask for pigs' heads and how to deal with rind etc. Thank you for being so painstaking with your description of how to deal with head. There are plenty of readers in this audience who will benefit by it. Ms. too.

Woman Senator Opposes Retirement at 65

OTTAWA (CP) — A 56-year-old woman senator says it is not right to retire people arbitrarily at the age of 65 and she wants the government to give a lead in changing things.

Senator Nancy Hodges (L—British Columbia) on Wednesday told the Senate that it is "very bad psychologically to tell people of 60 or 65 years of age that they are of no further use on the labor market."

Despite the fact science is predicting a longer life span, she said, the thinking of business, industry and the government itself seems to be: "Too old at 45; get out at 65."

TRAGIC PLIGHT

This compulsory retirement left many in tragic circumstances. On the west coast many of the unemployed were over 65.

Senator Hodges, one of five women members of the Upper Chamber, said she felt compulsory retirement quite wrong.

"We shall have to change our thinking altogether, and I think the government should start to give a lead in that direction."

Her speech, made in moving the address in reply to the speech from the throne, was briefly by a large audience of women in the public galleries and by Liberals Minister Paul Martin who tripped the Commons to take it in. It marked the opening of the throne speech debate in the Senate.

CRITICAL OF QUEBEC

Senator L. D. Tremblay (L—Quebec), a member of the Senate, was critical of what he termed the indifference of Quebec province to federal housing legislation providing for slum clearance.

Senator Tremblay, a former Speaker of the British Columbia legislature and the union in Commonwealth parliamentary history to hold such an office, welcomed forward-looking legislation to provide larger grants to municipalities with large non-taxable federal properties within their boundaries.

She criticized a deal between B.C.'s Social Credit government and the Canadian Pacific Railway United States for a 50-year agreement on sale of Columbia river power to Kaiser. She welcomed forecast federal legislation to block this move.

Inescapable Question

Sunday School Lesson:

By ROY L. SMITH

There are a very great many matters about which one does not need to have an opinion, there are many about which one does not need to make up his mind, ten of thousands of persons about whom one does not need to have any exact information.

There is one question only, however, of whom every living person must have an opinion—does he have an opinion, personal necessity for that opinion being inescapable.

That person is Jesus Christ!

And if anyone insists that he is under no necessity to form an opinion, of forming a judgment, then let it be said that his indifference is in itself an opinion.

CLAIMS MADE FOR JESUS

Throughout the world in Jesus' day there was an entertainment more or less vague in some areas, that some miracle person—some wonder-worker—was to arise and lead the race to some new, high, and exalted destiny.

The Uniform Sunday school lesson for January 16 is entitled: "Christ, the Son of the Living God," Matt. 16:13-20; John 1:11-14; 3:17-18; 14:8-14; 17:1-5; Philippians 2:5-11; Colossians 1:15-20; Hebrews 1:1-4.

Among the Jews there was a dominating doctrine which believed that the new leader of the race was to be a Jew, and that the Jews were to be the chosen people through whom he would work. To Him they gave the name "Messiah", which has come down to us in its Greek equivalent, Christos, which has been carried over into our English Bible as Christ.

As Jesus preached, taught, and ministered to the people of His day the judgment began to grow that He was the long-promised Messiah, and every expectancy grew up about Him, so much so that a tidal wave of opinion began to sweep the people shouting "The Messiah has come, and His Name is Jesus."

In the meantime Jesus aimed at a complete revelation of His Father, and of Himself. He played the role of a revolutionary, though He was far from being a mere "seditionist." Rather, He aimed at a reconstruction of the whole pattern of life. Because the word "Messiah" represented the highest hope and the most exalted faith of the people He accepted the title on occasion, but evidently with more reluctance.

His concept of His life and destiny was so far in advance of the popular concept of the Messiah that He seems at times to avoid Messianic claims. Instead, He declared that He was an accredited Spokesman for God, and that He had been commissioned by the Almighty to deliver living judgments to men, as such He claimed final authority. His word could not be questioned by man.

WE MUST MAKE UP OUR MIND

It is rather interesting to note that Jesus was far more concerned about men's attitude toward the thing He taught than He was about their attitude toward Him, Himself. His interest in His message was supreme; His interest in Himself was incidental. He therefore undertook to compel men to decide what they were going to do about the things He said, rather than force them to believe something about Himself.

He was the living center of the Christian faith. Let my man commit himself to the cause of Christ and he will, sooner or later, come around to a proper opinion concerning the nature of Christ.

Quebec Junior League To Be Cradle Of Future National League Stars

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

CORNWALL TONIGHT!

The Cornwall Colts, who their management claims, are deserving of a better box-office fate at the hands of the home-town fans and who have threatened to toss in the group sponge unless more support is forthcoming, will be the guests of the Memos in Memorial Arena tonight.

The joust looms up as the battle of the season, or at least one of them for the Memos, as they dropped a heart-breaker to the unsurging Whitby Wrens Wednesday night, a setback that relegated them to fourth spot on the group ladder. Down 5-1 going into the third period, three of the goals being deflected shots off their own players, the Bouchermen staged a courageous comeback against Gagnon, Attersley and company and almost snatched victory out of defeat.

They fired home four goals against the tiring Wrens in that blistering last-chapter comeback, but it was too little and too late. Time ran out and the "Birds" hoisted themselves into second place, since the win-starved Peles handed the near-deflated Goodfellows of Kingston a 6-1 shellacking on Perdue's pond.

It was the seventh loss in ten starts for the not-so-Goodies, and the team that set the group aflame with its early-season performance had better hike its britches, but soon, or they might do their playoff puck-chasing from the sidelines.

Our estimable confrere down Kingston way, who's record as a "non-picker" in predictions stakes, could be a lot better, has again changed his selection of the four clubs which will enter the playoffs. Mr. Rodden's latest bulletin-board revels Cornwall, Kingston, Belleville and Whitby as the squads most likely to succeed.

As is the general custom in this department, we cannot agree. From the last ten-game performances of his beloved Goodyears, we assume the genial selector chose Kingston purely from nostalgic tendencies. The other three, we agree, were named from general performances.

As prone as we are to indulge in limit-crawling calisthenics, we believe it is a trifle too early to come out with any flat-footed predictions as to what clubs will finish in the charmed circle.

In a group that is as uncertain as a Christmas gift, it is foolhardy to name certain teams, when one can be astride the top rung one night then find itself looking up at the rest of the pack the following evening.

Then there is the "slump" bugbear, which can gremlin any club in the group. Look at the Goodyears at the present moment. Every team in the league has experienced the nefarious activities of the intangible little cuss, and he is liable to strike anywhere at any time.

Right now the firefly of the loop is the Whitby squad, which racked up its seventh straight victory the other night against our side. And don't sell this Brockville club short. The Magedonas, who whipped Clinton twice in their last two starts, are in fifth spot, just five points in arrears of the Memos. They should not, by any stretch of the imagination, be excluded from the ranks of the play-off eligibles.

Meanwhile, the Peles with 15 points and 21 games to play, have a mathematical chance of getting home free while the pestiferous Wrens of Belleville also have the unscanny faculty of upsetting the victory apple-cart of all and sundry when it is least expected.

No, sirree! We are going to play turtle and leave the upper part of the vertebrae in seclusion. It is still anybody's baby, and think carefully, if better still, wait a while, before placing any of your long green on the four clubs you fancy for the playoffs.

The game tonight is a must for the Memos. A victory will ease them into a second-place tie with the surushing Wrens, and Mr. Gagnon to fourth place, while another win for the Wrens will give them half-interest in the top rung of the ladder with Cornwall Colts.

Meanwhile, Brockville takes on the Petes in the Littlock City and a win for the down-casters will put them just three points behind Memos if the latter bow to defeat.

The Colts are mighty jealous of that top position and will be in no mood to trifle. Each team has two decisions over the other, and if memory serves us correctly the 2-1 victory of the Memos over the Colts in their last meeting here was a masterpiece of senior "B" hockey. You can bet your income tax rebate tonight's tilt will be one for the books, with both squads going all out for that elusive will-o-the-wisp victory.

MAYBE NOT SO GOOD!

The Trenton Town hockey entry in the Trent Valley Hockey League, it stated, think the Pirate and scoring leaders are not as good as they appear. The last time the teams met, the Ox Pointers won 8-4, but Trenton was not convinced. So the teams go at it again tonight in Frankford, starting at 8.15. Feelings are running high between these teams and tonight's clash should be a thriller.

All Clubs Except NY Rangers Will Enter Team In Circuit In Newest Development Move

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—A new move for development of young hockey players, with the Quebec Junior Hockey League as the cradle of future National Hockey League stars, was announced Thursday by managing director Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens.

All clubs in the NHL except New York Rangers have given assurances they will put teams "in our own junior competition next year," said Selke.

Selke said no word had been received from Rangers about placing a junior team in the QJHL. He indicated that the have-not clubs find problems of their own making then blame Montreal, Toronto and Detroit instead of getting busy seriously on developing their players.

It isn't a question of money buying players these days, said Selke, and it can't be expected that clubs which have developed building stars should turn them over to other clubs who come begging.

Later on, LEAGUON

He said there were reports that strength—"if there is such a thing"—in the Quebec loop is underlined, but he had made it plain at the Toronto meeting, where the Hanlan Cup was presented, that Eddie Litzenberger, prize Montreal rookie of 1954, "never would give up this year.

"You have heard reports of fan-fly links between Selke, Chicago and New York," he said. "It would appear that the New York needs help to let Detroit come across, although it must be said Detroit has a great set-up even Metro Prystal to Chicago."

Selke said he also had personal calls telling him he was "stupid" for letting Litzenberger go, but he saw no point in offering Chicago a "bum" and handed over his top rookie.

He then told of the agreement of other NHL clubs to place junior teams in the QJHL and said: "The next great group of hockey players will be found in Montreal. There will be stars from other places, but the biggest will be from Quebec."

Of the Rangers' present plight, he said injuries had hurt the club but it lacks reserves.

Selke said he brought highly of Litzenberger, but in helping the Hawks he had let the youngster go at the same time Toronto Maple Leafs had sent along Harry Watson.

Gordie Howe of Detroit collected a pair of assists as the Red Wings walloped Boston 4-0 Thursday night and moved into a tie with Bill Gadsby of the National Hockey League individual scoring race.

Howe's total of 36 points is still 12 behind Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal, who sets the pace with 42. The Canadiens sharpshooter also leads in goals with 27.

Jean Beliveau of the Habs holds down second place with 46 points, followed by Maurice Richard of Montreal with 39. Richard picked up an assist Thursday night without donning his skates. NHL headquarters announced that a mix-up in the relay of scoring statistics from the game between Montreal and New York deprived Richard of an assist.

Bert Olmstead of Montreal is in fourth place with 37 points. Howe and Ken Mosdell of Montreal are next in line with 36 points apiece.

Dandurand Says Argos Action Is 'Strange'

MONTREAL (CP)—Leo Dandurand, president of Montreal Alouettes, said Thursday he thought it "strange" that Toronto Argos would not be represented at an informal meeting or caucus gathering of the Big Four Football League here today.

The Big Four's annual meeting will be held the following day.

Dandurand said that as host club for the formal meeting, Alouettes asked the others to gather Friday for general discussion "because we thought it important that opinions be heard" on subjects that will be dealt with formally Saturday.

Tigers-Argos Wirkowski Deal False, Says Prexy

TORONTO (CP)—Jake Gaudaur, president of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Thursday denied a report that he is about to make a trade with Toronto Argonauts for their star quarterback Nobby Wirkowski.

He was commenting on a Montreal story which said coach Carl Voyles of the Tiger-Cats had assigns on Wirkowski and that the deal might go through in the form of trading rights.

"That report is false," Gaudaur said. "I can't deny that we have had talks with the Argos about some of the players they don't want."

The Montreal story suggested Hamilton would be willing to trade playing rights to Bob Celeri of the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, voted the most valuable player in the Ontario Rugby Football Union last season, for Wirkowski.

Gaudaur made no comment on the Celeri aspect.

Won't Recognise Canuck Claim Of 70-Pound Muskie

NEW YORK (CP)—Field and Stream magazine said Thursday it has refused recognition to a Port Arthur fisherman's claim of a world record muskellunge catch.

Bob Mick reported catching a muskie weighing 70½ pounds, compared with the existing record of 69 pounds, 11 ounces, set in 1940.

The magazine, which compiles world fishing records, gave no reason for disallowing Malo's claim.

Expect DiMaggio To Enter Hall of Fame

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The greatest all-around baseball player these eyes ever have fastened upon, Joseph Paul DiMaggio, appears certain to be voted into the game's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown in the annual balloting among members of the Baseball Writers' Association now in progress.

The tall, sometimes morose figure who wrote his name indelibly into the books as a member of New York Yankees from 1936 through 1951 finished a strong fourth in the voting a year ago, when R a b i t t Marandville, Bill Dickey and Bill Terry were elected to the shrine. He scarcely can fail to go in by a whopping plurality this time.

Actually, a good centrefielder should have joined the immortals last year, for he was a mightier man with the stick than three who were named, but sentiment apparently forced him to wait his turn. Recalling that DiMaggio was a cinch to reach the hall eventually, a number of baseball writers evidently preferred to make sure their old idols got in before they could be forgotten.

ELIGIBLE DESPITE RULE

The only reason we can think of besides sentiment which could have caused more than one out of four diamond historians to pass over the all-around star of the generation is that they didn't realize Joltin' Joe had been out of uniform long enough to be eligible.

Originally, a player needed to be connected with baseball for 10 years to be a candidate for Cooperstown. But if a player was in the game called it a career, a new rule was invoked saying a player had to be out of baseball five years to be given shrine material. There was, however, a proviso which some writers might have overlooked.

This stipulated that, in the event a player had received at least 100 votes in an election prior to enactment of the five-year rule, he would remain a live candidate. DiMaggio had exceeded this mild requirement by election before the rule was passed, and so was not affected by it.

Shawinigan Adds To Quebec Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shawinigan Falls Cataracts continued their march toward the Quebec Senior Hockey League championship Thursday night by edging the Chicoutimi Sagueneens 3-1 in a hockey battle at Shawinigan Falls before 3,000 fans.

All the game's scoring came in the last period, with Erwin Grosse and Claude Provost tallying for Shawinigan Falls, and Jacques Locas for Chicoutimi.

The victory enabled Cataracts to stay seven points ahead of Montreal Royals, who whipped Quebecfield Rivers 6-2 in Montreal before a crowd of 1,800. Ike Hildebrand and Earl Rivette scored two goals apiece each. Aldo Guindon and Lulu Denis added the others. Veteran Kitoute Joanisse and Willie Lacerte accounted for the Valleyfield scoring.

The losers left Chicoutimi and Valleyfield deadlocked in the league basement.

Wings Hang Collar On Bruins For Third Straight Triumph; Narrow Margin to Two Points

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A traffic jam is in the making in the National Hockey League and it will take more than a cop on the corner to keep Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings from brushing fenders in the No. 1 lane come Saturday night.

Canadiens have the inside track at the moment, but Red Wings have narrowed the gap in the last week with a powerful spurt.

Bill Dineen fired up the Wings for a 4-0 victory Thursday night over Boston Bruins, sending the defending champions within two points of first-place Montreal.

Dineen, a 22-year-old sophomore who had been in a scoring slump, counted twice—his sixth and seventh goals of the season—to lead Wings' third straight triumph before a home-town crowd of 9,495.

Goalie Terry Sawchuk poured water in the Bruins' fuel tank and came up with his eighth shutout of the campaign, handling 17 shots in the process.

Johnny Wilson and Marcel Bonin, Detroit's fleet Frenchmen, handled the rest of the Detroit scoring as the Wings outshot the Bruins with their first loss in 1955. Boston had gone through seven straight victories before it netted Sawchuk's first shutout of the season.

Wilson opened the scoring for Detroit in the first period with a quick kill of Gordie Howe's perfect breakaway pass. Bonin made it 2-0 in the second period and Wilson counted midway in the second and added the third.

The win was Detroit's third in the last week, compared with Canadiens' win and tie in two games during the same period. That brought about a big change in the standings. Canadiens held a 54-49 edge in the points column a week ago today, now they're two points ahead with 57.

Tonight all but New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks, who meet at Chicago, are idle. Saturday night Boston is at Toronto and Detroit at Montreal.

The Montreal encounter is the big one. Canadiens can stay on top with a win or a draw. A loss and there's a traffic jam.

Bad Propaganda Handed Yanks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Football players in the United States are "continually handed derogatory propaganda" about Canadian football, says Blithick A. Pollard of the British Columbia Lions.

Pollard, back from a visit to his wife's home in Philadelphia, said in an interview Thursday players in the U.S. are being told Canadian teams often fail to pay their players and are guilty of other "calumnies." He did not elaborate.

American Pole-Vault Parson Under Investigation By AAU

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Richards classed as one of the United States' sure-fire winners in the 1956 Olympics, was under investigation by the Amateur Athletic Union today but he said he would abide by any decision the AAU made in order to preserve his amateur status.

Richards, No. 1 U.S. pole vaulter got in difficulty after the "This Is Your Life" television program Wednesday night. At the end of the program, he was given several gifts, including a dummy set of keys to an automobile.

AAU officials immediately became alarmed and Dan Ferris, the secretary-treasurer of the organization, said he notified Larry Houston, chairman of the rules committee of the Southern Pacific AAU.

The surprised Richards, pastor of the Church of the Brethren in Long Beach, Calif., was brought right in the middle.

"I'm sorry the AAU says I'll be happy to comply," he said. "I certainly want to compete in the 1956 Olympics."

Richards, when he appeared at London Pre program, did not know it would be the story of his life. At the end, the first question he asked was: Would his gifts endanger his amateur standing?

He was assured that his appearance had been okayed by no official of the Southern Pacific AAU. Apparently this was a misunderstanding.

Ferris said he did not want to pre-judge the case because it could be bounced back to him for a ruling.

The affair was somewhat similar to the troubles of recent years over the presentation of a car to skating champion Barbara Ann Scott and the appearance on a commercial TV show of fourminute miler Roger Bannister.

Miss Scott was forced to return a car given to her by the people of Ottawa after she had won the world figure-skating championship. Bannister was given by the AAU to appear on TV after he broke the four-minute mile barrier. It was ruled that he might jeopardize his amateur standing by appearing on a commercial program, even though he received no monetary or other award. He didn't make the appearance and flew back to England.

Habs, Rangers May Trade Moore, Prentice

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Post said Thursday a deal between Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks, sending Montreal forward Dickie Moore to New York in exchange for Ranger winger Dean Prentice, "was reported about to be completed today."

A Ranger spokesman said late Thursday there had been no deal between the two National Hockey League clubs.

The Rangers, who have lost topscorer Wally Hergesheimer for the season and currently also have Ron Murphy out with injuries, have been interested in Moore for some time. The Post says there have been reports from Montreal that the speed-ful leftwinger has been at odds with Canadien coach Dick Irvin.

In Montreal, managing director Frank Selke of Canadiens said "nobody offered me any player" from Dickie Moore.

Selke said that after he announced reserve price was on the trading block, manager Frank Boucher of Rangers telephoned him and said he thought he had no one good enough who might be considered except Dean Prentice.

Selke said he told Boucher that Lewicki had been playing so well "you don't have anything but keep him."

Boucher said Dean Prentice and Ron Murphy were hardly good enough. I said nothing."

The next day Gen. J. R. Kilpatrick, Rangers president, called to say he couldn't offer players but would pay cash for Moore, said Selke.

"I told him we couldn't play with cash."

Speckled Trout Season Opens On April 30

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario speckled trout fishing season will open April 30 this year because May 1, the usual opening date, falls on a Sunday, Dr. W. J. K. Harkness, chief of the fish and wildlife division of the lands and forests department, said Thursday. Similarly, the pickerel season will open May 14 instead of the usual May 15 which this year is a Sunday.

Dr. Harkness said that when the usual opening date for the speckled trout or pickerel fishing season falls on a Sunday or Monday, the opening is moved ahead to the previous Saturday.

However, he added, this rule does not apply to the bass and muskinonge season which always open July 1, because the department wishes to give these species maximum protection right up to July 1.

Big Mike Garcia Signs With Tribe

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pitcher Mike Garcia Thursday became the first of the Cleveland Indians' pitchers" to sign for 1955, and the Tribe hired Steve O'Neill as pilot to general manager Hank Greenberg.

A 194 record last year for Garcia was an improvement on his 16-9 of the year before, and he was the league leader in earned-run average with 2.64 in 259 innings. While no figures were given it was believed Garcia's 1955 contract was about equal to his 1954 one under which he earned an estimated $28,000.

In appointing O'Neill as aide, Greenberg got a veteran whose experience in the major leagues goes back through 44 years of catching and managing.

Royals Defeat Cougars 6-4

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) New Westminster Royals moved back into a tie for second place in the Western Hockey League here Thursday night by defeating Victoria Cougars 6-4 before 1,200 fans.

Ollie Dornbrook led the New Westminster attack with a hat-trick. The other goals went to Gayle Fielder, Gord Fashoway and Blinky Beyer.

Writers Name "Bobo" Olson Fighter of Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Middleweight champion Carl (Bobo) Olson received the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque as "Fighter of the Year" for 1954 Thursday night at the annual dinner of the New York Boxing Writers Association.

The Neil award is named in memory of the former Associated Press boxing writer who was killed while covering the civil war in Spain.

James J. Braddock, former heavyweight king who has retained an interest in the sport by working with amateur boxers, accepted the James J. Walker Memorial Plaque for "long and meritorious service."

Frankie Ruff, 22-year-old unbeaten New York lightweight, was named with the "rookie of the year" award.

Olson, 26, arrived from Cleveland where he had watched Rocky Castellani defeat Holly Mims Wednesday night in a bout designed to produce one of his next contenders. Olson defended three times in '54 against Kid Gavilan, Castellani and Pierre Langlois.

TV Following Example of Stage By Putting More Shows on Road

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Television is following the example of the Broadway stage and putting more of its shows on the road.

The purpose is (1) to enable fans in other parts of the country to see Steve Allen, Dave Garroway, Arlene Francis and other such TV stars in person, and (2) to get away from the predominance of New York and Hollywood locales on the shows.

The two-week hunt to Chicago and San Francisco by Miss Francis with the NBC "Home" show and the one-week junket of Garroway and Allen to Miami Beach with NBC's "Today" and "Tonight" programs are among current examples.

Horace Heidt's new show on NBC-TV will come from Hollywood the first week in February and Patti Page from New York to headline the cast.

"This Is Your Life," regularly telecast from Hollywood except for an occasional trip to New York, will be from Chicago Jan. 26.

Somewhat in the category of carrying coals to Newcastle, ABC's "Breakfast Club" will go from its Chicago base to Hollywood for a week starting Jan. 24 and CBS' "Big Top" will travel from its Philadelphia headquarters to New York for its July 13 colorcast.

TRUCKS CAMERAS TOUR

"I Love Lucy" is following the trend after a fashion. With the mythical locale being shifted from New York to Hollywood where it has been filmed all along, background movies are being made by a crew actually driving from New York to the Pacific coast. They will be shown in the next three episodes while Lucy and Ricky make their mythical auto trip across the country.

When a live program moves away from New York or Hollywood for a telecast its arrival in the city of origination attracts more attention in that area than it would receive from a year of regular telecasts on home grounds. As an NBC spokesman said, people of that city who see the stars in person become much more interested in subsequent shows, a point not lost on either the network or the sponsor.

Giants Sign 15 Players

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Giants Thursday reported two more players had returned their signed contracts, bringing the number in the fold to 15.

Southpaw pitchers John (Windy) McCall and rookie Pete Burnside are the latest pact signers. McCall had a 3-3 record in 1954, appearing as a relief pitcher.

Burnside, a Dartmouth College graduate, came out of the service last year to hang up a 9-4 record at Nashville.

Adcock Signs

No salary terms were announced but it was reliably reported that he signed for between $20,000 and $25,000.

"No," she replied. "If I quit pictures tomorrow I'd have to scrub floors to support my children."

"Huh?"

"It's true — and don't think I don't know how to scrub floors, because I do.

"Lots of people have the idea I'm loaded because I have been in pictures many years. Sure I collected a salary in the 'old days'—$175 a week. When the studio decided to give me a big raise, whammo—then came the big taxes."

So there you have the story of Joan Crawford, the most expert of the movie stars. She acts to live, but most of all she lives to act. There is no question about that, who has made it last so well so long.

Joan Crawford Takes Beating To Follow Career She Loves

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It was bitterly cold. Joan Crawford stood in the frigid night air in a flimsy evening gown with bare shoulders.

On one of the coldest nights of the year, the movie queen was performing outdoor scenes for her latest picture, "Female on the Beach." It was a tense scene with Jeff Chandler, who grabbed her, got slapped, then crushed her in his arms.

It was approaching midnight when a dinner break was called and the set workers rushed for the dining tent. Together with a half-dozen of her friends, I followed Joan to her trailer dressing room.

BLACK AND BLUE

Joan lifted her arms and showed what the violent love-making had done to her. She was covered with black and blue bruises. She had also lost most of the nail off one of her fingers and she was shivering from the cold. It seemed like a good time to explore the drive that has made Joan Crawford the epitome of the movie star.

"Why do you work so hard?" I asked.

"Why?" she replied as she wiped her makeup off with oil. "Because there is nothing in the world I would rather do. Call this work? Making pictures is the greatest pleasure in the world to me. I'd die if I didn't have them to do.

"When I am between pictures, it's pure hell. I'm always trying to find things to do. When I go out to dinner I'm bored unless I have the next day's shooting to think about.

"I think I really start living the moment I step into a movie set."

WOULD SCRUB FLOORS

I hazarded a guess that she didn't have to continue working. Weren't there annuities and real estate here and there to combat

European Champ Favored Over Glen Flanagan

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Duilio Loi, European lightweight champion in pursuit of Jimmy Carter's world title, makes his American ring debut tonight and is a 2-1 favorite to defeat rough, aggressive Glen Flanagan of St. Paul.

The handsome Loi, rated as the No. 2 lightweight contender behind Carter by Ring Magazine, has an impressive record of 59 victories, three draws and only one defeat in European competition. He has been made a 2-1 favorite over Flanagan in the televised fight.

Loi, in full accord with the oddsmakers, predicted he would finish Flanagan in five rounds. Flanagan was confident, too, declaring "I'll chase the guy out of the ring" before the sixth round.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for

SATURDAY, JANUARY 15, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Rather mild tendencies. If you can indulge in relaxation during this quiet period to rebuild energy for strenuous days ahead, do so. You energetic folks could burn out resources if not careful.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Today's aspects suggest that you attend the truly urgent things first. You should have good results at the end of the day if you function to the best of your ability. Comfort will come from such success.

May 21 to June 21 ((Gemini) — Several aspects stress avoiding strain, overactivity, taking on more than you should. Stop to relax at the right time; enjoy homey interests; visit with friends, relatives, enjoy children.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — "Where there's a will there's a way" is an excellent motto to think about today. Some may not need it; know whether you do. Be honest with yourself in all things; respect others' good sense.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — This day may not be propitious for new projects or quick money gains. Hints are that a realistic enough for you to undertake something new of worth, or to follow your special talents.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — No really unfavorable aspects today. Always consider yourself lucky and start the day on a happy note. New ideas, original thoughts should be fostered; remember, do tasks cheerfully.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Your Venus and other planets radiate encouragement. Auspicious rays for activities and interests close to heart and home. Spread cheer; aid the lonely, needy.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Your real gain today may come from hidden and obscure sources and benefits. Watch, as on guard don't force; neither take things for granted. Work hard, be patient and achieve.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Fairly generous influences during the early hours. Devote yourself to good causes, people, and don't forget your own. Take things philosophically.

December 24 to January 21 (Capricorn) — The saying is, 'everything comes to him who waits." But don't wait too long! Recall, too, "time waits for no man." That's the type day it is. Make the right choice and give the best you have.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Matters concerning home, family and intimate affairs should be of strong concern now. Jewelers, florists, handling food and merchandising should show better gains than usual.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — The overall planetary outlook is good. Take care of personal matters with confidence; don't hesitate to stand up for what's right. Others will respect your grit and co-operate.

YOU BORN TODAY are a reasoner, usually practical, sound in judgment, especially regarding where money or work matters are concerned. You are determined, sometimes on the stubborn side. Able to carry on independently of others, you can nevertheless do well with the right type of partner. You have good business sense. Always aim to control desires. You are seldom discouraged, even in difficult situations. You make excellent builders, designers, real estate brokers. Have sense, too; you will appreciate it.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma is still looking for a button like the one she lost off her camel hair coat, and I was down town with her today and she stopped at the notions counter at Hookbinders, on account of Hookbinders being famous for their buttons, and the salesgerl was busy talking to the salesgerl at the next department about some man they both knew, and ma said Well if she ever gets through gabbing and jabbering, perhaps she'll dance to wait on me, for land sakes.

And the salesgerl just kept on talking and giggling with the other girl, and ma said, This is too much. I'd walk rite out of this store never to return, if I didn't need that button so desperately. But whatever happens I'm not going to lose my temper. I'll give her a talking to, certainly, but I'll do it in a politely sarcastic way, she said.

And after a while the salesgerl ran out of things to say and you came over to me, saying, Can I help you?

I surely hope so, ma said. I'm looking for a button to match the ones on this coat, she said, and the salesgerl said, We don't have a thing like that, not a thing.

Just the same I want to thank you for your prompt and painstaking service, ma said and the salesgerl said, That's real nice of you, madam, I really appreciate it and I only with all the customers were as understanding as you. You're a real lady, she said.

Oh, ma said, and we kept on going, ma saying, Well I dont quite know how I feel now. After all, the poor gerl probably has her own problems, and it was really touching, how she took my little compliment.

Proving if people praise each other, nobody genrely objects.

New Pentecostal Church Dedicated On Sunday

TWEED—On Sunday, the Tweed Pentecostal church opened its new auditorium which marks the completion of the whole building and of much hard work on the part of both pastor and congregation.

Previously, the adjoining four-room parsonage had been finished, and on October 16, the lower auditorium had been opened where they have held services until this time. Prior to the opening of the basement in October, services were regularly held in the Tweed township hall.

The new church is furnished with fir pews to match the fir pulpit and wainscoating, while the upper part of the walls are finished with a light green 'gyptone.' The ceiling is finished with white acoustic tile and the background for the platform is in white, spruced set off on either side by two Grecian styled pillars. The platform and aisles are carpeted with a grey and wine broadloom and the remainder of the floor is covered with grey inlaid linoleum.

The outside of the church has been finished in yellow Roman brick and white clapboard. A white stucco pilon sets off the front and a marquee covers the entrance to the lobby.

The heating is by an oil furnace and all lighting in the main auditorium is indirect. The church will comfortably seat 168.

OPENING SERVICE

Services on the opening Sunday started at 10 a.m., with a Sunday school rally taken by students from the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College, in Peterborough, who also supplied the music for the day with a mixed trio and trumpet solos.

Following this rally was the worship service at 11 a.m., when Rev. W. H. Greenwood, District superintendent of Eastern Ontario and Quebec, preached from Psalm 42, on "Where is thy God?"

In the afternoon dedication service Rev. W. E. McAllister, general superintendent for the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, conducted the dedication service of the new church to the Glory of God, at which he spoke on the topic "The Standard of the Christian Church" taken from Isaiah 62.

Find No Marks of Foul Play But Lay Charge of Murder

TORONTO (CP)—Mary McFarland, 30, Thursday was charged with the murder of her roommate although police said there were no apparent marks of foul play. Police said Mrs. Madeline McDonald, found dead in an east-end rooming house early Thursday, died while vomiting after a drinking bout.

They said although the direct cause of death was asphyxiation from the vomit, they want to know what caused the woman's sickness.

Dr. Smirle Lawrence supervising coroner for Ontario, said the 28-year-old widow had no marks on her throat to indicate violence. He said the contents of her stomach will be analyzed.

The murder charge was laid by five crown attorney's office after the autopsy report had been made known.

Miss McFarland was remanded to Jan. 21 and a mental examination was requested.

The body was discovered when police received a telephone call that a woman had been "strangled." They found Mrs. McDonald breathing slightly, but she was dead on arrival at hospital.

The body was clad only in a slip. Walls of the room were covered with photographs of nude women.

Neighbors told police Miss McFarland returned home ahead of the other woman the night of the death and had to wait in another room because Mrs. McDonald had the only key.

They said there was an argument. Miss McFarland complained about her roommate's drinking and said she was not contributing to the rent.

Police said neither woman had any visible means of support.

Mrs. McDonald, at time of her death wanted on a theft charge in Montreal, was married but lived in Toronto and both husbands died in traffic accidents here.

Copter Added To Rescue Unit

TRENTON, (Special) — A twin-motor Piasecky helicopter today joined th e 102 Air Search and Rescue unit, at Trenton RCAF base.

Dubbed by servicemen "The Flying Banana," because of the crescent shape, the helicopter is capable of carrying ten servicemen and will be a useful addition to the present equipment of the 102 Northern Ontario Rescue squadron.

The Piasecky is one of the largest helicopters of its kind now being used by the RCAF. It has a crew of four, and like others it was used extensively for evacuating casualties from the Korean lines. Its official designation is H-21A.

The four-man crew comprises pilot, F/O Murray A. Couch, Lucky Lake, Sask.; F/O Tom Kirkwood, Winnipeg, co-pilot; and crewmen, Cpl. Ken Gillis, Flat River, P.E.I. and LAC. Urban Cameron, Wellington P.E.I.

village of Tweed, brought his best wishes and was welcomed to the new church in the afternoon service.

In the evening Evangelist Violet Mallory, of Gunter, Ontario, preached from mSt. Matthew 9:16-17, where Christ spoke of the folly of patching an old garment with a new piece of cloth. She compared this with men and women today who try to patch up their own vessel with a work of righteousness. Actually, they must have a new vessel clothed with the righteousness of Christ. Mrs. Mallory's work in continuing through next Sunday with special services in the new church.

Pastor and Mrs. George Ewald and congregation are all thankful to God for His faithfulness in this time of faith.

Pastor Ewald, the officers and members of the new Pentecostal church, which they have erected on Jamieson Street in Tweed, owe to be congratulated on their fine church which was dedicated on Sunday last.

Search, Rescue Teams of RCAF Abandon Hunt

TRENTON (Special) — Search by RCAF Air Search and Rescue teams for an aircraft believed crashed in Lake Ontario Wednesday morning was called off today.

S/L. Roy Wood, public relations officer for RCAF Trenton base, from where investigations were directed, dubbed the incident "just an unfounded report."

"Every effort was made, we do not think there was anybody playing a hoax."

The search was sparked Wednesday and given added possibilities by discovery of an oil slick on the lake surface west of Cobourg. Heavy waves hampered surface investigations by an RCAF boat crew. The search was resumed yesterday with no result.

"There was no indication of an aircraft down," S/L. Wood said today.

The report of the possible plane crash had come through RCAF channels" to Air Search and Rescue, Trenton, which "immediately dispatched an aircraft to investigate, the Squadron Leader reported.

"As coincidence would have it, there happened to be a ship out on the lake," he said.

A check with the USAF and RCAF had cleared up the probability of an aircraft missing in that area.

Puts Cartridge On Hot Stove, Boy Loses Eye

TORONTO (CP) — A police-reported automobile trip from Barrie to Toronto Thursday was part of a vain attempt to save the eye of an 11-year-old boy injured by the explosion of a rifle cartridge he placed on a hot stove.

Doctors removed the injured eye of Donald Channing of Utopia, about nine miles southwest of Barrie.

The boy's mother said he was playing in the garage when he heard an explosion and found him lying on the floor.

Discrimination Charges Bring Two $50 Fines

CHATHAM (CP) — Two refusing restaurant service on grounds of color, Mickey McKay and Mrs. Matthew Emerson of Dresden today were each fined $50 and costs or 30 days.

In a written judgment magistrate Ivan R. Craig convicted them of violating the fair Accommodation Practices Act, which became law here last year. The convictions were the first under the act.

Their penalty for McKay, proprietor of a Dresden restaurant, was $153.40. Mrs. Emerson, wife of another Dresden restaurant keeper was given a penalty totalling $74.15.

The charges alleged they refused restaurant service to coloured persons on the sole grounds that they were colored.

SERVICE REFUSED

The charge against McKay was laid by Jean Armstrong, a Toronto Negro, who claimed he was refused service in McKay's restaurant Oct. 9.

Mrs. Bernard Carter of Dresden laid a complaint that Mrs. Emerson refused Nov. 7 to serve her in the Emerson restaurant.

In his judgment, magistrate Craig said that in all cases except those related to the Indian Control Act the onus is on the prosecution to prove intent by direct or circumstantial evidence. In the two cases on hand the crown must prove that the complainants were refused service "because they were colored and members of the Negro race."

After a review of the circumstances in the case, magistrate Craig said, magistrate Craig concluded that there was no doubt in his mind that the complainants were refused service only because of their color.

"There could be no other reason for Annie Emerson (and in the second judgment, Morley McKay) refusing to serve them other than the said parties were colored and members of the Negro race."

ACT INTRA VIRES

Magistrate Craig dealt in his judgment with the contention of A. R. Donahue, counsel for the defense, that the provincial legislature exceeded its authority in enacting the Fair Accommodation Practices Act. As criminal legislation, the act was one that could be passed only by the Dominion Government, Mr. Donahue claimed.

Magistrate Craig, however, stated that the act was concerned with property and civil rights within the province "and as such are intra vires (within the powers) of the provincial legislature."

Hope Decision May Be Near In Ford Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Developments in the last few days have been seen as providing a glimmer of hope that a decision may be near in the Ford of Canada strike that has paralyzed production for 56 days.

Union and company negotiators were scheduled to resume their talks today at 2:30 p.m. after a 52-hour recess during which the Ontario Labor Relations Board prepared reply to its proposals made earlier this week.

The company has given long consideration to the proposals by the United Automobile Workers' Union (CIO-CCL) and Thursday made its reply.

Hope Steams from the fact that the company has not rejected outright the union's proposals and the union in turn has not rejected outright the company's reply. The present series of talks started Dec. 20.

Both sides declined to comment after Thursday's six-hour meeting.

Weather Halts RCAF Airlift

NORTH LUFFENHAM, England (CP)—Heavy snow and visibility yesterday put a temporary stop to the RCAF's mammoth moving operation between North Luffenham and a new base in Marville, France.

How to KEEP FIT after 50

In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down—take things easy—otherwise quit—get more rest. It's still good advice, but those can lose their fifty when more interesting and active years ahead,—active, that is, if you can avoid backache, nagging "bad days", leaden legs due to kidney and bladder disorders, that often develop around this age. For more than 60 years Doan's Kidney Pills have been helping tired and worried of all ages to keep kidneys and bladder in good order,—helping them to feel better, to work better, and get more fun out of life. If you are approaching fifty, or past it, let Doan's Kidney Pills help you, too. You can depend on Doan's. 44

OILS AND MINERALS

Drilling for oil in Saskatchewan has turned into an economic jackpot in some cases, helping to diversify the province's grain-based economy. Oil companies have drilled about 1,100 wells since 1947, all of oil production but 5 per cent. Oil finds have turned up significant finds of important industrial minerals. These include salt and potash. Here, an oil derrick looms behind a wheel in a farmer's field. (CP Photo).

Sodium Chloride Now Produced In Large Quantities in Sask.

REGINA (CP)—Dry holes—the result of many an oil-well drilling venture in Saskatchewan — have turned into an economic jackpot in some cases which will help diversify the province's grain-based economy.

There's plenty of oil, of course. Oil companies have drilled about 1,100 wells since 1947 for production. But in spots where oil didn't show, drilling through salt-rich surface strata have turned up significant finds of important industrial minerals.

A double find by an oil-drilling rig near Unity in northwestern Saskatchewan in 1946 now has developed into a potentially-rich mineral source. The drilling crew there missed oil, but they found a 600-foot zone of sodium chloride—common salt to the housewife—and an 8-foot layer of potash, used mainly for fertilizer.

BIG POTENTIAL

Sodium chloride now is being produced in large quantities in Saskatchewan. Potash mining may be near Unity in northeast

Monster Of A Gale Plowing Through North Atlantic

Newfoundland Braces Self; Airway Passengers Stranded

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A monster of a winter storm was plowing along through the north Atlantic today, heading away from the American mainland but lashing at eastern Newfoundland on its way.

On the opposite side of the ocean, sharp cold spread over much of shub-covered Britain, turning road travel into a motorist's nightmare and bringing other severe winter woes to millions.

Newfoundland braced for yet another blow in a 10-day siege of bad weather. Gusts ranging up to 100 miles an hour were reported at Torbay and still worse was expected later in the day—winds up to 60 miles mixed with snow.

FOG AT ST. JOHN'S

A deepening blanket of fog clamped onto St. John's Friday night as the Avalon peninsula, the province's most heavily-populated area, prepared for the new storm.

Snow fell first rolled in over the city Jan. 4 and with the exception of one day maintained a dreary grasp. All commercial air and line flights have been able to leave Torbay since the weather clamped on 10 miles mixed with snow.

More than 1000 persons on the train and Halifax-bound boats. About 90 who were waiting for air passage to get out by rail or trains during the last three days.

Coastal ferries docked in Argentia bays and inlets to wait out the latest storm.

Earlier in the week the heaviest sea storm in history lashed the southeast coast, wrecking wharves and buildings and tearing up highways and railway lines.

SEAS ARE ACKACK

The new storm, about 1,600 miles across, was discovered Friday. It is affecting more shaky element the entire west side of the north Atlantic.

The high winds sent rescue vessels out to aid several ships.

The Bermuda freighter Myrto reported she was out of fuel 40 miles east of Bermuda and was being helped by winds ranging up to 68 miles an hour. The United States coast guard sent a cutter from its Bermuda base.

An American freighter, the Steiner, sent an S O S signal and reported the hull was badly broken by a ballast tank vent pipe and the tank had taken water, causing a 15-degree list after the engine room radioed that he had the vessel back on an even keel.

The yacht Spindrift, going from Charleston, S. C., to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for the winter, left the coast guard on its slow trip to Jacksonville, Fla., reported yesterday it was lost and in distress.

In Boston, the coast guard said early today the 1,600-ton motor vessel with 23 men aboard, earlier reported in danger of breaking up, "was proceeding slowly toward the coast.

SNOW, FROST IN U. K.

In Britain, the mercury dipped to seven above at Edinburgh and there was snow and frost elsewhere. Roads which were not still blocked with drifts after Friday's heavy snow were ice-glazed.

The British automobile association said the worst icing was the worst in eight years. London had a three-inch pall of frozen slush, making both driving and walking treacherous. Fog settled on parts of the city, cutting visibility to 100 yards.

A British European Airways plane bound for Paris with 36 passengers ran off a London airport runway while preparing for takeoff and a wheel sank into the snow. One wing brushed the snow, but no one was injured.

In Cornwall and Devon, in southwestern England, there were flood troubles caused by thawing snow, rain and high tides.

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Another active central series of low pressure areas is moving across Ontario today giving snow and occasional freezing rain in most of the province. Mendes-France And Adenauer Reach Agreement

PARIS (Reuters) — Premier Mendes-France came home today after concluding agreements with West Germany's chancellor Konrad Adenauer aimed at ushering in a new era of close Franco-German co-operation.

The 47-year-old premier looked pale and drawn when his train pulled into Paris. He brushed off reporters who asked for statements on his intensive talks in Baden-Baden Friday with Adenauer on subjects ranging from the Saar question to relaxing East-West tension.

Before leaving Baden Baden just after midnight, Mendes - France and Adenauer held secret talks as appeared with Adenauer to announce: "We have decided to continue the construction of a united Europe in which Germany and France will have important roles to play."

REVIEW PROBLEMS

During their talks Mendes-France and the German chancellor reviewed all outstanding problems. They said they had reached agreement on measures to decide the future of the Saar, a dispute which has plagued Franco-German relations since the end of the Second World War.

In addition, they saw eye to eye on the French premier's plan for controlling armaments under the Western European Union defence setup, in which Germany will contribute 500,000 troops.

The two statesmen's agreement on the Saar topped an impressive list of accords, including plans for a three-year truce agreement and formation of a Franco-German chamber of commerce.

Mendes-France and Adenauer will get in touch with Britain, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg to set up an international commission to supervise the agreements.

They agreed that the referendum will decide whether the territory will be internationalized or remain independent, and that any dispute over the application of the Saar pact will be settled by the Western European Union.

Order Monckton To Take Rest

LONDON (CP)—Labor Minister Walter Monckton, "Mr. Fixit" of the Churchill government, has been ordered to take a three-week rest for several weeks.

The medical ultimatum follows Sir Winston's non-stop—and successful—efforts to ward off a crippling strike. It may give rise to a new batch of rumors that Sir Winston—who has been more than famous and the most immoral" thing one group of people has ever imposed on another.

WESTERN ISSUES TAKE PRECEDENCE IN HOUSE DEBATE

Party Leadership In Sask. Main Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—Western problems, and those of Saskatchewan in particular, have come to the fore in the week-old session of Parliament.

Liberal party leadership in Saskatchewan, the South Saskatchewan dam row and the well-being of Indians were discussed Friday in the Commons throne speech debate.

Two front-bench members from Saskatchewan, Agriculture Minister Gardiner and John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert), clashed over the question of retaining a top federal official who submitted his resignation to make a bid for the province's Liberal leadership.

SAYS UNJUSTIFIED

Mr. Diefenbaker said there was no justification for the government turning down the offered resignation of L. B. Thomson as $10,000-a-year director of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration after he lost the leadership contest last fall.

He said it was detrimental to the preservation of a non-political civil service that such a top public service who sought public office should resign to the suggestion of political partisanship.

Mr. Gardiner replied that Mr. Thomson was the only person who could fill the PFRA job so capably.

"After it was all over and he was not the leader, it was my opinion that he was the best man to carry on as director of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration," he said. The resignation was offered without conditions but Mr. Thomson was given a leave of absence during the leadership convention.

At the day's opening Prime Minister St. Laurent said in a statement there appeared to be no legal reason for Mr. Thomson to have submitted his resignation. It was evidently done "as a matter of propriety."

Mr. Gardiner took no action on the resignation before the leadership convention. Afterwards, Mr. Gardiner recommended that it not be accepted.

Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Diefenbaker met on other issues during the debate.

Mr. Diefenbaker urged immediate construction of the much-discussed project to dam the South Saskatchewan river near Outlook, Sask., to provide water to irrigate 400,000 acres of dry land. He said the project was long overdue.

Mr. Gardiner said he is convinced the dam will be built some day by the federal and Saskatchewan governments, and counselled: "There is little more I can say."

The cabinet had not yet decided it is the minister said.

(Prime Minister St. Laurent has indicated that the dam project must be completed as one benefiting Canada as a whole before the federal government will enter into discussion about spending the millions required to build it in conjunction with Saskatchewan.)

Another topic was the depressed state of the fishing industry. The export grain mentioned last fall by Chief Justice Gordon Sloan of the Canada Grain Act arbitration report on a rail-union contract dispute.

A Saskatchewan CCF member, A. H. Bryson, described Indians as "shuffling" of Indian administration and said the system of administration "is the most infamous and the most immoral" thing one group of people has ever imposed on another.

American States Find Nicaragua Source of Invasion of Costa Rica

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without blaming the government of Nicaragua, the Organization of American States said today Costa Rica's central American republic is the source of an invasion of neighboring Honduras.

While the OAS did not place responsibility for the invasion on the Nicaraguan government, it urged decisive action by Nicaragua to prevent war goods from moving across its border into Honduras.

Meanwhile, Costa Rican forces were reported closing in rapidly on La Cruz, in the northwest tip of the beleaguered country, where an enemy banda had grabbed a small area.

Mention here late into the night the OAS council adopted a resolution in which it said its on-the-spot investigation commission reported that "a substantial part of the war material was introduced over the northern border" of Costa Rica "through Nicaragua territory." The report also reported to OAS headquarters that "in a large part of the "military elements" in the service of the Nicaraguan government, it urged decisive action by Nicaragua to prevent war goods from moving across its border into Honduras.

In the council, representing the 21 American republics formally condemned the attack on Costa Rica and called on the Nicaraguan government to act more decisively to choke off war material going across its southern border.

In San Jose, Col. J. J. Oreamuno of the Costa Rican general staff said he knew of no major battles brewing. He said there were no reports at his headquarters of any military action except in the north-western part of the country.

Panama Arrests President For Part in Assassination

By LUIS NOLI

PANAMA CITY (AP)—The National Assembly early today ordered the arrest of impeached President José Ramon Guizado after a Panamanian lawyer confessed to the Jan. 2 assassination of President José Antonio Remon and implicated Guizado.

In a special pre-dawn session, the assembly denied Guizado's request for a leave of absence pending investigation of the charges against him.

The legislators swore in Ricardo Arias Espinoza, second vice-president, as the third chief executive of this strategic central American republic in two weeks.

The assembly voted after hearing the chamber clerk read a confession in which lawyer Ruben Miro admitted the machine-gun murder.

The session had been called to consider Guizado's request for a leave. The president has been under house arrest since Friday.

Miro's confession said the murder plot was carried out at the instigation and with the knowledge of Guizado and the latter's business partner, Rodolfo Salmé Maluk. It said Guizado's son Jose Ramon Jr. also was in the plot.

The lawyer Guizado, Saint Malo and Tomas Nieves Perez, another member of the construction firm headed by President Guizado, were arrested Friday.

The action of a prominent Panamanian family, Miro said he had been promised by the government and justice ministry in a new national cabinet if he carried out the assassination of Remon.

According to the confession, made to authorities Friday, Miro carried out the killing alone. He said he borrowed the machine-gun used in the shooting.

Miro's confession was read by the assembly clerk to the special session, which began only a few hours after Guizado left the chamber's president his request for a leave.

Ford Walkout Now Appears Heading Toward Settlement

By STEWART ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The Ford of Canada strike, two days short of a record in Canadian automotive history, today appeared to be heading for a settlement.

The wage walkout, now in its 12th day, has involved some 9,000 Ford 1945 strike which took 10,000 Windsor Ford workers from work.

Although company and union spokesmen said late last night some progress has been made in current negotiations, there appeared little possibility the dispute would be settled by Monday when top Ford and United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) officials meet again. At 10 p.m. Monday the strike goes into its 100th day.

Two other union and management conferences ended abruptly and apparently will have a direct bearing on next week's negotiations.

Officials of the Oakville assembly plant were to meet here today with union officials. Windsor office management and Local 240 leaders will meet Monday at 10 a.m. in Windsor to mull over their differences.

Emil Mazey, international secretary-treasurer of the UAW and a top negotiator, said he was anxious said the Monday meeting will be held whether or not progress is made at the other two sessions.

"I am hopeful they will be helpful," said Mr. Mazey.

T. J. Emmert, Ford of Canada executive vice-president, said progress made at talks which started Dec. 28 would have to be considered as in a "broad" sense.

Mr. Emmert said Mr. Mazey both will points at issue have been discussed.

A Ford official in his guarded remarks said it would be a mistake to say a settlement has been reached.

However, Mr. Emmert did say there was "a real desire" in the province - wide bargaining agreement sought by the company between Ford of Canada management and union leaders was to attempt to settle the basic issue of contract for workers theie who as yet have not got one.

Mr. Mazey, commenting on union proposals presented to the company early this week, said they covered all points at issue. Mr. Emmert said the company reply did not cover all of them.

The Windsor Labor Council (CIO-CCL) organized a parade through Windsor today.

Those not celebrating the fact that it (the strike) is 10 days old, the Local 200 strike will be marked by organized labor can fight as long as it is necessary to win its demands, a labor spokesman said. Council said in pamphlets announcing the rally.

Commonwealth Heads to Discuss Co-Existence

LONDON (Reuters)—The prime ministers of the Commonwealth will discuss prospects of peaceful East-West coexistence at their conference beginning here on January 25, Premier Nehru said today.

Prime Minister Churchill is expected to sound his Commonwealth colleagues on views before opening of the top-level talks between the West and Russia.

Premier Nehru of New Zealand said that the merit of any meeting will depend on careful planning. If such a conference failed, it would increase tension and make chances of getting the east and West leaders together again in the event of a major crisis.

TO LAST A WEEK

The conference, first since June 1953, is likely to last about a week. Represented will be Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and the federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

All except South Africa will be represented by their prime ministers. Charles Swart, minister of justice, will represent the South African government minister, Johannes Strijdom.

Main aim of the conference will be international affairs, ranging from the Korean development in the East and Middle East, to the progress made in building up the West's defences in Western Europe.

The prime ministers will be able to discuss such questions as United Nations recognition of Communist China and the Formosan problem in the light of the talks which India's Prime Minister Nehru recently had in Peiping with Mao Tse-tung and other Chinese leaders. Nehru is the only Commonwealth prime minister who has made these personal contacts.

ARMY DEVELOPS NEW TYPE OF RADAR EQUIPMENT

Could Help Prevent Thousands of Casualties

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A new type of radar equipment which could help prevent thousands of infantry battle casualties has been developed by the army.

The equipment is known as counter-mortar radar and is designed to enable artillery to bring down accurate retaliatory fire immediately after an enemy mortar operator.

The mortar is one of the most difficult weapons to locate because of the small size of its bomb and the fact that a mortar detachment can move equipment quickly to alternate positions.

About 80 per cent of casualties during the Second World War were caused by enemy mortars, the army said, and in certain cases in Korea this percentage was considered higher.

The mortar is a short-range weapon, lobbing its bombs through a high trajectory. Heavy casualties can be caused by the wide fragmentation of the bomb when it explodes. The Canadian army says that the smaller the mortar bomb shell is not much smaller than an artillery shell, the 3.5-millimetre mortars for infantry support.

The radar set development detects the path of enemy mortar shells. It then works out the shell's track through their trajectory to disclose the enemy position.

The information is relayed immediately to the artillery, which brings down retaliatory fire on the enemy mortars within minutes.

Though the army does not say so, it is understood that a similar equipment can be used to locate enemy artillery by backtracking artillery shells.

By being able to locate quickly enemy mortars and artillery, the army could save the lives of many infantrymen as well as hurt or turn back enemy offensives.

The British army recently used counter-mortar radar in the Korean war, where it was found effective. The Canadian army has developed its equipment independently of the American although there might have been some exchange of information.

British Vessel Reaches Port

HALIFAX (CP) — The battered freighter La Orilla lay silt at her pier today, a sad but somewhat victorious in an epic battle against the seas but the cause of her unscheduled call remained unsolved.

The 7,047-ton British ship's 37 crew members disembarked from the bunks Friday night for their first full night's sleep in more than 24 hours after the La Orilla came sluggishly into port with a heavy list to starboard.

Capt. T. L. Bradford of Cardiff wouldn't discuss the cause or danger of his ship foundering as she was battered by heaving seas and 100-mile-an-hour gales off southern Newfoundland but he said his officers and crew were on deck for most of the time.

"We didn't do much sleeping," said Bradford with a wry grin, "we were kept pretty busy."

The freighter docked against her pier with a 15-degree list to port, caused when her 2,000 tons of coal concentrated mixed with sea water rushing into Ker No. 2 hold and bunkers. Pumps were put aboard to dry out her hold so investigators can assess the extent of damage and its cause.

Ice Boat Enthusiasts Chase Wolf On Bay of Quinte Off Rednersville

Ice boating enthusiasts in the Belleville area have found a new sport. Not content with the thrill of speed, they now say they have taken to wolf chasing.

At least that is the story told by William Bedford, Rednersville market gardener, who says he saw the chase one day during the past week and his daughter saw two men in an ice boat on the Bay of Quinte chasing what they took to be a dog.

On the straight-away the dog was no match for the speeding ice boat, but the animal was able to change direction faster and the ice boat had to make a wide circle to regain take up the chase. Finally the "dog" had enough and made for the shore and disappeared into the woods.

Not content with the first boat men, Mr. Bedford learned it had been a wolf that was being chased and that the men would have shot it for them," Mr. Bedford said.

During the autumn months wolves were reported in the south section of Prince Edward township and it is thought that the animal chased by the ice boat may have been one of them.

Mr. Bedford noted that several deer have been noticed this winter as they made their way across the ice from the Prince Edward-Hastings and Sidney township.

Syngman Rhee Seriously Ill After Operation

SEOUL (Reuters) — President Syngman Rhee of South Korea underwent an abdominal operation last Wednesday and remains in serious condition, a usually reliable source said today.

The source, who has unimpeachable authority, said Rhee "went through critical periods" after entering a United States army hospital last Monday for the operation. But he said the South Korean president now has passed his crisis period.

He said Rhee's ailment was believed to be glycosure, a diseased intestinal condition.

Beaverton's Chief Resigns

BEAVERTON, Ont. (CP)—Police chief Hector Reid, fined $50 and costs after driving charges Jan. 12, resigned Friday night from his position.

A special meeting of town council accepted the chief's resignation. He was suspended after provincial police charged him with drunken driving following an accident Christmas day in which a car he was driving ran off the road.

The police chief was cited as the attorney general to have the CIPP suspended.

becoming mayor.

Mr. Bedford said Rogers told her that her husband was in good condition.

"The weather feed up and that plane isn't equipped to fly in heavy fog," Rogers said he told her. "I'm just glad they came down as safe as they did."

"They started out from Windsor and Red told me they got into bad weather but he said he had no choice but to land somewhere."

Adoption Order Not Set Aside

TORONTO (CP)—Action brought by Mrs. Joseph Lubinsky to set aside an adoption order and get back the baby girl she gave birth to was dismissed by Mr. Justice John L. Wilson of Ontario Supreme Court.

Mrs. Lubinsky said she gave her son Raymond, 4, to a cousin Mrs. Mary Taylor of Windsor, four years ago and now wanted him back.

Unable to speak English Mrs. Lubinsky claimed she was unaware that she gave her consent for the adoption of the child in 1951. She said Mrs. Taylor agreed to take the boy because she was having trouble finding a home in Toronto.

Mrs. Taylor told the court she explained the adoption procedure to her cousin and that the parents showed no interest in the child for two years.

Aerial Ladder In Collision With Two Cars

Skidding on an icy corner as it was proceeding to what turned out to be a minor alarm, the Belleville Fire Department aerial ladder, Friday afternoon, collided with two cars causing $350 damage.

The fire truck driven by Fireman Archie Hill was on its way to 197 Station street and was turning left from the Upper Bridge onto Front street, when the rear end of the vehicle scraped a parked car owned by George Hamilton, 11 Forin street, and then skidded into the rear of a vehicle stopped in the roadway causing about $150 damage. The second car was being driven by Myrtle McDonald, 215 Victoria avenue.

Following the accident the fire truck proceeded on to the fire, while Lieut. John Thompson remained at the scene of the accident.

The fire alarm turned out to be only a plugged chimney which was causing smoke to back up into the house.

Women Drivers Better Than Men, Survey Shows

TORONTO (CP)—Women drivers aren't as bad as they're made out, at least, as compared with men.

A survey of Toronto drivers made by a class at the Ontario College of Education says despite the stories of women waving their arms alarmingly as signals, men give most incorrect hand signals.

Nearly 3,000 motorists were watched and of these, 21 per cent of the women and 38 per cent of the men didn't make proper turn signals.

The survey showed one motorist in six regularly defies a traffic regulation; one in five rushes traffic lights; more than half give improper hand signals and nearly a third do not consider the rights of pedestrians.

HALIFAX (CP) — Anxious doctors, aided by a serum flown here by jet, could give Canada Ontario in their fight to save the life of a critically ill woman, said today it will be "two or three days" before they can say how the serum is making out.

Fibrogen, available in Canada only in Ontario, was flown here aboard an RCAF T-33 jet trainer at the request of the Victoria General Hospital where Mrs. Mabel Hyland suffered uncontrolled internal bleeding.

Doctors believed the fibrogen, a rare blood - clotting agent, could stem the flow of blood and save Mrs. Hyland's life.

BETTER CHANCE

Medical spokesmen at the hospital said that the result of the serum could not be ascertained immediately but said Mrs. Hyland would have less chance of survival without it.

The RCAF here received the call for aid and immediately contacted Toronto to prepare the serum. A jet from Malton airport raced it to Trenton, Ont., where it was transferred to the T-33 for a one hour and 40-minute flight to the nearby naval base at Shearwater, across the harbor from here.

An RCMP cruiser raced it to Halifax, where the trip was soon completed, but still not officially opened Halifax - Dartmouth bridge to cut miles and minutes off the route.

Campbell had been on trial in Ontario Supreme Court for three days on a charge of murder. The jury reduced the charge.

Defence counsel said that, before passing sentence, he want Campbell's age, date of marriage, habits and criminal information about his associates.

THE MARK OF A REALLY SMART PERSON
The mark of a really smart person is not necessarily a college diploma or a Phi Beta Kappa key. It might be simply a record of carefully-considered actions.
To "know it all" would be wonderful — if we humans could absorb that much knowledge in a lifetime. Next best is to seek and accept the advice of experts, particularly your Doctor.
Visit him frequently. Follow his directions carefully. Bring your prescriptions to us to be filled, and take the medicine he prescribes regularly.
Such cooperation is the best course possible for preservation of your health, and it marks you as a really smart person.

Feeding Birds In Wintertime

By NANCY CLEAVER

Have you discovered what fun it is to feed the birds in the Winter? Even the most common of little feathered friends are so appreciative of scraps from your kitchen, and you may have the thrill of being host to some of our rarer cold weather birds.

After a heavy fall of snow, when a thick icy crust forms on the surface, many wild birds may search in vain for enough nourishment to keep alive. This often happens late in February or March, when a thaw is followed by a "freeze-up".

A sunflower head fastened in a tree is a wonderful source of food for chickadees. A cocoanut has to be drained of its milk by boring several holes and then filled with peanut butter, bread crumbs and seeds. Suet may be hung in a loose mesh bag or tucked string bag or the kind of a container onions are often sold in. Avoid wire mesh holders as on sub-zero days, a bird's feet, or even his eyelids might be seriously damaged by being stuck to the metal.

FEEDING TRAY

It is not hard to make a satisfactory wooden feeding tray. All that is needed is a solid floor, a raised moulding around it, forming a little wall so the food will not blow away, a roof and at least one sidewall to provide protection from snow, rain, and wind.

Quite often the food tray is fastened on the outside window ledge, or on a pole or hung by a wire or wire from a tree. It is possible to use a double wire with a pulley arrangement similar to a clothesline. Fasten the far end to a tree and pull it in to a window when you wish. Then you can fill the tray and, afterwards, pull it out to the tree where the sky feeder is more likely to come.

Sometimes a cat pounces on a bird when the bird's attention is focused on eating. A foot deep band of tin around the pole or trunk of the tree prevents a cat from climbing it and a strip of tin at forty-five degree angle around the bottom of the feeding box accomplishes the same purpose. Cats or squirrels cannot reach a container hung from a strong wire.

BIRDS NEED SHELTER

In choosing the location for a feeding tray, remember that the birds need shelter in the bad weather. You will want it where you can watch them from a window and where you can easily replenish their food supply. It is possible to make a food hopper for dry supplies such as seeds which will drop from the bottom opening as the birds remove the lower supplies.

Crushed egg shells and grit or fine sand are needed by birds to digest their food. They require drinking water too, even in the freezing weather and in the winter often find it hard to find. A wooden mixing bowl is a good water container and you can add hot water to melt its surface as it freezes over.

FAVORITE FOODS

Birds, just like people, have favorite foods. Suet is liked by woodpeckers, chickadees, nuthatches and titmice. Cardinals, towhees and blackbirds delight in sunflower seeds and broken peanuts. Robins, catbirds, hermit thrushes are partial to pieces of apple and orange, currants and raisins. Bread crumbs and scratch feed are quickly eaten by finches, juncos and sparrows.

But there are a great many food scraps, such as potato and apple parings and bacon rind which are often thrown in the garbage which birds would appreciate. Bits of any kind of fat, meat, hard boiled eggs, or cheese are real delicacies. Pumpkin and squash seeds, boiled oats, broken pieces of pastry, cookies—even dog biscuits provide nourishing morsels. Best luck to you and your bird friends!

A Lift For Living

Sharing Our Interests

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Two young men attended the same school. They were drawn to each other by mutual attraction.

They had many of the same interests. They were so nearly in tune that they could share each other's thoughts often without words.

They graduated and they married. One threw himself into work with the underpivilleged. The other entered the area of business. Their pattern of thinking began to diverge. Being immersed in their own tasks and giving themselves to different problems, they saw each other less frequently and ceased to share thoughts and pleasures. When they did meet they talked about surface matters, never getting down to the old deep confidences. Thus they grew apart, each feeling, the other no longer cared.

At a recent meeting they talked over old times. The latched springs of their hearts began to flow. One of them put in a letter afterwards what he would have said if it had to say face to face. He wrote: "All those intervening separated years seemed to fade away. The old affection abides.

DEEP FEELING

This may not seem a very exciting case of estrangement and reconciliation, but to the persons involved there came feelings too deep for words.

As in the realms of friendship, so also in the home, hearts can become estranged. Lack of attention can take lustre from the romance of early marriage. The rush of modern living and the specialties of modern work often lessen the periods of shared thinking and playing.

When husband and wife do not share each other's thoughts, each can frequently read something into the thinking of the other. Meaningless or unintentional acts may start suspicions. Love may cease to abound as it did long ago or the defensive. Estrangement starts and all too often does not stop short of actual separation.

Also we children of God can become estranged from our Heavenly Father. This may happen in various ways, the gravest being neglect. Just as friendship has to be cultivated if it is to grow, so our relationship with God fades if neglected.

It the child lives in an environment where God is not spoken of, where no one thinks about God, God becomes an unreal Stranger, a Being of whom he hears only when he has done wrong and then only as One who will punish him. Thus the child's thinking God changes from a Friend, a very present help in time of trouble, to a sort of policeman who is to be avoided.

LIFE BITTERNESS

Another way of becoming estranged from God is through resentment. This may take shape of bitterness against life and its conditions. The idea that God is responsible for whatever happens to us sometimes leads men to think of God as the cause of their troubles.

Not many men grow so bitter that they shake their fists in the face of God, but they think of life as a battle and God as an unfair Umpire. They become estranged through hardness and resentment.

We cannot be happy in estrangement from any friendship, or from our Heavenly Father, because our hearts are made for love. They can feel at home only in the atmosphere of love.

John Howard Payne is believed to have written "Home Sweet Home" in the Palais Royale at

Bulletins From Birdland

DUCKS THAT STAY

Most of us know so few ducks by sight that we find it hard to believe what the expert bird watchers tell us—that 43 kinds have been recorded in North America. Naturally, in Canada we cannot expect to see many species at this date, as in winter the important factor is duck population is the amount of open water.

However, every year quite a number of waterfowl may be found in districts where a body of water is sufficiently large or the current swift enough to keep ice from forming.

Because of their position on the Atlantic seaboard, the Maritimes always have ducks in mid-winter, and of course Newfoundland, also. There may be found both Eiders, the Common Eider, Black Scoter, Whistling Scoter, Long-tailed Duck, Old Squaw, Goldeneye, and Harlequin. The Mallard and Black Duck spend the year off the coast of Nova Scotia; American Mergansers and red-breasted Mergansers may be found any month on the Gulf of St. Lawrence and in our provinces that border on the Atlantic.

For the past six or seven years it is surprising how many ducks have wintered up the St. Lawrence River even in the Montreal area.

DUCKS STAY ON

Each year some Mergansers, both American and red-breasted, are identified, every now and then a few Blacks and Mallards are seen, and Goldeneyes have stayed on in increasingly large flocks. In the winter of '53-'54 a flock of several hundred Goldeneyes braved the cold of Lake St. Louis at suburban Lachine.

It is not surprising that a number of kinds of ducks remain on the Great Lakes, when a few green-winged Teal may be found. It is interesting to note that ducks in the Toronto area include year-round residents, like the Mallard and the Black, which are surface feeders, as well as several species which are just winter residents.

These last are diving ducks, such as the Bufflehead which breeds in western Canada, the Greater Scaup and Old Squaw which have come down from the Arctic. Also two fish eaters, the American and the red-breasted Mergansers, seem to enjoy spending the cold months in the vicinity of Toronto.

A mild winter often means that nearly twice as many ducks as usual remain north of the United States border. Canvasbacks are prone to do this at Port Stanley. The pintail, a duck of the prairies, leaves in very early autumn, but it may be expected back at the break-up in spring, ahead of its relatives.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

HELP SOMEBODY TODAY!

Look all around you, find someone in need,
Help somebody today!
Though it be little—a neighborly deed—
Help somebody today!

Many tire waiting a kind, loving word,
Help somebody today!
Thou hast a message, O let it be heard,
Help somebody today!

Many have burdens too heavy to bear,
Help somebody today!
Grief is the portion of some everywhere,
Help somebody today!

Some are discouraged and weary in heart,
Help somebody today!
Someone the journey to heaven shall start,
Help somebody today!

Chorus:
Help somebody today,
Somebody along life's way;
Let sorrow be ended,
The friendless befriended,
Oh, help somebody today!

Here is a hymn which summons Christians to emulate the example set by the Good Samaritan, to become active followers of the Master.

Its words were written by Mrs. Frank A. Breck; its music by Charles H. Gabriel, who created and contributed so many of the world's favorite soul-winning hymn tunes.

Mr. Gabriel will be remembered for his famous "Glory Song" for which he wrote both text and tune in 1900. Mrs. Breck, a native of Vermont, was a descendant of the distinguished Revolutionary War hero, Colonel Timothy Ellis. Many of her poems and other writings were introduced to the public through the columns of The Christian Herald magazine.

It is said that Mrs. Breck turned out more than 1,500 hymn-poems during her lifetime. The first one to attract real interest was entitled "You Ought To Do Something For Jesus." Later, she wrote "Help Somebody Today!", "Face To Face With Christ, My Saviour" and the countless others which have endured to hold their places in the song books used in twentieth century prayer services and mission meetings.

ACTION ON CRIME COMICS

Crime and horror "comics," like the weather, are something everyone talks about but few do anything about.

That this is no longer true locally is evidenced by the interest being taken by Home and School Associations in Trenton and Belleville. In Trenton, on January 5th, at a meeting of the College Hall Public School Home and School Association, members discussed crime "comics" in a forum. They decided that the same form of censorship which applies to movies should be applied to the censorship of crime and horror books.

On Tuesday evening of this week a joint meeting of the Home and School Associations of Sir Winston Churchill and Queen Elizabeth Schools scored the wide distribution and sale of these books. The Catholic Women's League of St. Michael's Church has been active in launching a campaign against the sale of these books.

On last day of December, a 13-year-old boy in Stirling took his own life by hanging. Stirling's Chief of Police laid a portion of the blame for this tragedy to the boy's reading of crime "comic" books.

There is, of course, nothing that can be said in favor of crime "comics." The stories are based on violence, crime and passion. The illustrations border on pornography. Language is corrupted. Men are portrayed as beasts and women as objects to be beaten, mutilated or killed. There is nothing of value to the adolescent or adult mind in a crime "comic."

That some of Shakespeare's greatest works were based on crime and violence does not excuse the crime, violence and horror in these "comics." That some of the violence and horror is of people in the nude is no excuse for the nudity blatantly displayed on almost every newsstand from the covers of crime and horror "comic books."

Magistrates in the United States and investigators of juvenile delinquency are alarmed at the unhealthy influence these books have on adolescent minds. Educators have decided that the time for reading crime and horror "comics" has come to an end.

Legislation against these books is already on the statute books in Canada. Failure to enforce existing legislation has led to the continuing production and sale of millions of these books each month.

There is an almost infinite number of books available which are better than crime and horror "comics." Failure of parents to supervise the reading of their children, or even to check on the reading habits of their children, makes it possible for these books to continue on the newsstands. Parents were aware of the nature and content of crime and horror "comics" and were genuinely concerned about the effect they have on adolescents and what harm they can do in molding young minds, it is likely crime and horror "comics" would no longer be what almost amounts to a national problem.

THE SCOTTISH ENGLISH

Just when we were beginning to accustom ourselves to the fact that the King's English is now the Queen's English we discover that it is neither. Because he enjoyed the advantage of going to school in Scotland and it is well known that the Scots speak better English than the English."

There is, of course, considerable support for this thesis in the Highlands. Scotsmen, for generations, have ruled England's interests by flooding its universities with teachers who said the words that educated England's young gentlemen used. So what the Scots wanted to do anyway.

This facility with language never moved the canny Scots to ask that the King's English should, more appropriately, be called the Scottish English.

The true state of Scottish influence on English, however, came to light during World War II when members of the Free Polish Army were training in Scotland. Part of their training included polishing their knowledge of English.

How well the Scots trained the Poles was revealed at an inspection when a visiting British general, pleased at their appearance and wishing to compliment them, asked their commanding officer if his men spoke English.

"Aye, a wee bit," came the pure English reply.

DEBATE ON A TIMETABLE?

Sources at Queen's Park say that the Ontario Legislature will continue in session on February 8 and that this session is expected to end April 7, the day before Good Friday.

Is it desirable to run a session of the legislature on that type of a schedule?

It is obviously impossible to predict accurately all of the varied problems which will face the members during their consideration of a multiplicity of measures. Night sessions, of course, could help to speed the work if the session gets behind schedule. Even this method, however, seems inadequate to assure that every bill will get full consideration before April 7 deadline.

Would it not be preferable to eliminate the timetable for debate and to permit the legislators to go home whenever they consider their jobs are finished satisfactorily and not before?

Is there any place for a time clock in a parliament or legislature?

HOROSCOPE

Be kind this day and every day
To one and all;
Be watchful as you go your way
Lest harm befall.

Where'er you can, another aid.
This very night,
That promised letter you've delayed
Take time to write.

Remember in your evening prayer

All who are dear.
Look to hold them in His care
And He will hear.

Cling steadfastly to faith and hope.
No evil do.
Make this your lifelong horoscope.

All the reports submitted were very satisfactory and showed the parish to be making excellent progress. The rector appointed Mr. Harold Bateman as his warden and the vestry elected Mr. Charles F. Bilton as people's warden. Mr. G. B. Smith was re-elected a delegate, whose term he has not yet expired, are Mr. G. H. Scott and Mr. George Stokes. The claim of J. J. B. Flint that he was the owner of the nest of eggs the carrying away of the lower bridge in the great flood of the 'nineties, 25 years ago, is disputed by a number of Bellevillians. William Britton, Jr., was driving across the bridge in a cutter at the time and instead of the damage he stepped up his horse and raced to get off the bridge. Another driver whose horse was moving at a walk and as he passed the slow driver he struck his horse which immediately broke into a run and both drivers reached safety only a few seconds before the bridge was carried away. Had not William Britton struck the slow driver's horse he would have been on the bridge when it was swept away.

Parking Spot Thief Repaid

(Appleton, Post-Crescent)

A gripe of every driver is the person who slides into a parking space just as someone else is ready to back into it. It happened to Miss Ruth Harmon of Neenah, Wis., last week and she used a combination of temper and patience to teach the man a lesson.

Miss Harmon simply double parked against both sides of the offender's car until he came back. He asked her to move. She pretended not to hear. He raved, swore, shouted insults and abuse. Miss Harmon continued to stare straight ahead as if she were alone in the world. The man stamped off with a threat of calling the police. In about ten minutes he came back alone. Miss Harmon stayed immovable until time for an appointment when she finally pulled away, hoping that she had made the man good and late for something important.

We don't recommend this treatment if you wish to stay in the good graces of the police department. But we felt a happy glow of satisfaction anyhow.

Imitating The Soviets

(Milwaukee Journal)

At first thought, the action to bar great sections of the country to Russian travellers looks pretty smart and clever.

"Tit for tat diplomacy," someone has crowed. The Reds limit American travel in Russia, now we give them some of their own medicine. That'll show them that two can play at this game.

The more you think about it, however, the more you ask: Do we want to imitate the Soviets?

Out of the Soup

Churchill Understands

(Ottawa Citizen)

Sir Winston Churchill can hardly help feeling sympathy for Bilsby Ted Wedgwood Benn, M.P., who is petitioning Parliament to permit him to disclaim the title of a peer of the realm. Mr. Wedgwood Benn is taking this extraordinary step because he wants to stay in the House of Commons, and his father, Lord Stansgate, 74 years old. Sir Winston will appreciate the difficulty. He would like to get a long since have had a peerage himself, he just loved the life of the commons too much to leave it.

Political expediency, of course, might tempt the Conservative chieftain to abandon the prevailing young Socialist M.P. to his fate. The distinguishing name of Wedgwood Benn would for the second time be lost to sight behind a title. But Sir Winston would be trapped in a chamber that can do little but deny indignation. His keen mind might view this as the just visitation of the father's sin upon the son, for in accepting a peerage the elder Wedgwood Benn must have rebelled against his colleagues. And Sir Winston, steeped in tradition, knows Prime Ministers created the father to accept a peerage for reasons of party expediency rather as Lord Stansgate argues on his son's behalf, that an active political life is the only alternative to exile in the House of Lords.

Bridge Brings Sharp Retort

Tournament bridge is a fiercely competitive game that sometimes results in a flare-up of temper between partners. But the outburst is one the less violent when the two partners happen to be husband and wife.

At a recent national tournament in Dallas, one of these battles ended with the man abruptly walking away from the table.

An opponent turned to his partner and asked, "Is that your husband?" She replied, "I received the instantaneous reply:

"Thank heaven it is — you don't think I'd be living in sin with a man like that, do you!"

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In outdoor sports, and in following the hobby of the field naturalist, the exceptions that prove rules are often numerous enough to make a totally unexpected day. Most sports or hobbies are there more pundits to be found than in the hobby of the indoor sport. Nobody knows more about wild life and the ways of the animals in the world than about half-educated in those fields.

The rule is that grouse nest in the cleft trees: but not infrequently they do. Naturally, there have to be exceptions to every rule. Rules has to be leaning, and with rough bark to climb. And so when I visited the farmhouse of a very expert gentleman who utters authoritative pronouncements on any subject having to do with sport out of doors. He accepted me with the fox had got up the tree.

Our farmer friend was a little annoyed at the authoritative airs of our pundit, and remarked that in his opinion "the fox just had to climb the tree", and that it was his intention to investigate and find out tree if it really had to. This, he said, was a pet belief of his, and he had accumulation of miracles. Our pundit was speechless with scorn.

The following Sunday, we got a hurry-up telephone call from the farmer, asking us to come party to come as fast as possible, as he had found the fox up in the tree. It was thirty foot tree, with a perfectly smooth, branchless trunk for twenty feet, sloping hastily, including our pundit, and went out to the bush. There was the fox, sitting on a poplar tree, hundled in a crotch, was an undoubted cotton tail.

The farmer went and got a ladder, and the pundit climbed over and limbed down. Our pundit was of the opinion that a great deal more had left it there. But the bunny was completely unharmed. It bounded away merrily.

After we had all agreed, including the pundit, that miracles can happen, the farmer, following an hour of tea and tea biscuits in his kitchen, confessed that he had put the bunny up the tree with his own hands in the first place.

Real woodsmen have a passion for pulling pundits' legs.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

"ABIDE WITH ME"

One of the most famous and beloved hymns ever written is "Abide With Me" by the Rev. H. F. Lyte. It is known and loved for both its beauty of wording, and beloved for the comfort it has given to millions of human beings. The author wrote it in but a single hour after preaching for the last time to his people, and knowing that he had but a few days to live.

This great hymn was written on but a single sheet of paper, eight lines to a side, and taking up both sides of the sheet. The hymn has been sung by countless thousands of men, from the British Cavell repeated it as she was being led to the firing squad, and sacrifice adding glory to scenes everywhere.

On the beach, during the evacuation of Dunkirk, a soldier played this immortal hymn on an accordion for the relief of the savage attack. Immediately every man on the beach began singing it. It was President McKinley's favorite, as it has been, and is to this day, of countless' others. It has brought comfort, hope and reassurance to all who have ever read or sung the words, "Abide with me; fast falling by W. H. Monk."

"Abide With Me" has been translated into many languages, so that its influence may well be said to be international, and world-wide in its fame and inspiring message. England, on a little rise in the ground between the sea, and the Westminster Abbey.

I quote the first verse:

"Abide with me! fast falls the eventide,
The darkness deepens; Lord with me abide!
When other helpers fail, and comforts flee,
Help of the helpless, oh, abide with me!"

(The author, in his revised version, had the word "Deepens" changed to "thickens"!)

Lament For Flea

(The Times of London)

Once a traditional enemy is laid low our sentiments towards him undergo a distinct change, gives way to compassion. After all he was an honest foeman and played the game according to his lights and we are sorry to see him brought down to this. So there is a moment of something like sadness in a report from an eminent naturalist in Vienna that the man-calling flea is almost extinct. It has become scarce even in the Balkans, which had been a "paradise for fleas."

The flea can, in the modern idiom, do his stuff. It is all very well to speak of some trifling discreet as a mere flealing but he can tickle. Then for numberless years he has been a source of humour. If John Leech could not have drawn a family of Cockneys scratching on the face, having suffered severely in their first night at a seaside lodging, the British mind might view this as the just visitation of the father's sin upon the son, for in accepting a peerage the elder Wedgwood Benn must have rebelled against his colleagues. And Sir Winston, steeped in tradition, knows Prime Ministers created the one aristocratic heir set the precedent of escaping from the Socialist wilderness of his class might shake the social order.

Perhaps the flea can be magnanimous, and perhaps he will put his weight behind Wedgwood Benn's petition — especially since it was he who as wartime Controller Franco Mildred persuaded the father to accept a peerage for reasons of party expediency rather as Lord Stansgate argues on his son's behalf, that an active political life is the only alternative to exile in the House of Lords.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY.

MAKING IT UNANIMOUS

Some courageous citizen, attending a panel discussion of something or other by doctors at the B'nai B'rith forum arose and asked the doctors for an opinion of Dr. Brady, a doctor on the panel who had said "Brady is very amusing," whether than the funny papers, and if read Brady religiously." But Brady, the doctor concluded, is a quack.

Dr. Brady

That's what I have been telling you folks for years.

I don't know what the panel doctor's specifications for a quack may be, but according to Webster a quack is one who professes knowledge in any matter of which he knows little or nothing. That's Brady, all right. Maybe I don't come right out and proclaim that I am a quack to every doctor, by, except when it is obvious they are all out of step but Brady.

In private practice you can get away with most anything — and quack it most of the time if you wish, and nobody will raise a murmur about it. You are accused at victim who, aiding and abetted by one of your confederates, — of course your malpractice defence insurance takes care of such annoyances.

In print everything you say in reference to medicine, surgery and the steadily increasing number of full time or part time specialties is carefully reviewed by thousands of medical critics like the panel doctor quoting above. If your opinion or teaching does not square with what he or his coterie favors this season you are then labeled a quack.

One newspaper editor, referring to the forum panel's member's assertion that Brady is amusing, better than the funny papers and a quack, recalls that Brady from time to time refers to himself facetiously as a quack.

I realize now that I shouldn't have. The editor is right, though it is not always facetiously. Consciously or not, when I make a positive or negative assertion speculating to health in this column—as I do nearly every day—and quack, or quack, I expect to explain that it is just my belief or opinion or the view of this or that clearly identified authority—I am quacking it within the accepted meaning of the word.

Had I not acknowledged that I am a quack, I might have left myself open to the B'nai B'rith panel doctor for slander or something. His malpractice defence insurance probably wouldn't cover the damages I might win in such an action. Even at that, I can you see a man, or even hear him, by telling the truth? For that matter, if the panel doctor were in my place and I in his, I'm sure I'd stop at calling him a quack.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

What was the loneliest moment of your life? Can you remember your first day at school, when you mother left you in a strange room full of strange children? Or perhaps it was a dance; you stood alone on the edge of a big room where everyone else seemed to be having fun, and you wondered even talk to you. Perhaps you can recall your first night away from home, when the darkness closed over you in an unfamiliar bed, and you would have given anything to be back home in your own room.

How can a man be lonely in a world of men? Yet it happens all the time, and the worst loneliness is not that of solitude, but that of the crowd—when there are hundreds of people on all sides, but not one with you in a deep interest efforts in life are to avoid loneliness. We make friends, start clubs, join groups, marry and have families, establish ourselves in communities and churches, but the loneliness may overtake us.

Is there any sure guarantee against loneliness? Only one, and it lies in an inner, not an outer relationship. The Lord is right unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth." "Fear not: for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God."

Burned Up Over Berries

(Sudbury Daily Star)

Conservationists familiar with forest fires know the destruction by which new growth starts after a forest fire. The mosses and lichens are followed by the grasses, shrubs and trees.

There is one stage at which blueberry bushes will appear in profusion in the burned area but after bushes have left an acid condition in the soil.

Northerners have noted that fine blueberry patches often follow bush fires but there is now a practice in regions north of Quebec City to deliberately set fires to encourage blueberry growth.

Lieutenant Duplessis has noted this deliberate destruction of forest growth and has instructed Forest Service Legislature that something will be done to put an end to it.

Opposed to him are the blueberry pickers who estimate the berry crop accounts for $4,000,000 from the blueberry areas in a good year, most of their fruit going to the United States markets.

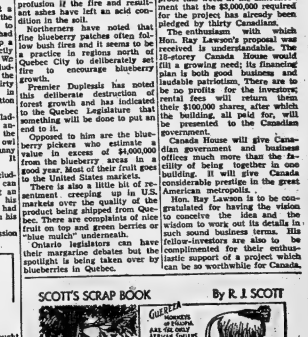
There is also a little bit of sentiment creeping up in U.S. markets over the quality of blueberries being shipped from Quebec. There are complaints of nice fruit on top and green berries or blue mould underneath.

Ontario legislators can have their narrative of duties but in the spotlight is being taken over by blueberries in Quebec.

Canada House Plan Approved

(Montreal Gazette)

It is only 14 months since Hon. Ray Lawson, Canadian Chancellor of the Exchequer in New York, outlined his proposal for a privately-financed Canada House to be built in that city. The soundness of his plan has been given its seal of approval this week in the announcement that the $3,000,000 required for the project has been completely pledged by thirty Canadians.



The Christmas season which Hon. Ray Lawson's proposal was received is understandable. The Canadian Chancellor knew would fill a growing need; its financing fire to public imagination and laudable patriotism. There are to be no profits for the investors; their reward will be interest on their $100,000 shares, after which the building will be sold, or be presented to the Canadian government.

Canada House will give Canadian government and business a place much more in keeping with its dignity of being together in one building. It will give Canada considerable prestige in the United American metropolis.

Hon. Ray Lawson is to be congratulated for having the vision to conceive the idea and the initiative to carry out his plan in such sound business terms. His fellow-Canadians are also to be complimented for their enthusiastic support of a project which can be so worthwhile for Canada.

Quinte Secondary School News

(Editor's note: This is the first in a series of weekly columns devoted to the activities at Quinte Secondary School. The column, written by students, will appear each Saturday on page 5, as one of The Ontario Intelligencer's week-end features.).

This is the first in a series of news roundups from the new Quinte Secondary School. Every Saturday you will find printed in this space all the news items from our school.

"Discendo Omnibus Crescimus"—"To learn is to grow in all ways."

This is our school motto chosen by the combined efforts of the teachers and students. Many suggested mottoes were considered and their pros and cons were debated for several weeks. The finished motto really justifies the amount of time spent in picking it. We are very proud to have "Discendo Omnibus Crescimus" for our motto.

LOCKERS

There were smiling faces all around the school on Monday because this was the day that we got our lockers. It has been very inconvenient for the teachers as well as the students for their filing cabinets have been draped with coats and 'kerchiefs for the past two months. Students have had to carry their books for all classes, but all this came to an end on Monday. The lockers are installed and already mirrors and timetables have been put up on the doors.

GYM OPENINGS

Monday finally saw our new gymnasium and auditorium opened. The workers are still putting up the equipment but we have been using it for our P.T. classes. We have certainly been taking advantage of our new gym this week.

Both the boys and girls have been practising very hard on basketball. They practise all noon-hour and from 4 o'clock to 6 o'clock. Miss Howson, Mr. Slson and Mr. Hayman have certainly been working hard to prepare the teams for competition.

The gym may not look large enough now to the door may be closed to make two separate gyms. The dressing rooms have lockers for clothes and books. During the P.T. classes each student has a separate locker. There are also showers which can be used after our P.T. classes.

FIRST DANCE

The students' council is holding the first dance in our new school. It will be on Friday, January 22, at 8:30. This dance will feature a Rock 'n Roll orchestra. We are hoping to have a good representation from the other secondary schools.

"Quintessence" is the name of our "First" dance which Mr. Shantz and her committee are now organizing. Form were representatives have been elected, and the writing of different sections of the book have been assigned to various students.

CAMERA CLUB

The Camera Club sponsored a snapshot contest recently and the results were very encouraging. There were two classes, scenery and portraits. First prize in the scenery division went to Jack Vaughan of G9C. Her entry was an excellent view.

Second prize went to Paul Millard for a view of a road, winding through a gently sloping countryside. Third prize for a scene of a winding road went to Beth Fowell of G9C.

Second prize went to Alta Lang of G11C for an interesting portrait of a boy.

Third prize was given to a picture of a small boy by Betty Bates of G9C. Congratulations to Mr. Tanner and the Camera Club.

UNITED NATIONS

A small but very hard working club of Quinte Secondary School is the United Nations' Club. So far they have contributed $82 to the "Canadian Save the Children Fund," by taking "Shell-Out" cans around to houses last Hallowe'en. They also sold 200 Christmas UNICEF greeting cards. This money goes to the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund —an agency operated by the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations.

The present project of the United Nations Club is the preparing of a scrapbook to be sent to the Hospital for Incurable Children.

GLEE CLUB

Every Monday at noon, about 40 musical students gather in Mr. Wright's room. These students make up the Glee Club of Quinte Secondary School. Under the expert management of Mr. Wright, our music teacher, they are preparing several numbers which will be presented in the school soon. A "girls' chorus" has also been formed which meets on Thursday at noon. Miss Helen Burkett of G11B is the pianist at these two meetings.

MISCELLANEOUS

The girls of Grade 11 went skating on a self-made rink beside the school last Friday.

The Vegetable Growers held a banquet in our cafeteria Thursday, which Miss Hanna and her home economic girls served.

The inspectors are expected to be visiting our school next week.

INVESTIGATE FLOODS

LONDON (AP)—Viscount Waverley said Friday that British scientists have dropped radioactive material into the sea in an effort to determine what caused the floods two years ago along the coast of eastern England, the Netherlands and Belgium. To trace tide and silt reaction, quantities of scandium, a radioactive isotope, were dumped into the sea and its course plotted. "This gives us information about the movement of tides, silt beds and so on," Lord Waverly said.

The staff and students of the Quinte Secondary School wish to take this opportunity to thank Mrs. Ruth Bailey Howson for this space so that we can bring you all the news from Quinte Secondary School.

Business Slumps In Restaurants Of East Germany

BERLIN (Reuters)—Staffs of the state-owned restaurants in Communist East Berlin fear numerous dismissals now that the East German government has made it too expensive for West Germans to eat and drink there.

Business has slumped in the restaurants, for the prices are beyond the purse of the average East Berliner.

The Communist government has ruled that West Germans must pay in West German currency when eating in these restaurants. The official exchange rate of East and West marks is fixed at one to one, although West Berlin exchange booths sell four to five East marks for one West mark.

WAITRESSES

Waiters look in vain for the usual guests from the "capitalist" West in East Berlin's show places: The Warschau in Stalin Allee, the Restaurant Budapest and the Hotel Johannishof.

Privately, they say that they believe a general food shortage has prompted the East German government to discourage Western guests.

The East Berlin restaurants had been hugely subsidized. Menu documents which could have an excellent Hungarian goulash, for instance, said that it was made entirely in West Berlin.

Now, each guest has to show his identity card to the waiter before he orders and 'anyone found to be from the West German currency area is required to pay in West marks.

Health Minister Is Encouraged By Red Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Martin said Friday night the degree of agreement reached so far with Russia on disarmament and the peaceful use of atomic energy is encouraging.

The minister, who has been heading Canada's delegation to the United Nations, said there still remains "a wide gap between the free democracies and the authoritarian Communist regimes."

"But is there any real evidence that the masters of the Kremlin have abandoned their dreams of spreading the dark curse of communism."

He made the statements in the text of an address on the free-time political broadcast the Nation's Business over a CBC trans-Canada network.

The text was issued to the press before delivery.

Mr. Martin said the final decision as to which road the world's people will follow will turn not on weapons or words, but on the soundness of the two conflicting ways of life that now stand in bold contrast one another—democratic freedom or totalitarian dictatorship.

Seat For China Seen Reds' Price For 11 Airmen

By WILLIAM HARCOURT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP) Dag Hammarskjold believes an improvement in relations between the United States and Red China may be needed before Red China releases the 11 American fliers she has jailed as spies.

At a press conference Friday— the first since his return Thursday from the Peiping talks with Premier Chou En-lai—the United Nations secretary-general indicated that this improvement might possibly include admission of Red China to the UN.

However, he emphatically stated that neither he nor Red China's premier had suggested "deals or any kind" during their talks.

He reiterated his belief that Red China eventually should be admitted to the UN.

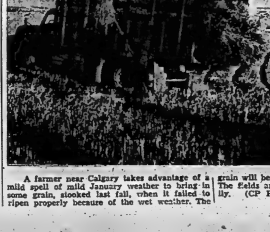
ADMISSION USEFUL

"From the point of view of the United Nations, it would be useful if that very great country—after all, it has nearly 600,000,000 people—were directly represented here."

The U. S. has taken a public stand of bitter opposition to the admission of Red China.

Hammarskjold said such problems as the case of the fliers "are more easily solved in a less frozen atmosphere than the present one."

He said that with Chou had been successful insofar as they were influenced in world opinion.



"... We must support the United Nations in its efforts so long as those efforts hold out any promise of success."

KESTRAINT URGED

President Eisenhower touched on restraint in a statement issued in Washington Friday on the immediate American reacting to Hammarskjold's statement with disappointment but he warned against thoughts of reprisal or retaliation.

"We must trust in the community of nations and in the tremendous influence of world opinion. ... We must support the United Nations in its efforts so long as those efforts hold out any promise of success."

JANUARY HARVEST

Liberal Member Claims Monopoly In Woodpulp

OTTAWA (CP)—Three Quebec newsprint manufacturers have a voice accused in the Commons of monopoly practices in buying pulpwood from western Quebec farmers.

Rodolphe Leduc, Liberal member for Gatineau, Friday night told Justice Minister Garson to order an inquiry under the Combines Investigation Act. Mr. Garson was in the House at the time but offered no statement.

The Quebec member named the three companies during the throne speech debate as E. B. Eddy Company, Hull; Canadian International Paper, Gatineau Mills, and James MacLaren Company, Masson. Mr. Leduc said the three firms fixed at $13.50 a cord the price they will pay farmers along the Gatineau and la Lievre rivers for spruce and fir.

SAYS PRICE LOWER

The price, he said, is lower than that paid woodcutting contractors who operate the companies' own timber limits. He indicated the price ceiling in these areas is $20 a cord.

Speaking in French, Mr. Leduc said:

"The price paid by these companies for pulpwood is ridiculous when compared to the price of newsprint and finished paper and construction materials made with pulp which the companies sell.

"The reason for this low price to farmers and settlers is a combine of the companies mentioned which exploit the farmer and settler to their own advantage and this combine unfortunately has existed for too long."

AGREES IN PART

He said the Catholic Farmers' Union and Farmers' co-operatives in his constituency have asked him to make the matter public so "they might obtain a just and equitable price for the pulpwood they sell to these companies and which represents the revenue that all RCAF members and their families are welcome to attend the classes."

Mrs. W. H. Ingram reported that 28 Airforce babies were born at the Belleville Hospital during the month of December.

This was the first of a two game goals to count semi-final series for the upper school floor hockey championship. In the dying minutes of the game with the score tied 8-8 and Targon sitting in the penalty box, Bunkard blasted a hard shot from the blueline which whizzed by the astonished Clements like the proverbial bullet. This goal was the winner even though the Rigabites were shorthanded at the time with the game's only penalty. Then, with only seconds remaining, left Farnsworth missed a great chance to tie it up when he burst in all alone on Moore, defied him out of position but shot the puck over the goal. Bunkard scored both four goals and one assist and Vaughan with three goals led the winners to victory. Bill Jones had one goal and one assist.

White scored a goal and Miller an assist for Dr. Losers Farnsworth scored five goals and one assist. Deacon and two Grills had two goals each while Cain had one goal and four assists. Meyers and Morris each received assists.

Further Layoffs In Avro Plants

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— The recent layoff of 1,100 workers at Avro Aircraft Limited will lead to further layoffs of 3,000-4,000 employees by sub-contractors of Avro in the Toronto area, Roy Begley, a delegate to the Ontario Federation of Labor convention here said today.

Mr. Begley said his delegation will introduce an emergency resolution condemning the federal government for cutting back Avro's production of CF-100 jet aircraft by 25 per cent.

He said the jobs of 35,000 in Ontario depend on production at Avro. Recent layoffs at the aircraft plant account for 18 per cent of the company's production employees, he added.

World Tour by Cargo-Liner

By Lavonia Stockdeph

Editor's note:—The author started her four-month journey from Newport News, Virginia, through the Panama Canal to Los Angeles and then on to Japan. This week's article is devoted to a scenic trip by car from Tokyo to Nikko site of the famous Buddhist shrine.

We sailed from Los Angeles to Yokohama in eighteen days, perfect days of sailing on an ocean that so far as we were concerned was rightly named Pacific. There was not a little time to spend in Japan that I decided to put away from the cities, so after transferring from the car that took us to Tokyo, changing American into Japanese money, I started on a ninety-one mile drive to Nikko in the interior.

There were trains and buses but they never stop where the scenery is the most interesting so I ordered seven hours of the very worst road I have ever encountered except for one little stretch where I was caught in the mud and said to my chauffeur, "Let's go." He had not much English but he got my meaning and could not read the sign in English "Speed, keep strictly," so we soon found ourselves in the hands of the law.

The surrounding were charming, but in any country the law soon loses its fearsome. We had to draw up to the side of the road and we had plenty of occasion for there was a long queue in both directions, a varied assortment from a horse drawn cart through many a long table under the trees around which five uniformed men sat, a long counter and mail making notes in formidable looking books.

While this was going on, the car was surrounded by about two-score children, who were quite friendly with which the nice shiny car was mercilessly daubed and generally by the time we were relieved by use of the sign language we had become quite intimate. We did not go away until the chauffeur returning they heard words that they understood, and we were started at full speed. But they had had a grand time scrubbing the super specimen of humanity, jumping on the running board and waving to the new-comers who wanted a look. I don't think they thought much of me.

FAMOUS HOTEL

We continued on our way to the Nikko National Park and that most famous hotel of the Emperors on all the great of the world seem to have stayed at one time or another. The chief reason for taking the long drive was to view the wonderful avenue of Japanese cedars (Cryptomeria) lining the road on both sides. The road itself is fine before the protruding roots of the trees planted three hundred years ago. Forty thousand trees had been originally planted, but of those only eighteen thousand remain. The sun was setting brilliantly behind them and soon birds were singing in their midst while here and there through a break in the glad trunks could be seen the quaint cone-shaped hills that are wooded to the top. It was a glorious panorama of reflections from the sun and the clear sky overhead.

It is said that the trees were planted by a man who could not afford to contribute money to buildings to a shrine that he was deeply erected in honor of, but he took more than twenty trillion years to plant these thousands of trees which for the most part have stood up well, but in some places the road has been cut right in two through there openings that the surrounding country could be seen, but the trees have recorded roots and mighty trunks.

THE WELCOME SIGHT

Those last twenty five miles of tree-lined avenue were a particularly fine sight after a succession of them dizzy with fatigue and with darkness approaching. The first sight to be politely welcomed at the hotel not though it was well past the dinner hour, a delicious meal was provided for me while I bathed and dressed for dinner. The dark forms of the hills seemed to enfold without crushing the peacefulness of the valley, the music of the mountain stream just below the hotel was the only sound of the nightingales. This was the good side of Japan.

The journalist I found myself as if strutting in the trees that grew so close. A nightingale in the room or other bird tried unsuccessfully to surpass it.

I took a book, tried and succeeded after a time. To my left was a gorge and a little red bridge that was kept closed except during 3 on a festival day. Beyond the first Sergeant was served by the most quiet and friendly little Japanese girls I ever encountered waiting for my car and interpreter the daughter of the hotel owner. Just before me, having noticed on my coat a very glorious maple leaf that I had picked up in the valley.

One after another maple-leaf I found and laid on my table and as I had found a maple leaf in every country I had been in the world something had to be done about it. The brooches we can now have are so crude that one does not want to have one. An effort was made to have one made in the Netherlands where they can still do good enamelling but the price of eighty-five dollars was beyond me so I had embroidered a beauty. A real Japanese maple leaf I decided would look esoteric beside it, though I tried to copy a leaf I had picked up in a small town.

The young girl, the third generation of the original builder, was on holiday from the university where she was studying sociology, and as we stood under a maple tree in the garden she noted how much more delicately colored the leaves are than ours. Japan is noted for its lovely maples and there is the same autumn coloring that we so look forward to in Canada. There is one short step we had long talks on politics, religion, art, music and the late war. It was an illuminating talk and once again I was in search of the humanitarian nature of the young oriental towards old people. Whether it is the cause of Buddha or the behavior of the old, I have not been able to determine.

HIGH FALLS

Then the car was ready and we started to go toward the mountains. In a few minutes the scenery began to come to the copper mines. You lift up your eyes to the surrounding hills, the highest of which is 7,200 feet with trees to summits of 6,000 feet, 5,000 feet, 4,000 feet, 300 feet high, the hill-surrounded Lake Chuzenji and in the setting of the hills, the Falls of Kegon. The Falls are 320 feet high and you can look down to the bottom in an elevator and at the time we visit there were hundreds and hundreds of girl and boy scouts having a very good time, and curiously interested in this foreigner who asked their name for in the book that were wheeling and darting aloft and the young ones made the acquaintance of a gay little chorus of untied Japanese and English of Hello, Marian, Goodbye. Again I was to marvel that so many children could be so at one and blissful. One of the scout masters spoke English and were able to answer my many questions.

My interpreter attendant to the hotel to find that a Buddhist and from him I learned a very little of that religion. At one shrine my interpreted he was careful to wash out his mouth at the fountain before saying his prayers. His prayer consists of 108 beads. His rosary contains 600 years to collect. The Mohammedans have three sets, one of 33, one of 66, one of 99 beads. Mohammed was the 99th of our era.) There was a very beautiful set for sale but I felt a hearty five dollars but was hardly worth that to me who cannot at all understand the use of such prayer-paraments to prayer. But I did get a beautiful rosary made of wood circles, one of black shiny beads interspersed with two white and one deep red with the tassel. Another attached to a deep purple silk chord, it was about two inches in diameter. The others were larger and chiefly white.

GONE IS ROUNDED

Before beginning to say his prayers a gong was sounded to attract the attention of Buddha and not after being prayed to. As I waited for my guide I had a little chat with devout worshippers sounded a similar gong at nearby altars, and I was told that the old silken cushion he asked me if there was anyone for whom I wished prayer to be said. There was, but I have not yet heard from the interpreter at present know of the efficacy of these prays but of the solemn devotion of the worshipper there could be no doubt.

I was told that it took four and one half million laborers seventeen months to construct I do not know many of these 17 twenty-three main premises. The exquisite workmanship beauty of the unique sculptures were almost bewildering. There was no stinting of money for here are acres of money are spent on the upkeep and one could almost hear the rustle of the leaf used would cover, I think, five acres to extent.

It would only be tiresome to try to describe each of these temples and quite impossible to describe the wonderful paintings in the inner rooms of some of them to which I was admitted for the very amusing reason that there was a difficulty in finding a guide who could translate me and translated my answers to the questions they asked. Incidentally it was a great relief to walk in my stocking feet on the soft matting of the interior where one could view the darkest corners only by means of the large doors that let in the light from the sun. I was charmed with the many renditions of the Buddha, especially the one which is so different from the Western, but which I like best of all was the hundred armed statue of the Goddess of Mercy. I could not help but wonder if the artist of them were giving out some gift to each arm instead of a gift, a most heartening idea.

TWENTY-THREE BUILDINGS

There are twenty-three main buildings, the most beautiful temple of the Sacred Shrines in Nikko and among them there is the Sacred Stable and the Sacred Stable but there is no sacred horse there now. The last one I saw served but often reproduced monkey tile, the ones that hear, see, and speak no evil and speak no evil. It is a study in sins and blues. The first monkey is covering his ears so as not to hear, right is the speak no evil; to his right another covers his eyes, the no evil. It seems to me something worse than absurd. The spirit of evil must reject before deaf, dumb and blind trio. Something may be said for the see no evil, hear no evil but there can be no excuse for the one who covers his face to avoid seeing evil and closes his ears to avoid hearing evil and thus escape the responsibility of doing evil. Perhaps some one could carve the temptation, temptation to see clearly sees the evil, one who cannot but hear it and the third and most respected of them, the one who speaks strongly against the evil-doing and condemning redress.

Some day I should like to go Shikoku Nikko in the time of the autumn coloring and the maple trees, and have more time for the study of the details of the paintings and sculpture.

A NEWSOME TWOSOME

By VERA WINSTON

Separates in grinding infinite variety offer wonderful wardrobe possibilities. They do away with costly alternations even for problem figure proportion. Here, for later afternoon wear, is one of some, each individually good. Together they add up to a smart costume.

The blouse is white tissue faille, the wide V-necked neckline is finished with a notched collar. The skirt, black satin, has a fringed summerset and few gathers from the waist and hip pockets.

because in this too the family is the unit."

ITEMS OF CHURCH NEWS

In the Nippon News there was a paragraph from Vatican city: the Church advised those on a visit to donate an eye to a sightless person. "Building Fund" consent of a important part of one's organism is to make an act of proprietorship upon life that does not belong to us. The good intention does not suffice for such a high act."

Millions of dollars of military equipment in Indo-China may be diverted to Japan. Quantities of arms are being routed for temporary storage in the Philippines.

) The drive up to Kegon Falls was of indescribable beauty. The cool and the birches making one feel almost at home. The Falls are 320 feet high and you can look down to the bottom in an elevator and at the time we visit there were hundreds and hundreds of girl and boy scouts having a very good time, and curiously interested in this foreigner who asked their name for in the book that were wheeling and darting aloft and the young ones made the acquaintance of a gay little chorus of untied Japanese and English of Hello, Marian, Goodbye. Again I was to marvel that so many children could be so at one and blissful. One of the scout masters spoke English and were able to answer my many questions.

My interpreter attendant to the hotel to find that a Buddhist and from him I learned a very little of that religion. At one shrine my interpreted he was careful to wash out his mouth at the fountain before saying his prayers. His prayer consists of 108 beads. His rosary contains 600 years to collect. The Mohammedans have three sets, one of 33, one of 66, one of 99 beads. Mohammed was the 99th of our era.) There was a very beautiful set for sale but I felt a hearty five dollars but was hardly worth that to me who cannot at all understand the use of such prayer-paraments to prayer. But I did get a beautiful rosary made of wood circles, one of black shiny beads interspersed with two white and one deep red with the tassel. Another attached to a deep purple silk chord, it was about two inches in diameter. The others were larger and chiefly white.

GONE IS ROUNDED

Before beginning to say his prayers a gong was sounded to attract the attention of Buddha and not after being prayed to. As I waited for my guide I had a little chat with devout worshippers sounded a similar gong at nearby altars, and I was told that the old silken cushion he asked me if there was anyone for whom I wished prayer to be said. There was, but I have not yet heard from the interpreter at present know of the efficacy of these prays but of the solemn devotion of the worshipper there could be no doubt.

I was told that it took four and one half million laborers seventeen months to construct I do not know many of these 17 twenty-three main premises. The exquisite workmanship beauty of the unique sculptures were almost bewildering. There was no stinting of money for here are acres of money are spent on the upkeep and one could almost hear the rustle of the leaf used would cover, I think, five acres to extent.

It would only be tiresome to try to describe each of these temples and quite impossible to describe the wonderful paintings in the inner rooms of some of them to which I was admitted for the very amusing reason that there was a difficulty in finding a guide who could translate me and translated my answers to the questions they asked. Incidentally it was a great relief to walk in my stocking feet on the soft matting of the interior where one could view the darkest corners only by means of the large doors that let in the light from the sun. I was charmed with the many renditions of the Buddha, especially the one which is so different from the Western, but which I like best of all was the hundred armed statue of the Goddess of Mercy. I could not help but wonder if the artist of them were giving out some gift to each arm instead of a gift, a most heartening idea.

TWENTY-THREE BUILDINGS

There are twenty-three main buildings, the most beautiful temple of the Sacred Shrines in Nikko and among them there is the Sacred Stable and the Sacred Stable but there is no sacred horse there now. The last one I saw served but often reproduced monkey tile, the ones that hear, see, and speak no evil and speak no evil. It is a study in sins and blues. The first monkey is covering his ears so as not to hear, right is the speak no evil; to his right another covers his eyes, the no evil. It seems to me something worse than absurd. The spirit of evil must reject before deaf, dumb and blind trio. Something may be said for the see no evil, hear no evil but there can be no excuse for the one who covers his face to avoid seeing evil and closes his ears to avoid hearing evil and thus escape the responsibility of doing evil. Perhaps some one could carve the temptation, temptation to see clearly sees the evil, one who cannot but hear it and the third and most respected of them, the one who speaks strongly against the evil-doing and condemning redress.

Some day I should like to go Shikoku Nikko in the time of the autumn coloring and the maple trees, and have more time for the study of the details of the paintings and sculpture.

Emptying The Mail Bag

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Help us catch up on the mail this week.

(P) "I've seen conflicting reports on whether one ought to up an airplane driver. What is the right fee, say?" — P. L., Laurelton, New York.

(A) If the limousine is a bus, it is never done. In the smaller seven-to twelve-passenger jobs, the driver usually gets what he can. In the big city carriers, on the other hand, usually expect one, especially if the baggage is unusually heavy, certs or $1.10 and it's easy for you to say "keep the change," in spite of the fact that you know that it is nothing to earn a tip. If the fare is $1.10 make it $1.50 or $2.00. Then they've usually learned not to expect the passenger to fish around for change.

(Q) "I've heard so much about the difficulties of making connections, being misdirected and lost by airlines and railroads that I'm afraid to do anything about it traveling. Do you have any tips about how to travel so as to best keep track of his own bags?" — M. J., Chicago, Illinois.

(A) This problem turns up far less often than the gossip you hear would indicate. Most cities solve the problem, of course, in carry the baggage from the train but we encourage this and airlines permit it on the smaller planes with baggage now in general use.

If your bags are not too large and you have only one piece, you will be allowed to carry it on four-engine planes.

Both rail and airline baggage handling, incidentally, are noticeably improved since the effort to shorten the life of an expensive piece of baggage is to check it frequently.

SAVE TIME!

By carrying your bags you may save time getting away from the airport since you won't have to wait for transportation until check-in baggage is unloaded. Unfortunately, however, in smaller cities, where flights, limousines and taxis usually wait until baggage is unloaded.

If you do check your bags through, the railroads like to have you do so a day or two in advance of your own departure: it's the only way they get around the baggage will be there when you are. The airlines, however, prefer that you check only on the flight on which you are going.

Before you leave the airline connection, it's best to carry your bags, if at all possible, to the departure gate with you. If from there, since there is some chance of your baggage not being transferred in time. Also, if you're changing to more than one flight, there is more risk of your baggage getting lost.

You can further help yourself to avoid misdirection by having the limousine driver unloads your bags (if you checked them at the down-town airline office) and that the airport agent puts the correct airline and flight numbers on the baggage check. Then, at the departure point show the passenger agent your check and ask him to make sure the bags are transferred.

GAS PRICES HIGHER

(Q) "Is it true that gas prices on super will be higher this year than the average for the area. If so, why?" — S.S.P., Pensacola, Fla.

(A) Yes, often they are quite a bit higher. It seems unfair to the consumer, but oil companies pay the state dearly for the privilege of selling gas on these non-access roads and they naturally add the cost back some how.

(Q) "Is it unusually little profit in just pumping gas; most ordinary neighborhood service stations seem to be doing a driving business there is little servicing done on the toll roads, I suppose, but the thrifty driver could fill up before getting on the road?"

(A) Not usually. You lose all the substantial savings of round trip discounts, through fares and joint rates, if you do.

NAME TRAINS NOT SCENIC

(Q) "Are the famous name trains usually best for scenic viewing?" — J.H., Tacoma, Wash.

(A) It's surprising but the answer is no. Trains are usually designed for the business man in a hurry and the most direct—but not always the most scenic—route. A majority of them, too, are overnight jobs. Daylight trains are preferable.

If you're not in a hurry enroute, a travel or railroad agent can help you plan a trip which would take you over less direct routes and also so return over a different route at no extra charge.

(Q) "On international airline flights, is the baggage allowance the same as for first class flights?" — Mrs. R., Kansas City Mo.

(A) Yes.

QUESTION: . . . have clipped many of your excellent recipes to my already bulging files. Incidentally I am an ardent "Cook Book" collector and have some from all over the world, over a hundred, as well as a card index containing well over 5,000 recipes and usually I can find what I am looking for . . . this however I am stumped. My family and I are "Ham" enthusiasts, both hot and cold. In fact I always like to have one in the refrigerator and we find like plenty of ham dish. I have tried dozens of cooking methods, but have never been able to equal the flavor and easy slicing type of ham sold as "Fully cooked 'not ready to eat.' Surely there must be a way to get equal results? I have tried baking, pressure-cooking, boiling and combinations of methods without results. Perhaps you can help me . . . Here is a very simple recipe. Usually we take them for picnic meals when ski-ing or swimming.

SCOTCH EGGS

(Contributed by R.)

Six hard-cooked eggs, 1 lb. sausage meat, a little flour, 1 egg beaten with 1 teaspoon water, dry breadcrumbs, fat for frying. Boil eggs and roll meat through flour. Divide sausage meat in 6 equal portions and cover each in enough meat to cover evenly as possible to keep egg in good shape. Brush over with beaten egg mixture and roll in crumbs, patting them on firmly. Fry in deep fat in frying basket for quently until brown on all sides and strained and drained through. Drain on paper towel. Cool. Slice in half, crosswise before serving. Or halved and served cold and hot, with a well-flavored tomato sauce.

ANSWER:

Thank you for this egg recipe. I feel that it may be useful for most of the purposes that one would use ordinary hard-cooked eggs for and then some, but I think it has another purpose. Eggs are inexpensive and by using them in this recipe 1 lb. of sausage meat could be made to stretch to serve six people adequately in an interesting way.

I can qualify to the method of one manufacturer of cooked ham with confidence. I think what I am going to tell you is the principle used by all ham processors. The moisture in ham is retained by very long cooking at very low temperature, people meeting as low as 132 deg. Fahr. which is just a little above pasteurization temperature. The hams are then packed in aluminum molds and pressed with strong spring-held covers before immersion. Some manufacturers hold them at these low temperatures for 8 to 13 hours. In the home you could roughly copy them by wrapping them with rind on and bone in in triple thickness of parchment paper and immerse it in hot water with rind on and keep temperature at 160 deg. Fahr. for 8 hours, and let it cool in the water. Flavorings could be added to the water if desired but the manufacturers do not add them.

QUESTION:

. . . in looking over old issues . . . I am special recipe for pressure cooked cakes. . . . I have a No. 9 pressure canner. . . I cooked cakes or pies on three metal sealer rings. . . . Could you in making angel or sponge cakes care must be taken not to get cake too high in cooker or it will plug vents. . . of course the pressure gauge is not used in this process

I used any recipe I wished and made of all types . . . to tell when cakes are done (tips will sound odd) when the steam stops escaping. . . at first it is very moist but as the cake cools it becomes dry and you can smell that the cake is nearly cooked . . . one disadvantage is that the rubber gasket becomes dry from the high heat and has to be replaced before doing the fall canning.—I. E. S.

ANSWER:

Thanks for passing on to us the results of your experiments with the smelling technique did not sound odd to me at all—I often use it.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HER HUSBAND TAKES ALL, GIVES NOTHING

When you have a clock that doesn't go, a tool that's broken, a piece of household equipment that doesn't work, or anything else around the house that's become completely useless what do you do about it?

Well, that depends on the type of temperament you have. If you have energy and initiative, you get busy finding out whether or not it's possible to make the thing useful again. If not, you get rid of it. On the other hand, if you're the sort who just lets things slide along as they are, because it's easier than making an effort to change them, you'll probably let the useless article sit around day in and day out, doing nobody any good and very likely getting in the way.

Here's a woman who seems to be the latter type, and here's the story of her grievances:

"I have one of the most useless husband in the world. He never puts a thing back in its proper way.

"When he gets home from work in the evening, he wants dinner to be ready right on the minute he comes in. Then, afterward, instead of giving me a hand with the dishes, he goes into the living room and lies down on the couch to read the paper and take a nap, after which he gets up and goes to the pool room, and doesn't get home until midnight.

"He does this every night of the week, while I stay home alone. On Sunday, when he does stay home, he lies around all day, and when he finally gets up and washes and eats, I must have everything ready and waiting for him. He expects me to wait on him and cook, cook, in addition to doing all the work around the house, even putting coal in the furnace.

"What do you think you would do with such a husband?

"You want to know what I would do, Lady? Well, I'd do with a useless husband what I'd do with any other useless thing around the house, so I suggest you do the beginning. First, I'd give it a chance to make itself useful again, and if that didn't work I'd dispense with it. But definitely.

"I'd go the first part of my program by telling him calmly but firmly that marriage is a partnership, that you're ready to do your share but not both yours and his. I'd say that's his home as much as yours, and if he's not interested in helping to keep it up, you're going to do it for him. I'd add that if you have to do all the work to make a home for your baby and yourself, anyway, you'd prefer to do it under a roof you'd provided for the two of you, rather than in a house with a husband who goes off and leaves you alone every night. I'd do my best to avoid quarreling, but I'd make it all very clear.

"Then I'd give him a reasonable length of time to see what he is going to do about the situation. And if what he did was exactly nothing, I'd pack a come home one night and find the house cold and still and supper ready to be eaten, nobody, but nobody, around. For in the meantime, you would have made a plan as to what you'd do. If you have parents, relatives, or friends you could stay with until you had time to turn around, get in touch with them first and settle things for that. If not, figure out some place you can go to stay for a while.

If necessary, get a job and start supporting yourself.

It may be that this would bring that husband of yours around so that that he'd be coming after you before you even had a chance to start learning a living. And you'd decide, of course, consider your separation irrevocable. But you'd be better prepared to make it so, if results show that your husband isn't quite satisfied with your absence, and content to write himself off as a total loss.

A "GRAB BAG" full of tiny, inexpensive toys and gadgets comes in handy when your child is sick, or when you are to be away from home for a few days. Wrap each one separately, and let Junior reach in for a daily surprise.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TOO BAD . . . SHE CHOSE ELABORATE DRESSES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm engaged to be married, and I need your advice, please. I was engaged to a man who is very important socially and professionally, and I guess I lost my head when I made some of the plans for my wedding. Now that our engagement is broken, I don't want to do all the things I should do, return all presents and so forth. But one thing I don't know quite what to do about is the question of the elaborate, the too-elaborate, dresses I chose for my wedding attendants, maid of honor and two bridesmaids. They were quite expensive, the girls bought them, and they are dresses that (now I realize too late) the girls would really have no use for. What in the world can I do about this, to make amends? — Dorothea M.

Although I'm very, very sorry about this unhappiness and worry you are going through, I am proud of you for taking this human point of view about the buying of the dresses. I do think that you should do everything possible to help the girls who had to buy the dresses, and should talk it over straightforwardly with the girls. Perhaps some of the wedding-budget set aside by you and your family, and not used for its original assignment, might be used toward the payment for the dresses, or at least part of the payment. Or perhaps a dressmaker, yours or theirs, might be able skillfully to convert the "elaborate" dresses into simple, more usable dresses. (If that could be done, you of course should pay for the alterations.)

ENVELOPE TO TWO SISTERS, BROTHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to address my wedding invitations the way you told to on one, somewhat limited number. I am trying to make one invitation "cover" a family. The other day in your column you gave directions how to do this when mother and father and children were to be included, and I'm following these practice directions. Another kind of question, please: When I address an invitation to two sisters, unmarried, and a bachelor brother, who live at the same address, what is correct?

—Patricia M. .

Write the sisters' names separately, the older first, and the brother's name underneath. Like this:

Miss Mary Leigh
Miss Janet Leigh
Mr. Arthur Leigh

Also correct:

The Misses Leigh
Mr. Arthur Leigh

The Queen Has New Bodyguard

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen has a new bodyguard — a suave, dapper policeman who discreetly carried his gun under a jacket specially-tailored to conceal the tell-tale bulge.

Superintendent A. E. Perkins, 47, a London policeman since 1927, has been appointed to the job, it was announced today.

He has been keeping a protective watch over the Queen Mother for three years.

He takes over from Superintendent T. J. Clark who was the Queen's bodyguard on her Commonwealth tour last year. Clark is returning to ordinary police duties.

The new royal guard will sit up front in the Queen's car and like his predecessors probably be mistaken for a more obscure member of the Royal Family. It will be his job to follow the Queen wherever she leaves Buckingham Palace.

EYE-DOS FOR EYE BEAUTY

Eyes are the first and most direct communication we have with other people, and while it is in the curious glance of the stranger, the appraising look for a new acquaintance or the love light of a sweetheart, the eyes have eloquence.

Whether yours are pansy purple or limpid brown matters less than their expression and the care they receive. Even though they be lovely of coloring and contour, a little snow-blow grooming beauty aid will give them greater charm. So here are a few eye-dos for you to consider in this important and interesting project of building greater loveliness of appearance.

Do give your countenance a clear cut, wide-eyed look by keeping your eyebrows in perfect form. Tweeze away the strays, especially from the lower border line.

At cosmetic counters you will find a little gadget for eyebrow weeding. It is a tweezer with blunt ends and scissor handles, does a real professional job and with no bleeding of tears.

Do use a natural color pomade on your eyelids to make them glisten with a healthy shine. It will highlight the sparkle of animation, what is even more important, it will have a whitening effect upon the lashes. Like your "Glorious crown," these silky hairs thrive on oil. This trick is a better one for daytime than the use of eye shadow which emphasizes the artifice when worn before the lights are on.

Do invest in an eyelash curler which will accent the little shafts and give them an uplift that will reveal more of the iris, making your eyes more glamorous. You let the lashes in a little curved bow, press the handles together and that straight, stubby look disappears.

Do correct any down curves that may give a droopy look to your face. If your eyebrows are too short, add a dash each more with a soft, dark brown crayon.

Student Personalities At Albert College

A weekly feature of interesting facts revealed in interviews with those young undergraduates who hail from countries beyond the seas.

BY GEORGE H. CARVER.

In the not too dim or distant future, a tallish, pleasant-faced young man will enter the village of Terra Nova, Newfoundland, upon a doctor's practice to which the what the future may bring.

At least that is what Lloyd Budgell, 19-year-old student at Albert College, envisages as befalling that, he will exercise his ability as a business administrator with a large company in another part of the country.

Lloyd now in his fourth year at the college has hopes of obtaining a medical degree at Queen's University, or if circumstances prevent his entering medicine, he will attend the University of Western Ontario at London and seek his business degree.

Born in Britain's former "oldest colonial" now Canada's 10th province, said to be discovered by Norsemen in the year 1000 and by Frenchman John Cabot in 1497, Lloyd was raised in the heart of Newfoundland's heavily timbered interior. Terra Nova, his present home, is a small village of some 500 souls and is situated about 46 miles east of the well-known Gander air base.

Lloyd's early boyhood was spent in an environment of lumbering, pulp cutting trains and pulpwood.

He first saw the light of day in Grant Falls, situated about 100 miles from Terra Nova but interviewed with his family to his present home.

His father, in Pierce Budgell, superintendent of the Terra Nova division of the Anglo Newfoundland Development Company.

Lloyd spent many boyhood hours watching the pulpwood being brought down the river to be loaded on trains for Grant Falls. The islands entire lumber industry is confined to this production of pulp which feeds the great paper mills of Newfoundland owned in United Nothdirve to supply paper for his English newspapers and magazines.

Contrary to general belief the "climate is not so severe in winter as in many parts of Canada, the surrounding water tending to modify it. For the same reason the summers are not much higher on the mainland of Canada. The thermometer registers a hot summer temperature as high as 83 degrees: the average winter temperature at St. John's is seven above.

LLOYD BUDGELL

Following his public school education, Lloyd attended Prince of Wales College, Saint John's, for two years.

He learned about Albert College from an uncle, the Rev. Max Reader, United Church minister in Morrisburg, Ontario, while he was visiting there with his family. Mr. Reader recommended Albert, and his nephew has never regretted accepting the advice.

Athletically minded Lloyd goes out in fact, track, specializing in the 440, basketball and "some football."

He thinks the changeover of Newfoundland's status as a crown colony of Britain to a member province of Canada, has been of tremendous benefit to his native island.

"The ideas brought from the mainland have done a lot of good," he said. "Then there are the family allowances and old age pensions which are greatly appreciated, "The Canadian railways have taken over and everything is better all around."

ICY ROADS CAUSE TROUBLE

WALLBRIDGE.—At the time of writing, icy roads and yards are becoming less dangerous than they were last week, when a number of people had the misfortune to fall but fortunately no serious accidents. Last Sunday the pastor, Rev. W. R. Dewey, coming from his charge at Scotia, was stranded at nearly one hour between two hills where there were no houses or no one in sight to go to his assistance in helping him. He backed his car a long way on ice before he could get anyone. Many friends were pleased to learn he arrived safely. The Wallbridge service was not held

TWO TOTS RESCUED

On Friday morning of last week, the two little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Sec Duby were rescued from freezing to death when their sister noticed a fire in Miss Jenny Kiernan and just at that time the Canada Bread drivers, Mr. Robert Evans and Mr. Marselle Gagne, were making their call at her home and she told them of the little girls on the hill where they were clinging to a tree. They hurried up to the rescue and carried the girls to Miss Kiernan's home where they were treated and put in warm bedding and cared for by Miss Kiernan. The children were the lives of these little ones from freezing to death by the quick community wishes to say many thanks to the drivers for their good deed, and to Miss Kiernan for her kindness in caring for them during the day. It may well be said "Let us live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to all."

The members of the W.I. held their first meeting of the year in Orange Hall on Friday night last, with a good attendance. A very interesting time was spent and at the end of the games, refreshments were served by the ladies.

Miss Joyce Woods was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital, for a few days having her tonsils removed. All wish Joyce a speedy recovery and the schoolmates will be happy to have Joyce back to school soon.

'Joan' Story Given Novel Treatment By Great Playwright Max. Anderson

It is only natural that the legend of Joan of Arc should have proved so inviting a subject to playwrights. Intensely dramatic of itself, the story of the nineteen-year-old girl whose inner voices directed her to dress as a boy and lead the French armies to victory over the English seems perfectly suited to verse or drama. The crowning or the Dauphin at Rheims, the raising of the siege of Orleans, the burning of Joan outside the cathedral at Rouen, and her eventual posthumous pardon and canonization almost 500 years later, are scenes of epic proportions, easily adaptable both to the restrictions of the stage and the limitless scope of the technicolor camera.

But, to Maxwell Anderson, playwright, poet and philosopher, the simple story of Joan's exploits, her trial and her execution, was not enough. His object in writing "Joan of Lorraine", the forthcoming Theatre Guild production, was not merely to present a new version of the old told tale, but rather to construct a new frame-work within which the story might be told. And in selecting this new mode of relating the chronicle of the Maid of Orleans, Anderson has effected an unusual marriage of the classic and modern drama, and has succeeded in relating the problems confronting the girl from the Joans of the world from that time until the present day.

GUILD PRODUCTION

"Joan of Lorraine," Anderson's unusual treatment of the tale will be presented at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium Tuesday and Wednesday of next week with Joy Wonnscott in the role of the girl from Domremy who saved France, and was burned as a witch for her pains.

In drawing his comparisons between Joan's time and our own, Anderson has constructed a work which is strikingly similar to Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," and Luigi Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author." The modern play is on the bare stage of a theatre, and the audience is shown a group of actors and actresses in the midst of a rehearsal of a play about Joan of Arc. The costumes have not yet arrived, the scenery is still unfinished, and the performers are irritable, tired, edgy. There is a question as to whether or not the play will actually open, as the theatre owner appears to be in debt as a result of a number of corrupt business practices.

The star of the play and the director argue about the play's interpretation of Joan, the star refusing to play certain scenes and speak certain lines because they show Joan compromising with the evil characters in power. The director attempts to show the actress the frequent necessity of compromising with temporary evil in order to achieve ultimate good.

DIVERSE THEMES

A thoughtful and contemplative writer, Maxwell Anderson has considered such diverse themes as the Sacco-Vanzetti case in both "Gods of the Lightning" and "Winterset"; the struggle of the Spanish people against Fascism in "Key Largo"; the danger of the Nazis crushing Man's spirit if left unopposed, in "Candle in the Wind" and "The Eve of St. Mark."

In addition to Joan of Arc, whose famous story has been given a "Grand Guignol" treatment in "Joan of Lorraine," historical characters who have appeared in many of his dramas include Queen Elizabeth, Mary of Scotland, Roger Williamington, Franz Joseph of Austria, Peter Stuyvesant and Henry VIII.

In addition to Joy Wonnscott, the players in the cast of the Theatre Guild's production of "Joan of Lorraine" include Tod Andrews as the director as well as the inquisitor; Harry Mulhall as Mary Daughtry, Rose as Nichols, Ray Johnson, as Le Hire, and Joan Tanner, Don Rose, Nicki Denner, Ann Goldberg, Lee Jurard, Philippe Faulkner, Sadie Rose, Syl Chain, Jim Alexander, Jerry Putman, Carl Reid, Doris Chipps, Lloyd Stealip, Beth Fancy, Harold Blankett.

The play has been directed by Sydney C. Rose.

Philodendrons Gain in Popularity

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

In January I begin to search the pages of magazines for seed catalogue offers. I manage to corral a few new ones each year and find their pages hold a wealth of greenhouse lore. The pictures and descriptions inspire me to try a few new plants each year.

While waiting for the catalogues to come in let us look to the local florist for something new in house plants. Most of us have discarded the plan of filling every window with potted plants. We prefer fewer plants and want them in the room where they will contribute to the decor.

This being the case we must look for plants which require little or no sun. Something green and growing adds an attractive note to a room. We see such plants being used more and more in reception rooms, foyers, and show rooms. Some one of the philodendrons are surely new to for use in the home, and for public rooms.

GLOSSY LEAVES

They have a glossy foliage and large exotic leaves with the gloss and texture of oilcloth, which goes well with modern rooms.

They will thrive in sun or shade, will stand moist or dry air and a wide variety of temperatures.

The original home of the Philodendrons is Central and south America, but they are adaptable to our climate. There are some 250 known varieties, but less than 100 are marketed. To locate a sizeable collection you would have to come to the conifront. But, adding one new item at a time, and the endless search for new species, is the exciting part of being a collector. The rarer the object the greater the joy when it is acquired.

The best known variety is Oxycardium, better known as Cordatum. This is the heart-shaped vine type which grows readily in water or soil. In the same class is P. Scandrol. Its leaves are filmed over with a light silvery sheen.

FOR USE WITH POLES

For use with an upright piece of bark, or totem poles are several of the larger leaf types such as Hastatum, and Pittieri. Both have large smooth leaves, the former in dark green, the latter a light apple green. There are also Hemand which is marbled white and green and a sare variegated Hastatum.

Shrimp-pink shading to cinnamon are the colors of new leaves on the big hybrid Mandianum. Mature leaves are a deep glossy green. All of the philodendrons will grow very slowly if not fed. They thrive with complete plant food, or food high in nitrogen, at six week intervals, will encourage lush growth. So, if you wish to have your plant remain small use nutrients and water sparingly.

The giant of the species which is too large for general use, is Giganteum. The leaves are three feet long and two feet wide. Glorianum has cream white veins on dark, velvet leaves.

NEEDS NO SUPPORT

It needs no support for some time. Some of the Philodendrons are self-heading and make compact plants; other types are trailing and need some support.

Quite different is Tvidolatum, also known as Auriflum. The leaves are long and pointed and grouped in threes on a single stem. The color is dark and the texture shiny and leather-like. Red-leaf Philodendron, or Cruentum, has a rather arm-red color on the under side of the leaf while the leaf surface is dark green. Imbe has long, arrowshaped leaves with maroon under color.

In the matter of size and color, Scandens stands apart. It has dainty heart-shaped leaves with delicate purple-pink under color and simi-transparent silky green leaves.

SELF-HEADING

The Swiss cheese plants are also called the hurricane plants, for nature has provided vents for the wind to sweep through them. These are also several forms of this type Philodendron, Pertusum delicious is the best known of this group.

SELF-HEADING PHILODENDRONS?

These are the philodendrons which do not climb. They are usually now on the market having been introduced in 1935. Self-heading does not mean a rosette type plant, but one which springs from a main growth and branches out from there. These may be mottled, curled, or have long slits to otherwise solid-surfaced leaves. From these we may expect many hybrids for those who are always looking for something new in the plant world.

Desperate Hawks Fire 50 Shots at Ranger Goal But Lose 6-2 Decision

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HOW ABOUT THAT! With apologies to Mel (Dew) Allen.

If you were not among the near 1300 of the faithful at Memorial Arena last night you missed the bestest hockey tidbit of the current season.

You missed seeing the Memos at their fighting, flaming best. You missed one of the fastest, most thrilling puck tilts seen this year by Frank Boucher's buccaneers, who with sheer speed and wizardry swept aside the hard-fought threat of the powerful group-leading Cornwall Colts.

The Memos threw the puck jalopy into high gear at the opening whistle and never changed it. Their reverse speed was equally as fast as the "forard," and their individual performances were as much alike as the well-known grapes with Tony Parisi rising to starry heights to record the shutout.

Even the most rabid critics could not find any fault with the Memos' performance, individually and collectively, last night. They were the value for their 5-0 victory and no one can dispute that, not even the Colts.

They fashioned a defence that stopped the uncanny passing plays of the visitors cold in their tracks and when they did get through "Poosh-em-Out" Tony was a stone wall.

The Memos knew they had to win that game in face of the unceasing Belleville blasphemas who trimmed the Petes 8-4 last night. The Boucher boys now share second place with the Whitby Wrens and with them are breathing down the manes of the Colts.

WE QUOTE MR. RODDEN:

"Sponsors and officials of two clubs operating teams in the Ontario Hockey Association eastern senior 'B' group seem to be perennially clear in the cross-roads where only one lane is navigable. Owners of the Cornwall Colts, facing heavy deficits that are likely to grow larger, have postponed their final decision but fear the worst and a similar situation runs rampant in Brockville.

"At a meeting held on Tuesday night 'Kitch' Stanford, owner of the Magedomas, saw little hope in carrying on and was prepared to withdraw the team. If that emergency transpired Archie Miller of the community picture suggested that no action be taken until Goodyears visit Brockville on January 31 when thd attendance total will decide the issue.

"The game on the 31st will be a benefit affair and a civic enterprise in that tickets of tickets will be distributed to business and other organizations in the hope that these will be sold to employees and others who may be interested in keeping the Brockville in the race. What the response will be none can tell but there are those who doubt that the experiment will be fruitful.

"Unofficial opinion has it that if the pace-setting Cornwall Colts toss in the sponge Brockville and possibly Clinton will do likewise and the reasons advanced are not difficult to understand. Troubled financial supporters of the clubs involved cannot be faulted for taking a pessimistic view of the situation. With almost six weeks to go before playoff time the costs of operation added to present losses might become staggering.

"On the brighter side it can be told that the trailing Peterborough Petes will not fold in adversity. They have decided to go all the way irrespective of the cost, the while club officials clamor for the erection of a modern arena before the 1953-56 race begins. Such devotion to a cause is worthy of applause without reservation.

"Lack of interest in Brockville and Peterborough could not be charged alone to conviction rampant that either the Magedomas nor the Petes will be around in playoff time. The Petes have encountered trouble all the way but the Brocks are only five points away from fourth place and a long way from being ousted. Those Magedomas also operate in a modern edifice which is a credit to the city but could become a 'White Elephant' if those turnstiles do not sing a merry tune."

We have news for Mr. Rodden.

The Cornwall Colts will not drop out of the senior "B" group. Also that piece of information was given this department last night by Ray Miron, manager of the club, and the Cornwall arena.

"We are going to stick it out," Miron said. "The boys on the team at a special meeting decided to cooperate financially with the management, and we intend playing out the season, and hoping for the best."

Blues Score Four in Third After Two-Period Stalemate Chihawks Mark 25th Defeat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago goaltender Al Rollins, of all people, had a quiet night in the National Hockey League, And Chicago Black Hawks, of all teams, had 50 shots on goal.

But they lost.

Rollins, badgered and beaten all season, and the Hawks were humbled 6-2 by the lowly New York Rangers in Chicago Stadium Friday night despite the Hawks' wide edge in shots. They fell under a four-goal splurge in the last period to the dismay of 3,360 hometown fans.

GUMP STARS

One of the heroes of the engagement, of course, was Ranger netminder Lorne (Gump) Worsley. He was the fellow who had to handle those 50 shots. He did the job nicely, turning back the Hawks in a critical time in the third period with the score tied 2-2.

Rollins kicked out 20 shots and had little chance on the six that got past him. The Hawks were shorthanded through penalties on four of them.

It was Hawks' 25th loss in 42 starts and left them in last place with 25 points, seven behind the Bluebirds.

Andy Bathgate led Rangers with two goals. The others were split among Camille Laprade, Danny Lewicki, Paul Ronty and Bob Chrystal. Defenceman Red Sullivan and leftwinger Harry Watson were the Hawk scorers.

Stan Leonard Tied For Top In Golf Tourney

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver shot a 68 Friday to tie with Jerry Barber of Los Angeles for the first-round lead in the $15,000 Bing Crosby pro - amateur golf tournament.

Leonard, a grandpa per 34-32 and Barber's 33-35 gave them a one-stroke lead over Dave Stockton.

Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., was one of five players tied for third place with 69.

In the duel for pro-amateur honors, Fred Wampler of Indianapolis, 1954 winner of the Los Angeles Open and very little since, teamed with Julie Boros of Long Beach, Calif., one time University of Southern California athletic hero for a betball 30-31—61.

A balky field of 272 professionals and amateurs 36 forth under bright skies and crisp breezes.

Entries were split, with half playing the Cypress point course and the other the Monterey peninsula course.

Cypress measures, 6,246 yards and par is 37-35—72. Monterey stretches 6,246 yards and par is 36-37—72.

Twenty-six professionals managed to break par.

A stroke behind the leading pro-amateur team, at 62, were Ford and actor Randolph Scott, Jay Herbert, and another actor, Dennis O'Keefe; Bob Rosburg and amateur Hank Mann of San Francisco, and Smiley Quick and archer Howard Hill.

National Hockey League governors 14 years ago today introduced an automatic $50 fine for players taking part in fights they did not originate. The rule was aimed at discouraging free-for-all brawls such as those which had marked games in New York, Chicago and Montreal in the 1940-41 season.

PELLER SIGNS

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pitcher Bob Feller, six times a 20-game winner and the American League's oldest player in point of service, Friday signed his 17th contract with Cleveland Indians. He told reporters he signed for about the same amount he got last year, between $30,000 and $35,000. Last season he won 13 and lost three with an earned-run average of 3.06.

Dutchies Trim Maroons 6-4; Indians Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen took a slim lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league Friday night with a 6-4 victory over Chatham Maroons at Chatham.

The Dutchmen now have 43 points, one more than Owen Sound Mercurys. Both teams have played 33 games.

Mack McKenzie practically won the game single-handed for Kitchener. He scored three goals in the second period and added one in the third. Charlie Brooker and Mike Mitch added the others. Jim Connelly counted two for Chatham and Danny Blair and Jim Wilson accounted for one each.

FALLS BEATEN

In another game Stratford Indians defeated Niagara Falls Cataracts 7-2 before 1,200 fans in Stratford territory.

Cataracts had narrowed the gap to a 3-2 count, but sensational play by Stratford goalie Bruce Dale in the second period set the stage for the Indians' runaway.

Herve Dejordy and George Aitken paced the Indians with two goals each. Lou Bendo, Mickey Roth and Maurice Levesque added the others. Reg Plata and Lorn Pate counted for Cataracts.

Williams Is Really Through

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams meant it when he retired from baseball, says the Boston Globe after a telephone conversation with the Boston left field slugger in West Palm Beach, Fla.

The Globe quotes Williams as saying:

"I've signed contracts to compete in fishing expeditions in May and June next summer.

"I thought I made my retirement clear to you last year."

After the last game of the 1954 season Williams announced he was quitting but the consensus was that Ted would be back after a winter to think it over.

Set New Records In Major 'A' Bowling League

Records went by the board at the weekly session of the Major "A" Bowling League at the Bowl-O-Drome Thursday night.

Three new marks were established. The Belleville Golf team aggregated a score of 3746, including a record-breaking single of 1394. Art Atkig of the same team hit the maples for a triple of 937. His game scores were 313, 378 and 246.

The night scores were:

Belleville Golf (3) 3746, Moore's Chiselers (3) 3488; C.N.R. (7) 3467, G. H. Wood's (0) 3412; Schwab's (1) 3220, Lawn Bowlers (2) 3067; Upper Canada News (5) 3062, Canada Cement (2) 3037.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Duilio Loi, European lightweight champion, came through his first American ring test in good shape Friday night with a unanimous decision over the St. Paul toughie, Glen Flanagan. Loi weighed 135½, Flanagan 138.

The Italian-born Italian was far from sensational, however, in his six-round TKO victory. Except for Flanagan's roughhouse tactics, it was a dull fight. The 3,165 fans in the ballpark agreed.

Loi, beaten only once in his 64-fight career, jumped into the bout with a flashy attack in the first two rounds and built a commanding lead early by outpunching the last four rounds...but he lacked damaging punching power.

Big Four, Minus Argonauts Get Ready For Big Conclave

MONTREAL (CP) — With the preliminaries out of the way, officials of the Big Four Football League go to work today or Sunday lining up the loop's policy for next season.

Heads of three of the teams—Hamilton, Ottawa and Montreal—held informal talks Friday to settle a few questions in advance and save time at the league's one-day annual meeting. The get-together also gave Ottawa and Hamilton officials a chance to meet and talk with two new Montreal owners—Vic Obeck and Ted Workman.

The third partner in the recent purchase of the team—Leo Dandurand—is already well known in Big Four. Obeck's football activity has been confined to the college sphere prior to last year and Workman is a newcomer to the owners.

ARGOS ABSENT

Toronto Argonauts passed up Friday's meeting, reportedly because league president Roy Robertson of Montreal had not been invited to attend. As it turned out, Robertson did drop in but was through the session and stayed to discuss league policy.

Two more meetings scheduled for discussion today probably will bring about a league split with Ottawa and Hamilton on one side and Toronto and Montreal on the other.

Officials of the Tiger-Cats have announced they will plump for a reduction in the number of imports on each team from nine to six, while the Montreal and the Alouettes would like to see the figure increased to 12. Ottawa, operating on a small budget, will probably swing behind the Hamilton proposal, with the richer Argonauts backing Montreal.

Ottawa's request that visiting teams be given a split of gate receipts probably will get Hamilton's support since the two teams have the smallest parks in the league. Toronto and Montreal are expected to oppose it.

PLAYER QUESTION

Other measures up for consideration include the appointment of a Big Four commissioner and possible revision on the status of "Canadianized - Americans" — players who have been in Canada for four years and are ranked as Canadians. Each team at present is allowed three of these players before they are counted against the import quota.

Robertson said no decision was reached regarding a Big Four football commissioner at Friday's meeting.

"As a matter of personal opinion I think such a job should be for all Canada," Robertson said. "I think the Western League might go along with an Eastern and Dominion commissioner for the whole country with the necessity of both East and West getting together."

RESPECT CONTRACTS

After the closed meeting, Obeck said the Alouettes plan to respect all contracts, both in Canada and the United States.

"We don't intend to approach anybody under contract in Canada or the United States," he said. "But all policies and problems of the Big Four will be decided tomorrow at the annual meeting. Our intentions today were merely to sound out the intentions of everybody in our league."

The appointment of the next Big Four president—a formality—will be made today with Ralph Cooper of Hamilton taking over in line of rotating succession.

Memos Leap Into 2nd Place With Decisive 5-0 Victory Over Cornwall

Unleash High-Speed Offensive In Best Effort of Season; Parisi Brilliant in Goal

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Playing brilliant fore-and-aft hockey, the Belleville Memos came up with one of their best efforts of the season here last night, defeating the group-leading Cornwall Colts by a 5-0 score.

The victory pushed the Memos into a two-way tie with the Whitby Wrens for second place in the group standing, two points behind the Colts.

The Memos were full value for their victory. They scored two goals in the first period, added three more in the second and held the desperate Colts off in the third scoreless heat.

The game was a repeat of the brilliant, hitherto-unbeaten battle that featured the clubs' former meetings.

And again it was the brilliant offensive-defensive action of the Memos that gave them the nod.

They earned it all the way. In front of a brilliant exhibition of Tony Parisi in their nets, the Memos, their defensive and offensive lanes clicking perfectly, thoroughly deserved their victory.

It was Sunday night hockey at its best and nearly 1300 fans thrilled to the fast, close-checking action that featured the game throughout.

Both teams hit a high tempo at the opening whistle to what was a clean, hard-checking period. Goal-tending figured in the only penalty of the heat after two minutes for hooking and the Memos keeping up their hard-checking offensive, sent Johnny Muckler on to set up Arnie Dugan's pass on a fast two-way effort.

Gould came back and was hit by a flying puck and went off for repairs. It was then Parisi came the sud-tuck hockey with the Memos having the edge in play.

After penalties Doug Day and Davey Jones whipped their way through the Cornwall defense to midway through the period and again the Colts drove to the attack but the hard back-checking and defence of the Memos kept Parisi's goal intact. It was a hard-driving, fast-and-tuck battle until the gong rang.

Both teams:

Rev. Richards Still Simon Pure Says Union

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Bob Richards, America's No. 1 pole vaulter, is still an amateur.

The Southern Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, after investigating Richards' appearance on a television program during which he received several gifts, came up with this ruling Friday.

The gifts that were presented during the "This Is Your Life" program on the occasion of Rev. Robert Richards' appearance on this show, were presented to the Church of the Nazarene in Long Beach, (of which he is pastor) in the interests of furthering its service to the members of the congregation and the community.

"In the light of these circumstances, it is the decision of the registration committee that the amateur status of Richards has not been jeopardized."

Judge Blasts Boxing After Fighter's Death

BOSTON (AP)—The chief municipal court justice, Elijah Adlow, said Friday spectators at boxing bouts have been subordinated to the paid fighting business because for criminal action in the recent ring death of one-time Boston heavyweight champion Ed Saunders.

In a scathing indictment report the judge said that if there were no law making boxing legal "an assault resulting in such consequences would constitute murder."

He referred to Saunders' death in the accident, saying:

"Both medical examiners testified that the objective of boxing is to deliver a knockout punch. In their opinion a knockout punch is not nothing more than to inflict a brain injury on the contestant."

"DELIBERATE ACT"

"There is nothing accidental about it.

"It is a deliberate and purposeful act which is not only condoned and sanctioned but a tradition of the sport and actually expected and demanded by the spectators."

Saunders, 36, died Dec. 13 after 12 of a brain injury 17 years after he had been knocked out by Willie Pastrano in the 10th round of a 12-round match for the New England heavyweight title.

Redskins Claim Calgary Star

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington Redskins reported Friday that Charlie Shira, one of the National Football League's top defensive ends two years ago, will be drafting next season after a year in Canadian football.

Shira thus becomes the second Redskin star to complete the jump-to-Canadian-and-back circle within a month. The other is quarterback Eddie Lebaron, already signed up for 1955.

Both Lebaron and Brito played for Calgary Stampeders last season under coach Larry Siemering. Redskins former assistant coach, Siemering is now out as the Calgary coach.

Trent Valley Hockey League

CAMPBELLFORD — Trenton RCAF Flyers flew to an 8-6 win over Campbellford in a TVHL game here recently.

Campbellford carried the play throughout the game, strengthened by Wilson, who put in his first appearance this season. The newcomer netted four of the six goals while teammate Doug Free accounted for the other two. Campbellford led 2-0 at the end of the first period, but dropped behind in the second when three goals were scored in sixteen seconds, with Campbellford getting only one of the three, but adding another one within a minute, to tie the score.

Although Free beat the Trenton goaltender twice in the final period he and his teammates failed time and time again when they met in front of the net.

Orzie Nelson, in the Campbellford goal, was one of the main reasons why Trenton was limited to eight goals. He made a number of almost impossible saves, and disheartened the Trenton forwards.

The line-up:

Trenton—Goal, Tardif; defence, Childerhouse and White; centre, Francis; wings, Bowman and Hudson; alternates — Stevenson, Branch, Blanchard, Tardif, St. Pierre, Adams, Dickroe and Metcalfe.

Campbellford — Goal, Nelson; defence, Free and Louth; centre, Stevenson; wings, Jeff and Doc; alternates, Kemp, Pace, Field, Paynek, Herrington, Hay and Wilson.

Canada Will Be Represented At Games

OTTAWA (CP)—Teams of track and field athletes, swimmers and women basketball players are planned to represent Canada for the first time at this year's Pan-American games.

A provision committee to co-ordinate plans for Canada's entries in those and twenty other sports was set up Friday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Sports Advisory Council.

The games will be held in Mexico City March 12-26.

The one-day council meeting also discussed a proposed North American sports festival to be staged by Canada, perhaps in 1957. The council is to study the suggestions from some 40 national sports governing bodies and representatives of three of them said they will be sending athletes to the games.

SWIMS, BASKETBALL

Fred R. Whitehall of Montreal, representing the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, said the CASA plans to send swimmers tired and speed swimmers at Mexico City and W. A. Irwin of Saskatoon, delegate from the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, said a women's basketball team definitely will be going.

The Canadian Amateur Athletic Union also plans to enter a track and field team and possibly some wrestlers, rowers and gymnasts, it was reported by Fred Rowell of Vancouver, representing the CAAU track and field branch.

Melville Rogers of Ottawa, re-elected council president, said the newly-formed committee, headed by Whitehall, will provide a channel for sports bodies interested in sending athletes to Mexico City to work out "any suitable selection."

However, it was "too late to do a bang-up job" on organizing entries.

Canucks Post Second Blank; Whip Cubs 2-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Canucks, who have won only six of their 28 games in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League this season, Friday night posted their second consecutive shutout victory.

The last-place Canucks defeated the fourth-spot Hamilton Cubs 2-0 on the Kitchener ice before a crowd of 2,000.

In another game Friday night Toronto drew 4,000 fans saw Guelph Biltmore down St. Catharines Tee Pees 8-5.

Canucks' Ted McCaskill drove through the Hamilton defence to open the scoring at 14:03 of the second period. Defenceman Irwin Spencer scored the second while the Cubs were shorthanded early in the third period.

MADE 22

Kitchener goalie Claud Dufour made 23 saves, compared to 26 by Dennis Riggio, to make his shutout.

TeePees led off with a 2-0 lead in the first period but Biltmores came back with five in the second and carried a 5-3 lead into the third.

Bill McCreary scored twice for Guelph, Tom McCarthy, Ike Scott, Bill Graham and Bill Sweezey counted the others. Abe McDonald, Matt Plata and Don Bockstrs scored for St. Catharines.

Albert Hoopsters Take Twin Wins From Bancroft

Albert College Vbasketballers opened the local COSSA season on the home floor with twin wins from Bancroft H.S., the juniors winning 20 to 8, and the seniors 45 to 13.

The junior game was all Vaughet, playing junior again this year after a season with the Kingston CVS Seniors who won the KOSSA title. Vaughet ranged all over the floor and scored almost at will. He got plenty of assistance from Bob McCuaig, who also showed the results of his experience. The rest of the Albert squad turned in a good showing but were ragged around the basket, mainly as a result of nervousness. Bancroft floored a small team with lots of push and go—their back-checking was consistent at all times. Blaiborwick, the smallest man on the floor, surprised with his drib-bling and ball handling. Half time score was 23 to 2.

The senior game was much a repetition of the junior, with the more experienced Albert squad controlling the ball most of the time. Gord Crosby of Bancroft, was a good play-maker, and led the scoring with 19. Budgell was high man for Albert with 16 points closely followed by Charles Beaton with 13, and Bob Rupert with 12 points. Bancroft's opponents will keep Beaton tied up during the first half but in the second he was be broke loose for 10 of his 12 points. Gillanders and Rutledge worked hard for the losers, and "hawked" the ball consist-ently. Gillanders scored eight, Rutledge 19, Bancroft H.S. 4.

Albert Juniors — Vaughet 35; McCuaig 16; Peterson 4; Goddard 3; Scott 2; Johnson; Sale; Bancroft Juniors — Blaiborwick 8; Murphy 1; Fitzpatrion 2; Musclow; Latchford; Williams; Ray; Robinson; Wasmund, and O'Mara.

Albert Seniors — Budgell 18; Beaton 13; Rupert 12; Gillanders 3; Haspanen; Rodgers; Tomkins; Routledge 2; Rew.

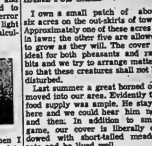
Bancroft Seniors — Crosby, G. 6; Hilbard 2; Levesque 2; Leedy 2; Coghlan 2; Crosby, M.; Crosby, G.; Rupnow; Wight.

Minor Hockey

The Rangers and Red Wings racked up shutouts in the pee-wee games at the Arena this morning, while the Canadiens were edging the Maple Leafs 3-2. The Rangers whitewashed the Maple Leafs 5-0 while the Wings' win over the Black Hawks was by the narrowest of margins, 1-0.

Teddy Gaudette led the Canadien attack with a goal and assist, while Doug Dafoe and Billy Hollands also scored. Billy Hill claimed one assist. Norm Boulter scored the Leafs' only goal in his effort.

The Rangers' big scoring punch came from Graydon Scott, who participated in three of their goals, scoring one and setting up a pair. Sam Hill, Peter Westlake and Billy Bourette were the other marksmen.



Paul Brown fired the lone goal of the Black-Wings game, but was forced to share the starring role with goalie Kenny Soden, who came up with a real good game to blank the Hawks.

Solmar Notes

Predator Damage to Game

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Crusader of Solmar Tables.)

No doubt about it, the biologists now employed by our conservation departments have more than earned their money. They have shown us the way to better game and fish management than we used to have in the old trial-and-error days. They have brought to light information that has been incalculably valuable.

Just the same, now and then I find myself unalterably opposed to their findings. I read their reports —read them quite carefully—and I can find no fault in their efforts save one. That one is a great, big, glaring one. All too few of these fellows, with a few outstanding exceptions, are what I would call good, experienced outdoorsmen.

The result is that they try to make the creatures of the wild reproduce themselves to a status of two-plus-two-equals-four in their books. A man who knows the wild doors and who has studied, through sportsman's eyes, the creatures that live there, knows that a wild-life behavior cannot be reduced to mathematical exactness.

NO MERIT IN BOX CONTROL

On my desk lie two reports of extended researches having to do with the pros and cons of fox control as related to abundance, or lack of it, in game populations. The Ph.D.'s have concluded that there can find no merit in fox control, the reason being that stomach examinations show that these predators live, mostly, on small rodents and insects.

A great deal of my time each fall used to be spent in ground with Free-and-the Jaunt would locate for us the bird concentrations. But we were interested in this research. We visited these spots only occasionally. The predators, mainly foxes, were at it 24 hours a day.

Not once, but a great many times, have I seen grouse concentrations broken up, and scattered to the four winds by the activities of one fox. An examination of the stomach contents of that one animal probably would reveal little or no evidence of grouse consumption, but the effect on the hunting was every bit as pronounced as though he had caught and eaten every bird in the covey.

IDEAL FOR GAME

I own a small patch of about six acres on the out-skirts of town. Approximately one of these acres is in lawn; the other five are allowed to grow as they will. The former is ideal for both pheasants and rabbits and we try to arrange matters so that these creatures shall not be disturbed.

Last summer a great horned owl moved into our area. Evidently the food supply was ample. He stayed here and we could hear him now and then. In addition to small game, the owl grew to be literally endowed with short-tailed meadow rats and he lived well.

Then late in the summer, before the owl moved in, we had rabbits and pheasants in abundance. One litter of bunnies grew up in our chrysanthemum bed, not ten feet from our garage door. There were three broods of pheasant chicks hatched in the garden and all got to good size.

During September and October I noticed that we saw no evidence of small game hereabouts. Being curious, I made no personal investigation—a big setter and—a small beagle, both of whom know their business—out in those five acres to find out what was there.

GAME MOVED OUT

Two of us, my son and I, and the two dogs covered every inch of the area. Result—one hen pheasant and one rabbit.

I doubt very much that the big owl actually caught and ate all of the game that was in that area. The rest simply moved out to take up residence in the undisturbed quarters.

At long last, early in November, I managed, with the help of a flock of crows, to bring down Mr. Owl, but the damage was done, at least for this year.

Actually, the damage that big bird did in terms of game killed was negligible. From the hunter's standpoint, the presence of his forays were ruinous.

And that brings us back to the biologists. How, I ask you, can this phase of wildlife behavior be wrapped up neatly into a scientific report?

Unbeaten Varsity Defeats Laval

TORONTO (CP)—University of Toronto Blues extended their unbeaten streak to six in the senior intercollegiate Hockey League to two games Friday night, defeating Laval University 12-7.

The Blues now are four points ahead of second-place McGill University. Ten goals were scored in a wild third period with Varsity outpointing the Quebec club 6-4. Paul Speer led the Toronto attack with three goals. Jean Giguere tallied four goals for Laval.

Pentieton Likes CAHA Contract

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — The Pentieton Ve Fri-day termed as "very satisfactory" a contract providing that the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association be part of the team's main expenses at the world hockey championships in Germany next month.

The executive said the CAHA will meet the club's transportation, meals, lodging, hockey sticks and uniforms costs. In addition, players will receive about $10 each for spending money.

The Okanagan Senior hockey league team, Canada's representative in the world championships has started a fund to buy a complete set of new skates, pads, gloves, medical supplies, passports, and to cover the cost of excess baggage, telegrams and telephone charges.

Pictures Made, Babies Born, Esther is Free to Have Fun

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is the year Esther Williams becomes an institution as well as a movie star.

In 1955, amphibious Esther enters the second half of her 10-year contract with MGM, and now comes the real payoff. A level-headed doll, she has planned her life to an amazing degree, including the matter of children.

My first five years under the contract were devoted to making pictures and having babies," she explained in her studio dressing room. "It has worked out beautifully. I got just what I wanted—two boys and a girl.

"I've been lucky with pictures, too. I've had a steady succession of top-quality films, one after another. Every one of them has made money. That's a record to be grateful for.

"Now I begin what I call the 'freedom years.' The contract has been arranged so that in the next five years I am allowed more '-' ituals for outside activities. During this time, I have three six-month periods when I am free of all studio commitments. Ben and I have big plans."

Ben Gage, her big husband, is the business brains behind the combo, said Esther.

"Actually, I contribute no more than most wives do to a business," she said. "Ben does all the initial research and groundwork. Then at the dinner table we discuss what he is doing. Often he has to come to a situation and I can give him a perspective. And I give him the woman's viewpoint, which is always important in business."

Ben and Esther's enterprises are largely in the dream stage, and what dreams! They are considering everything from a string of swimming pools to a build-it-yourself swimming pool.

She has been studying a number of offers to lend her name to products.

The biggest project will be the Esther Williams swimming show. This will be a full-scale aquacade, incorporating the numbers she has done in her movies.

"We plan to open in England or Scandinavia in the spring of 1956," she said. "Later we'll play Canada and the United States."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Shed a tear for the responder to a takeout doubler's fate than likely he has a weak hand. If he also had a weak heart, bridge is likely to lose a customer right then and there.

If a player opens the bidding, how does opponent show he has a hand that could have points for saying double. This is called a takeout double because it asks partner to take it out.

If the player next to the doubler intervenes with a bid, the partner of the doubler may pass. But if there is no intervening bid, partner of the doubler is forced to bid something.

This forced response must be made no matter how weak a hand the responder may have. In fact, the weaker his hand the more important it is for him to bid something. He must not pass.

At such a time, what is the response by the doubler's partner if such a partner has a weak hand? Prominent teachers have changed their minds about this several times, it seems.

Culbertson says: At the one level prefer an unbid major of four cards with a jack to a minor five cards; or the cheapest bid of two four cards; lacking which, the cheapest unbid three cards.

Goren says: At the one level prefer an unbid major four cards with a high honor to a minor five-carder; or the cheapest bid of two four carders; lacking which, the cheapest unbid three carders.

Accordin' to Gordon, first choice is an unbid four card major; lacking which, an unbid four card minor; lacking which, bid the lowest ranking unbid suit even if only three cards.

South opens with a heart. West doubles for takeout. The north hand passes. You have the east hand shown here:

♠9 8 4 2
♥6 5 2
♦J 8 7 6 3
♣Q 5

What is your forced response to the takeout double? One spade. You have a four card unbid major. Show it. Don't be ashamed.

Western Wins Over Queen's

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—University of Western Ontario Mustangs handed Queen's Golden Gaels a 74-56 setback Friday night in the opening senior intercollegiate basketball game marked by a continual parade to the foul line.

The league opener boosted Western's record to three wins in eight starts. Outscored 22-20 from the floor, Mustangs sank 34 of 49 free throws to gain a winning margin. Queen's cashed in on 22 of 36 free throws.

Officials Dutch Decker and Tom While called a total of 49 fouls including 24 against Queen's. Gaels' Ian Jay McMahon, Bob Purcell and John Millhen when they fouled out in the last half.

Forward Coulter Osborne and centre Ray Monnot alternated for top Mustang scoring honors. Osborne clicked for 22 points, Monnot for 16.

Paul Fedor of Queen's was high scorer of the game with 20 points. Frank Donnelly was second best for Gaels with 14.

STEAL $20,000 IN PENS

TORONTO (CP)—Thieves broke into the Eversharp International Inc., warehouse and stole $20,000 worth of pens and pencils, police said Friday.

AT THE McCARTHY

Gregory Peck, "A Canadian In Burma."

Hemmed in on the ground by the green walls of the terrible Burmese jungle, a young Canadian flier finds escape in the skies above and a wild excitement in the dangers he faces. Engaged in a dual battle for survival against the hazards of the air and the insidious—but no less dangerous—menace of the jungle, he finds peace and gentle relief in the love of a beautiful Burmese girl.

"The Purple Plain," which closes tonight at the McCarthy Theatre, is Gregory Peck's second film for the Rank organization, and has been adapted for the screen from H. E. Bates' superb novel. The job has been done with considerable skill and immense skill by sce British scriptwriter Eric Ambler, whose screen-play for "The Cruel Sea," was unforgettable.

This is more than a film of the contrast between a man's love for a woman and love for adventure. It is an inspiring testament to man's devotion to a cause and his inflexible will to conquer. If it lays bare man's confusion, his vindictiveness, his weaknesses, it just as courageously demonstrates his loyalty, bravery and determination.

As Forrester, ace pilot whose misery and bitterness following the death of his wife compel him to seek forgetfulness in the hazards of high adventure, Gregory Peck has the finest role of his career. Never has the native girl whose love gives him the will to live again, 21-year-old Win Min Than, had her first film role, brings a unique grace and beauty to the screen.

The filming of "The Purple Plain" in Technicolor against the authentic jungle background is one of the most ambitious enterprises ever undertaken by the British film industry. The enterprise is worthy of the subject . . . the story of the story of men, who, "for your tomorrow, gave their today."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Sunday, January 16, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—There may be unusual tendencies in some respects and you may meet someone or renew an old acquaintance. Be ever hopeful for true benefits, and don't underestimate another's ability.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—It simple "no" is easier to take than excuses, long explanations, but don't be abrupt, as may be your inclination now. Heed the advice of those more experienced than yourself.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Note where you can make improvements, and go about making them without fuss or a showy attitude. Don't let superficiality creep in anywhere.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer)—It is never too late to try again, to make improvements, or to say, "I'm sorry." The Cancer native who, at his best, is the essence of sensitivity and courtesy, can make this day a grand one.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo)—Keep busy, yes—but doing only the things that should be done on Sunday, and on this Sunday, start right by attending church. Be poised and cheerful while attending to your affairs.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Do not be careless about colds, do not neglect details and don't be upset or unduly anxious. Good intentions, thoroughness and contentment should be yours by words now.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Stow away all the wise facts you can, eliminate time-wasters and foolishness, but never lose your sense of humor. Routine without any fun is dull.

October 24 to November 22 Scorpio)—Stay with your interests and give them your best and you can improve them today. Put your faith in prayer and the fine talents God has given you. Don't neglect little details.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Be your confident, buoyant self, don't expect more than you should and you will probably be surprised at the advantages coming your way. Be rightly choosey about associates.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Old friends, tried and true, may criticize, but listen to them as you always learn in this way. New friends may be big help in some respect, too.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—If it is worth doing, it is worth doing well—you've heard that before. Also, do not attempt too much and thus be unfit when important matters come up later.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—If you have many things to attend to, start with those that should come first. However, do not be hurried or too anxious and, where you can, avoid the less fortunate. You will have many blessings.

You born today have a world of talent and the gift of being able to back it with will power to tide you over the rough spots. You can drive through big obstacles yet at times may be yourself down with non-essentials. Guard against being over-sensitive, fearful of what others may think. Be grateful for blessings, ask God's guidance, and keep going forward without fear for the future. Develop your sense of humor and don't let worldly aspirations overrun the needs of soul and mind. Assist others, enjoy children and outdoor exercise. Birthdate of Richard Strange, English poet.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop before dinner to help his appetite, and we were talking about different subjects such as why my school reports keep on not getting better, and pop said, Well there's one consolation, if you grow up to be as ignorannous, it won't be your fault, because you wont know any better.

Being sourcastic, and after a while I said, Q, pop, I feel funny.

Heh. How do you mean, funny? pop said, and I said, Kind of dizzy.

Are you hungry? pop said, and I said, Well, maybe.

Then it's probably nature,s natural reaction to the combination of an empty stummick and an empty mind, pop said. Haven't you eaten anything since lunch? he said, and I said Well, hardly anything, I ate a bananana after school, and 2 apples and a smal bunch of grapes just before you came home, but that,s only froot, I said.

You're not hungry, pop said. Does your head feel hot? he said, and I said, Do you mean outside or inside?

What a question, pop said, and I said, Jimminies, pop, I wonder if it has anything to do with my cross eyed practice? I've been walking along looking at the end of my nose for about the last 3 blocks. It's hard to see yourself in the mirror while you're doing it, but I've watched other fellows trying it, and always makes them cross eyed, I said.

Yes gosh, pop said, and I said, Anyways, pop, I feel all right now.

That's more than I do, the very thought makes me slightly dizzy, pop said, and I said, Does your head feel hot?

Let's change the subject, pop said.

Which we did.

Wellington on the Lake

THE POND

Down by the pond where the lilies grew
And swallows swimmed in the summer glare,
Where the autumn trees in resplendent hues
Noticed in their beauty mirrored there,
Where the snipe walked over the sands at dusk
When the sunset glow made a crimson flush
When sweet was the scent of mint and musk
I walked one day when the year was old.

The flowers were dead, the songbirds fled,
The boughs of the trees were bare and brown,
The leaves had crept to their earthy bed
Tucked in from winter's frost and frown,
The cedars that crowned the hillock's crest,
A lonely vigil they seemed to keep
O'er the silent pond with its waves at rest,
Under blanket of ice for a winter's sleep.

But hark! On the wings of the winter wind
Comes the English shout and the loud "Hello!"
For he seeks the ice—it's not hard to find
Where the water is shallow and current slow;
Though summer's dead and the birds have fled,
The pond is throbbing with life anew,
For the skaters' shouts ring gladly out
O'er the pond where the waterlilies grew.

Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON. — Winter is here with its sports of skating and hockey which the boys are enjoying on the flooded field near the school. Watching them reminded me of the poem above which was written at my home at Consecon Lake as the boys were skating on the pond. The changing Canadian season relieves life of monotony, with succeeding season having its own work and enjoyment.

Australian Oil Refinery Almost Ready

By JOHN STACKHOUSE

PERTH, Australia (Reuters)—A host of futuristic towers, gleaming silver in the sun, have brought the promise of a new industrial future to this part of Australia.

An hour's drive from the Western Australian capital of Perth, the $28,000,000 Kwinana oil refinery is almost ready to begin production.

The refinery is owned by companies associated with the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. Started just two years ago, it is now one of the biggest industrial undertakings in Australia.

NEW THEORY

Anglo-Iranian chose Kwinana as the refinery site for reasons which mystified a lot of people in the theory of oil planning.

Since the Second World War, oil companies have found it more economical to locate refineries near the sources of consumption rather than near production and to tailor refineries to the needs of the areas they serve.

Anglo-Iranian selected Kwinana because it was the nearest point in Australia to the production centres of the Middle East and overseas tankers can use the harbor to discharge directly into the refinery.

Also, Kwinana is only a few miles from the port of Fremantle, which is one of the biggest bunkering establishments in Australia. The refinery can find a market on its own doorstep for fuel oil, a residual of the refining process, which many refineries have to re-export.

STATE CO-OPERATED

For these reasons, the company's association with Western Australian state, but it was the co-operative attitude of the state government which finally clinched the deal.

The government undertook to provide water and electricity, to improve roads and construct, if necessary, a railway. Finally, the state housing authority promised that it would build a new city, now known as Kwinana, for the workers who will man the refinery.

The refinery is designed to turn out 3,000,000 tons of petroleum products a year. The installations include a cooling wharf which can accommodate simultaneously three 30,000-ton tankers.

Nfld. Helping Salmon to Win Battle to Spawning Grounds

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Here in Newfoundland where fishermen are born that way, they're making sure coming generations also enjoy the pleasure of hooking Atlantic salmon.

Under the federal department of fisheries, the start is at the bottom: helping the salmon in their annual and sometimes tough battle up the rivers to spawning grounds.

A good example is on the Terra Nova river on the east coast. Several miles from the mouth is Big Falls na Bonavista bay Lee Grant's falls, a 15-foot barrier that presents a difficult and sometimes impossible obstruction for the salmon on their upriver journey.

And even success at this hurdle did not mean victory for the salmon. Nine miles farther up is another 20-foot waterfall over which the water spills into a rock-bound, spray-filled gorge.

Last summer these combined fisheries department conservation and fishery.

pleted a four-year program which included two fishways, one of 160 feet at the lower falls and one of 220 feet at the steeper obstacle. Half-way up the larger ladder is a resting pool where the fish can pause for a breather.

In 1953 another project supplied a second ladder 500 feet long on a brook which joins the Terra Nova three miles from the river.

This involved utilization of a reasonably-dry river bed which branches out from Big Falls' north. Above the falls and rejoins it below the obstacle. Here, the problem was decepening this bed, and constructing a 30-foot breakwater at its upper junction with the brook to divert a flow of water into its path. It was converted into a natural 1,000-foot fishway.

Improvements also have been made on several other rivers in the province in the program to conserve and improve the salmon fishery.

New Zealand Protests U.S. Butter Auction

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (Reuters) The New Zealand government is protesting to the United States about its offer of 10,000,000 pounds of butter to the highest bidder in the world market.

Agriculture Minister Keither Holyoake said last night the New Zealand ambassador in Washington had been instructed to lodge the protest with State Secretary John Foster Dulles.

"The government is concerned that the competitive bid basis now being adopted might involve even more harmful effects to the marketing of our butter and therefore to the economy of New Zealand as a whole," Holyoake said.

William Marshall, chairman of the New Zealand Dairy Products Marketing Association, termed the plan "pure and unadulterated dumping on world markets of surpluses."

In Melbourne, Australian Agriculture Minister John McEwen Friday warned Britain against buying surplus American butter but she damage her market in Australia for British products. If Britain buys the American butter, he said, it would raise the question of whether she could expect to enjoy heavy protection in the Australian market for her own products.

MARMORA

1st Scout Troop Holds Investiture

MARMORA — Assisted by Assistant Scoutmaster, Bert Gray and William Jones, Scoutmaster Robert Sweet of the recently chartered 1st Marmora Troop Boy Scouts held the first investiture of members of the troop at the auditorium of Marmora High School on Thursday evening.

Troop leader James Bateman was the first to be invested, succeeded by the patrol leaders, who are: Buffalo Patrol, Leo Darrah; Beaver Patrol, Bob Prentice; Fox Patrol, Douglas Stubbs, and then 21 other Scouts to complete the investiture.

APPEALS FOR INTEREST

At the conclusion, the Scoutmaster appealed to the parents and others interested in the movement (a goodly number of whom were present) to give assistance to the boys when they needed it. He clearly indicated that a thorough understanding of the problems of Scouts on the part of adults is deeply appreciated by the boys and those who have undertaken to school them in Scouting.

PAYS TRIBUTE

A. H. Rennie, president of Marmora - Deloro Kiwanis Club, the sponsoring body, as succeeding speaker, said that he was greatly impressed with the investiture ceremony. The chartering of the troop had been the highlight of a meeting of the Kiwanis. He paid tribute to Scoutmaster Sweet and his associates for keeping the spirit of Scouting alive in the district.

The Kiwanis formed one link only but they will endeavor to maintain it. He wished the troop every success.

He concluded by saying that opportunity would be afforded the troop to visit the boys taking part in the forthcoming Boy Scout Jamboree at Niagara Falls, and also announced that the local Kiwanis Club was sponsoring an English Scout among the number coming for that country, as representatives at the self-same jamboree.

Canada Gains In Population

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's population reached 15,410,000 at Dec. 1, the bureau of statistics said today in its quarterly estimate.

The estimated gain in the three-month period compared with one of 112,000 in the same period of 1953. The smaller increase last fall was due to fewer immigrant arrivals.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Monday, January 17, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—A splendid outlook for the beginning of the work-week. But things won't function or materialize of themselves. You have got to pitch in and do as well as plan and hope.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—To bring about satisfactory results now, you may have to exert yourself more, both mentally and physically, than ordinarily. But you can and should do it without worry or apprehension.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Co-ordinate your assets, brain power and physical prowess to gain objectives. Helpful outside influences now and, of course, spiritual guidance if you seek it. Don't fail.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—You can be happy- acquisitive and successful during this encouraging period. No time for moods or self-pity. Some intelligent aggressiveness can speed achievement.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Don't be content with mediocre action for that is what you'll get in returns. Think ahead in your interests, but not selfishly. Regard others' rights and privileges, You'll gain and be happy.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Your natural industriousness plus smart management and avoidance of needless red tape, can put you in a gainful position now. Be alert to fresh leads, valuable contacts.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Working with others, conferences, observing those who are out there in their fields can help you to plan better for your own advancement. Good aspects now for Libra's talents and know-how.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Don't rush or overwork, or try to do more than you reasonably can. Start early though and don't delay where and when you should not. Thus you will keep a steadier, surer pace.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—This is the sort of day you bright, energetic ones usually enjoy. It's challenging and inviting. Get in the midst of things and show your true worth but, withal, be tolerant.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Heed advice to Scorpio and Leo today. You have similar prospects. If in good humor and rightly determined you can enjoy the "push" and ego-getiveness to meet demands. Keep smilin'.

January 22 to February 18 (Aquarius) — Ofttimes you can do better by teaming your assets—brain and brawn—and planning your schedule with a view to saving time, energy and other valuable resources. Good rays.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)— You may be well in the lead this encouraging, stimulating Monday. You have more helpful influences than you realize and should have enthusiasm and faith. Express your good ideas.

You born today have a wealth of good qualities—stability perseverance and all-round knowledge of values both in people and things. You may tend to worry and feel "down" when you have no reason to. All of us worry at times, get upset, impatient, but if we have faith in God's love and help and in our own intelligence, we won't indulge such harmful tendencies. You have great mechanical ability, also could do well in science; are especially suited to organizing, handling groups of people, large enterprises.

PLANE CRASH FATAL TO HYDRO CHAIRMAN

Eisenhower Wants Foreign Aid Boosted

President Presents Slightly Trimmed Budget To House

67 Cents of Every Dollar Will Go for Defence

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Eisenhower today presented to Congress a slightly trimmed budget for fiscal 1955-56 although foreign aid will be increased and 67 cents of every dollar will go for defence.

Eisenhower told Congress that "never in our peacetime history have we been as well prepared to defend ourselves as we are now."

But to protect an "insecure peace" he has assigned to national security programs $41,500,000,000, or 67 per cent of a total outlay of $62,408,000,000. The defence spending is virtually the same as this fiscal year, which ends June 30.

The president said the budget is designed to guard the United States "against attack from without and undermining from within" while advancing human welfare and economic growth.

INCOME TAX UP

He estimated total revenues at $60,000,000,000, leaving a deficit of $2,408,000,000, a little more than half that estimated for the current fiscal year. This it would be the fifth successive year to show red ink spotting. But to produce this much revenue, officials said, the personal income of Americans must rise four per cent to a record level, while corporation profits must climb seven per cent.

This compares with total expenditures of $63,504,000,000 and $364-91 surplus or $2,500,000,000—a deficit of $4,504,000,000.

The national debt is expected to reach $276,000,000,000 in mid-1956.

Eisenhower said that he hopes a growing prosperity will increase revenues and make possible a balanced budget and a tax cut in 1956-57.

But he ruled out any tax cuts this year. He again asked Congress to extend for a year the present 52 per cent corporation income tax rate, as well as present rates on a group of excise taxes, all scheduled to drop April 1. His budget estimates were based on an assumption this will be done.

RADAR SCREEN

Eisenhower placed new emphasis upon a thickening radar screen across the north of the continent to give early warning of any Soviet attack.

Eisenhower said his fiscal 1956 spending program could be sliced up into four major divisions:

Protection against possible war—$41,300,000,000, or 67 per cent of the total budget (this included spending for the exact amount for other defence - related expenditures).

Civil benefits — $12,000,000,000, or 19 per cent. (this included veterans' benefits, public assistance, grants to the states, development programs, and aids and services to agriculture, business, labor and home owners).

Interest on the federal debt—$5,400,000,000, or about 10 per cent of the budget.

Civil functions—$2,300,000,000, or about four per cent of the budget, (this included the administrative costs of running the government.)

AEC SPENDING INCREASED

Eisenhower estimated that $4,100,000,000 would be needed for the present fiscal year and projects and that $600,000,000 would be required for new programs.

He said this includes provisions for "a program in Asia" but left details to be disclosed later.

He recommended atomic energy spending totalling $2,000,000,000 in fiscal 1956, some $50,000,000 less than this year.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Cold northerly winds are expected to continue over Ontario today and Tuesday with no moderation in sight until Wednesday at the very earliest. The area of low atmospheric pressure in Texas which earlier held the threat of snow for Tuesday is now moving toward the Gulf states rather than toward Ontario.

Costa Rica Gets Four U.S. Planes At Dollar Apiece

By CARLOS ESCUDERO

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—U.S. Air Force pilots rushed four fighter planes to Costa Rica today to help the embattled government quash a rebel control of the air.

The planes — propeller-driven Mustangs sold by the U.S. government to Costa Rica at a reported price of $1 apiece—will be manned by Costa Rican pilots against the rebels, reported to have an air force of one fighter and two trainers.

The Organization of American States, which authorized transfer of the combat planes to bolster the government's armed forces in the six-day uprising, received an urgent appeal from Costa Rica's government Sunday night for further and more effective help."

Costa Rica has accused her northern neighbor, Nicaragua, of stirring up the revolt. The latter has denied the charge, but an OAS investigating team—without naming Nicaragua specifically—has refused that a substantial amount of the rebel war material was introduced over Costa Rica's northern border.

Until the transfer of the U.S. planes, the Figueres government's makeshift air force has consisted chiefly of slow civilian transports which were hastily armed with machine guns after the rebel outbreak.

Fighting erupted again Sunday on the only active front, at Santa Rosa plantation in northwest Costa Rica near the Nicaraguan border. The combatants are said to be within shelling distance of each other.

A general staff communique said government troops unofficially yesterday limited at 1,000 men, held fast in a clash Sunday afternoon although the rebel forces were aided by a plane.

PRESIDENT BOMBED

Reports from the front said rebels from Liberia, which has borne the brunt of the enemy air attacks, attacked Saturday when one of its four planes, a DC-3 transport, crashed and burned after being hit by a loyalist rifleman.

CONSTRUCTION MAY TOTAL FIVE BILLIONS

CCA President Makes Prediction at Meeting

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

QUEBEC, (CP) — Canadian construction this year may amount to $5,000,000,000 beating out 1954's record by $250,000,000 Raymond Lang of Ottawa, president of the Canadian Construction Association, said Sunday.

Mr. Brunet made his prediction to some 600 construction men from Canada gathered here for the CCA's three-day annual meeting.

"Providing that construction costs remain at levels that will continue to attract investors," he said, "we can expect an even greater volume than in 1954."

So far as companies going out after this business were concerned, Mr. Brunet said, competition is extremely keen and contracts are being signed at "bargain-basement" prices.

MORE WORK AHEAD

Canada's labor force employed some 500,000 persons in actual construction operations and large volumes of work ahead would provide increased employment opportunities at all levels.

Mr. Brunet's comments were contained in a text prepared for delivery.

Commenting on President Eisenhower's plan for a $100,000,000 10 - year roads program in the United States, Mr. Brunet said Canadian builders were impressed with federal-state highway co-operation across the border.

In Canada, the trans - Canada highway was being built on a joint federal - provincial basis federal and provincial governments, but there had been no federal government that funds would be granted after present agreements expire in 1956.

In regard to seasonal unemployment, Mr. Brunet said great strides had been made in extending construction work through the winter months. Nevertheless upwards of 25 per cent of the summer-time labor force was in the average unemployed in construction during January and February.

Statements that winter-time construction was more costly were inaccurate and misleading, he said, in the light of modern techniques, outdated and "old-fashioned."

"If buildings are 'closed in' before winter, costs are usually comparable and may even be lower due to a better supply situation. Similarly, the fact that 'when the spreading out of construction work is a matter of timing and, by joint effort of all concerned, further advances could be made in overcoming seasonal unemployment to the benefit of all concerned.

HOMES DESTROYED

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Heavy seas along the north coast of Puerto Rico destroyed 300 small wooden houses in a slum area Sunday and drowned one man. Fifty families were smashed at the same place 10 days ago by high seas.

U.S. Navy Constellation Lost In Atlantic Off Newfoundland

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—A United States navy four-engined Constellation crashed in the Atlantic off southwest Newfoundland today and search planes over the spot reported no trace of the 13 occupants.

The giant plane had been airborne less than two hours out of Harmon air base near here when the pilot reported one of his engines had failed. Moments later he said a second motor had cut out.

The Constellation was en route from Harmon, 70 miles from here, to Quonset Point naval air station in Maryland.

The identities of those aboard were withheld until the situation is clarified officially.

Search planes from Harmon returned with reports of sighting yellow life rafts in the sea. However, the pilots said there did not appear to be anyone in them.

The Constellation carried a crew of six and Harmon field said there were seven passengers aboard.

The aircraft took off at 12:52 a. m., AST. The first distress signal from the pilot was received at Harmon at 3:45 a. m., AST, and the second shortly afterward.

A search and rescue crashboat was speeding to the area where the Constellation went down, 2.50 p. m., AST, the commander reported by radio that he was about 20 miles from the spot.

A C47 twin-engined transport plane and a helicopter were ordered to stand by if needed in a rescue operation.

St. Laurent Offers to Double Quebec Income Tax Deduction

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent will inform the Commons today he has proposed ending the Quebec tax dispute by doubling to 10 per cent from five the federal deduction allowed for payment of provincial income tax.

The Quebec tax, if the offer stands, amounts to about 15 per cent of the federal levy. It provides for provincial exemptions about 50 per cent higher than those set by the federal government.

Informants said the federal proposal, to be outlined when Mr. St. Laurent tables correspondence with Premier Duplessis, would be based on federal exemptions without those of the province.

Earning exempt from Quebec income tax amount to a maximum of $3,000 a year for a married person without children and $1,500 for a single persons without dependents. Married persons with one of $2,000 a year for married persons without children and $1,000 for a single person with dependents.

If the Quebec government should accept the federal proposal it would mean, on paper, that the provincial tax would be spread throughout the entire 1,750,000 taxpayers. As it now stands, only about 200,000 in the higher income groups are liable to the tax.

Mr. Duplessis has estimated the Quebec tax levy at forty million dollars $25,000,000 a year in extra revenue, Federal officials say he would still get that amount under the federal formula.

If Mr. Duplessis agrees to the federal formula, it would eliminate Quebec taxation in the province. He also should retain his 3per-cent sales tax. It would mean little change in the higher income brackets—probably those earning more than $5,000 a year—would still be subject to some double tax.

It is understood the federal government will offer the same proposal to other provinces.

Federal officials are preparing for another federal-provincial tax conference which likely will be called next fall to consider new revenue pacts.

FIRES IN FOUR DISTRICTS TAKE ELEVEN LIVES

Four Children Burn To Death at Timmins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fires in four Canadian communities took 11 lives during the week-end. Seven of the dead were children.

Four youngsters were burned to death in a fire at Timmins, Ont., a family of three died in a fire at Hull, Que., and a middle-aged couple and their young son were killed in Edmonton, Alta. At Charlottetown the victim was a two-year-old boy.

Lisa Timmins, four of Jean-Paul Carrier's five children died early today when their home was burned to the ground.

Omer Carriere, six months, Jean, 3½, Maurice, 3, and Charon, 4, died. Mr. Carriere, 28, his wife, Rita, 22, a son, Denis, 2, a brother, Jean, 19, and a babysitter, Shirley Lapeyre, 12, escaped.

Firemen said they didn't know what caused the fire, but the father said he believed a small coal stove in the kitchen exploded.

Harold Bowness, 49, his wife, Agatha, 45, and son, Arthur, 7, died Sunday in their Edmonton home, part of an old army barracks converted into an emergency housing block.

At Hull the three members of Mrs. Patrick Tremblay family were killed Saturday in a fire believed started by a frayed wire on an electric heater.

Firemen found the body of Mr. Tremblay, 28, grasped over the body of his eight-year-old daughter, Marie Claire, three feet from a window. The girl apparently had fallen to the floor and rolled under her bed.

Atom Experts of 8 Nations Meet to Set Up World Body

By A. I. GOLDBERG

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold and atom experts of eight countries gathered here today for conferences that will carry forward another step the program proposed to the United Assembly Dec. 8, 1953, by President Eisenhower to make atomic energy useful chiefly for medicine and agriculture and to spread throughout atomic know-how throughout the world.

The assembly endorsed Eisenhower's plan and set international atomic agency in a unanimous vote. A key feature of the proposed congress for an exchange of ideas.

After his sessions with the scientists and experts Hammarskjold and Hammarskjold will announce the time, place and scope of the congress.

A session at Geneva in August is considered likely.

The question of an invitation to Red China, which is not a member of the UN, will be decided at the latter.

The Soviet Union failed to win assembly approval for an invitation to Red China.

D. V. Skobeltsyn, Soviet atomic authority, chairman of the Stalin Peace Prize committee and a distinguished brain behind the building of the 5,000 kilowatt atomic energy power station the Russians claim to have, is the Soviet Union observer on the scientific committee set up by the assembly resolution.

Before the conference ends today, Moscow announced he would propose to Hammarskjold that the congress agenda include a Soviet offer to discuss technical data on operation of the power station.

There was considerable doubt after the announcement that Russia now has the answer to the problems facing Britain, Canada and the United States—how to make low cost industrial atomic energy.

WILL AID SATELLITES

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today it will collect over atomic know-how and fashionable materials for peaceful use from Britain, China, East Germany, Poland, Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

The announcement was contained in a session of the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers read to Western reporters at a hastily summoned press conference that followed immediately.

It was the third such press conference in four days. At one conference Friday the Soviets offered to share with the rest of the world experience they claimed to have gained in operating the first commercial atomic power plant.

On Saturday the Russians suggested another Big Four conference be held on German reunification.

Today's announcement said in return for material the Soviets also to be given her Communist allies, the Soviet Union would export to them "certain kinds" of atomic raw materials from Russia.

The announcement added that all atomic aid to be given to other Communist countries would be used for peaceful purposes and that experiments in atomic piles given to them would be limited to fact required in producing 5,000 kilowatts of electric power each.

Robt. H. Saunders Suffered Extreme Shock In Crackup

Plane Pancaked in Field 400 Feet from Runway

TORONTO (CP) — Robert H. Saunders, a fireman's son who became mayor of Toronto and head of Canada's third largest business, died Sunday at 51, a victim of a plane crash.

The energetic, outspoken chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, super-salesman for the St. Lawrence seaway power project and president of the Canadian National Exhibition, died in an oxygen tent at Victoria Hospital in London, Ont., after he was badly injured in a plane crash Saturday.

Doctors said extreme shock killed the dynamic executive after his company plane, its wings and windshield crusted with four inches of ice, pancaked in a field only 400 yards from the runway at London's Crumlin airport. His injuries concluded fractures of the skull, pelvis and ankle.

FOUR OTHERS INJURED

The husky four-time mayor, 1942-43-44-47 Toronto had been in critical condition since the two-engine Grumman Mallard crashed during a snowstorm. Four others were injured, two severely. Pilot Lawrence Ried Rogers and co-pilot Ralph Torgalson were released from hospital after treatment for bruises.

Mr. Saunders' wife, 39-year-old Jessie Saunders, was with another colleague at his bedside. He was so badly injured that he could not be moved from a stretcher in the emergency ward for 14 hours but told his wife: "Don't worry. I'm in good hands."

Shortly after Mr. Saunders' death Attorney-General Dana Porter ordered an inquest. Coroner Dr. Lawson, supervising coroner for Ontario, will hold the inquest at London Jan. 25.

'End of World' Cry London Women As Smog Cloud Turns Day Into Night

LONDON (Reuters)—Frightened women sank to their knees in prayer and screamed "It's the end of the world" as a huge smog cloud dropped over London here Sunday, turning early afternoon into midnight black.

Millions of other Londoners, surprised at their Sunday dinner, fled outside or turned on their lights in panic as their homes were plunged into darkness.

The blackout lasted only 10 minutes. Road traffic was paralyzed.

The end-of-the-world scare was the most infectious in centuries to hit London, where a bearded man—apparently a religious fanatic—walked up and down shouting "this is the end of the world."

Jittery women believed him. They screamed, dropped to their knees in prayer or fled for shelter.

The blackout was one of the most amazing natural freaks ever seen in this city, hardened as it is to dense fogs.

The air ministry weather bureau said the smog from London's myriad chimney pots became entrapped between a northerly wind and the southeasterly wind. The prevailing low temperature caused it to drop in a two-mile thick blanket over the city. The smog lifted when the wind trap released its hold.

Atom-Powered Submarine Nautilus Leaves Harbor on Her Maiden Voyage

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — The sky, the slight breeze faintly rippled the blue sun-glinted waters of the Thames?

Although the event was perhaps as significant as the sailing of Robert Fulton's Clermont from New York Aug. 17, 1807, no official spectators were on hand to see the Nautilus off.

The navy with a party of newspaper men cruised at a discreet distance from the 320-foot Nautilus.

Navy sources reported the 3,000-ton Nautilus can cross the Atlantic submerged at full speed and can circle the globe without refueling.

The navy said more than 100 officers and men were aboard the Nautilus today. More than 65 civilian engineers and technicians were also aboard.

Employment Office Appeals To Residents to Get Repairs, Alterations to Homes Done Now

With seasonal unemployment, sharply on the increase as the winter progresses, an appeal for Belleville residents to get repairs and alterations to homes done now was made today by H. H. Reed, manager of the Belleville Employment office.

"The public can help out a great deal during the slack unemployment season by getting interior decorating, repairs and alterations and other jobs done now instead of waiting for the spring," Mr. Reed stated.

Such a program would give skilled tradesmen needed jobs now and the householder would benefit by getting the work done without waiting.

The same is true for industrial and commercial businesses, which could go much to relieve seasonal unemployment by having repairs done during the slack period when skilled help is plentiful.

Finding jobs for those unfortunate enough to be out of work and payments of unemployment claims to the unemployed is the job which the National Employment office is set up to do, but the Employment office fills a big need in the community and the administration of such an office requires a staff carefully trained to serve the public as they must.

Just how an employment office operates and the benefits in detail involved was explained by Mr. Reed, who took time out from a busy day to outline the administration procedure.

10,000 REGISTERED

Approximately 10,000 persons, male and female, are registered in the Belleville local office. Each registration card bears the full name and address of the worker, age, marital status, number of dependents, phone number, work history, scale of wages earned on previous jobs and skills learned.

Each registration card is then coded according to primary and secondary occupations of skills learned, and these cards are filed in steel drawers in alphabetical breakdown within the codes. A master index is set up alphabetically, so it is a quick and simple matter to find any worker's registration card.

The employment section of the office has two women clerks who courteously receive those people coming to the office; handle all incoming or outgoing telephone calls, which run to several hundreds a day. They also issue insurance books, licenses for employers to purchase unemployment stamps for their employees from their employers, and keep statistics of the daily number of orders taken for help needed, referrals made against these orders, and placements effected.

THREE INTERVIEWERS

Three officers interview all male applicants, register them if they are not already registered in this local office, check the skills of the applicants against the skills required on the employer's order, and they refer that applicant to such employer.

The women have their own waiting room section and are handled by a female Employment officer as they frequently have problems to discuss that should be handled by one of their own sex.

The Belleville local office during the year 1954 received approximately 2500 orders from employers for help. Referrals made against these orders amounted to 1850 males and 1000 females. The number of referrals hired for the year was approximately 1700 males and 750 females.

CLAIMS FOR UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

When no suitable employment is available, the applicant is advised of his or her rights under the Unemployment Insurance Act and is referred to the Claims Taking Unit where their claim papers are made out. Their insurance book is then taken for computation of benefits and the contributions in their current insurance book are entered on the computation sheet of their claim papers. This computation sheet is then forwarded to the Ontario Regional Office who enter all the contributions for the immediate past five years from the date the claim was taken. The five years' books are kept in Regional offices in fireproof vaults for all local offices in the region.

Each claimant who lives within the city limits and those who live within a forty-five cent return bus fare must report at the local office weekly. Each is given a reporting book and a time and day to report at the local office to prove their unemployment.

On their reporting days they are handled at a rate of one every thirty seconds and are paid in cash for every day of proven unemployment for the previous calendar week.

Those who live beyond the forty-five cent return bus fare may file their claims by mail and report by mail every two weeks. These postal claimants are paid by warrant, cashable at any bank or place of business where the payee is known.

During the calendar year o. 1954, Belleville local office took approximately 6,400 claims, which necessitated writing 38,000 payments. The total amount of money paid by the Belleville local office for the year of 1954, as compared to 1954, was approximately $750,-000.00. This represents the payroll of a factory in our city of 287 employees, each getting $50.00 a week in salary. Such a new factory locating in our city would be welcomed with open arms.

The grocer, butcher, baker, dairy, fuel merchant, landlord and the Utilities Commission get the bulk of this large sum paid out by the government, who is the executive of the fund.

EQUAL PAYMENTS

The fund is made up by equal payments each week by the employer and the employee, who work in insurable employment, plus a contribution by the Dominion Government of twenty (20) per cent of the total of the employers' and employees' shares.

According to the Labor Gazette for December, 1954, the total revenues since the Unemployment Act became effective in July, 1941, to December 30th, 1954, was approximately one and three-quarters billions of dollars. Benefit payments for all Canada for the same period were approximately $770,000,000. The balance in the fund at the same date was approximately $1,000,000.

This has without doubt been one of the best pieces of social legislation ever passed by Parliament.

The Belleville local office services all Hastings county except the west half of Sidney township, which is handled by the Trenton office; and the town of Deseronto, which is serviced by the Napanee office.

It was pointed out that the Belleville office had placed professional, mechanical and electrical engineers, architects, registered nurses, physiotherapists, skilled tradesmen, stenographers, accountants, general coal, public and chartered; and many other classifications of help, both male and female.

CLEARED TO OTHER OFFICES

Orders for help which cannot be filled from local registrations are cleared to the local offices of the National Employment Services and hundreds are filled through this clearance system each year.

An employee who wants to make a change of position for any reason can have his application placed for clearance also, and continue to work till a suitable position is available when he or she can give their present employer sufficient notice and then accept the new job.

This service saves miles of walking for the unemployed person and the local office acts as a clearing house for both employer and employee. It also gives the employer the choice of several persons in the same skill, so he does not have to hire the first one who comes along and then try them out to see if they prove satisfactory. This costs money.

Mr. Reed invited all employers, whether they have 100 workers or five, to make use of the service. And workers should also use the employment service. It is to the advantage of both employer and employee to do so.

Ford and Union Resume Talks

TORONTO (CP)—Ford of Canada and United Automobile Workers (CIOCCL) negotiators were to return to the conference table today in continuing efforts to settle what is almost certain to be the longest strike in the automobile industry in Canada.

Tonight the strike enters its 100th day, one more than the 1945 Windsor walkout of 10,000 Ford workers.

Top company and union officials resumed talks with the knowledge that the tie-up of Ford's three Ontario plants has cost both millions of dollars in wages, strike benefits and sales. Company estimates have run as high as $15,000,000.

The first indication that there might be an early settlement came Friday when key figures in negotiations said some progress had been made since current talks started Dec. 28.

WOULD OUTDO U. S.

BRUSSELS (CP) — Belgium is considering building a skyscraper almost 400 feet higher than the Empire State Building, says the newspaper La Dernière heure. The 25-storey skyscraper, which would be constructed for the 1958 World's fair in Brussels, would be 1,620 feet high, with a 443-foot television mast on top. It would be twice the height of the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

$4,000 Damage to Grier St. Home; Children, Parents Forced to Flee

A family of five children and their parents were forced out of their home at 83 Grier Street early Sunday morning, when fire starting in a back kitchen caused close to $4,000 damage to house and contents.

Homeless following the blaze are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Smith and their five children, all under eight.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Smith shortly after seven o'clock. Mrs. Smith had just gotten up to prepare breakfast for her family, when, as she entered the kitchen she noticed smoke and opening the door to the back shed was met by smoke and flames.

Mrs. Smith ran back upstairs and rousing the smaller children herded her family to safety out through the front door. Smoke rolled through the open kitchen door, however, and the family were unable to re-enter the house to save furnishings or personal effects.

City firemen confined the blaze to the back shed and kitchen, which were gutted by the fire but smoke and water damage was heavy in other parts of the house.

Firemen placed the loss at between $3,000 and $4,000 with about $2,000 damage to the house and the remainder to household effects.

The family was given shelter next door at the home of Mrs. Smith's father, Mr. Ivor Butler, where it is expected they will remain until the fire-damaged home is repaired or other accommodation is found.

Due to the congregation of Christ Church donated clothing and bedding to the family to replace that lost or damaged in the fire.

D.L. Storey Given High Post In Rameses Temple

Former president of the Belleville Kinsmen Club and instrumental in its establishment here, Mr. D. L. Storey, assistant cashier at Rameses Temple, Toronto, for the past year, was elected to the position of chief rabban at the annual meeting of the Temple held in the King Edward Hotel, on Saturday.

Chief Rabban Storey is now in direct line to become the illustrious Potentate of Rameses in 1956.

The newly-elected 1955 potentate is A. Arnold Taylor of Toronto, who succeeds Past Potentate Fred Midgley.

Chief Rabban Storey's elevation to the position of potentate next year will mark the second time Eastern Ontario to be so honored. The first was Past Potentate Dr. Grant Fraser, of Madoc, who headed the Temple a few years ago.

The new chief rabban entered the Shrine in 1918, joining Moira Temple in London, Ontario. Coming to Belleville he was very active in Shrine circles and organized and helped form the present Shrine Club. He was its president for six years.

He was elected to the divan of the Temple eight years ago and has become the potentate's aide.

Justice Roach Declares Police Used Violence

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, appointed to inquire into police action following the arrest of two men after a football game melee here last October, ruled today that a Toronto police man "under provocation used unnecessary violence."

Mr. Justice Roach in a 35-page report made public today, described "shocking" a suggestion made at his hearing into the incident that police could be justified in preventing a prisoner from talking to his lawyer.

The Ontario Supreme Court justice inquired into charges by Robert Wright and Michael Griffin that Constable W I 11 i a m Chambers struck Wright at the police station. Both Wright and Griffin claimed police refused them permission to telephone a lawyer when they were taken to a police station following the melee after a Big Four game between Montreal and Toronto.

POLICEMAN DIED

During the scuffle a University of Toronto policeman, James Worthington, suffered a heart attack and died shortly afterwards.

Mr. Justice Roach said the evidence given by Wright and Griffin resulted in his finding that Constable William Chambers "under provocation, used unnecessary violence on his prisoner."

Scouters of Several Cub Packs Gather at Trenton Station

R.C.A.F. Station Trenton was host on Friday evening and Saturday Jan. 14 and 15 to scouters of several Cub packs in this district.

Approximately forty Cubmasters and Assistant Cubmasters attended the Akela course in leadership, held in the small gym on the station, and in the "Forest" area of Middleton Park.

On Friday evening, after registrations were completed, Scouter Phil Allcorn of Belleville gave the opening address.

OUTLINES PROGRAM

Scouter Allcorn outlined the basic principals of the Cubbing program, reminding those present that the Cubs are part of the organization called "Scouting," which includes the Boy Scouts, Queen's Scouts, Rover Scouts and Sea Scouts.

"The two principal aims of Cubbing," said Mr. Allcorn, "are primarily to produce good men and the second, to provide good recruits for the Scout troop."

Paul White spoke on the "Cub Law" which is: The Cub gives in to the Old Wolf; the Cub does not give in to himself.

Between lectures there were "Cub games" and "Scout games" and scene training games. After the "Grand Howl" and closing ceremonies, the course staff served cake and coffee.

Saturday found an enthusiastic gathering at the small gym, eager to start the morning "Ramble" led by the staff. The scouters drove to the edge of the "Jungle," where Scout instructors of the R.C.A.F. troop had several trails, prepared of sand sprinklings in the snow, pieces of rags and tinfoil tied to bushes, trees and fences.

PACK DIVIDED

The Pack was divided into "Sixes" and each six notified which trail to follow. After the search was completed and all the "Cubs" had found "Akela" they roamed further into the forest to the "Council rock". Several active games, and keep everyone warm followed, with lectures in between from the staff.

After lunch, a regular Pack meeting was held in the gymn. Yarns about jungle plays, running the Pack, features for Cub meetings and games were presented by the staff.

A "Pow-Wow" was held by Chairman Allcorn. Here, problems which had been experienced by Cubmasters and their assistants were discussed. After a final talk by the District Commissioner A. L. Jackson, the course was closed with a prayer.

Again the staff acted as host and served coffee and donuts.

Members of the staff included; Chairman, Phil Allcorn; District Commissioner, A. L. Jackson; Scouters, Vern Rutherford, Stanley Cable, A. Davies and Fader White.

Scouters on course were—Avondale, W. L. Chafe, Mrs. W. L. Chafe, Mrs. D. Daniels; Belleville —J. L. Hanna, N. Gerow, Miss Betty Smith, Mrs. J. Smith, W. Koolman, G. Harris, Edna Lalonde, J. A. GET PAY BOOST

OSHAWA (CP) — The Oshawa police commission awarded a $100 annual wage increase to city policemen Thursday, raising the yearly salary of a first class constable to $3,725. Policemen had asked for a $500 wage boost but accepted the reduced amount. The three-man commission, headed by county judge John D. Pritchard, turned down requests for a 40-hour week instead of the present 44 and for three weeks paid holidays after 10 years' service instead of the present 15 years.

Storms Spreading Over Scotland, Western Europe

LONDON (AP) — Blizzards spread over Denmark, West Germany and Scotland today while a midwinter thaw and rains sent rivers swirling over their banks in France and southern England.

Gales lashed Bavaria and parts of France and whipped up high waves in the North Sea and Atlantic. The 53,000-ton liner United States, coming from New York, radioed she would arrive at Southampton Wednesday, 24 hours late.

Denmark's worst snowstorm in years virtually paralyzed Copenhagen during the morning rush hour. Berlin was in the path of a blizzard and new snow fell in Scotland where several towns and villages were already locked behind drifts.

BOY IS CRUSHED

At Dijon, France, wind toppled an 18-foot chimney onto a house and a wall, crushing a 12-year-old boy. Snow piled up at Kassel, Germany, pushed an empty freight car from a siding onto the main line and a passenger train crashed into it. One man was killed as his car struck a tree and overturned in a ditch.

In Scotland more emergency calls came from snowbound communities. Royal Navy helicopters brought in food and medical supplies. A lifeboat attempting to reach villages in southern Sutherland was turned back by heavy seas.

A snowstorm raked the north German coast. The 13,000 - ton Greek luxury liner Queen Frederica and the Finnish freighter Greta Thordon collided near Bunnbuttel. The Olympic Brook was able to proceed, but the Greta Thordon put in for repairs.

SHIP ASKS HELP

An unidentified vessel radioed for help during a blizzard between Denmark and Sweden.

Near Lyon, France, where the Rhone river reached flood stage, 80 persons living in low-lying parts of Lyon were evacuated. Elsewhere in Paris, the Seine crept up an inch and a half, expected to reach a danger point during the afternoon.

The Rhine threatened to flood West Germany's modernistic parliament building at Bonn.

SENTENCED FOR THEFT

LONDON, Ont. (cp) — A St. Thomas youth was sentenced to reformatory Thursday when convicted of stealing an auto from a London car agency last month. Two companions were acquitted on the same car theft charge. Jan Molejan, 18, was sentenced to a year definite and three months indeterminate. Acquitted were James Kostaluk and Stanley Bergen, both 17.

Dozen Persons Die in Accidents In East Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 12 persons died violently in eastern Canada during the weekend.

Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Ontario hydro-electric power commission who was fatally injured in a plane crash at London, Ont., Saturday was one of six persons killed in Ontario.

Québec had three deaths, Newfoundland two, and Prince Edward Island, one, a Canadian Press survey showed.

No violent deaths were reported in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Five persons died in separate accidents on Ontario highways and streets.

DIES IN COLLISION

In the Niagara Falls, Ont., area, Eugenio Fiorato, 68, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., was killed in a three-car collision and James Roland McIntee, 67, died when his bicycle was struck by a car.

At Listowel, 25 miles north of Stratford, Vincent Karley, 19, of Linwood, Ont., was killed when his car struck a tree and overturned in a ditch.

Eldon Ojanperra, 20, of Whitefish was fatally injured Saturday night when his car collided with a pickup truck near Sudbury.

Jane Harris, 26, of Holyrood, Ont., was killed when the car in which she was riding rammed a tree in a blinding snowstorm near Clandeboye, 18 miles northwest of London.

CHILD SAVES FAMILY

HAMILTON (CP)—A child crying in her sleep saved a family of five from possible death early Sunday. Donald Sutherland, 29, said he was awakened by the cry in his daughter, Pamela, 9, and found the house filled with coal gas.

Prison Warden Has Good Cause To Be Nervous

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP)— Prisoners at Marquette state prison are watching construction workers with longing fascination these days—and it's making warden Emergy E. Jacques a bit edgy.

A corner of the prison wall has been knocked down as a new cell block can be built.

Watching prisoners noted a wire fence around the open spot and three extra guards, armed with machine guns, keeping a 24-hour vigil.

One morning the contractor reported a tool box had been broken into outside the fence, apparently under the noses of the guards.

The only tools missing: Two pair of wire cutters.

We've been lettering a few signposts for you!

Imagine a world in which sea-going vessels had no instruments of navigation, streetcars had no tracks, and roadside signposts had no directions marked on them. Every day of our lives we rely, more than we think, on the signposts that others have placed here for our guidance.

Fortunately there are signposts to guide people in investment matters, too. We at Ames have been putting directions on investors' signposts for a long time. Some of these signposts read "Growth", others read "Income", "Security", "Diversification". Still others must be improvised to help investors detour around changing conditions and yet arrive safely at their original goal.

The point is, no two investment programs are exactly alike. The only thing all our clients have in common is the service and attention we give them. Because their programs are so different, both in scope and in objectives, each one requires, and gets, individual guidance.

Here at Ames we have experienced people who will give your investment program careful personal attention. Drop in and have a talk with us, or . . . if more convenient, write us a letter.

A PROVINCE MOURNS

Bob Saunders is dead.

For the record he was Robert Hood Saunders; to everybody who had met him—and that included a very large number of Ontario residents in every walk of life—he was Bob Saunders. Therein lay his personal greatness, his ability to make everybody like him upon first meeting and his flair for turning this personal liking into assistance for the organization he served with untiring zeal, the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Bob Saunders is dead and Ontario is the poorer. The best tribute a grateful province can pay him is to make certain that the effect which his death has on Hydro's progress is kept to a minimum, that as far as possible the great plan which he had for Hydro, including the St. Lawrence power development, are carried through with as much energy and foresight as would have been the case had he lived.

The Toronto Globe and Mail says that Mr. Saunders' close friends "like to say he was born content." Only in that sense, it would be safe to say, could he have been born with a silver spoon in his mouth. Otherwise his circumstances were like those of thousands of other Canadians at the beginning of this century, a Toronto fireman whose family went back to United Empire Loyalists who settled in Toronto in 1791. Bob Saunders' greatest heritage was an abounding energy and a faith in the future which matched that of these forebears. As a boy he delivered newspapers; he worked as a truck driver and as a factory hand. Graduating from Osgoode Hall, he was employed by the Canadian Bank of Commerce before embarking on a law partnership with E. J. Murphy, which lasted until 1948.

Bob Saunders loved his native city and served it well. He entered municipal politics in 1935, being elected an alderman. In 1944 he was elected to the board of control, in 1947 became mayor. When he left that post to take service, as chairman, with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, he was succeeded by Leslie Frost, at whose appeal he left the mayor's chair to accept the Hydro post, now says: "There was only one Bob Saunders." All Ontario will agree.

It was typical of Bob Saunders that he should travel by plane. The speed of air travel matched his own drive, made it possible for him to pack into a day more than the satisfied the dynamic personality. That this energetic pace should, in the end, have robbed Hydro and the province of his services gives an added touch of bitter irony to the tragedy of his untimely death.

ENLIGHTENMENT

As an intelligent Canadian, doubtless you like to keep informed on world affairs in general, and upon developments in this hemisphere in particular.

Therefore you will be interested in the situation in Costa Rica, the fact that the number of combatants appears to be numbered by the scores, rather than by the millions, will not cause you to disregard the struggle.

You may have heard hints that President Jose (Pepe) Figueres of Costa Rica has a Red tinge. Recalling recent events in Guatemala, you, perhaps, have wondered whether there is another chapter of the same story.

From the columns of the New York Times we have gleaned for you a few pertinent facts.

President Figueres is a self-made engineer who established a prosperous coffee bag and rope factory in Costa Rica's jungle and has acquired "a dedication to democracy and moderate socialism."

His arch-rival is General Antastasio Somoza, the president of Nicaragua. Figueres detests all military dictators but Somoza is his pet hate because Somoza backed Rafael Calderon Guardia, president of Costa Rica, in a right-wing dictatorship in coalition with Costa Rica's Communist boss, Manuel Mora.

So now you understand all about the Costa Rican situation. If you do, will you please tell us what it all means?

MORE SEATS AT THE UN?

Spain is reported considering establishing a permanent observer's office at the United Nations.

In 1946 the General Assembly of the UN barred Spain from membership because of Franco's association with the Nazis.

Those were the days when the United Nations was considered a union of peace-loving states dedicated to the task of making this One World.

Those days have long passed. There is no unanimity of aims in the UN.

Yet it can still be of immeasurable value, as a forum at which the nations of the world can endeavor to settle their differences through debate and negotiation. There are some who maintain that to fulfill such a function adequately, the UN must include not some, but all, the nations.

If Communist China is admitted to membership there will no longer be any valid argument for excluding Spain or any of the other nations who have been blackballed, some by the Soviet bloc and some by the democracies.

Perhaps Spain, in considering sending an observer to the UN, is merely preparing for what Franco believes is the next logical development, the inclusion of every nation in the membership of the UN.

TOAST TO THE LADIES

Here's to the ladies! Lord bless 'em!	Here's to the ladies! Men need 'em,
And here's to the husbands who dress 'em!	And wise are the husbands who heed 'em.
For ribbons and laces	The men of the nation
And powder for faces	Would die of starvation
They're granted the right to caress 'em.	Unless they had women to feed 'em.
Here's to the ladies! About 'em	Here's to the ladies forever!
My praises, and loudly I shout 'em.	The pretty, the gentle, the clever.
For bracelets and lockets	Men's lives they all brighten,
They empty their pockets,	Their burdens they lighten.
But helpless would men be	A job man alone could do never.
without 'em,

Man's Reverence for Trees

(American Forests Magazine)

As far back as recorded history goes, men all around the world, have had a feeling of reverence for trees and often believed that gods lived in them.

Sacred trees are depicted on Chaldean cylinders 6,000 years old, and the Tree of Life which grew in the Garden of Eden, along with the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil, was the one that got Adam into trouble. Also found in many other religions, the Tree of Life appears to be a basic tree-man concept.

Some think that primitive man worshipped trees because they were the largest and most imposing things he saw. They had started growing long before he was born, and they would live on long after he was dead. In this sense they were "eternal." Further, they were often the source of many benefits — food and the materials for clothing and shelter.

The Greeks and their others believed that gods lived in sacred groves (usually oaks or beeches), and at Dodona, in Greece, there was for several hundred years an oracle dedicated to Zeus which people came from all over the world to visit. Answers to questions were known although the rustling murmur of the leaves of these trees, the murmuring of the spring nearby or the chirping of birds caused confusing in the branches.

In the Indian parts of the world, the gods in trees were believed to be all-wise, because they lived very deep roots which reached down into the underworld where the departed spirits lived. Thus, they had access to the accumulated wisdom of the ages and could even foresee the future.

In many parts of the world people have felt it proper to make gifts of sacred trees. Even our Christmas tree hung with gifts and decorations of the old German pagan origin, would appear to be a Christian adaption of a very ancient custom. Many superstitions about the divine or supernatural connection of trees sometimes persist, even to the present.

Hindus, who believe that all trees have living and conscious beings, hang votive offerings on them (usually bits of cloth or rag), but carefully avoid certain others since where demons are said to dwell. They never cut or touch them on Sundays, but when a new moon appears on a Monday, pious Hindus walk 108 times around the pipal tree, walking backwards and always around the trunk.

Having a statement under oath, a Hindu will hold some leaves of the pipal tree in his hand and let it fall to the ground. The truth hit if he has uttered a falsehood.

Gautama Buddha sat under a bo tree (another type of fig) at Buddh-Gaya for seven days in contemplation before he set forth to preach Buddhism, and for which is now himself, and a branch of it, which was planted in Ceylon, have been venerated. Even today a bo tree is planted close to every Buddhist temple and monastery. Before planting it is poured over the roots, and the earth around is covered with gold leaf, gold and flowers. It a branch fails, "it must be reverently cremated."

In another day and in another hemisphere, Charles Darwin noted that the South American Indians greeted a sacred tree with loud shouts when they saw it standing alone in a high part of the pampas. And he observed, "Every native who, having with bread, meat, cigars and dresses pulled from pockets, and even wine which was poured into holes near the roots."

North American Indians who lived in what is now Nebraska were seen by early settlers to hang offerings on sacred trees.

Those familiar with members of the Iroquois Nation know that, when they slide older people leaving a house or office will rub a chair, table or something similar made of wood, for good luck; so far as one knows, there is nothing to the effect that European inherited tradition of knocking on wood.

Still, I have noticed a number of characteristics in the early Christian Church was Polycarp, Bishop of Smyrna, who was a disciple of the Apostle John and so had been brought into a intimate contact with our Lord's closest and favored friend.

A terrible persecution of Christians broke out when Polycarp was very old. Eleven believers were brought into the arena to be slain for the entertainment of the bloodthirsty multitude. Then a great fire was built around the aged Polycarp and he was tied to a tree before cutting it down, they propitiated the gods with a sacrifice. Roasting pigs in Japan were pictured only a few years ago in a similar ceremony, with a small portable altar, asking pardon of a camphor tree which was about to be cut down.

Trees were thought by primitive people to have special curative powers. These ranged from a simple leaf poultice, which probably were of medicinal value, to less likely arrangements for obscure ailments. For example, in the middle ages it was believed that a child could be cured of ruptures by passing it through a slit oak which had been bound by the tree bound together, and plastering it up with clay.

Italy Enjoys Good Year

(New York Herald Tribune)

The American-Ambassador to Italy, Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, brings to this country a most encouraging account of how Italy has fared during the past year.

Twelve months ago, she points out, there was no stable Italian government. The Trieste question was still acute, the situation resulted from the general elections of June, 1953 had not been solidified. The European defense treaty was still in the air. Communism was a living force in Italy. Inflation of Italy in the East-West conflict was front and center.

In contrast, conditions now seem remarkably bright. The Trieste question is settled. Italo - Yugoslav relations are on a much improved footing. The trade accords have been passed by a comfortable margin.

Much still remains to be done nevertheless, if Italy is to be set on firm economic feet. The government's ten-year plan for economic development looks to creation of four million new jobs by 1964 and a rise of 50 per cent in the national income. It also contemplates construction of housing to eliminate substandard living conditions and to provide 2,000,000 persons.

The details of the plan, and the possible contribution of the United States to it, are now under study and will doubtless be discussed at the forthcoming Washington visit of Premier Scelba and Foreign Minister Martino. Meanwhile it is good to know that relations between Italy and the United States have been prospering. Extremists in the Italian political parties have made the American Ambassador's life far from easy, but it is clear that the intelligence, tact and energy of Mrs. Luce have won friends and written a bright chapter in Italian - American annals.

Saving Space

(Ottawa Citizen)

"In the good old days," says the St. Catharines Standard, "you could fool your children with clothes in them." It's much the same yet, a secret, but, to save space, the apartments are now in the closets.

Burmese Proverb

(Windsor Star)

Proverbs live down through the ages because of the truth inherent in them. They state this truth in such a graphic manner they always have a humorous touch about me, induced entirely by the sheer joy of being alive.

They found no liquor; but what they did find was a whole carton of cigarettes. "Cigarettes," the customs man, holding up the carton and looking at me inquisitively.

"Cigarettes," I explained.

"I know," said he. "But . . . uh . . . "

"Canadian cigarettes," I further elucidated. "I always take my Canadian cigarettes with me. You don't think I would smoke those foul American cigarettes, do you?"

The customs man was hurt to the quick. He dropped the carton back into my bag and stared at me coldly.

"You people," he accused, "are always trying to smuggle home our cigarettes. Why, down in your Quebec province, they uncovered a whole ring smuggling liquor and bringing American cigarettes into Canada . . . "

"I apologized," there's a lot of Americans over in Canada from time to time, and I suppose they sell those smuggled cigarettes to them."

Which said the customs man, with that sly look they adopt when they think they've caught you, left me.

"My dear man," I said, "in these Canadian cigarettes, there's enough tar and nicotine to put a end in those rusty, acrid, fizzling, dry, American cigars."

This was treason. He wouldn't listen. He went on to the next passenger, and I felt somewhat like a man who had heard blasphemy.

Diluting Water With Whiskey

(Windsor Star)

A scientist has figured a teaspoon of water, just a couple of sips, has 257,000 horsepower locked up in it. This is a pulsating thought, especially in a big storm.

The finding has another side, however, as will be noted by connoisseurs during festive seasons. And it may explain why liquor control commissions cautiously dilute water with their whisky.

Personal Health Talks

OI/ DOC WANTS NEW DEGREE

Whenever I read of a gent receiving an honorary degree I go into a reverie, wondering whether the guy has any use for it or whether if I might quietly appropriate one such as I have always wanted, without colliging myself to cough up even $1,000 or $3,000 thus.

Dr. Brady

No, I suppose that wouldn't be the proper way to go about it. In the legitimate way, that is. The slightest hint of quid pro quo would deter a self-respecting institution . . . but here is an alternative proposal:

An inventor, I should be the first person authorized to sign his name with the new degree, thus,

Ima S. Tinker, P.H.D.

Oh, sure, thousands of characters use Ph.D., Dr. P. H., or similar mystic symbols, but prior to publication of this column no one has received the P. H. D. degree and few if any readers will know what it means when I unroll it and explain it.

Talk it over with your friends, consult the dictionary, examine old clippings of this column or, if possible, go into a brown—huh what am I saying! This is the twentieth century. Better yet, hold a panel discussion of the question and set up a pool . . . in a private way—it's all off if the thing is exploited publicly and collecting one red cent of responsibility for additional expense so entailed.

Maybe it is a mistake to attempt in this way to familiarize the public concerning the proper degree before bringing the matter to the attention of the regents. But what chance would an avowed quack have of even being admitted, let alone served along for years without it, so why risk my future career?

We might now think about it? Next Tuesday, Jan. 25, I'll explain what P. H. D. standard and also some further details which should but probably will not interest the administrators of education, particularly medical education, in Yankeeland.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On a recent trip to the States, I was investigated a little more thoroughly than usual by the American customs officials. Ever since my day I looked a little like a Bolshevik because I needed a shave and had on a turtle neck jeweler. Besides, they caught me smoking my cigarettes which are well down my nose so that I might have even been suspected of being an intellectual. And you know how cagey the Americans are about intellectuals.

It also could be that they thought the way I was carrying that bottle of liquor hidden under my pyjamas and old slippers, because I always have a subconscious about me, induced entirely by the sheer joy of being alive.

They found no liquor; but what they did find was a whole carton of cigarettes. "Cigarettes," I explained.

"I know," said he. "But . . . uh . . . "

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE THRILL OF NEWNESS

One thing that keeps many in a so-called rut is that they do not wish to make a change or is risk something new. Someone scares some people. It wouldn't do for an inventor to be afraid of newness or new things, for then he wouldn't be an inventor. He is forever searching for something new, something not yet known.

What a thrill Edison must have had when finally he was rewarded with an electric light that worked! The entire physical being takes on an upward experience when a change of home is made, or when a journey is made to a country new to the traveller. You can't think of old statements that a new broom sweeps well. So does everything that is new appeal to the mind and the spirit.

There isn't enthusiasm for everything that is new, however. The new shoe often pinches, but we get used to it after it has been "worked in." The new car always gives a thrill to the one who has just invested in it. The new baby draws the attention of all within its radius, including the baby herself.

It is because there are many who seek opportunities that we have so many of the comforts we enjoy today. It is a challenge to discover anything that doesn't also send its echo into the heart of many another who is a new device in a shop window and a crowd will gather in front of it. Everyone is interested in new things. The valuable worker is the one who often suggests new ideas. Everyone has but has a psychological thrill for the one who has just purchased it, especially if that person is a woman! The new order gives the salesman a lift.

I get a special thrill out of the breaking of light that is the celebration of a new day. I still wonder over the Sequence and over the fact that the Universe holds each individual in the hollow of its hand! We cannot overestimate what was planned and originated long, long ago. Every single day is a new privilege, offered free to all.

Gratuities Uncollected

(Windsor Daily Star)

The puzzle why some depositors forget about their bank accounts is matched by the 5,500 gratuities left unclaimed on Second World War who have neglected to collect their war service gratuities. The total of unclaimed dividends was reached at the year-end.

A man cannot claim his dividend for some of the gratuities run as high as $700.

No one will want to see a deserving veteran lose a gratuity to which he's entitled. Probably a way can be found to authorize payment at any future time a claim is established. We don't think we're alone in choosing to forget the deadline as a technicality.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Federal Dept. of Transport Launches Probe Into Crackup

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The federal department of transport launched an investigation Saturday into the crack-up of an amphibious aircraft which crashed into a farmer's field, fatally injuring Flying Officer Robert H. Saunders. Four others in the Hydro-owned craft were hurt.

Inspectors H. Flakie and A. Empey worked into the night Saturday and continued their investigation Sunday. The Ontario hydro-electric power commission craft up a base in quarters and its security police guarded the area.

The plane, returning the 31-year-old chairman to Toronto after a speech at Harrow, Ont., near Windsor, crashed into a field near Crumlin airport after it became crusted with ice.

THROUGH THE RAIN

The crash occurred as the big twin-engined Canso Mallard was ploughing its way through sheets of frozen rain for an emergency landing at London's Crumlin airport, Pilot said the city Constable Ralph Torgalson was taxiing his turn at the pilot's seat while Pilot Leslie Rogers attempted to keep the windshield clear of ice.

Mr. Rogers said a Trans-Canada Air Lines pilot at Windsor told them before they took off there was light freezing rain. The aircraft had de-icers on propellors and carburetor but no de-icing fluid on wings or tail.

The pilot said they ran into heavy, freezing rain over Dresden. They climbed to 5,000 feet in an attempt to get clear, then dropped to 1,500 to get below the clouds.

"Everything went wrong in a matter of 30 minutes before the crash," said Capt. Rogers. "Winds changed, icing got bad and caked on the wings and snow started falling."

ALMOST INEVITABLE

He said the aircraft couldn't have made a crash almost inevitable. Capt. Rogers has logged 9,000 hours in the air.

The men established radio contact with Crumlin and were given a clearance on all runways as they started their approach at about 200 feet.

Just before the crash, a section of flight at the airport failed.

Earlier reports said all the lights went out when a fuse blew. However, Frank Shrive, chief control officer at Crumlin, said only a few lights were out and that the radio, beacon and obstruction lights were in operation.

He said only a section of lights along the approach to the runway were affected by the blow-out.

Mr. Shrive said it all started when Capt. Rogers radioed the London airport control tower that he could not throw off ice forming on the wings to climb above the heavy clouds.

USED HEADLIGHTS

Mr. Shrive said this is what happened next:

"As soon as the aircraft requested permission to make an emergency landing we alerted the RCAF crash truck, which stands by 24 hours a day. The department of transport has its own crash truck but the RCAF truck was there, ready."

"When the lights fused, the truck and some of our own cars were driven out to the runway to mark the approach with headlights.

"The aircraft maintained radio silence, but in situations like this that is not unusual. We know the pilot is sometimes too busy keeping the aircraft flying.

"Even though he was not replying, we kept on talking to him. When he maintained radio silence, however, we notified the OPP to keep a lookout for a low flying plane.

"The first notification the tower had about the crash was at 12:14 a.m. when someone called up and gave us the location.

"A party of department of transport men, including myself, immediately drove to the crash site. The RCAF crash and fire truck and ambulances followed right behind us.

ASSURED SHOCK

When the crash came the heavy construction of the aircraft absorbed most of the shock, officials said. The three passengers, Mr. Saunders, Dennis Duck, Hydro public relations man and John F. Schwella of Van Nuys, Calif., were shocked, slightly. Mr. Saunders was unconscious.

Mr. Duck went to a farmhouse to call ambulances, then returned to the plane to help wrap the injured in blankets. Mud and snow delayed arrival of aid for about half an hour.

Meanwhile, Ron Urquhart, 17, on whose father's farm the crash occurred, saw the plane crash truck and followed it. The truck became stuck and Urquhart reached the plane first.

He fluid occupants told him to make sure help was on the way. He ran back and found the crash truck stuck.

DROUGHT TRACTOR

Urquhart brought his father's tractor and pulled the crash truck up to the aircraft. There was no fire.

"I'd been in such a hurry, and was so worried about the plane going up in flames, that I didn't notice till she was out that the tractor was out of gas," he said.

So I had to go back again and get the gas to fill her up. It was a busy time."

A Hydro spokesman said Schwella was on the plane to make a routine check on its operation. He represents the company which said it to Hydro in 1943, the year Mr. Saunders became chairman.

Northern Electric Hockey League

The third game in a best-of-three semi-finals was played over the week-end between the Indians and Flyers but the result was a 4-4 deadlock, the second in a row between these two teams. Only another win by Indians have won one game in the series, since the other two have been ties, a fourth game will be played next week-end.

Barry Wardhaugh kept the Flyers in the running as he scored all four of their goals with Barrett picking up assists on three. Al Semark had two goals and one assist for the Indians with Wright and Barclay scoring one each and also assisting on a goal.

Single penalties were handed out to Barclay, York and J. Semark, Hurley and J. Wardhaugh were the referees.

MADOC

Former Resident Madoc Township 93 Years Old

MADOC—John Robert Fraser, former resident of Madoc, for years young is the proud great grandfather to Kenneth Ross Hutchings, son of Mrs. W. A. Hutchings, grandson of Mrs. W. G. Hopley, all of Oak River, Manitoba.

Mr. Fraser is the only surviving member of his branch of the Fraser clan, bearing the name. Grandson of Hugh Fraser and May McLean of Fort Rose, Scotland, who emigrated to Canada, with their family of William, Annie, John and Hugh, in 1846, and settled in the Bannockburn district in Hastings county.

John Robert is the only son of William, who married Ruth Hester Mabel Pringle, granddaughter of U.E.L. pioneer Rachel Derpes, passed away five years ago and he now makes his home with his daughters, Lucy and Jennie, at Oak River, and Willen, Manitoba.

As a young man, he was a river driver until he homesteaded in Manitoba, returning to Ontario in 1900 for his bride. He is in wonderful health, reads a great deal without glasses, and goes out even in winter to do his daily chores.

VISITS ONTARIO

In 1951 he visited his Ontario and Michigan relatives accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. W. Hopley. In 1952 he returned accompanied by Mrs. W. G. Hopley and daughters Jean (Mrs. Hutchings), and Eunice. In 1953 he again made the trip in company with his brother-in-law, Harry Pringle and sister-in-law, Mrs. Malcolm Beaton, brother and sister to Mrs. R. A. Woods, of Madoc village.

Other close remaining relatives are a first cousin, Hugh McIntosh, son of Annie (Fraser) McIntosh, of Madoc; also Murray Fraser, of Havelock, and William of Trent Bridge; second cousins, being sons of John Fraser, in fact double-second cousins as William's and John's wives are sisters, Hannah and Fanny Vance, from Ireland.

KITCHENER MAN BETTER

HALIFAX (CP)—The military hospital at Stadacona naval base here said Sunday night that Pte. Arthur Gregory Sloan of Kitchener, Ont., has been released to duty with the company in the Black Watch Regiment stationed at Camp Aldershot, near Kentville, N.S. Sloan received shoulder injuries Friday in a highway accident near Halifax in which a companion was killed and five others injured.

Colleagues, Govt., Business Leaders Pay Saunders Tribute

TORONTO (CP)—Tributes from colleagues, government and business leaders poured in today in honor of Robert H. Saunders, Hydro chairman who died Sunday from injuries suffered in an air crash.

Among them:

Premier Frost of Ontario:

"He was a great friend, a great, kindly personality a great man, at business and in public life. To me he was a great tower of strength. There was only one Bob Saunders.

"His achievements were monumental, in 1940 he was faced with the critical power shortage. With his able assistants he overcame it. He hastened the Niagara treaty and immediately turned to redevelopment. The job is done without the interests on the other side of the river are still considering it."

Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal leader and constructive critic of recent Hydro policies:

"The death of Bob Saunders has removed from public life a colorful and dynamic personality. Whether or not one agreed with the policies of the commission of which he was the head, one was always impressed with the loyalty of the chairman to the enterprise that was his life's work. Ontario and the government have suffered a grievous loss."

Governor Averell Harriman of New York said he was "shocked and saddened by the news."

The governor said Mr. Saunders had made "a great and lasting contribution to the successful negotiations which made possible the present completion of the St. Lawrence seaway and power projects."

Robert Moses, chairman of the New York State Power Authority: "Men like Bob Saunders are very nearly indispensable in the course of many years in public office if they have been real good fortune to be closely identified with a man of Bob Saunders' ability, political, professional and business experience, judgment and agreeable personal qualities."

External Affairs Minister Pearson:

"He will be greatly missed by the country and province, which he had served so long with dynamic energy, constructive imagination and great ability. Indeed the whole country—as I have good reason to know from our work together on such projects as the St. Lawrence seaway—will be the poorer for his passing."

Hon. Lionel Chevrier, president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority:

"A great loss to Hydro, to the province and to the country.

"It is a great loss to Hydro because he had been so successful in the negotiations with the power authority of the state of New York and in the progress of the work so far on the St. Lawrence. The results achieved so far are due in no small measure to Mr. Saunders' efforts."

Progressive Conservative Leader George Drew:

"I have had an intimate personal friend and Ontario a great public servant.

Mr. Drew said most of Mr. Saunders life had been devoted to Toronto and to Ontario but throughout Canada he would be remembered for his outstanding work as chairman of the hydro-electric power commission of Ontario.

Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways:

"His dynamic and colorful personality plus his dedicated approach to the public enterprise he headed made him known and admired by all who met him in business or who were privileged in personal friendship."

Ontario Welfare Minister W. A. Goodfellow: "The province of Ontario has lost a great man and a great friend. We are now using twice as much hydro power in Ontario as we did 10 years ago and this can only be attributed to the efforts and activities of the late chairman of the hydro-electric power commission."

George H. Challies, first vice-president of Hydro. "His unbounding energy, his ability and training, ideally fitted him for the task he so discreetly accepted. His passing is an inestimable loss to the whole Hydro enterprise in which service he was so happy."

Richard L. Hearn, general manager and chief engineer of hydro: "I consider it fortunate to have had the opportunity of working with Bob Saunders. The inspiration he developed in the staff to overcome some of Ontario's power problems has been an experience which I will never forget."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE'LL DRIVE HER HUSBAND AWAY IF SHE DOESN'T CHANGE HER ATTITUDE

Tragic as it is when a wife has had to go through the misery and grief of her husband's infidelity, there are times when one can't help wondering why some husbands ever stay home at all.

For there are wives who are so unintelligent in their way of handling such a situation, so foolish in their subsequent attitude toward it, as to make one feel the erring husband is a long-suffering man indeed if he does settle down and become domesticated. Such wives, I would say, have only themselves to blame if they drive their husbands right back into the arms of the women they left.

Take, for example, the one who tells her story as follows:

"I have been married 12 years, and we have four fine children. For all those years, up until about eight months ago, I thought my husband and I were one of those couples who have a perfect marriage. Then, all of a sudden, I heard rumors that he was running around with another woman.

"I asked him about this, and he admitted he had been taking out a girl he met on his job, and ever since I have been so unhappy that I don't know how I can go on living with him. My husband said there was really nothing between him and this girl except a passing fancy, and that he never sees her any more now, but how can I believe it? I just can't see how our marriage can ever mean anything again.

"Hard as I try, I can't forget. It is constantly on my mind, and it makes me irritable and cross even with the children. My husband says he never thinks of the girl except when I bring her up, and that he certainly was never in love with her, but how can I ever trust him again? It is true that he rarely goes out in the evening now, but when he is home, all he does is read and sleep. He also seems pretty indifferent to me.

"Should I leave him and gain back my pride and self-respect, or go on living with him with that girl always between us?"

Now what chance has any couple to build up their life together with a wife constantly throwing her husband's past behavior in his face? Here this husband is, trying to make amends by staying home practically every night, which gives the wife an opportunity to make home so happy and attractive that he would love being in it. But instead of making an effort to do that, which would be her very best insurance against any further wandering on his part, she harps continually on something that appears to be over and done with, and makes his evenings at home something anyone would want to get away from. Why wouldn't he spend his time reading and sleeping, when his only alternative is to listen to her angry reproaches?

Apparently she feels that her pride and self-esteem require her to leave her husband, even though there seems to be no evidence that he was any more involved with the girl than taking her out occasionally. To my way of thinking, it would show a great deal more pride and self-respect if she would bury the past and concentrate on making herself so attractive that he would look eagerly forward to his nightly home-coming. If she doesn't, she'll find there'll be no need of her leaving him, for he'll leave her first.

All this wife is doing is simply indulging herself in an orgy of self-pity and bitterness. Only time, of course, can tell whether or not her husband will continue to stay home nights instead of seeking the company of other women. But, at present, she is certainly doing her very best to drive him away again.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

CARE OF THE TEETH

Facial loveliness lies not alone in sparkling eyes, regular features or a lovely complexion. It's the combination of these attributes in a friendly smile, revealing perfect polished teeth, that makes a woman attractive.

Teeth do not receive all the attention they should have. Their well-being is not only essential to charming appearance, but to health.

The most effective weapon for combating dental filz is the tooth-brush. It should be selected carefully. Large ones do not conform to the dental arch and heavy bristles may injure the gums.

A brush needs proper care. After being used, the brush should be rinsed and placed where it will not come in contact with atmospheric dust.

When brush bristles start to fend, it's time to discard the brush. Dentists tell us that new brushes should be purchased every three or four months, if they are to be in good working condition.

A dentifrice is an aid in cleaning teeth. Some are pleasantly flavored, making brushing a more agreeable task.

The function of a mouth wash is to eliminate particles of food that have been hookered. It also sweetens the breath.

No matter how diligent you may be in daily attentions, you must see your dentist every six months, not only for examination and regular work, but for the removal of tartar. This can only be cleared away by means of instruments.

Such a happy home that he would look eagerly forward to his nightly home-coming. If she doesn't, she'll find there'll be no need of her leaving him, for he'll leave her first.

All this wife is doing is simply indulging herself in an orgy of self-pity and bitterness. Only time, of course, can tell whether or not her husband will continue to stay home nights instead of seeking the company of other women. But, at present, she is certainly doing her very best to drive him away again.

Potatoes - Habit or Favorite?

By Mary Moore

In writing out the first draft of my speech, that I am going to give to an audience that I do not know I was wishing all the time that I were talking to my own people —namely you.

So—so that I won't turn out to be a frustrated female I put the speech papers aside and now I can talk with ease to my old friends about a prosaic subject—potatoes.

This is what I want to stress to you: we can cook potatoes every time in a way that will conserve their maximum nutrition. Immediately your mind fly to baked potatoes for by that method you know that the minerals and vitamins in the skins and all of the minerals in the flesh are retained for our digestive tracts—not the sink drain which is what gets most of the minerals when we boil and drain them.

Now I have a few more potato ideas for you to try out that conserve all or most of the nutrients and bring into potatoes—in lovely flavorsome ways that will be welcome favorites with you and your family I hope

DOUBLE BOILER POTATOES

Three cups finely diced raw potatoes (if you really are pursuing good health scrub them eating-clean, and, leaving skins on, dice them finely), 1-2 teaspoon grated onion, 1-2 cup skim milk powder, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine 1 1-4 cups water. In top of double boiler mix thoroughly together, milk powder, flour and seasonings. Add potatoes and onion and stir until potatoes are coated. Add the butter and water, stir well, cover and cook over boiling water for about 1 hour or until potatoes are tender, stirring occasionally.

POTATO CASSEROLE

Ideal as the carbohydrate item for a vegetable plate or a low protein meal.

Slice very thinly enough unpared clean (or pared) potatoes to make 4 cups when well-packed. Cook them with 1 chopped or thinly sliced green pepper and 1 chopped or thinly sliced medium onion in 1 1-2 cups boiling water until nearly tender—not more than 15 minutes. Without draining turn into 1 1-2 quart casserole. Melt 1 tablespoon butter or drippings and stir in 1 1-2 tablespoons cornstarch and 1 teaspoon salt. Add 1 cup milk and cook stirring, until thickened. Add 1-2 cup grated old cheese. Pour this sauce over the potatoes. Mix 1-4 cup crushed cornflakes with 1-4 lb. finely chopped salt pork or bacon, spread over top and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 25 or 30 minutes, or until pork is cooked and browned.

CRISP POTATO PANCAKES

Scrub potatoes eating-clean and grate them finely—directly into a bowl containing 1 beaten egg—this prevents browning. You should have 3 medium sized potatoes to make 3 or 4 servings. Add 1 small onion grated and 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 1-8 teaspoon pepper and mix all well together. Use little shortening in frying pan and using a rubber scraper slide a little of the pancake mixture from a tablespoon into the hot fat. Fry only a few pancakes at a time—don't crowd the frying pan. Spread and flatten pancakes with back of spoon. When bottom is crisp and brown flip over and brown second side. Keep pa cakes hot in low oven as you fry them. Wonderful with boiled pork hocks or shoulder, cabbage or sauerkraut.

ROBT. H. SAUNDERS

Mr. Saunders died 30 hours after reaching hospital. Dennis Dack, a Hydro public relations official, received shoulder and arm injuries, and John Schenck of Van Nuys, Calif., an aircraft technician, received head cuts.

BLAME KING

Severe icing was blamed for the crackup. The amphibious plane—for six years Mr. Saunders' flying office after he was appointed Hydro chairman in 1948—had no deicing equipment on the wings.

Tributes poured into Hydro headquarters here. Most of the callers, from Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario to a sweeper at city hall, had known Mr. Saunders personally. The rugged Saunders face with its broken nose, and his gravel-throated voice was known, liked and respected across the province.

In many hamlets his visits, signalling the advent of Hydro power, are still remembered and talked about as the biggest event in years.

Few who had felt the impact of his many-sided personality could forget him. Many believed that he was destined for high political office, as a provincial premier or a national leader.

PERSONALITY IMPRESSED

The Saunders personality had so many facets that he was able to find common ground with every person he met. And he liked publicity. Nobody ever discovered anything he liked better than having his picture taken or making a speech.

He was born Robert Hood Saunders of Empire Loyalist stock. He came up the hard way, first as a newsboy peddling papers on a street corner, then as a truck driver and factory worker. He graduated in law in 1927.

Mr. Saunders was a criminal lawyer until 1935, when he entered civic politics.

He married his childhood sweetheart, Marjorie Rennie of Toronto, three years after he was called to the Ontario bar.

ON CITY COUNCIL

He was first elected an alderman in 1935. He was defeated for board of control in 1938 and 1939 but was elected an alderman again in 1940. He made board of control the following year and stayed there until chosen mayor in 1945. In 1946 he was appointed Hydro chairman by George Drew, then premier of Ontario.

Mr. Saunders accelerated an expansion program started in 1945. Fifteen new power sources were developed, doubling the commission's available capacity. At the same time, Mr. Saunders kept his eye on the seaway power project.

He once said "I don't know anything about engineering, I'm just the public relations man for Hydro." He vowed never to speak in public unless he mentioned the seaway.

Start of work on the $300,000,000 project, designed to produce 2,200,000 horsepower a year, was described by Mr. Saunders as "a proud moment in the history of the Canadian people" at opening ceremonies last Aug. 10.

IN HIS HONOR

The main generating station, to supply 1,100,000 horsepower to Ontario consumers, will be named the Robert H. Saunders-St. Lawrence generating station.

He went into the job without experience, at a time when post-war power shortages caused dimouts in many parts of the province. He was a moving force behind a tremendous expansion program.

Within a month of taking over the chairmanship, Mr. Saunders announced removal of all power restrictions in southern Ontario.

UTILITY WENT FORWARD

Hydro, now with a staff of 19,000 workers, progressed under Mr. Saunders' leadership. Power has been increased 84 per cent since 1945 and now supplies more than 1,200 communities. As of Dec. 31, 1953, its assets totalled more than $1,500,000,000.

After graduating from law school in 1927, Mr. Saunders practised with Edward J. Murphy, former crown attorney in 1926.

He played an active part in many murder trials and was defence counsel in five, all of which he won. Arguing a case, he was quiet and serious.

In his youth, Mr. Saunders played football and was a crack paddler. He later took a prominent part in the affairs of the Canadian Canoe Association. As a young lawyer he spoke on almost every point at CCA meetings, admittedly to develop his speaking style.

WON MEDAL

His first taste of public speaking came at collegiate. He persuaded the caretaker of his church to open the building, entered the pulpit and spoke to an imaginary gathering. He won the gold medal for oratory that year with a speech about Lincoln.

As mayor of Canada's second largest city, Mr. Saunders established himself as a showman. In weekly local radio broadcasts, which gained him a province-wide following, he always addressed the listening audience as "folks."

He rarely made a political blunder. When he did he had a genius for mending fences. Despite various calculated displays of temper, Mr. Saunders was known to get really angry on only three occasions, each explosion coming when somebody tried to take advantage of him.

Publicly he was a Progressive Conservative, although he never ran for either provincial or federal office for the party.

FIRST ADDRESS

In his first inaugural address as mayor, he said:

"When it is considered that one who has sold papers on the street corners, one who has delivered papers from house to house, who has acted as a truck driver and as a factory worker, and is almost every conceivable walk of life, becomes mayor of the second largest city—and a city we like to think of as the greatest city—in Canada, then I believe we can see the great advantage of democracy."

Mr. Saunders' body will rest at the Miles Funeral Home, 30 St. Clair Ave., West. Funeral services will be held from St. George's United Church at 3 p.m. Tuesday.

'CHUTE DID NOT OPEN

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The body of air speed record holder James B. Verdin, who bailed out of a bantam jet bomber 30,000 feet over the Mojave desert Thursday, was found Friday about 30 miles from the wreckage of his plane. His 'chute had not opened, authorities said.

FIRES IN FOUR

The body of Mrs. Tremblay, 46, was found in a back room where she had fallen just as she reached a window.

Fire chief Joseph Giroux said the three apparently were asphyxiated by the smoke.

The early-morning fire also drove relatives of the Tremblays from their home next door into sub-freezing temperatures in their night attire.

At Charlottetown, two-year-old Freddie Somers died in a fire that destroyed his parent's small frame home.

STOKED STOVE

At Timmins, Mr. Carriere said he stoked the stove before he went to bed.

He was awakened nearly an hour later—around 1 a. m.—by Shirley Laporte.

Jean-Paul said he found the kitchen enveloped in flames. He pushed the baby-sitter through a window and tried to get to the children's bedroom behind the kitchen, but flames drove him back.

Louis, who had been sleeping with the children, escaped through a back window with Denis but the blaze stopped further rescues.

In the confusion Mrs. Carriere, in a front bedroom with the young-est child, crawled through a window. She was unable to save Omer.

COMPLETE LOSS

Flames could be seen 12 blocks away. All furniture in the house, estimated to be worth $4,000 was destroyed. The house, at the back of a lot, was burned almost to the ground.

Jean-Paul said he heard a bang just after he dozed off but thought stops cold weather stalling!

Ice in the carburetor has been proven to be a major cause of stalling. With New Esso Extra ice cannot form anywhere in your car's fuel system. So, when you stall, don't blame it on a cold engine or carburetor adjustment until you've tried New Esso Extra.

As gasoline vaporizes in the carburetor, it has a refrigerating effect. Condensation from the intake air freezes. Ice crystals stop the fuel supply . . . and your car stalls. This cannot happen with New Esso Extra.

Detroit Takes Over National League Top; Bruins Claw Canadiens 6-0

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

THE CHANGING SCENE

The week-end change of scenery in this topsy-turvy senior "B" League, today revealed the Cornwall Colts back on top of the heap, two points in front of the Whitby Wrens. The Colts defeated Kingston 6-1 Sunday, with Goodies trimming the Petes 9-4 for a split. The Petes dropped a pair, the other by a 6-4 score to Clinton yesterday.

Whitby racked up its seventh straight win by defeating Brockville with the idle Memos dropping to fourth place, one point behind Kingston, who in turn trail the Wrens by a lone marker.

"The Memos take on the tough Maydemas from Brockville here tomorrow night in another important tussle. A win will push the Beachermen into a second spot tie with Whitby, while a loss will bring the "Margies" to within three points of our side.

A MAN SPEAKS!

A well-known city sportsman interviewed with regard to "What's Wrong at the Hockey Box-office?" went into evasive action, but came up with the statement that hockey under present conditions will never be a paying proposition here with the present arena facilities.

"Until these are changed," he said, "I doubt very much if a private sponsor will take over a hockey franchise, no matter what classification it is. It is a good thing for fandom here that the arena is being operated by the city, otherwise I doubt if there would be ice in the arena."

"In other words," he went on, "I doubt very much if a hockey club, under the present high operational costs, would make very much with capacity houses at every performance. The present arena is not large enough."

"A private sponsor of a senior club is said to have made money a few years ago," somebody ventured.

"That is true," he replied, "but you must remember that year cost of operation was not nearly as high as now. The players worked on a win-or-lose pay basis, and transportation costs did not amount to nearly those of the present senior "B" league.

"And," he added, "if you remember, the sponsor you mention, made his profit, if any, in the group playoffs. I doubt very much if he broke even during schedule play and the games that season attracted from 1500 upwards. Then, too, that was the year of the opening of the Kingston Community Centre and Belleville and Kingston battled in a seven-game series. If I remember correctly over 4000 were at the opener in Kingston and nearly that many at the seventh game when th clubs 'split the pot'."

The man warmed to his subject. "Take the case of the junior "B" situation here a few years ago. Bill Cook and a few others sunk plenty of money in an effort to bring top-flight junior hockey to Belleville and what did they came up with. Several empty aspirin boxes, a wad of cancelled cheques, a tremendous hole in the bank account, and the determination to shake the hockey dust from their boots forever."

"Operational costs were heavy in those days too. You can't pay board bills, tuition fees, meals, bus transportation and other costs from the gate receipts of crowds of from 400 to practically 500. Mr. Cook will tell you himself that he could have broken even in the schedule with houses of 2400. Any money to be made, as I said before, comes in the playdowns—and then the arena would not accommodate the crowd.

"But," he smiled, "that does not apply to this season. Belleville, like the rest of the clubs in the group, has suffered at the box office, whatever the reason may be. And nobody seems able to offer a solution. Kingston attendance has dropped considerably from last year. They are drawing some 2300 per game with a modern Community Centre."

An average of 2300 here would be very welcome to the Arena Commission, one of the boys suggested.

"That it would," said the W.K.S., "and maybe therein hangs Belleville's solution. Don't publish this," he cautioned at this corner, "but make a brand-new Community Centre located say, at the Fair Grounds, might be the biggest part of the answer to the hockey problem.

"It worked in Kingston," he added. "I remember when Belleville and Kingston teams played in the Jock Harty arena and they had nearly as many playing as paying. Came the new Centre—and you know the rest. People who never saw hockey before now are regular patrons at the Centre."

"But," another of the group said, "Brockville has a modern up-to-date, heated arena, and its senior 'B' club has not been getting the patronage it should. In fact it was rumored the club was folding because of this reason. How about that?"

"Okay, Mel Allen," came the W.K.S., "the same bug that is bitin' Belleville, Clinton, Whitby, Peterborough, Cornwall and is nibbling at Kingston, has taken a large-size chunk out of Brockville. Frankly, I do not know the reason. I merely wanted to get some other things off my chest."

Win Pair From Habs, Rangers To Vault Into Two-Point Lead; Hawks, Boston Bow to Leafs

By Jim Bastable
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Keep both eyes on Detroit Red Wings.

The Detroiters, winners of six straight National Hockey League championships, always did bear some watching but now may be making their key move of the 1954-55 season.

Everybody was impressed by the explosive power of Montreal Canadiens during the first half of the campaign. The Red Wings were supposed to be demoralized and weakened by the deal that sent Metro Prystai to Chicago Black Hawks but have not finished in first place.

The Wings didn't fall apart. On the contrary, they stuck around second and third place and this weekend jumped into the league lead with a 4-3 victory over Canadiens and a 3-0 shutout against the fifth-place New York Rangers. That gave them 36 points, two up on the Montrealers.

Canadiens were riding comfortably on a 3-0 lead at Montreal Saturday when the Wings broke out with four goals and the victory. On Sunday, the Montrealers were embarrassed by the fourth-place Bruins in Boston.

TORONTO TOOK TWO

In two other games, the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs picked up a 4-2 win against Boston Bruins in Toronto Saturday and defeated Black Hawks by the same score in Chicago last night.

The Detroit-Montreal engagement was a sticky, Goalie Hown inspired the victory, firing two goals in the second period when it seemed that the Wings would never overhaul the 3-0 Montreal lead. Marty Pavelich and Earl Reibon took care of the other two goals in the third session.

Rightwinger Maurice Richard scored two goals for Canadiens, Dan Bjorkman and Bert Olmstead scoring.

Detroit's victory over the Blueshirts in Detroit Sunday came easier. Pavelich scored again in that one as goaltender Terry Sawchuk racked up his ninth shutout of the season.

Defenceman Bob Goldham tallied his first goal of the season and team captain Ted Lindsay, returning to the lineup after an absence of 33 days because of injuries, looked good in scoring his ninth goal of the campaign at 11:36 of the first period.

Little Lorne Worsley of New York gave the 11,551 fans in Detroit Olympia a tremendous goaltending performance. He handled 31 Red Wing shots.

FANS PLEASED

Canadiens showed once again that even the best of teams go raise once in a while. They couldn't do a thing right against the upstart Bruins, the most improved club in the league.

The largest crowd of the season at Boston Garden, 14,483, nearly went wild, particularly when bespectacled Hal Laycoe snapped a 75-game goal famine. Laycoe, a 32-year-old defenceman converted into a centre and general handyman, beat Montreal netminder Jacques Plante for two goals—at 11:33 and 18:46 of the first period.

Lorne Ferguson, centre Cal Gardner, Don Gallinger and rearguard Leo Boivin scored the other goals as the Bruins registered their 13th win in 42 games.

Sid Smith, his eye on the all-star lineup based on performance to date and 22nd goals of the season against Bruins before 17,562 Maple Leaf Garden fans. The 29-year-old native of Toronto is nearly a cinch to become the first Leaf in years to score 30 goals in a season.

Rightwinger Eric Nesterenko broke out with two goals to lead Leafs to victory over the Hawks. There were only 7,180 fans—a slight improvement over crowds at recent Chicago games—on hand to watch Nesterenko put his two in the second period. Kluskay and George Armstrong scored the other Leaf goals while defenceman Allan Stanley and Lou Jankowski tallied for Hawks.

No games are scheduled until Wednesday, when the Hawks are at Toronto and the Red Wings are at New York.

WIN PRO BOWL

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A pass interception by Detroit Lions centre Lavern Torgeson decided set up the winning fourth quarter touchdown as the West defeated the East 26-19 in the fifth annual pro bowl football game before 43,971 fans who sat through intermittent rain. With the score deadlocked 19-19 Torgeson grabbed a pass from Adrian Burk of Philadelphia Eagles and ran it back 35 yards to the East four. In two plays San Francisco's Joe Perdy scored.

Hurricane Jackson, also holds a victory over Wills, a 1951 decision in New York. A boxer rather than a knockout puncher, he pounded Cockell in the British Empire champion, into oblivion in four rounds. He has a record of 26 victories, four draws and eight losses.

Wills, who carries dynamite in each fist, has knocked out 28 opponents in 36 fights. He will have an edge in weight, height and just about everything else. Standing at six feet, 2½ inches, he expects to weigh in at 195.

The five-foot-10 Slade will outclass the ring at approximately 175.

Slade's camp is predicting a victory for their man. The fight will go the limit. Wills is expected to try for an early knockout.

NY Giants Will Carry Grid 'War' To Canada; 'Source of Untapped Talent'

Is Not Retaliatory Measure For Hiring of Yankee Players; Could Start General Invasion

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—At least one National Football League club is making serious preparations for carrying the Canadian-American football "war" into the enemy's camp.

New York Giants are ready to spend a lot of money and time to lure native Canadian football players south of the border and mould them into stars.

"Canadian football is a great untapped source of talent for us," says Welling T. Mara, vice-president and secretary of the Giants. "There is a popular theory that Canadian ball players are not good enough to play down here. I have never subscribed to that opinion."

NOT RETALIATORY

While Mara's statement came at a time when Canada's Big Four was debating the advisability of honoring NFL contracts and options, the Giants official emphasized that his club's Canadian investigations are not planned as a retaliatory measure for widespread hiring of Giant players by Canadian teams.

"I think Canadians have an inferiority complex about their own players when they say we're not sincere about signing these boys," he said in an interview.

The Giants concede that success with just one Canadian-born player could easily set off a wholesale invasion of Canadian gridirons by NFL clubs. But they are determined to get in on the ground floor.

Giant scouts watched several Big Four games last season and plan to send scouts to important Canadian intercollegiate and junior games next fall. Mara said top prospects will be given special coaching in adjusting to the American game.

SOUND OUT TWO

The Giants, who have already acquired lineman Tex Coulter and backfielder Alex Webster, both Americans, from the Big Four champion Montreal Alouettes, also have sounded out two top Canadians on the Montreal roster, end Doug McNichol and back Joey Pal.

But Mara admitted that his club has deliberately centred its attention on Toronto Argonauts "because they have behaved so dishonorably towards us." He said six Canadians with the Argonauts have received letters from the Giants and "several" others will be invited to work out with the New York team.

The Giants official appeared highly hopeful that two of the Argonaut players, halfbacks Johnny Fedosoff and Bill McFarlane, will make the grade in the NFL. The other four—Don Shaw, Jack McGee, Ken Foster and Elgin Hirst—"are all strong, tough fellows who though I don't expect them to make the team the first year might very well catch on with further training."

RAW DEAL

Mara indicated that he felt Canadian-born footballers playing at home were getting a raw deal financially. "The whole economic setup in that league is so grossly unfair it's natural they will want to come down here . . . our minimum salary is $5,000."

He said an amendment will be proposed at the next meeting of the NFL under which rosters could be increased from 33 to 35 provided the extra two players were Canadians.

"If the amendment passes it will be a great day for Canadian players. A Canadian, not being subject to military callup, should be able to develop better in the long run than any American. . . . Canadian players should be in great demand during the next few years."

Flyers Get $75 For Top Line

TORONTO (CP)—Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A group realized only $75 for their efforts in developing one of th hottest forward lines in the National Hockey League.

The forward combination of Lou Lobine, Real Chevrefils and Don McKenney stepped into pro hockey with Boston Bruins after the Flyers brought them along.

Barrie coach Hap Emms said Saturday his club, sponsored by the Bruins, was paid only $75 when the trio, with Dorg Mohns thrown in for good measure, stepped up. And that money was paid for only one of them—Chevrefils. The Flyers didn't receive a cent for the others.

"It's ridiculous the way things are set up," said Emms. "A junior team, even if it is sponsored by a pro club, should be given something pretty substantial for developing a player of National Hockey League calibre. Instead the NHL gives $50,000 to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to spread around."

Springfield Tied With Hornets For First Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Springfield Indians, who re-entered the American Hockey League last year after an absence of four years, are in a deadlock with the Pittsburgh Hornets for first place in the tight pennant race.

Indians—Win—their last league championship in 1940-41, and Sunday night moved into a tie for the lead by trouncing Hershey Bears 5-3. In the other game, Buffalo Bisons defeated Providence Reds 7-2 and moved into a tie for the cellar with Cleveland Barons.

Jim Anderson and Buddy Boone each scored twice for Indians while Harry Pidhirny, Doug McMurdy, Ross Lowe, Ed Litzenberger and Bob McCord tallied the other goals.

Buffalo scored seven straight goals in the first 31 minutes with defencemen Frank Sullivan getting two of them. Dick Gamble, former Montreal Canadien forward, drove home one goal and two assists.

Chicago Fans Attacked Referees Paper Charges

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago American said Saturday that irate hockey fans attacked referee Jerry Olinski and linesman George Hayes as they were leaving Chicago Stadium Friday night after officiating a National Hockey League game which Chicago Black Hawks lost 6-2 to New York Rangers.

The newspaper said about 25 fans backed Hayes against an auto in a parking lot, punched and kicked him, tore his sweater and knocked off his glasses. Several other fans rushed Olinski, it added.

At Toronto, NHL president Clarence Campbell said Sunday the two officials were "involved in a ruckus of some sort." He attended the game.

A spectator came to him after the game and complained of his glasses being broken, the NHL president said. He added he had not had a chance to talk to the two officials yet.

Cary Middlecoff Wins Tourney

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Cary Middlecoff, former United States Open champion from Memphis, Tenn., looked through the brisk winds of the Pebble Beach golf course to win the $15,000 Bing Crosby pro-amateur golf tournament Sunday. He scored one-under-par 71 and a 54-hole total of 209.

Middlecoff wound up four strokes ahead of his nearest rivals to take the $2,500 first prize for low-scoring professionals.

Julius Boros, another ex-U.S. Open champion, and Paul McGuire of Wichita, Kan., tied at 213. Boros had a 72 Sunday, McGuire 70.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver had a 76 to tie for fourth place with a 215 total. Leonard had been only one stroke behind Middlecoff before Sunday's play. Another Canadian, Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, was out of the money.

Tied with Leonard was Vic Ghezzi, who had a 71.

The Crosby field played the tough Pebble Beach course which measures 6,320 yards and has par of 36-36—72.

Byron Nelson, another one time national champion, teamed with Ed Lowery of San Francisco to win the pro-amateur borers with a best ball score of 63 and a total of 195. Nelson earned $1,500 for his share.

Gene Littler of Palm Springs, Calif., the pro-tournament choice, helped himself to a 73 and wound up at 216.

Middlecoff and his amateur partner, hotel executive Ed Crowley, of Los Angeles, grabbed second place in the pro-amateur scramble with a final round of 66 for 198. Middlecoff picked up another $1,530.

Indians Take Seven in Row; Top Teams Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stratford Indians made it seven straight Saturday night when they downed Niagara Falls Cataracts 5-3 in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game at Stratford.

The victory put the Indians, in fourth spot, within nine points of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, on top of the league with 45 points.

Mickey Roth scored twice to pace the winners and Herve Desjardy, Leo Bendo and Johnny Muretich added singles. Danny Nixon, Eddie Mulligan and Harvey Jacklin shared the Cataracts' goals.

In other games Saturday, Owen Sound Mercurys beat Windsor Bulldogs 4-3 at Owen Sound and the Dutchmen defeated Chatham Maroons 6-3 at Kitchener. In the only Sunday game Bulldogs broke up a 2-2 struggle midway in the second period with three goals in 18 seconds and went on to defeat Cataracts 7-4.

SHARED SCORING

Jerry Reid, Ken Green, Ted Reid and Elmer Skov shared the scoring for Owen Sound. Bob Brown, George Gee and Jim Peters scored for Bulldogs.

The Dutchmen, held to a first period 1-1 tie, forged ahead 4-2 in the second as outscored Maroons 2-1 in the third.

George Scholes led the Dutchmen with two goals. Charlie Brooker, Jim Logan, Jack White and Bob Stone added singles. Jim Connelly, Dick Kotanen and Frank Bonello shared the Chatham goals.

A hooking penalty to Fritz Fraser set the stage for Bulldogs' surge as Ray Abbott scored two goals and Gord Haidy one behind the man advantage. Jack Armstrong, Jim Peters, Bob Brown and Earl Keyes accounted for the others. Eric Unger counted twice for Cataracts while Jim Robertson and Ed Mulligan added singles.

Big Four NFL Peace Feelers Vetoed By Toronto Argonauts

By MEL MORRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The Big Four extended peace feelers to the National Football League during the weekend but decided to reconsider when the Toronto Argonauts howled that the move would ruin the team's plan for the 1955 season.

The peace offering came in the form of a decision at the league's annual meeting to honor all NFL contracts and forbid the signing of any American player still under option to an NFFL team. The motion was carried 3-1 at Saturday's meeting, with Toronto dissenting.

The Argonauts then took advantage of a possible escape clause Sunday by demanding further consideration, claiming they have already signed eight NFL players for the coming season and intend to honor the contracts.

The matter will be rehashed at a meeting of the Big Four board of governors, which will make recommendations to be discussed at another meeting of the Big Four proper.

The decisions of the two-day meeting were mainly in favor of the teams with the smallest budgets—Ottawa and Hamilton.

The limit on imports was cut from 10 to eight and the number of "Canadianized Americans"—players who have been with Canadian teams for four more seasons—was reduced from three to two. By adopting a no-raiding policy on NFL players, the league was instated bidding for higher-priced stars and left the teams to get along with lower-salaried imports from U.S. colleges and NFL rejects.

Another motion sponsored by Hamilton and Ottawa, granting visiting teams a cut of the home team's gate receipts, was adopted. Visiting clubs now will get 15 per cent of the net receipts after park rental and provincial amusement taxes.

Heads of the four teams also cut the schedule from 14 to 12 games and adopted a three-team playoff plan, with the third and second place teams meeting in a sudden-death game for the rest to go against the league leaders in another sudden-death contest.

In another move to end the player war between the Big Four and the NFL, the league formed a committee to meet with Bert Bell, NFL commissioner, next Saturday in Philadelphia.

The Argos won little sympathy in their protests against the no-raiding ruling, despite their claims that it amounted to retroactive legislation since they have eight players under contract who are also under option to NFL clubs.

Spokesmen for the other clubs said the Argonauts would just have to take the consequences of their moves. Late last year, Toronto officials announced that none of the American players on their option list would be invited back next season.

A Toronto official said the move was aimed at wrecking the Argos' plans for next season and added that the team plans to go ahead with its recruiting program.

"Heretofore Ottawa, Hamilton and Montreal clubs have invaded the NFL and grabbed players without respect to contracts, options or reserve clauses," the Toronto spokesman said. "Now we will follow the fashion in order to strengthen our personnel and the other clubs want to sandbag us."

". . . But they can't get away with it. The Big Four doesn't want to recognize our games as legal contests next fall, then we won't contribute to the 15-per-cent split gate."

A possible reason for the retrenchment was the statement by delegates that all teams' net receipts last season would have been much lower than in 1953 if they had been dependent on the gate alone. Ottawa would have lost $100,000 if it had not been for television receipts.

The CBC shelled out $150,000 for Canadian television rights and the National Broadcasting Company said $200,000 to televise the games in the U.S.

Tom Gallery, sports director of the NBC, attended the morning session Saturday and asked for an extension of the option on television rights. The network was given until Feb. 17—20 days after the official publication of the Big Four schedule—to reach a decision or whether it will continue the telecasts.

The possibility of Montreal as the site of the 1955 Grey Cup game was discussed and Alouettes officials announced they would attempt to have the game played here. The delegates were against moving the game to western Canada but recommended that the Western Union continue its investigation of the possibility of holding a pro bowl game in Vancouver the Saturday following the Grey Cup contest. The teams would be the all-stars from each league as chosen by the Canadian Press polls.

EVEN SPLIT

The delegates decided on an even split of television fees next season. Last year, Montreal and Toronto each received $13,000 more than Ottawa and Hamilton.

Ralph Cooper of Hamilton, new league president, said he hopes a reciprocal agreement regarding the signing of players can be reached with the NFL.

Big Four teams would still have access to college players and players cut by NFL teams to fill their import quota. All eight players will be allowed to play in any game, a change from last year when a team could sign 10 imports but play only nine.

The rule reducing the number of imports specified that all eight imports must be declared at the end of the training season, which the officials recommended start July 15 in both eastern and western Canada. Replacements will be allowed up to two games before the end of the season, however.

Turn Thumbs Down on Suggestion National Hockey League Be Divided

TORONTO (CP)—Three National Hockey League executives turned thumbs down Saturday on a suggestion by general manager Frank Boucher of the New York Rangers that four United States NHL teams may break away from the league and form an all-American league.

League president Clarence Campbell said, if "such a statement is to be made it has to be made by someone of higher authority than Frank Boucher." The general manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs—Hap Day—said "it's ridiculous."

Manager Lynn Patrick of the Boston Bruins said: "I don't see why Frank should say a thing like that. We all know Montreal and Toronto have an advantage in farm systems. But that does not mean the other teams cannot operate on a sound basis. Canadiens, for instance, don't get all their players from Quebec. They scout the west too."

DRAWING POWER

When asked if an all-American league could operate profitably, Patrick said: "I don't know, but there is no doubt about the fact that Montreal and Toronto make the NHL. His reference was to the drawing power of the clubs at the box office.

Earlier Saturday, Boucher said in an interview at Atlanta, Ga., that Cleveland, Buffalo and St. Louis could quite easily tie up with the four U.S. NHL teams and form an all-American league leaving Toronto and Montreal without a league to play in."

Boucher also said that American teams cannot compete with Toronto and Montreal in obtaining player material. He added that he thinks it is possible the U.S. teams will eventually break away from the Canadian teams.

Name Referees

MONTREAL (CP) — Seymour Wilson of Hamilton was named referee-in-chief of the Big Four Football League at the loop's annual meeting here Sunday. Wilson, former Hamilton football star, succeeds Dave McCann of Ottawa.

The delicious flavour of Wrigley's Spearmint Gum brightens a dull day—gives you a little lift . . . while the pleasant chewing brightens your teeth. Keep a package handy in your purse or pocket.

Minor Hockey

Twenty-two teams, an increase of eight over last year, are participating in O.M.H.A. play in this district, playing approximately 80 games in just over a month, according to O.M.H.A. executive member Doug Emerson of Stirling.

This district will be represented in five classifications: bantam C, midget D, midget C, juvenile C and juvenile D.

The groups and their classifications are:

BANTAM

Campbellford (C), Havelock (C), Marmora (C), Stirling (C), Wellington (C).

MIDGET

Cooper (D), Norwood (D), Hastings (D), Warkworth (D), Campbellford (C), Havelock (C), Stirling (C), Brighton (C), Marmora (C), Wellington (C).

SOUTH HUMBERLAND

Campbellford—(C), Brighton (C), Warkworth (D).

NORTH HUMBERLAND

Coe Hill (C), Marmora (C), Norwood (D), Stirling (C).

This season marks the first entry of Wellington into group play. Dulcie Almeyda and Frank Brimley have undertaken the job of getting the Wellington kids in games in Trenton, Marmora, Campbellford, Brighton and Stirling. It is interesting to note that the shortest trip the Wellington boys face is 21 miles and the longest haul is some 65 miles. In past years Wellington has missed many play because of the mileage involved, however, this year the kids from across the bay will be carrying the colors far and wide.

Brighton, Warkworth and Hastings have also returned to the minor hockey wars and given a year or two in competition will soon be developing teams of high calibre.

Picton has also entered the first minor hockey team in that town's sporting history. From all accounts the Picton kids are on the receiving end of excellent support in their community. Ron Sivet, Don Fraser and Gerry Bettes had 63 boys trying out last week for the 18 spots on the Picton Midget entry.

Far to the north in the frigid areas of Hastings County the Coe Hill boys are warming things up for all and sundry. The Coe Hill boys who have played their games on an open air arena in Coe Hill have now moved their game headquarters to Bancroft Arena so that visiting teams can enjoy all the conveniences. Another good example of the co-operation and understandmanship to be found in minor hockey. The move means a trip of some 30 miles for the Coe Hill kids—even to play a home game!

Raiders Rout Golden Gaels In Hoop Opener

WINDSOR (CP) — Assumption College Purple Raiders, out in front all the way, scored an impressive 85-48 victory over Queen's University Golden Gaels Saturday night in the opening game of the senior Intercollegiate basketball season.

Assumption, which shared the 1954 championship with Western, Memorial University of Western Ontario Mustangs, had little trouble winning from a tired Queen's quintet. The locals forged into a 6-0 lead in the opening minutes and stayed well ahead of the Gaels through 40 minutes of fast but not too exciting play.

Queen's, which had dropped a 74-50 verdict to Western Ontario on Friday night, were a tired looking lot as early as the mid-way mark in the first half. They proved unable to keep pace with Assumption's fast-breaking offence and added to their own misery by muffing at least a dozen easy scoring chances close under the basket.

LED AT HALF

Assumption held a 18-9 edge at the 10-minute mark and went on to take a mid-game 46-27 halftime lead. Ted Gilbert paced the Gaels by a lopsided 27-8 margin in the game's final 10 minutes.

Captain Lou Veres, Assumption's top scorer this season, broke loose for 25 points to spark the victory. Matt Borowiec clicked for 16 points, George Joseph counted 15 and Hugh Coyle tallied 12.

Paul Fricker, who scored 20 points against Western, came right back with an 18-point effort against Assumption. Jay McMahon, Gaels' giant centre clicked for nine points.

Poona II' Sets World Record; Whips Determine

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Irish bred Poona II, taking the lead shortly after the start, flashed to a world record of 1:40 4-5 for a mile and one-sixteenth Saturday as he defeated a favored field including the previous Kentucky Derby winner, Determine.

Ridden by Willie Shoemaker, Poona II was 5½ lengths ahead of Calumet Farm's Mic Greenberg as he crossed the wire to win the $18,100 San Fernando Stakes at Santa Anita.

The other half of the Calumet entry, Dodge's Leg, was third with Determine fourth.

Bred in Ireland by the Aga Khan and Ajax Khan, Poona II was brought to the United States by his present owner, A. B. Helbush. His Saturday mark eclipsed the record of 1:41 set at Golden Gate Fields in 1951 by Count Gene and equalled at Hollywood Park last year by Imbros.

MUST CLEAN UP BOXING

NEW YORK (AP) — Governor Averell Harriman said Sunday boxing must be cleaned up if it to remain legal in New York. The governor said in a radio program that he has no proof that boxing is in the hands of racketeers but said he thinks it is from what he has heard.

"Boxing, if it expects to remain, which I hope it will—it's a good sport—can be made clean," he said. "It isn't clean today and hasn't been cleaned up."

Harriman said his appointment of racket-buster Julius Helfand as chairman of the state athletic commission was spurred by the necessity of getting the mobsters out of the ring.

By SAM GORDON

Jump bids in hearts are hard to play and lead into two kinds; the one-jump that shows strength and the high-jump that shows length. This is also the basic pattern for jump bids in defence.

If a player opens with a bid of one and defender makes a jump overcall of one more than needed it shows strength. What strength? An ability to take eight tricks and a suit that is rebiddable.

To make a game it needs the help of only two tricks in partner if the bid suit is a major. Whether expressed in three or other terms, that is the real meaning of it in the minds of the best teachers.

Culbertson says: The one-jump overcall shows a hand containing 2½ honour tricks with two five card or longer suits, or with a five-card suit and strength and eight winners in all.

Goren says: The one-jump overcall shows a very good trump suit; a rather definite idea of the strength of the hand to play; is used when you believe game will make with little help from partner.

Accordin' to Gordon: The one-jump overcall denotes a hand with eight tricks and a rebiddable suit; expects to make game in the suit if partner has two tricks or more.

South opens with a heart. Make a jump overcall of two spades with the west hand shown here:

♠ A K J 9 7 5
♥ K 2
♦ A Q 9 4

You have a rebiddable spade suit that partner may support with only three small or two with a queen in them. Your hand counts a total of eight tricks; five highs and three shorts (in red suits).

Your jump overcall does not give partner to bid. It simply tells him what you have. If he has two tricks, he can tell you so with some kind of a bid. You will then reach game in spades.

The one-jump overcall shows a hand that is stronger than double for takeout. Partner is entitled to know you have it.

Chris Chataway Will Attend Sports Dinner

TORONTO (CP)—Chris Chataway, who cracked one world record this year and ran second in three other record - breaking distance races, is coming to Toronto next month to attend Ontario's sports celebrities dinner for crippled children.

The Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association announced Friday it had final approval for Chataway's attendance at the dinner Thursday, Feb. 17.

The affable, beer-drinking Londoner is one of a number of celebrities whose attendance is assured for the Sick Kids event from which all proceeds go to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Special tickets will be paid to Marilyn Bell, 17-year-old Toronto swimmer cop by the association as Ontario's athlete of the year for swimming Lake Ontario and return.

CANADIAN CELEBRITIES

The celebrities list has a strong Canadian flavor. It includes Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, whose victory in the Canadian open golf championship this year was the first for a Canadian since 1914, Jimmy McLarnin, retired Canada's outstanding boxer of the half-century in Canada's Press poll, is coming from California.

Rich Ferguson of Toronto, who with Roger Bannister and John Landy in the Miracle Mile at the British Empire Games, will represent Canadian track athletes.

Even baseball, represented by National League pitchers Robin Roberts of Philadelphia and Sal Maglie of New York, has a Canadian touch. Maglie, who lives in Niagara Falls, N.Y., used to play baseball in Niagara District Baseball League and the Quebec Provincial League.

The dinner, fourth by the association, promises to be a sellout as the 1954 meeting made this weekend to make certain sales don't go beyond the 1,500 seating capacity. In its first three dinners, the association netted $70,000 for crippled children's work.

Jane Russell Collects Final Cheque from Hughes in 1975

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Imaginary interview:

The year is 1975, and Jane Russell was to collect final check from Howard Hughes. So I buzzed out to her all-class house in the San Fernando valley in my jet helicopter.

I found Jane playing with her grandchildren in the gemless nursery and she looked shapely as when I first saw her 33 years ago. She was then dating my college chum, Bob Wakefield.

Yes, the check came in the mail this morning," Jane yawned. "Fifty thousand, just like the others, Minus deductions, of course."

Jane signed the deal back in 1953. It gave her a million dollars to be paid over a period of 20 years. All she had to do was make six pictures in five years—three for Hughes, three for 20th Century-Fox.

REAL INTERVIEW

To get back to the present, let Hedda Hopper Miss Russell and her fabulous deal. The 20-year contract is certainly the longest and one of the richest in Hollywood history. I saw Jane on her return from Hughes' "Conquest of Mary Antoinette" in Europe, and she didn't seem overly impressed with the big check. In fact, she seldom impressed with anything concerning Hughes, her former boss.

The thing that worried her was the three films a year stipulation in the deal. Hughes, She has gotten into hot water over pictures like Peter Pulliam's "Montana Belle."

I contemplated the success of Jane Russell's observed her at the "Underwaters!" premiere in Silver Springs, Fla., last week. She was the star attraction of the picture despite the other names that were present.

Her success is a puzzle, when you consider that she has made only two pictures which can be considered as really good. They were "The Outlaw" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Her fame is partly a tribute to Howard Hughes's publicity mill. But part of the credit must go to Jane herself. Not only because of her figure, but the kind of girl she is—deeply religious despite the notoriety, down-to-earth and regular.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for

TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1955.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Every minute of this day is important in one way or another. Each item and act must have significance. Aspects favor the right kind of go-get-it action; make the best of a fine period.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Don't waste time or energy on non-essentials. Don't buy what you don't need, endure others' ideas as well as your own and you will make many friends and hold them. The great are humble.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Anticipating may lead to mistakes and they may be costly this mixed period. Don't ever give up but admit when it's over your head, then study what a true Gemini native would do.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Configurations more favorable in your chart than in some others today so put your best foot forward with right attitude and win spurs. What we do well now builds for future success, security.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Influences say, "don't pamper yourself or think you are the only one who has obstacles, possible setbacks." Do what you honestly can, the best you can, and your chances are very good.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Financial and business problems may be slightly off, tend to cause worry, "nerves" if you allow. Keep busy, be calm and content with little gains. Things will become more favorable again.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Bypass personal whims, foibles, unnecessary work; give way to the urgent, useful matters. Take a soundly serious attitude in business, financial, all endeavors to achieve.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Money gains seem to have hindrance temporarily. Don't be too disappointed if all profits aren't what you had expected, that may be blessings in disguise. Take it like you can.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Utilize your resources for the gains that can be yours under day's favorable aspects. New opportunities through contacts, through unexpected friendly sources. Look sharply.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Day holds tricky handlings, seem especially in aim. Possible to overcome hazards by being more careful, slow enough to study propositions, strategy that could bring success. Logic!

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Conditions may be trying, your effort not exactly appreciated. Keep going, you will come into your own where you should. Have faith, be confident, stay sanely optimistic.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Pleasing outlook if you make up your mind to pull with those working around you, with organizational requirements. Nothing can defeat one who has faith, effort properly distributed.

YOU BORN TODAY: Usually the systematic, able, persistent type. Fine qualities and generally rise to other higher and better things of life. Can achieve in about any field where you put your heart into your work (or profession). Correct your faults, don't allow discord, at times lack of due consideration. And you may indulge sneaks when you really don't want to or mean it. Do put forward your best always. Don't waste time, dawdling, and gloomy companions are not for you. Look for your kind and you'll be happy.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching pop shaving his face this morning, and I said, Oh boy, pop, I'll be glad when I have to start shaving every morning before breakfast.

You better not perse any false illusions, pop said. I admit I was a proud young man the first time I looked in a mirror and watched my self shaving, but the happy glow soon faded, as you'll find for yourself. One of the worst tricks that nature can play on a man is to plant whiskers on his face in a period of history when beards are unfashionable, he said.

Well G. pop, why? I said, and he said, Because life is short and time is precious, and it takes an average of 20 minutes a day to shave. That adds up to 140 minutes, or more than 2 hours a week. Do you realize how many hours that is a year? he said.

No sir, I said, and pop said, 104 hours, practically a whole week waisted, every year slapping lather on your face just to scrape it off again. That's one of the saddest thought a serious man can think, he said.

Well jimminies, pop, if it's so sad, then how is it you whinie to yourself through your teeth pritty near all the time you're shaving? I said, and pop said, By gollies I didn't think of that. You've made me revise my whol'e filloophy of shaving, he said.

What is it now, pop? I said, and he said, Well, to sum it up briefly, whatever time you're forced to waist and have no excuse got to waist, come under the head of pleasure. A-I he started to whissle to himself between his teeth to prove it.

Rotary Club Grew Out of Loneliness Of Man Who Had Few Close Friends

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—A great adventure in friendship grew out of the loneliness of a man who had few close friends.

The man was Paul Harris, who founded a fellowship that now flourishes around the world. It is known as Rotary International.

Harris, who died in 1947, was 36, a lawyer and a bachelor when a plan for organized camaraderie began to revolve in his mind 50 years ago.

He was a small-town fellow in a big city. He had business friends but they were not social friends. He wondered why they couldn't be both, and discussed the problem with three clients, also comparative strangers in Chicago.

ENSURE BROAD RANGE

On the night of Feb. 23, 1905, the four met in a small Chicago office. Harris outlined his ideas for a club this way:

If businessmen could get together periodically, they could become better acquainted and, perhaps, help each other obtain more business.

There would be a member for each type of business or profession to ensure a broad range of friendship.

It would be called the Rotary Club because the meetings would be held in rotation, in the business places of the members.

Harris said later: "We found a cure for loneliness."

COMMUNITY SERVICE

But presently they found that back-scratching friendship wasn't enough. They decided that the club, in order to have purpose and direction, would have to perform services for the community.

Rotary thus became a service club—and the prototype of a dozen men's service club organizations which now have a total membership of about 1,500,000.

Rotary's aims, briefly put, include developing friendship, serving society, enlarging international understanding.

Since Harris cast his bread upon the waters of friendship, it has floated far—and fast.

The second club was started in 1908 in San Francisco. A national association was set up in 1910, when there were 16 clubs, and the movement became international in 1912.

IN 89 COUNTRIES

At latest count there were 8,400 clubs with a total of 400,000 members in 89 countries and territories.

Canon Alian B. Shatford of the Montreal club once wrote:

"Where the spirit of rotary is, there is liberty."

There have been times when Rotary figuratively bit its lip in vexation or scratched its head in puzzlement.

Profound puzzlement was occasioned by a Vatican decree made public Jan. 12, 1951. It forbade Roman Catholic priests to belong to Rotary clubs.

IN ACCORD WITH RELIGION

Arthur Lagueux, a Roman Catholic who lives in Quebec, was president of Rotary International at the time. He commented:

"Rotary does not seek to supplant or interfere with any religious organization. Each Rotarian is expected to be a loyal member of the church to which he belongs. Rotary assumes that the program of its clubs is in accord with all religions."

Neither the Vatican nor Rotary, as far as available records show, had anything more to say on the subject.

Rotary Foundation fellowships have been granted to 603 students in 57 countries since 1947. The grants average $2,500.

A random sampling shows that Rotarians in:

Camberwell, England, arranged a musical concert for 300 blind persons.

Clubs in four communities financed a new physiotherapy clinic for crippled children at Trois-Rivieres, Que.

Clubs around the world are planning to observe Rotary's 50th birthday during the period from Feb. 23 to June 2. Presidents will attend the golden anniversary convention in Chicago May 29 to June 2.

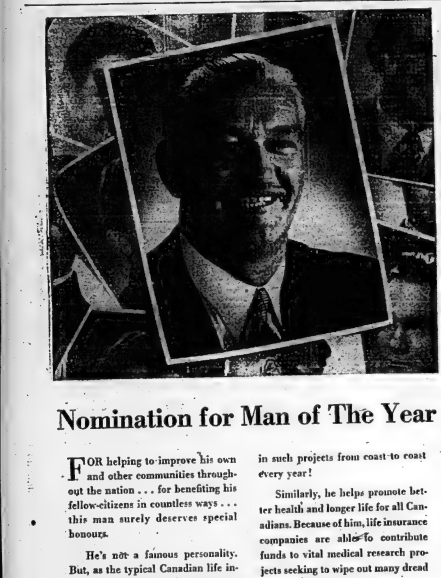
Panama Upheaval Increases British and U.S. Concern

By FRANCIS HAYDON

LONDON (Reuters) — Growing British and American concern about central America has increased with news of a new political upheaval in Panama.

Diplomats in the two countries had already been alarmed by tension in the central American peninsula caused by the rebellion in Costa Rica, which is backed with arms sent in chiefly from neighboring Nicaragua.

Now in Panama, where President Jose Antonio Remon was assassinated Jan. 2, his successor, Jose Ramon Guizado has been implicated in the killing and has been ordered arrested and impeached. Tension again is high.



The United States is worried about the security of the Panama canal, and British diplomats also realize that this waterway must be safeguarded in order to keep British trade flowing to the Pacific.

The large amount of banana imports to the U. S. from central America also make the disturbances in the area a matter of great concern to American leaders.

Opponents of American policy have alleged that the U. S. interest in central America's politics is chiefly motivated by a desire to protect the United Fruit Company. This company, in which United States citizens hold the great majority of shares, owns banana estates throughout the peninsula.

But the United States is much more concerned about naval strategy. Its two ocean fleet depends on the Panama canal, which could easily be blocked.

Washington has good reasons to fear that unfriendly influences near the vital canal could paralyze this still-important strategic lifeline in case of war.

EATON'S Semi-Annual Sale

Continues Tuesday, Jan. 18th

Nomination for Man of The Year

FOR helping to improve his own and other communities throughout the nation . . . for benefiting his fellow-citizens in countless ways . . . this man surely deserves special honours.

He's not a famous personality. But, as the typical Canadian life insurance policyholder, he represents millions of people. And each of these people renders very useful services to his community.

How?

By providing funds which his life insurance company invests for him in ways that help finance new homes, public works, utilities and industrial developments. Together with other policyholders, he puts more than 250 million dollars to work in such projects from coast to coast every year!

Similarly, he helps promote better health and longer life for all Canadians. Because of him, life insurance companies are able to contribute funds to vital medical research projects seeking to wipe out many dread diseases.

Moreover, he has taken steps to make sure that, if anything happens to him, his family will not need to depend on others for support. That's another service to his community.

So if you are a life insurance owner, take a bow! While you're providing security for your family and yourself, you're also helping to make Canada a better land to live in!

P.S. from your life insurance man

"Invested life insurance dollars earn interest that makes it possible for you and your family to enjoy the benefits of life insurance at such low cost if you have any questions about how to make life insurance fit your own special needs, give me a call. I'll be glad to help you!"

Marooned Scots In Grave Danger Of Starvation

Aircraft Carrier Is Base For Helicopter Rescue Team

WICK, Scotland (Reuters)—The Royal Navy put an aircraft carrier, a destroyer, and helicopters into action today to supply snowbound towns and villages of northern Scotland in imminent danger of starvation.

Drifts up to 20 feet deep have made any attempts to get through by road impossible, and only helicopter drops stand between hunger and almost certain disaster.

Many hamlets have been isolated without food and fresh water for nearly a week. The telephone system, their last link with the outside world, failed just before noon today when a dozen villages were spread over 100 square miles of rugged countryside are completely isolated.

CARRIER IS BASE

The 13,000-ton carrier Glory is heading northward from Glasgow to serve as a forward base for helicopters now operating in the rescue service, carrying food, fuel, fresh water, blankets, medicine and other emergency supplies.

The destroyer Urchin today pushed into the Pentland arctic weather into Wick bay with fuel for the helicopters. The RAF was alerted high in Scotch bases all over Scotland for food drops.

Mountain rescue teams, with doctors, have been standing by for days to try to get through to the marooned areas.

An attempt was started today to evacuate by sea about 100 government construction workers and their families beseiged by high snowdrifts in the Outer Hebrides.

Several communities were reported be in dire straits today after nearly a week of isolation, with food running short, electricity cut off, no heating and the sick without medical attention.

Two of the stricken communities was the hamlet of Bettyhill in Sutherlandshire with its 300 people marooned in impassable snowdrifts. Before telephone lines to civilization broke down the local district nurse, Mrs. Ina Budge, sent an urgent S.O.S. for medical aid.

NO COFFINS FOR DEAD

"Several my patients are critically ill and the nearest doctor, eight miles away, cannot get through to me," she reported. "One old woman has an internal hemorrhage. Another patient is dead and we have no coffin."

The nurse reported food and fuel running short.

Fresh snow was falling-throughout northern Scotland today.

Fight Six Hours To Check Flames

QUEBEC (CP)—Firemen early today kept a stubborn guard smouldering ruins of two fires which Monday night and today caused an estimated $50,000 damage and took every piece of fire-fighting equipment in the city from the Lower Town soccer control.

No one was injured in the fires, which broke out almost simultaneously in widely-separated parts of the city. Fifty persons were left homeless.

The first blaze started in the basement of a shoe store on the city's main street in the upper part of the town.

Moments later, another alarm was sounded for a congested lower town when sparks from a small fire in a garage quickly spread to nearby buildings. Fanned by a 25-mile-an-hour wind, the flames spread to a third building and an area razed through a block of old dwellings.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The cold northerly winds over Ontario will continue through Wednesday. Temperatures tonight and Wednesday will again range from the 20s in the south to near 10 in the north. UNITED NATIONS EFFORTS MAY FREE U.S. FLIERS

Senator Minority Leader Says Trip Was 'Failure'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A majority of Senate foreign relations committee members indicate they are backing Red Day Eisenhower's mission to Red China may lead ultimately to freedom for 11 United States airmen imprisoned as "spies."

Some of the senators of both parties interviewed agreed with Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) and Knowland (Rep. Calif.), the minority leader and a committee member, that the White House secretary-general's trip was a "failure by any fair standard or yardstick." Knowland said it's too early to tell. Others said they didn't yet have enough facts on which to base a judgment.

Senator Herbert Humphrey (Dem., Minn.), said that if Knowland has any private information about the Throughout France main roads were under more than three feet of water, with more rain forecast for Wednesday.

RHINE RISING

Reinforcements of West German border police this morning joined flood fighters who have piled barricades of sandbags in front of the federal Parliament building at Bonn as the Rhine river, rising steadily since Friday night, was 19 inches above Monday's mark and still rising. Water seeped into a dozen rooms on the ground floor of the Parliament building, despite the sandbagging.

All along the Rhine, especially near the capital city of Bonn, roads were under several feet of water and commuters had to make detours up to 20 miles to get to work.

About 200 persons were evacuated at Speyer, near Heidelberg, when a dam was reported near collapse. American and French troops and German civilians and police worked to prevent it and other dikes and dams from breaking.

In the British Isles, severe wintry conditions continued. Helicopters flew continuously to carry food, fuel and other supplies to hamlets in northern Scotland cut off by snow for nearly a week. Northern Ireland Monday night had its worst snow storm in years, and traffic in Belfast was almost at a standstill today.

Heavy blizzards in the south of England receded slightly today, but watters from the Medway, Thames and Severn still over thousands of acres in the counties around London. Elsewhere, fallen snow has iced up dangerously on roads and railroad tracks.

Hotelmen Told 'Gravy Train' Days Are Over

TORONTO (CP)—Hotels face extinction by motels unless improvements are made, Arthur J. Packard, Ottawa hotel owner told the annual meeting of the Ontario Hotel Association today.

Packard said the effects of the wartime "gravy train" now are upon them and "survival of the fittest" lies ahead.

'Sky-Shouting' Planes Buzz Jungles, Offering New Amnesty to Mau Mau

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — "Sky shouting" planes buzzed the Kenya jungles today, broadcasting an offer of amnesty to any Mau Mau terrorists who surrender in the next 24 hours.

Millions of white leaflets rained down on the lush green foliage of the Aberdare mountains and the Kikuyu had gathered in the tribal lands of Fort Hall, Nyeri, Kiambu, or tribal meeting.

The leaflets promise fair treatment and proper feeding for those who surrender. The length of their detention will depend on the government's examination of each case, the Kikuyu-language leaflet said.

The amnesty offer has been timed to coincide with Operation Hammer, a campaign by more than 4,000 British and African troops in the tangled forests here.

Four Convicts Seize 5 Guards And Demand Car and Freedom

By HENRY RUFFLE

BOSTON (AP)—Four dangerous Massachusetts state prison convicts rebelled today, seized their guards at gunpoint and demanded a car to gain freedom from the 150-year-old, brick and granite jail.

The desperadoes allowed Rev. Edward Hartigan, Roman Catholic chaplain, into an isolated solitary confinement area of the prison to end the riot, to hear confessions of four of the guards. The fifth is not a Catholic.

Deputy warden Perely S. Vance answered, "I won't comment," when asked directly if the desperate prisoners made any threats against the guards-hostages or for gaining for liberty.

A few minutes after 10 a. m. EST, Vance told newspaper men he talked by telephone with the revolters. He said the telephone was answered by Walter H. Baldwin, 37, one of the prisoners.

Vance said Balben let him talk to Warren L. Harrington, one of the hostage guards, and Harrington said they were "okay."

Theodore (Teddy) Green, 29, bank robber and escape artist, was described as ringleader of the rebellion. Vance said he and Balben both had pistols. Balben is serving a long term for manslaughter.

He and Green were participants in a mass escape attempt Nov. 7, 1953.

The other two rebels, Vance said, were Fritz Swenson, 32, serving life for killing a police sergeant, who was involved in a riot at the prison in July 1952, and Joseph Flaherty, serving a term for assault. Flaherty was once named Boston's public enemy No. 1.

First reports that an apparent wholesale delivery of the 600 inmates was being attempted brought some 250 heavily-armed Boston and state police to the scene.

They were withdrawn from their deployed positions about the ancient Charlestown prison after officials determined that the revolt was confined to the isolated two-floor brick cell block known as the Cherry Hill section.

Prison guards found in the yard a crude ladder made of pieces of wood, wire, pieces of belting and a necktie.

Vance said the prisoners first captured three guards early this dawn. When those three failed to return to their posts, the other two went to check and were ambushed.

That prompted an alarm which brought heavily armed police into riot guns.

Outside inside the cell blocks do not carry weapons.

Rebel Planes Seek Refuge As Costa Rica Gets Fighters

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—The battlefront in Costa Rica's war against rebels quieted Monday night following the arrival of four United States fighter planes to bolster President Jose Figueres' forces.

Two of the three planes reported flown to the insurgents promptly flew to Nicaragua and were seized by the government of that neighboring Central American republic.

Despite rebel radio claims of big victories, a government spokesman said that, during Monday "no flights of any sort" were reported in northwestern Costa Rica, the only previous active front.

"Advanced rebel patrols carried out active missions during the day," the spokesman said, "but it is no case established contact with the enemy, which seems to be disorganized and in full retreat to the rest."

Elsewhere in the country, "complete calm" prevailed, with the government in "absolute control of the situation."

Unofficial sources indicated that the government is getting ready for a big push in the Santa Rosa area, about 30 miles from the Nicaraguan frontier in the northwestern part of the country. One spreviews said fighting violence ments are moving up toward this sector.

The general staff communique contradicted claims of the rebel radio that insurgent troops de-

Peru Crushes Rebels' Plot

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Peru's government announced Monday night that it has crushed a revolutionary plot to overthrow the administration of President Manuel A. Odria. He said the rebels had received aid from Argentina by Gen. Zenon Noriega, former premier and war minister exiled after an unsuccessful coup last August.

The government communique said force men have been arrested in connection with the plot. They were identified as Lt.-Col. Jose Mutalluna, Valentin Gazzani and Wifredo Pifarotti.

Mutalluna, aide to Noriega when the latter was war minister, and Gazzani were arrested last Friday when they sought to enter the country by disguising themselves as peasants, announcement said.

Eden Wants Paris Pacts in Force Before Parley

LONDON (CP) — Sir Anthony Eden has indicated that the Paris agreements on German rearmament must be in force before the West considers any meeting with Russia.

The foreign secretary Monday night said Britain will work to bring about a "settlement between East and West once the Paris pacts are ratified.

Speaking in a radio broadcast on international affairs, Eden said Russian policies after the Second World War forced the West to band together against the Communists.

His speech is regarded by diplomatic sources as a firm rejection of Russia's proposals, announced by Premier Bulganin, for scrapping Paris agreements and discussing alternative plan for Germany.

Speaking of the Far East, he said what the West is trying to do there is "to reduce the risk of further fighting. That can be done provided everybody, including (Red) China, is prepared to work for it, and act with restraint, especially in the danger areas."

Five Life Rafts Found Bobbing In St. Lawrence

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—Five life rafts found bobbing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence were identified today as belonging to a Trans-Canada Constellation airliner that crashed at sea with 13 persons aboard.

The life rafts, bits of cargo and several mailbags have been sighted by planes and ships criss-crossing the search area north of Cape Ray, the four-engined transport plunged into the Canada sub-Arctic Gulf. Harmon U. S. Air Force base near here to Maryland.

The Constellation was headed for the Patuxent river naval air station, Md., with seven passengers and a crew of six men when two of her engines went afire in rough weather and plunged down between 70 and 100 miles out over the gulf.

Flight Officer Ray Hamilton, of Rock, Ark., the pilot, tried to return to Harmon but crashed far short of land moments after a U.S. air-sea rescue B-29 lost radio contact with his stricken aircraft.

Only other occupant of the Constellation so far identified was the flight orderly, Jeanette W. Bimer, 22, of Syracuse, N. Y., a member of the U. S. Women's Naval Services (Waves).

FEDERAL TAX CUT OF TEN PER CENT GIVEN QUEBEC

Will be Effective For Next Two Years

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has decided on a two-year, 10-per-cent federal tax cut for Quebec's income tax payers that will cost the central treasury about $30,000,000 a year.

The resolution, announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent in the Commons Monday in an attempt to end a tax dispute with Quebec, will be effective for the 1955 and 1956 tax years.

It will be made retroactive to 1954 for the upper income group of 150,000 Quebecers who paid Premier Duplessis' 15-per-cent provincial income tax, which became effective January last year.

NOW 5 PER CENT

Currently a federal government allows a deduction of five per cent of the federal levy for taxpayers paying provincial or municipal tax. This, in the case of Quebec, amounts to about $1,200,000 a year. Mr. Duplessis has demanded the provincial tax be fully deductible from payments to Ottawa.

Under the existing Quebec income tax formula, provincial exemptions are about 50 per cent higher than those allowed under the federal law. Mr. St. Laurent hinted he would like to see the provincial exemptions reduced to the federal level.

In trying to meet the province's demands, Ottawa considered ways of getting Quebec's estimated yield of about $25,000,000 or so a year "without the necessity of any taxpayer, in the province having to pay a higher tax than he would have to pay on the same income in any other province."

The reduction will be available to all taxpayers even if they want to impose provincial income tax levies as an alternative to existing federal-provincial tax rental agreements. Quebec is the only province without such an agreement.

May Hold Probe Of Fire Dept.

TORONTO (CP) — Steve Bey Lewis of Toronto said last night a judicial hearing may be called into the Reds invasion of the Islands.

Peiping radio today claimed the island had been "successfully liberated" by Communist naval, air and ground forces.

Bridge Collapses

TORONTO (CP)—Councillor Vernon Singer of that a new Rural township told newspaper men at a council meeting Monday:

"The bridge will be opened any minute. You can quote me."

He was referring to a bailey bridge being put up on Bathurst street to replace a small bridge undermined by the Don river.

A few minutes later Mr. Singer was informed that a crane had given way and that the pontoon bridge had collapsed.

Winter's Second Big Military Exercise Set For North West Month

OTTAWA (CP) — Part of the army's mobile striking force will move into the Canadian sub-Arctic next month for the second big exercise of the year, the defence department said today.

Exercise Bulldog III will be held in the Edmonton area north of Great Slave lake, 610 miles north of Edmonton, from March 2 to March 8.

The manoeuvres entail an airborne assault by the RCAF and paratroops against the airfield and installations at Yellowknife. It will be assumed that an enemy force has landed in the sub-Arctic and has taken over the airfield. A similar problem was set in the Churchill, Man., area in Exercise Bulldog II early in December.

Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, chief of Western Command, will be overall commander and Air Commodore Sheldon Coleman, head of tactical air command, will be his deputy.

The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, Airborne support elements such as artillery, signals, engineer, medical and service corps units and militiamen and Canadian Rangers will also participate.

The role of the enemy will be played by a company of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment.

The exercise will be supported by RCAF units which will provide troop carrier, photographic, communications, administrative and medical evacuation aircraft.

The troops will be parachuted into the target area from air force C-119 Flying Packets. Reconnaissance planes will come from No. 408 Photo Squadron at Ottawa.

Nationalist Post Off Chinese Coast Believed Captured

20 Red Warships Take Part In Blow at Strategic Island

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — A Communist invasion force backed by 20 warships struck strategic Yikiangshan today and apparently conquered the tiny Nationalist island outpost.

Reliable reports in the Nationalist capital said radio contact with the island was broken at 6 a. m. EST and it was presumed the Reds had captured their conquest.

Mention of only a few gunfire appeared intended to prepare the public for the fall of the island. It also indicated that regulars previously stationed there might have been withdrawn.

NEAR TACHENS

Yikiangshan is but over three square miles in area, and is about five miles north of the strategic Tachen Island outpost.

With the Tachens, it was the target today of an air raid by 16 Russian-built planes. The Communists hammered the Tachens and Yikiangshan for 10 minutes from the air. After they returned to base, Communist artillery on Tsumen opened up on Yikiangshan, eight miles away.

The air strike was the second heaviest of the current "peace" war.

The defence ministry said the Communists attacked with 23 MiGs, 19 Type-2 and four IL-10s with four MIG-15 fighters flying cover. It was the first reported use of the IL-10, a single-engined light bomber. The MiG-15 is also a single-engined fighter - bomber while the Ti-2 is a twin-engined fighter bomber. All attacking planes were Soviet-made.

SMALL AREA

The Communists centred their attack on the comparatively small area. Upper Tachen is about six square miles in area and Lower Tachen about 3½. The Tachens are reported garrisoned by about 20,000 troops and guerrillas, and have a civilian population of about 30,000, mostly fishermen.

The islands, like others the Nationalists hold off the Red China coast, are outside the area—Formosa and the Pescadores—which the United States is committed to protect under a mutual defence treaty.

The U.S. has given no hint whether its 7th Fleet will intervene if the Reds invade the Islands.

Peiping radio today claimed the island had been "successfully liberated" by Communist naval, air and ground forces.

Indian Police In Gypsy Guise Nab Bootleggers

NEW DELHI (AP) — Reviewers in the dry Indian state of Bombay turned female impersonators recently to nab a band of moonshiners who had established themselves high in coconut palms to watch for the cops.

The lookouts sensed nothing amiss when a group of gypsy women approached. The gypsies' dress was veiled, and children clung to their skirts and iron bangles jangled around their ankles.

Arriving at the still, the gypsies suddenly identified themselves as police and caught the bootleggers redhanded.

Rotarians Hear Wm. Barrie Tell Of Arctic Life

Members of the Belleville Rotary club yesterday observed a one-minute silence in tribute to Robert Saunders, late chairman of Ontario Hydro, who died Sunday following a plane crash.

The tribute was called for by president at the club Fred Adsett, himself a member of the local Hydro Commission staff, following a verbal salute from Rotarian Bill Morrison.

Guest speaker at the meeting was William Barrie, Northern Electric Belleville staff, recently returned from behind the Arctic Circle where he spent a year on a federal project. Text of his address was "A year north of the Arctic Circle" in which he related his experiences of the northland. His talk was highlighted by color slides, shot in the north during his flight.

Mr. Barrie took off for the northland August, 1953, in company with other members of the project team on a round trip across Canada on light plane. Air. Location of the project was centred around the Yukon in the western Arctic.

During their stay the team lived in "igloos", portable shacks mounted on sleds and hauled by caterpillar-track vehicles, when the winter freeze-up of sea ports, the team's only live contact with the outside world was by plane.

Kodaks and a single Mountie were their only neighbors.

DOGS BEAT MACHINES

"Sometimes the Eskimos made better time with their dog teams than we did with our mechanical jeep. It is hard country for machinery," Mr. Barrie said.

One Eskimo the party met with in operating vehicles in the northland, from the snow, pounded as hard as concrete, which puts a machine through a relentless shaking.

Contrast of the Arctic summer with that of the ever-appearing winter was emphasized in a colorful picture of Herschel Island, once a whaling port, which now an R.C.M.P. post, inhabited by a single family.

"You would never credit the variety of flowers that bloom in the north in the summer. An infinite number of colors bloom very quickly indeed," Mr. Barrie said.

The simplified life of the Eskimos also was shown to the club by several pictures of village life.

However with the increasing interest being shown in the northland by both the governments of Canada and the U.S. particularly, Eskimos appear to be rapidly making up for lost time.

Mr. Barrie recounted to the club how one of his party, trying to photograph an Eskimo, was puzzled over proper lighting for the picture. The Eskimo watched silently for a moment then said: "Wait a minute. Use my exposure meter."

Mr. Barrie was introduced by Court Miller and thanked by Dr. C. A. Walters.

Newsmen, RCAF Personnel Enjoy Flight in New 'Copter

The flight of a twin-rotor Piasecki helicopter has to be seen to be believed. Actually flying the craft is a novel experience which proves that nothing is impossible.

A more unlikely looking flying machine than the 14-passenger helicopter which the RCAF at Trenton No. 102 Communications and Rescue squadron at Trenton demonstrated for newsmen yesterday could hardly be imagined.

The helicopter, without wings or tail, has been dubbed "The Flying Banana" because of its stylish stout midsection and its sway back. The seven-ton aluminum monster is crescent-shaped with three-bladed rotors fore and aft. It is one of the most versatile aircraft in the world.

RCAF officials at Trenton and local newsmen were the first passengers in Monday's demonstration flight between Belleville and Trenton. The plane, one of six to be used by the RCAF in Canada, arrived at Station Trenton last week-end.

Passengers donned parachute harness and fastened safety belts before being hoisted. They were then set up with a deafening roar from both rotors and only minor vibrations. It lifted from the tarmac in front of No. 1 hangar at 3.05 p.m. this afternoon.

The pilot and co-pilot, specially trained to fly this type of helicopter, flew under their own flight parked nearby, then went straight up and away to the west past the hangars.

CIRCLED TRENTON, BELLEVILLE

The 30-minute flight included a complete circuit of Belleville in a circling movement, with views of the western outskirts of the city, northward over Quinte Secondary School, around the CNR roundhouse, and east of Parkwood Heights.

The flight to Trenton followed the general line of the Bell telephone highway and the flight about Trenton was in a counter-clockwise direction, starting from the northern outskirts.

Visibility was limited only by the horizon. Passengers, in turn, had a 180 degree view from the plastic control room in the pilot's nose.

Interior heaters kept the plane at a comfortable temperature despite outside cold and high winds. The plan cruised at 85 knots and flew at altitudes from 600 to 1,000 feet.

Coldness of the takeoff site at Trenton produced about the same zero zone gauge reading as a launch curb.

"This is the aircraft of the future," said Group Captain G. G. Diamond, commanding officer of Station Trenton, after the flight was over. "There will be unlimited development of uses of this type of aircraft. It has tremendous possibilities."

The RCAF is putting six such helicopters into service in Canada and the east and west coasts, Winnipeg, Trenton, Bagotville, and Gander.

They are allocated to the Search and Rescue divisions of the RCAF and are capable of landing in any area that gives clearance to its rotors.

HARBINGER F.P. OFFICERS

Like most military aircraft that finally take to the air, the Piasecki helicopter is obsolete in comparison with latest models on production lines today. Newsmen on hand for yesterday's flight was F/O Murray Couch, Lucky Lake, Sask., navigator; and F/O Ken Kirkwood, Winnipeg, Man.

Officers present were G/C G. G. Diamond, OC Station Trenton; G/C J. Stevenson, senior air staff officer; W/C McLeod, OC Flying Instructor School; W/C Skellett, Search and Rescue training command; W/C Barg, Air Training staff; S/L Rutherford, OC No. 102 Communications and Rescue Squadron, owners of the helicopter; F/O Coleman, photographer; Claude Tice and Boyd Upper of The Ontario Intelligencer; Arthur Hunt, of the Trenton Courier-Advocate and Ted Snider, of CJBQ.

Arrangements for the press flight were made by Lt. Jack Double relations officer of Station Trenton who also made the trip.

Speed Timing Device May Be Bought by City

Purchase of an electronic speed timing device to further check on speeders within the city limits will be recommended to the board of police commission by the city traffic committee.

The problem of speeders was thoroughly discussed at this day's meeting of city council traffic committee with members deciding on purchase of the electrical speed timing device to the police commission.

Other traffic problems, including parking were dealt with at the meeting with installation of parking meters for the market square considered by committee. The committee recommended that meters be installed on all-available areas on the market square with provisions to be made for those persons renting market space.

In an effort to speed up traffic through the downtown area it was recommended that parking be removed from Bridge St. from Church Street to Front St. from 4.30 to 6.00 p.m., except Sundays.

The five committee meeting on Saturday recommended the purchase of an electrical extension for the new pumper at a cost not to exceed $500 and a'so approved that the basic salary of probationers in the fire department be fixed at $2,000 with the chief to have power to grant increases quarterly as their training progresses.

Aldermen Ralph Graham was named vice-chairman of the traffic committee and Alderman C. D. Tice was named vice-chairman of the fire committee and at a public meeting Alderman Alderman. Bruce Smith was named vice-chairman of that committee.

Police Blotter

City police reported a quiet night Monday with activities being confined to the arrest of three drunks and the investigation of two minor accidents involving only fender damage.

Early this morning Les. Trudeadale, age 40, employee of a Front Street restaurant, collapsed on the pavement as he was about to open the door of the restaurant. An ambulance was called and the man was taken to hospital suffering from a heart attack.

Arts and Crafts Club Will Hold Exhibit in Fall

The first executive and general meeting of the new year, of the Arts and Crafts club was held Monday evening at the club rooms in King George school with Mrs. Cain presiding.

A Belleville and District exhibition was discussed, and it was decided to plan one for the fall. It was also decided to have a club "Open House and Exhibit" in June, at the end of the season.

The advisability of having the monthly meetings on the second Monday of the month, due to so many of the members having other commitments for the third Monday, was discussed, and the members present agreed that the meeting night should be changed.

Mr. George Merten, the Puppetry expert, is to come to Belleville, the week of February 24, until Friday, January 28, to give the class instruction previously planned and arranged, when Mr. Merten was here with his puppets before Christmas.

There is a party being arranged for copper tooling and aluminum trays, for Friday evenings, when the club meets in one of the different craft classes.

Two excellent films were shown to the members, entitled "Peter Potter," showing the pottery of the famed Deichman family in New Brunswick, and "West Wind," of Tom Thomson, the renowned Canadian painter.

Retarded Child Missing From Home For Week

TORONTO (CP)—A 12-year-old girl left home two days before Christmas to see an afternoon movie and didn't return, police said Monday.

Mrs. Frank Hind said she knew of no reason why her daughter Frances, should run away. The girl had been attending school at Little Current on Manitoulin Island and came home for Christmas the day before she disappeared.

"We had planned to go shopping and to take her to the movies the night she disappeared," Mrs. Hind said.

Police say the girl is slightly mentally retarded and last summer was missing from home for a week. She said then she remained in her home neighborhood, sleeping in automobiles and obtaining food where she could.

Construction For Defence To Remain High

By FORBES RHODE
Canadian Press Business Editor

QUEBEC (CP) — Construction for defence probably will keep thousands of Canadians busy for a long time to come, H. G. Johnson, president of Defence Construction (1951) Ltd., indicated Monday in an address to the Canadian Construction Association, now holding its annual convention here.

"Four years ago I told you we were headed for a defence curve which some $100,000,000 would be spent on defence production," he said.

"However, in the past four years DCL, on behalf of the department of national defence, has administered an expenditure of more than $400,000,000, including over 3,000 contracts with a total value of probably $700,000,000."

The peak year was 1952 with more than $200,000,000 spent, but there has been new defence construction contract awards had maintained a steady volume of about $100,000,000 a year, and it was expected this volume would be maintained this year, if not exceeded.

GOOD YEAR FORECAST

Mr. Johnson's was one of several speeches which explained why 1954 was a record year in construction, and why 1955 promises is headed for still higher figures, probably a run of $5,000,000,000, compared with 1954's $4,750,000,000.

IMPROVE CARE FOR MENTALLY ILL

In recent decades, great strides have been made in the treatment of the mentally ill.

There was a time when the insane were mocked on the streets, hidden in the homes or locked away in institutions, almost entirely on the type of the mental disorder and the effluence and influence of the sufferer's family. Little attention was given to care, practically none to cure.

Today, according to "Ontario Government Services," a pamphlet containing reports on various phases of provincial government activities, 29.6 per cent of the full-time civil servants in Ontario are devoting their time to the cause of mental health. More than 19,000 patients in mental hospitals are cared for by a staff of more than 6,200.

It is no secret that existing facilities, although they have been greatly enlarged in recent years, are still far from adequate to provide care—and the hope of a cure—for all the mentally ill persons in the province.

There has been talk about an alarming increase in the incidence of mental illness. Some increase may exist, as the result of the ever-increasing pace of modern living, but there is no real reason to believe that this increase will be more apparent than actual. It is probably more the result of improved methods of detecting mental illness than of a rise in the number of people suffering from insanity.

One of the most promising innovations in the detection and treatment of mental illness in this province is the establishment of psychiatric wards in general hospitals. This development is close to the heart of Ontario's Minister of Health, Hon. Mackinnon Phillips. No psychiatrist, the minister is nevertheless keenly aware that there are persons showing early signs of mental illness who have been unable to obtain early remedial treatment in their home communities. His knowledge of such cases is almost entirely the result of his many years of experience as a physician and is additional proof that Premier Leslie Frost was wise when, in replacing Hon. T. Russell Kelley, he decided that the health ministry should once again be restored to the hands of a man with medical training.

The provincial government has encouraged general hospitals, through special grants, to undertake the construction of psychiatric wards in the belief that early discovery and treatment of mental ailments can prove as beneficial as similar early discovery and treatment of a wide variety of physical ailments whose toll has, by these methods, been spectacularly reduced within the memory of many of us. So far this program has resulted in the construction of 375 beds of this type, with accommodation for another 80 beds either under construction or approved. If this program's results live up to the hopes of its sponsors, the day may come when all the very small general hospitals in the province will have such wards.

STRICTLY FOR THE BIRDS?

Her latest suggestion deals with no less a problem than the elimination of Hamilton's starling menace. She says all that needs to be done is to net a few starlings and spray them with luminous paint. "If scares the devil out of the rest of the flock," she explains.

Bill Muirhead, streets and sanitation director at Hamilton, under whose department that city's starling nuisance naturally comes, thinks that Mayor Whitton's ideas is devilish, to say the least. Starlings would soon get used to their glowing colleagues, he maintains.

But what if Mr. Muirhead is wrong and Mayor Whitton is right? What if the luminous starling succeeds in scare the devil out of the rest of the flock? What happens?

The flock leaves Hamilton, we presume. Good. But will not the luminous starlings leave Hamilton, too? How does Mayor Whitton propose to retain them as residents and aerial guardians of the Ambitious City, where they lean continue to scare the devil out of the standard brand of starling? What happens if they follow the flock? Will they not scare the devil-out of it again, probably chasing the whole caboodle right back to Hamilton, perhaps bringing a few thousand additional refugees from the surrounding countryside? It seems to us that the problem is to be less of a problem to the streets and sanitation department than a calm and rested bird? We eagerly await Mayor Whitton's suggestions, which we are certain will be of lifeen interest to all nature lovers.

PLANNED CITY OF THE FUTURE

The city of the future will not grow haphazardly. Its transportation problem and that of its water supply will be solved in advance. Its subways will be in running order before there is any passenger within miles. Its streets will be wide enough for parking at both curbs and for parking in the middle and there will be plenty of roadway left for two vehicles to travel in each direction. (Sherbrooke Record).

JUST FOLKS

EARLY SONGBIRD

They used to tell it as a joke.
Although their beds they wished to leave
When morning came and I awoke
I wanted no one else to sleep.

"Arise and greet it-with delight.
It's morning! Soon it will be noon
And after that will come the night."

With joyfulness I loudly sang,
Though hold a tune I never could,
My room, and every other, rang
With music that I thought was good.

They stretched and yawned in manner sad
And muttered many an angry word.
They loathed to goodness that their dad
Had not been born an early bird.

"It's morning!" was my favorite line
Of song.

Gurkha's Retort

(New York Times)

One morning this year M. Mendes-France, who would like to continue as French premier to push his reformist plans, will awaken to the predicament of that famous soldier in Rommel's Afrika Korps during the Second World War. According to legend the unlucky Gurkha was in a night patrolling battle, and saw a night patrolling Gurkha swing his vicious decapitating Khukri knife.

"His, Ha," said the German, "Shake your head," said the Gurkha.

Strength for the Day

LIBERATING THE TRUE SELF

Centuries ago a piece of marble, rough and shapeless, was purchased at by an unskilled sculptor and at last cast aside. Young Michelangelo, passing by saw it, and he fell to clearing away the filth that obscured it. "There is a beautiful figure in the block," he insisted, "I must release it." When grabbed about the statue in later years, Michelangelo would only say, "The figure was there, I only released it."

We all have heard the sermon about "the man I might have been." Everyone of us feels that he has lost great opportunities, that there is something in his life of grandeur that might have come forth had it not been for this circumstance or that, for this weakness or that unkind evil. Likewise as we look on those whose lives have been marred by ruinous passions, we can well believe that it was true man once dwelt in what is now a misshapen block of nothingness. The man, the leader, the artist, the benefactor, the saint—all these are still the time, needing only to be liberated.

Best of all, he is still there. Certainly until the last day of life we have our day of grace, and having our day of grace we may turn from the mistakes to the triumphs. We may back at our lives, but if we will let the Divine Artist have His way with us, the beauty and power of our real selves will out.

Lumber dealers and others should like the do-it-yourself boom. They sell an enormous amount of material to replace the wastage, damage and pilferage in their yards.

Debunking the Tropics

(By Odon Mohan in Harper's Magazine)

"Oh take me where Those red bananas grow."
Delta Rhythm Boys.

Are you a refugee from the glacial North, bound for Rio, Laurence Marcuse, or Pago Pago? Well, you know what it's like in the Torrid Zone. Or so you think. After 10 years as a part-time tropical tramp, I am not so sure.

The passionate northern infatuation—faithfully fed by films from movies to the papaya juice cocktail—has given us a few slight errors, and an elaborate tropical mythology that often conflicts with the facts.

North loves south.

We soak ourselves in books about the Spice Trail, the Inquisition, Amazon, Africa, and South-east Asia, shout the banana republics, and sing of the Pacific Isles on a balsa raft.

The mysterious East is given us the Queen of England in Ceylon, Tonga, Aden and Sydney Greenstreet.

Pan American World Airways includes in its passionately practical travel guide, full of fictitious, useful information for customers who would like to leave the United States for a while and strike inland to Timbuctoo.

The natives' fascination with the exotic southlands, which got off to a smoldering start with the eighteenth-century Romanticists, has now burst into flame.

Before long, Hollywood versions have sprouted along Broadway during the past couple of decades than the Victorians would have believed possible.

Both men and women have taken to Bermuda shorts.

Not content with Rudolph Valentino's tango or the Cubanola Glide of 1915, we have been taught to mambo, bolero, conga, rumba, stumba, and bumba. We have the mandolin, guitar, and ukulele.

The tourist who has mastered his dance steps and sets out for the Torrid Zone carries in his head a remarkable montage:

Bare-breasted girls and acrapes, and probably types like Tondeleyo, Sadie Thompson, and Bitsbee Beddoes . . . planter's punches and Ballisee uplift.

Hurricanes, earthquakes, chills, chota pegs, and chili peppers . . . a sprinkling of Gilbert Roland, Reines, Rico, The White Man's Grave, Sanders of the River, "Trader Horn," "Mogambo," "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?" and "Boomlay, boomlay, boomlay, Boom."

And Carmen Miranda with a masterpiece of wazzed down on turban.

Most of this marvellous tropical mirage is the dubious legacy of travellers of the nineteenth-century school: Sir Richard Burton, Kipling, The White Man's Grave, which began earlier and lasted later.

Even the airwives no longer except as a bugaboo and a convenient legend.

The conviction that only mad dogs and Englishmen go out in the middday sun dies hard.

Also about the unfortunate man whose doctor used whose old hat with his jacket, but it was too late—he had a sun stroke.

Single Dr. Schweitzer wrote his book of the thousands of British and French colonials who built roads and airfields, stripped to the waist, in the tropical heat, the continental Britons and Frenchmen have put quite a dent in the myth.

There are such things as sleeping sickness and yellow fever, and heat stroke—but as biologist Marston Bates points out in his book, "Where Winter Never Comes," the human is a tropical mammal. Man is so adaptable that such breakdowns are extremely rare.

Anybody, anywhere, can become in the North American midwest than in Equatorial Africa . . .

The idea persists that white men who go to the tropics go to the dogs.

I suspect that it's just that many men who'd like to go to the dogs find this work more rewarding. It's steadier.

Certainly eccentricities flourish in the tropics. Remember the saying (we don't suppose you remember old Captain Remington who used to play polo on the back of a giraffe?")

The gaudiest example used to be the remittance men and the beachcombers, though their day is pretty well over. Some of those who knew the stolls were snapped up by naval intelligence during World War II.

Most of the rest seem to have drifted into respectability . . .

• • •

One most engaging tropical paradox does involve a basic change—clothing.

Gradually, scientists is coming to agree with the unlettered savage who wears only a grass kilt during the hot hours (grass is a poor conductor of heat).

Army researchers working on human heat control during World War Two came to the conclusion that, if he must be covered at all, the perspirable uniform for a GI in the desert would be the traditional flowing robe.

This never caught on like the Eisenhower jacket.

But the bond among northern sojourners is to emulate the local population, and shuck.

Meanwhile—a pleasant within a paradox—the natives are rapidly catching up with nineteenth-century thinking, and are putting on more and more clothing.

The Imperial African badge of respectability has become the topee.

In the large cities, the African wears illac-colored zoot suits, leather sandals, and green-tinted aviator's goggles.

But the most striking cases buy novelty shirts decorated with photo-montages of newspaper headlines and the advertisements for deodorants and mouth washes.

At the same time, Christian colonists have taken up the bikini.

• • •

It's a question of just who is influencing whom.

Some colonial architects in the Latin Americas draw their old colonial inspiration from California bungalows.

Hollywood—from "The Cobens Go Native" to "Bomba, the Boy from the Jungle Boy" — has had great missionary influence in persuading the southern peoples to accept the northerners' imag. of them.

The confusion is largely between the cool people and the hot people is now nearly complete.

The Polynesian people accepted Tarzan, and no doubt small boys in the Belgian Congo are practicing to give the reverberating call of the bull ape, just as ours do at home.

Big Game Hunt Mostly Fraud

(Atlanta Constitution)

Big game hunting has been exposed as a 90 per cent fraud. Only about 10 per cent of the animals killed in Africa are elephants, lions, rhinos, buffalo and leopards that they claim.

Many of these heroes who return home loaded with trophies and heads never fired a gun at all. They got the shakes and last chased them, when in the faces and jelly in their joints. Or maybe they bagged it from the air on a low-level, coming nearer their hat or feet than the target. Or maybe they hired professional hunter does the killing.

Occasionally an amateur hunter runs down on the African bush and does his own shooting, but most commonly he rides in motor tyros buy fancy clothes and fancy rifles. They pose for their pictures at the take off in cushioned "safari cars" loaded with matched luggage, refrigerators, bathtubs and fine wines.

One good rear shot from a lion, one scream from a charging elephant, and these dudes fade before the first onslaught of the professional's guns. The hired hunter kills the lion or the elephant and hands a gun to the hand of his quaking client, congratulating him on his deftness.

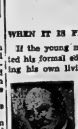
After the trembling cases, the man has his picture taken with the head of the lion's back. Already he is framing his story of how he shot the lion as it was hurtling through the air in tremendous leaps. Frankly we pity the lion and the big game.

It's always been bad enough, this chasing of the beasts—just that magnificent beasts; but now a company is sending out hunting parties of journalists in the Belgian Congo are abundant. A person can hardly turn New York on television on a luxurious air liner, have dinner and enjoy a movie at night. Spend the day in Brussels, then fly on down to the Congo and be ready to shoot lions the easy!—be out in the bush having blood runs about elephan's and rhinos for him.

What'tun! What jolly fun! What a commentary when we, sons of the American pioneers, must be lured into the jungle by publicity to kill wild animals for sport.

Would Buy Gold Fence

(Philadelphia Inquirer)



Senator Johnson (Dem., Tex.) tells a story about a woman from Kentucky who came to Washington when she met a Texan who started to boast about his state—the biggest in area, the richest in oil, the home of the most millionaires, etc. To which the Kentucky woman said. "You don't impress me a bit. Why, in Kentucky we have the biggest hoard of gold in the world at Fort Knox. We have enough gold there to build a gold fence four feet high all around Texas."

Undismayed, the Texan replied: "That's glad to hear that, madam. You just get that fence built and I'll buy it."

WHEN IT IS PERMISSIBLE FOR A TEEN-AGER TO DRINK!

Dr. Brady

If the young man has completed his formal education, is earning his own living, is said to support a wife and children, has finished his day's work and his day's physical activity, — sport or game using muscles, — he may then be in a position to consider whether he will permit himself to drink.

Certainly his parent or guardian will not be so delinquent as to offer permission for drinking, smoking or other detrimental practices.

A reader asks: "Please confirm or deny that brandy will prevent a cold. . . especially for a teenager. . . when is it permissible for a teen-ager to drink?" . . It's hard to tell the younger generation anything. They know it all and have to do what the others do for fear of not being popular." Neither brandy nor other alcoholic drink will prevent, cure, or help a cold.

Let us cease branding our youngsters with unpleasant labels. Let us have tender mercies for our young, remembering that they were reached over by latent and vulgar culture which we condone, or at best do little to improve. Take a week of and study what's around them:

A common practice in American homes is the cocktail hour, where at least one theretofore respectable adult behaves in a violent and vulgar fashion.

Movies, television, radio, magazines, newspapers and some of the "arts" in literature, are concerned with violence and vulgarity in human relationships which we would never select for our youngsters. Shall we have disciplined to them such relationships in a kaleidoscopic, audio-visual perverse basic sensuousness early childhood.

Our everyday language is patterned for us by disc jockeys and five peddlers, so that a citizen needs years of English to comprehend how suspicious! "What's he, a fruit?" These who are fit to speak in cultured phrases without compliance to the prevailing language-patterns are dubbed "egg-heads," for whom there appears to be no welcome outside the university.

The delinquency is not, is it, so much in the youngsters as in us, in our whole culture?

While your teen-ager is trying to "keep up" with the rest, you might sit down and discuss with him how you are working together, can improve yourselves. I mean, improve both of you, not just the youngster. Perhaps he would like his children to grow up in a saner world, where they can be individuals unafraid of what "the others" think.

Just ask him. He thinks alcohol will improve that world.

TWENTY BRIEF BOOKS

On a stand, a few feet from where I write, in my library, is a collection of small books which are alive with beauty and inspiration. I selected them over many many years. Some are long out of print, but each is a treasure find that has nourished my spirit and given me hope and courage.

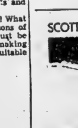
For those who love books and would like to hunt out some of these "finds" for their own libraries, I am including in this column but high in influence. Hardly half of the twenty are here, save in their books. Here's the list: "The Snow Goose," by Paul Gallico; "A Walk in the Sun," by Harry Brown; "A Way of Life," by Dr. William Osler; "So Long, Son," by Howard Vincent O'Brien; "The Ionian Sea," by George Gissing; "Pilgrim's Progress," by Michael Fairless; "Haiti," by William James; "Palestine Problem," by Hutchins Hapgood; "The Master of the Inn," by Robert Hichens; "The Invisible Collection," by Jesse Lynch Williams; "Trivia," by Logan Pearsall Smith; "Parnassus on Wheels," by Christopher Morley; "Of Flint and Iron," by Gen. Carl A. Lindbergh; "In a Chinese Garden," by Dr. Frederick Starr; "The Proper Study of Us," by Hanrl Long; "Life's Extras," by Archibald Rutledge; "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," by James Hilton; "Stickeen," by John Muir. Most of these books can easily be read in an evening, and remembered for a lifetime! I call them "find" books because many of them is a long book. Some can be read in a single hour. Others, a few. They touch many phases of life, but are primarily inspirational. It's good to look, what it does to you as you read it, that makes it significant. I ask to learn—is there a companion more to be loved and treasured than a book to which you are drawn again and again?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We can't very well deny that there is considerable socialism in the world today. At any rate the static trend of the past half century has certainly affected our attitude to property. Something has gone seriously wrong, and we ought to put upon the socialists the job of what to do now.

The original idea of socialism was to level society, to equalize us all, to bring down the aristocrats and the privileged to the level of the masses.



It was an idea that had a lot to recommend it to us; and with good will, the majority of us began to sympathize with the socialists. I was sympathize with the socialistic trend.

But instead of bringing down the privileged and the aristocrats, we have simply raised up the masses, so that today we have hundreds of thousands of aristocrats instead of the mere handful we had to deal with fifty years ago.

And it may be all for the best. Indeed, maybe we should either have postponed socialism, when the motor car came into being; or we should have postponed the motor car until we had got rid of the aristocrats. Because it is hardly safe any more for a common little everyday member of the masses to walk down the street because of the thousands of grandees, patricians, nobles and their motor cars who adopt a far more offensive and authoritative attitude than the proud princes of the time of, Queen Victoria.

In the meaning, say back in 1903, the motor car was the badge of privilege. Only the wealthy could afford cars. In those days, we still had our betters. We stood aside, respectfully, when a motor car tooted.

But in no time at all, the motor car became available to us all. The badge of privilege was adopted by the masses. We didn't pull down the aristocrats, we all became aristocrats ourselves. And now our aristocrats are full of arrogant, tooting, haughty little Dukes of Patoot.

Govt. Asked to Prevent Further Cheese Importation to Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—The government was asked indirectly Monday to take action to prevent further importation of cheese to Canada.

Hon. Earl Rowe, acting Opposition leader, asked the government in the Commons whether it has any available means of preventing further cheese imports. He expressed concern last week over the effect New Zealand cheese imports might have on Canadian cheese producers.

Trade Minister Howe said the only government regulation affecting cheese imports is the duty on the product. It was placed on cheese in the same way it was applied on other commodities subject to duty.

ASKS RE PERMITS

Mr. Rowe then asked:

"In view of the statement of the minister of trade and commerce the other day to the effect we might assume that if it is found that there might be other shipments of cheese, has the government given any consideration to making the import of cheese into Canada subject to permits under the Export and Import Permits Act, and which reverse the import of cheese?

Mr. Howe replied:

"The two matters are not parallel because cheese does not qualify under the legislation which governs the Export and Import Permits Act."

PREVIOUS STATEMENT

Mr. Howe told the House Friday he does not anticipate additional shipments of New Zealand cheese to Canada for at least six and probably nine months. Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) previously expressed concern over reports that 2,200,000 pounds of New Zealand cheese is en route to Canada.

Last Monday, Mr. Howe said the government no longer will hold New Zealand to a verbal arrangement to keep its cheese off the Canadian market.

The arrangement was made at a time when Canada had a high cheese reserve and a free market outlets. However, Mr. Howe said "the circumstances under which the request was made have changed."

Trappers Sharpen Their Knives For Skin Game

HUNTSVILLE (CP) — Members of the Ontario Trappers' Association today sharpened their knives in preparation for the annual beaver-skinning contest.

The competition, scheduled for the second day of the three-day annual meeting of the 1,900-member association, will include such veteran performers; as 79-year-old Ed Sawyer of Sundridge and 100 miles northwest of Sudbury.

The association said Monday increase in the number of wolves in the province is due to restrictions imposed on trappers during deer season. The association said trappers were interested in killing off wolves. It said they are harder to trap, track and kill during winter.

Mr. Sawyer, a trapper all his life, says he can skin a beaver in 18 minutes. George McGee of Sudbury, last year's winner, skinned his beaver in eight minutes, 34 seconds.

Jean Morrison of Burks Falls, Miss Ontario Trapper, was scheduled to be crowned tonight. She was chosen from 100 entries and had to write an essay on the fur industry to qualify.

Clare Mapledoram, Ontario minister of lands and forests, will address a luncheon meeting Wednesday.

Three Members Twp. Council Are Unseated

NAPANEE (CP)—Three members of the 1955 Ernestown township council were unseated Monday in a decision handed down by Judge Wilfred S. Lane of Picton.

The case was heard Jan. 6 when Oscar Babcock of Odessa said that he, William D. Clouden and Herbert Sexsmith had been illegally disqualified from running for council at the December elections.

Judge Lane said he agreed with the charge and ordered the three councillors, Clarence J. Kennedy, Robert E. Reid and Ernest Bell Thompson, all elected by acclamation.

He ruled that when a township clerk told candidates they had qualified, he should not be able to change his mind.

In the case of Mr. Sexsmith, nominated for both reeve and deputy reeve, the judge said he had disqualified himself by not declaring his interests in the Consolidated Con meeting.

No date has been set for a new election.

2 Que. Members Attack Criticism Of Province

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec representatives on both sides of the Commons have taken issue in vigorous terms with a speech particularly Quebec as ripe for Communist infiltration.

J. Wilfrid Dufresne (PC—Quebec West) Monday described the speech by Robert Regier (CCF—Burnaby-Coquitlam) as "fanaticism" fostering "blood and disunity."

Hugh Proudfoot (L — Pontiac-Temiscamingue) said the speech is slanderous and ridicules the Province of Quebec as a "hotbed of prejudice and hatred in this country."

Object of their criticism, voiced in the Commons House special debate, was a speech in the chambers Jan. 6 by Mr. Regier. The CCF member had said Quebec was the sore point of national unity and that the province is "ripe for infiltration" as ripe for Communist advances. He described Premier Duplessis as "the master of that other nation."

SAYS SPEECH FOOLISH

Mr. Dufresne said Mr. Regier's speech was a "foolish" one which "could only spell ill will and malicious."

He has endeavored, in a few minutes, to do more to raise the race cry and to disunite the country than has been equalled since Confederation."

Mr. Proudfoot interrupted to deny he had made any reference to race, language or religion. He said he has the highest regard for Quebec's religion, language, brilliance and culture.

Mr. Dufresne, a French-language member, spoke in English as he said Mr. Regier has created "the unenviable honor of being the most unpopular Canadian I have ever met."

SOCIALIST "TWIN"

He said some people see in the twin brother of communism. A Socialist regime in Canada would mean anarchy; disorder and the moral of our democratic rights."

It was "pure ignorance" to say Quebec was ripe for communism. With its religious convictions and love of democracy the province was "as solid as the fortifications of Quebec City against this evil ideology."

Mr. Proudfoot said that rather than being a sore spot in Canadian unity, Quebec could teach the rest of Canada something about unity by what it is doing.

He took exception with Mr. Regier's comments about Quebec not having divorce courts.

DELICATE SUBJECT

"The subject of divorce courts in our province is a difficult and delicate one, but surely the member is not helped by a Socialist proposition that it is proper to ask the very tenets of the people of Quebec the proposition that they must establish divorce courts whether they want them or not.

"Surely, national unity involves the right of a substantial minority to oppose a measure that is offensive to them."

Another Commons member saw another area of the world as ripe for communism.

George Nowlan (PC — Digby-Annapolis-Kings) said that area is the Caribbean. He suggested a type of Colombo plan aid to relieve intolerable conditions in the West Indies.

Mr. Nowlan said that in the West Indies "there is probably more food and yet probably more people verging on starvation than any place else in the world."

Liberal Leader Critical Of Highway Work

TORONTO (CP) — Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal leader, said Monday night the province has been following a hit-and-miss policy in highway construction.

Mr. Oliver said the Ontario government's road - building policy should either be revised or abolished and brought in harmony with accepted methods of construction and maintenance. He spoke on an Ontario radio network in the CBC's provincial affairs series.

Mr. Oliver said the highway department has paid too much attention to the needs of the hour and not paid the proper consideration to fundamentals.

He added:

"Too often and too long our road-building policy has paid homage to the political needs of the various areas rather than building a coordinated well-balanced system.

"It is high time we applied business methods in a situation that cries out for reform. This government has had 11 years to do the inevitable.

"Any extension of this term under the present management would move us that much closer to the horse and buggy days and corduroy roads."

TRENTON (Special) — The General body of the Trenton Branch of the Canadian Legion last night approved an expenditure of approximately $85,000 for a new building to replace the present hall on the waterfront behind the library building.

Plans call for a one storey structure providing nearly 14,000 square feet of floor space. The present hall will be torn down after the new building is opened. The outside of the building is to be finished in brick veneer to blend with buildings and landscaping in the area. Work on the new building is planned for this year.

The two men, stopped by a roadblock at Glenora, had rifled the post office when they were surprised in a mail car by night watchman, faced trial in Cobourg court before Judge H. G. Miller. They were convicted last Friday and remanded for sentence pending reports.

The pair, caught in the act after they smashed a safe and removed contents amounting to $10,000 in stamps and postal order blanks, tossed the loot in a mail bag among a pile of other mail bags. Christmas Fund Grows on Change Found in Gutters

TRENTON (Special) — This is a story that should be told around Christmas.

The misfortune of Trenton people provides street maintainer Charlie Ford and his wife with their annual Christmas dinner.

For the last 23 years Mr. Ford has found enough change in the gutters around the roadways to pay for turkey and all the trimmings. He picks up an average of $20 yearly in pennies, nickles, dimes and quarters.

Once Mr. Ford saved a Trenton man a lot of heartache. The businessman lost his wallet with over $70 in it. Mr. Ford noticed it while sweeping a busy intersection. When the purse was identified the loser was duly grateful and the money in it.

You will see Charlie Ford working along the main thoroughfares any night in the summer. He has also had a hand down the years he never knows when his sharp eyes will uncover the next piece for the pot.

Balance Budget By 4 Per Cent Cut U.S. Urged

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Harry Byrd (Dem. Va.) has urged the Eisenhower administration to balance a hesitant budget by 4 per cent and balance the United States economy.

A good place to start, said the new chairman of the Senate finance committee in an interview, would be on the $4,700,000,000 outlay for foreign aid proposed by President Eisenhower in the annual budget message submitted to Congress Monday.

This was one of the major items in a $61,800,000,000 spending budget Eisenhower recommended for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

Congress responded generally along partisan lines to his "first time" budget. Democrats called for increased air power and slimmed-down ground forces.

DEMANDS CRITICISM

Democrats gibed at the president's father-time plan to keep his 1952 presidential campaign promises to balance the budget, criticized his administration's development program with private power and challenged his cut in farm outlays.

Republicans generally defended Eisenhower's moves as a reflective of the hard realities of defence spending in an uncertain era, although a number said they were disappointed at the lack of a balanced budget. The president forecast a deficit of $2,408,000,000, about half that of the one anticipated this year.

Callous Dealing With Policeman's Widow Charged

OTTAWA (CP) — The city has been accused of acting in a callous manner with the widow of a policeman fatally injured while returning from escort duty during the visit of Premier Pierre Mendes-France to Paris.

The accusation was contained in a letter to city council from lawyers for Mrs. George Constantin—as whose husband was fatally injured about two months ago when his motorcycle struck the curb around an unlighted safety island. A coroner's jury ruled the island was not properly lighted or barricaded for safety.

The letter said Mrs. Constantin-eau was relying on a promise by Mayor Charlotte Whitton that all that could possibly be done to help her financially or otherwise would be done. Mayor Whitton denied making the promise.

Business agent George Gee and his assistant, Ivan Thomas, were suspended by top international officers of the union, who called the special meeting.

It was reported 13 specific charges of "aiding the cause of the leftist cause" were levelled against Gee.

Union president Jack Wappington said after the meeting Gee will be given seven days given two weeks to "prepare their case" before a hearing on the charges is held by the executive.

Canadian Troops Must Complete Training at Home

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's army chief of staff warns that Canadian troops going into any future war won't be able to count on further training overseas, as was the case in the First and Second World Wars.

Lt.-Gen. Guy G. Simonds, speaking to the Canadian Club of Montreal, said Monday Canadian troops must be fully-trained before they are sent overseas or into battle areas in any future war.

"We will be much more restricted in any future war," Gen. Simonds said. "It will no longer be possible to send men to Europe for training. Our troops must be ready when they leave."

The chief of staff said the Canadian Army looks toward the militia to provide a cadre of officers and NCOs around which a reorganized army can be built.

The Canadian Army's first reorganization—to meet demands of the Korean War and NATO commitments—was a temporary expedient which permanent force and 15 infantry regiments were called upon to form composite battalions.

"We recognize that this temporary expedient would work for a while," Gen. Simonds said, "However we saw that we were in for a long pull, we started the second step of reorganization."

The general said the army should be built around the forces—that is, active battalions should be based on militia regiments.

"You can have compulsory followers, but not compulsory leaders," Gen. Simonds warned.

Motorist Driving Without Licence Since 1910

TORONTO (CP) — The lawyer for a 70-year-old Toronto man charged with dangerous driving in connection with a traffic accident in which a man was killed said Monday his client has been driving since 1910 without a license.

William Sutton was acquitted of dangerous driving but was convicted of driving without a license. He was fined $50 and costs.

Police said he was the driver of a car which fatally injured 19-year-old Pasquale Falcooi last Dec. 21.

Sutton's counsel promised that his client will "drive no further."

Crown counsel W. Landon told the court he understood Sutton had applied for a license in 1949, but this was refused because of a physical disability.

"I believe it was his eyesight," he added.

Unfit for Trial

TORONTO (CP)—A jury Monday found Joseph Levinonz, 75, unfit to stand trial on a charge of murder in the shooting with the death of Pearl Roy, 41, and the attempted murder of her mother and sister last Dec. 8.

Crown counsel H. H. Bull told the jury Levinonz had been in the F. H. Barlow that two psychiatrists had found Levinonz insane.

Farmers Request Parity Price Support Program

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Farmers Union Monday asked the Ontario government to establish a parity price support program to bolster what it called "falling farm income."

A delegation of 17 members headed by president Albert V. Cox, mack of Arthur presented a nine-point brief to Premier Frost.

The brief suggested farm income is getting progressively out of line with other occupational groups.

It urged a predetermined, parity formula to meet present conditions.

The farm organization also recommended:

1. Amendment of the provincial agricultural conference to deal with surplus farm products;

2. A provincial act to bring margarine into competition with butter;

3. A study of freight subsidies and shipping of maritime potatoes into the province at prices "unfair" to Ontario growers;

4. Establishing a northern Ontario university at either Sudbury, North Bay or Timmins (Ont.).

5. A means for more satisfactory collection of long-standing board representatives;

6. Amendment to the Ontario Municipal Act to include the OFU.

7. Legislation to compel International Nickel Company at Sudbury to remove poisonous gases from sulphur fumes;

'Civic Night' Guests, Club Hear Interesting Address By Mrs. Ellen Fairclough M.P.

No municipality could possibly manage its affairs without unselfish assistance from groups of public-minded citizens, people who do charitable work, sit on boards, service clubs, religious groups and others. "Where would the municipality be if it had dropped on its doorstep the cost of voluntary welfare work?" Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, M.P., of Hamilton, demanded of the audience at a civic night dinner arranged by the members of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club, on Monday evening at the YMCA.

The club had as its guests the Mayor and members of the council. Chairmen of the Public School Board, Mac Smith; chairman of the High School Board, Roy Sills, and visitors from Trenton, Cobourg and Belleville, Mrs. Dorothy Brown presided for the occasion, and the Toronto guest head table were introduced by Mrs. Isabell Wallbridge. Mayor Both in turn introduced the members of council who attended.

The tables were attractively arranged with the club colors of green and gold, and the centre-piece at the head table was an arrangement of yellow mums and snapdragons with pussy willows. Glass and chrome trivets with their warming candles for the coffee carafes added a pleasing touch to the tables.

Mrs. Doris Burgoyne accompanied by Mrs. Victor Barclay, sang two solos, "Sunshine Is Your Smile" and "It's a Lovely Day Tomorrow." Mrs. Evelyn Warham was pianist for the opening numbers, and played throughout the dinner.

Mrs. Helen Buchanan in proposing the toast to Council wished them a successful year and expressed the hope that some day Belleville would see a woman in the mayor's chair. Mayor Both responded and echoed her wish.

PRESIDENT INTRODUCED SPEAKER

Provincial President Mrs. Margery Pewtress, who introduced the speaker, stated that she was gratified to see the Belleville club had achieved its present high standard. Mrs. Fairclough could be introduced in many ways, Mrs. Pewtress said, as one of the outstanding business and professional women, as a wife and mother, a successful business woman, a successful candidate for member of Parliament in Hamilton West, as an influential woman on Labor matters in Ottawa, in club life and women's organizations, but she preferred to introduce her as a big-hearted, fair-minded person, with a sense of good balance and humor.

Mrs. Fairclough is a witty and vivacious speaker and she approached her subject of "Civic Problems and Business People" with clear insight and humor.

"What is a citizen?" the speaker asked and replied that citizenship is the status of a person, who owes allegiance to government in return for political rights and privileges.

"The obligations of citizenship do not end with paying taxes, but how many people think along these lines that when we have paid out taxes we have done all that is expected of us. Business people have the most to gain and the most to lose from civic administration, but as a group they do little about it. Far too often the taxpayer looks on taxes as an onerous duty and it gives us a virtuous feeling to turn over a sum of money and then feel that we can demand our rights. It is the interested citizen who keeps the city clean and asks for improved services. We have at hand the greatest weapon to demand attention, the ballot box.

"True citizenship demands much more. We have duties as citizens culturally, morally and physically. We cannot disassociate one with the other. Taxpaying is compulsory, laws must be respected, we must live peaceful and God-fearing lives. We put laws on statute books and must keep them by compulsion. But there are compensations and privileges.

We can travel, visit our art galleries and libraries, go fishing, speak our thoughts freely, decide who will govern, and worship in the church of our choice.

"A wise doctor once said that one of the things which is requisite is the maintenance of orderly government, which is the mainstay of our way of life. The basis of ordered government is the individual, the whole scheme of democracy is to protect individual rights. At the civic level we are closest to the citizen. The basis of democracy is rule by the majority not the minority. Whether we approve of the government or not, it was elected by the majority; so we must accept it until we have won support to do something about it.

LEARN FROM LOSING

"We can't all be in council, government, or international councils, but everyone can be the watchdog for civil liberties. Are we too complacent or can we still be indignant over injustice? Do you back away from membership on boards? We have to have citizens who will put first and with enthusiasm to do something. Let's get out and canvass for the Community Chest and other drives but we won't get into an election fear of losing. You learn more from losing an election than in winning. Our people have to rouse themselves at the civic level and guard against autocracy or how can we combat autocracy at higher levels?

"The city is in your hands. We have a responsibility to see that our neighbor next door is not maligned in time of trouble, just as much as to pay our taxes and serve on boards. Our responsibility is far above monetary considerations or personal desires and ambitions. We have to safeguard the liberties we have preserved."

Miss Joy Nichols expressed appreciation to the speaker and presented her with a gift from the club.

Pr. Wales H-S Assoc. Enjoys Humorous Skit

The regular January meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association was held recently in the senior room, with a good number of parents present. Mrs. Vandervoort, the vice-president, presided. Mrs. Marlatt, the secretary, was unable to be present but Mrs. Wunjes, the treasurer gave a favorable report, announcing a balance of $58.22, after a raffle had been purchased for eight classes in the school and a number of record players.

Mrs. Murray, president, and Mr. Murray, are to be congratulated on the birth of a daughter.

After the attendance count was taken, it was found that Mrs. Burtt's room had the largest number of parents present.

Mrs. Vandervoort urged that all Home and School members who could possibly hear Mr. Don Graham of Forest Hill Village, attend the two meetings. One is to be held at B.C.I.V.S., and the other at Q.S.S. These promise to be outstanding for persons interested in Home and School.

FILM STRIP AIDS

Mrs. Phillips gave a short talk on the value of film strips as an aid to teaching in nearly every subject. Then she showed a film strip illustrating the geography side of social studies on France.

Mrs. Burtt's pupils enjoyed putting on a skit entitled "Among a Housekeeper," where two farmers' bachelors advertised for a housekeeper. After interviewing several applicants, they sent them on their way and they washed their own dishes. The parts and actors were: Farmer Abe Perkins, Alan Martin; Farmer Ike McSweeney, Barton Dunanie; Olga from de Volga, Lois Bailey; No Finch, Linda Sproule; Widow Scroggins, Marilyn Vandervoort; The Flapper, Lynn Brown; Miss Charming, Marlene Clapp.

Two more films strips were then shown one on "Wolfe and Montcalm" and the other on "The Life of Queen Elizabeth".

Refreshments were served by the teacher profitable meeting to a close.

Women Buy Many Neckties For Husbands

WASHINGTON (AP) — In this crazy, mixed - up world, many women not only wear the slacks in the family, but also buy the pants for papa.

That is clear in a study made by the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers. They've been questioning women who shop in all types of stores in which men's wear is sold.

Their report showed what most people suspected already: That if this is a man's world, he often faces it in clothes his wife helped pick out for him. The report shows that women are persistent necktie buyers. Of the women interviewed, 70 per cent admitted their part in buying neckties for their husbands and sons.

Eighty-one per cent said they helped their husbands buy pajamas.

Well over half the women said they either bought, or helped buy, his jewelry, his suits, his sweaters, his shirts, his sportswear, his underwear and his socks.

PRESENTATION

The retiring president was presented with past president's pin from the lodge by her mother, Mrs. F. J. Savage, who deemed this a great pleasure.

STIRLING

River Valley W.I. Holds Old Time Meeting Demonstrating Apparel

STIRLING — Mrs. Gerald Brooks was hostess on Thursday for the postponed meeting of the River Valley Women's Institute, with 23 ladies and several children in attendance.

The ladies were garbed in "Merry Widow" and other notable hats and bonnets, shawls and capes, frilled dresses with full mufts, Persian lamb coats and caps, muffs and a very interesting arrangement of old-time clothes.

The president opened the meeting in the usual form and Mrs. J. L. Donohoe gave a full financial report.

Several letters of thanks were read. The ladies were invited to attend "Achievement Day" in Stirling on February 3rd, from 1 to 4 p.m.

The Friendship Link secretary, Mrs. Percy MacMillan, gave a summary of her correspondence and parcel exchange in Friendship Link W.I. at Abbot's Leigh, Bristol, England. She mailed two parcels of tea and this was given out at their birthday party and several "Over Seventy Members," who are old age pensioners, received a portion of the last parcel.

LETTERS FROM ENGLAND

Two letters of thanks were also read from the secretary in England. The last letter dated January 5th, said the weather was springlike at Christmas but a heavy fall of snow with a wind at night, force arrived early in the new year. Several parcels of papers containing Institute news and important Canadian events, such as "Hurricane Hazel," Marilyn Bell, Stirling's high school sent across the ocean, and all had been greatly appreciated. Abbot's Leigh W.I. are forwarding a leather bound "Visitors' Book" for use in the Institute and hoped River Valley would gather lots of names throughout the years.

Thanks were extended to those who had contributed articles and donated prizes to date, and plans were made for a birthday party at the end of the month.

Mrs. John Kane has remitted $11 from the penny bags to Mental Health.

The February hostess will be Mrs. Claude Tucker, with Mrs. Don Donohoe and Mrs. Edward Heasman convenors for "Home Economics and Health."

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

Committees were appointed to make plans for the catering for the Sidney Federation of Agriculture banquet in February.

The program, based on "Historical Research," was convened by Mrs. Roy Bush with Mrs. Gordon McIntosh. "The Tweedsmuir Book" and "The Rosebush History" were displayed.

Mrs. Bush presided at a table centred with an old-fashioned coal-oil lamp, wearing a long white apron, a stylish bonnet and cape and carried her papers in an old fashioned valise.

Mrs. Phil Conley presided at the piano and all sang "When You and I Were Young Maggie."

The convener gave an interesting paper on the subject and pointed out why some of the older articles should be cherished. True, some people live only for today, but great historians and notable personages all agree that in order to be well equipped in life one must have his or her roots firmly planted in the past.

River Valley is not quite 200 years old, and she traced Canada from the days of Wolfe in 1758 down to the landing of the Rosebush pioneers on the Trent River. Seven generations of Rosebushers have lived on that particular piece of land and it has always been in that name.

Olive ladies in the audience were born in River Valley and there are a few families who have lived continuously on the land in this community.

Mrs. George Heasman sang "The Songs of Long Ago," with Mrs. Harry Morrow as accompanist.

RIVER VALLEY 150 YEARS AGO

Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh proceeded to tell her humorous story of life at River Valley 150 years ago, wearing a quaint costume of the stylish days of yore, after which Mrs. Percy MacMillan read an article from "The Tweedsmuir Book," re "The Flag —the Union Jack." It said in part: "Perhaps nothing has ever happened at River Valley which created more of a community spirit and pride as the winning of the first flag for S.S. No. 18 about 1893, at a special reunion celebration. It told how the men got a 60-foot pole at Marmora, and after the flag was hoisted in the school yard everyone enjoyed a picnic in the nearby woods. Then in the year of the coronation of Elizabeth the Second, the River Valley Institute commemorated that event by presenting a nylon flag to hang inside and each pupil received a coronation cup and saucer. The teacher, Mrs. Reg. Coombes, was presented with a coronation plate.

Mrs. Glenn Bush read an article from the Tweedsmuir History, giving a detailed description of the school and telling how it was arranged with a make-shift pulpit and Bible for Sunday services and funerals. It told of the good old organ later replaced with a piano, the early oil lamps, the Aladdin lamps and finally hydro. There was a detailed description of how the school was swept and the writer said the pupils of the school were learning their citizenship in a hard way but it paid good dividends.

An article written by the late Janet Hazzard told of the first schools and their various locations, and the contract price of the one now standing was $925 and was erected in 1881; Electric lights were installed in 1939 and many years ago 32 maple trees were planted around the school fence and they still stand as a tribute to those who assisted with the planting. A list of teachers was also read.

HISTORY OF PHOTOGRAPHY

Mrs. Percy Upman read a history of photography, explaining first the primitive days in stone, drawn pictures, tin-types, old family albums, postcards, camera snapshots down to the present-day flash cameras, with colored pictures. A large display of old-fashioned pictures, proved of great interest.

Mrs. Edward Heasman said many women buy hats to give them a new lease on life, while others remodel theirs. Different countries wear different head gear and she traced the ancestry of many Canadian hats. She modelled a "Merry Widow" hat, presumably 50 years old, and gave a graphic picture of many old hat styles, manonnets, nightcaps, etc., even a genuine Persian lamb cap, worn by both men and women around 1900, before women bobbed their hair and left their hats at home.

W. I. MEETING

Mrs. S. McIntosh was hostess for a W.I. meeting which presumably was held in River Valley 50 years ago, the year of organization. Mrs. Ernest Carr was president with Mrs. J. L. Donohoe reading the first minutes as appears in the old book dated October 1910. 25 members attended that meeting and one new member joined. In the program given were a most timely paper entitled "The Hurry, Worry and Waste of Modern Housekeeping." The demonstration in 1910 was inexpensive Christmas gifts made for 10 cents and every woman in attendance had brought an article. The 1910 roll of members was then read and only one woman was present at the 1955 meeting who was on that list.

The short business was building a shed for horses. This old-fashioned meeting was a great revelation to the present-day members.

Mrs. Bush closed her program with a plea for more laughter in this new year with always a light in the window.

Votes of thanks were tendered to the hostess for hospitality, to the conveners of this special program and to all who had contributed in any way, not forgetting the lunch committee who served refreshments following the rendition of "The Queen."

The idea of this display was to give everyone a glimpse of the days of old with all their frills and furbelows, and to create an interest in preserving choice articles from the past for future generations.

INVITATIONS TO CHRISTENING AND LUNCHEON

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our baby son is to be christened soon, after the regular morning service in our church. We are planning a buffet for our relatives and close friends to come to the church ceremony and afterward to our home to a buffet luncheon. How should these invitations be given? — New Mother.

This kind of invitation is usually given most informally. You may privately confide all the details verbally or by telephone, or by notes. These may read:

Dear Ellen,

Our Peter is to be christened after the regular service at our church (if necessary, give name and address of the church, and the approximate hour), on Sunday (give date). We do hope you and Bill can come to the church ceremony, but in any case, do come to a buffet luncheon here at our house (one o'clock), to give your salutations to the newcomer. Please say, "Yes, we'll be there."

Affectionately,

EACH USHER PAYS OWN AT-TIRE-RENTAL CHARGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At our 4 o'clock-in-the-afternoon wedding, a formal church wedding, the groom has informed the men in the wedding party that he expects them to be wearing full-dress attire (cutaways, striped trousers, and so forth), and along only the best man and one of the ushers own this formal attire. I found out the name and address of the best place here to rent attire, and gave each one that information. One of these ushers asked the best man to ask the groom about who is to be responsible for the rental-charge. The groom had taken it for granted that each attendant would know that he himself is responsible for paying the the rental-charge, and I told the groom that I am positive I had told this to all concerned. (1) Am I right? (2) If so, should he make this clear to each attendant? — The Inquiring Bride-to-be

(1) Yes, and the groom-to-be is right . . . each attendant pays the rental charge for his own attire. In fact words he is expected to provide his own attire-for-the-wedding (as opposed to the groom-to-be) . . . whether he owns it, or buys it, or (as is most usual in the case of formal attire today) rents it.

(2) Yes. It is always the best-the wisest, plan to make absolutely clear all such financial responsibilities. Then if any of the ushers cannot afford to pay this rental-expense, he will have to tell the groom-to-be that he cannot accept the honor of being an attendant.

TIPS SHOULD BE FAIRLY DIVIDED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In the beauty salon to which I go for my permanent wave I tip my own hair between permanents), I always give a dollar, a certain amount to the man who does my permanent. During the holiday week he was so busy that when I went to keep my appointment he asked me if I would mind having one of the other operators shampoo my hair while he was finishing another permanent. I told I'd give him a separate tip because I took it for granted that he would share whatever the tip I gave him. Now I'm wondering if this was the right thing to do? — A.V.

I doubt that this was the right procedure. You should have given her the usual tip for a shampoo . . . and, if you wished to, deducted this amount from the tip you planned to give the permanent-waver. Then you would have received the fair division.

Diabetics' Cookies, Cakes, Candy

By Mary Moore

Two of our readers who are either diabetic or cooking for someone who is, would like "recipes for cookies or cake made without sugar" and (2) "recipe for some of the jelly kind of candy (for diabetics) . . . you can buy it in the city but it is very expensive . . . Ont.

NUT COOKIES (Sugarless)

Ten and one-half sucaryl tablets, 1 teaspoon orange juice, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, 1-3 cup butter or margarine, 1-2 cup chopped walnuts or pecans, 1-3 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind. Crush the sucaryl tablets and dissolve them in the orange juice. Sift the dry ingredients together. Cream the butter and then beat the orange juice into it. Add dry ingredients and mix well. Add walnuts, rind and vanilla. Form into long roll and wrap in wax paper and chill. When chilled through, slice with sharp knife and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for from 12 to 15 minutes or until delicately browned.

SPONGE CAKE (Sugarless)

Six eaks flour and measure 1 cup. Crush 20 sucaryl tablets to a fine powder and sift them with the flour and 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1-4 teaspoon salt at least three times. Make a well in centre of them and add in order 1-2 cup cooking oil (salad oil), 1-2 cup water, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 4 egg yolks, and grated rind of 1-2 lemon. Beat with spoon until perfectly smooth. To the four remaining egg whites add 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar and beat until very stiff—much stiffer than for ordinary cakes—the peaks must be stiff and show no tendency to fall. With electric beater if possible beat egg yolk mixture again for at least 1 minute, then slowly pour it over the stiffly beaten whites and blend them with a folding motion—do not stir. Pour into ungreased 9 by 5 inch loaf pan at once and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 55 minutes, then increase heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes. Invert cake in pan over rack to cool, then coax from pan with fingertips. A 3-4 inch slice of this cake baked in pan-size suggested contains 112 calories.

The candy recipe which I planned to give in this space I am going to work on and I hope improve. Watch for the recipe some time next week. Meanwhile try

COCOANUT CREAM (Sugarless)

Two 3 oz. packages white cream cheese (or 6 oz. from an 8 oz. package), 2 teaspoons sucaryl solution or 20 sucaryl tablets, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1-2 cup shredded cocoanut, toasted or not. Mash the cheese and whip it until it is light and creamy. Add sucaryl solution or finely crushed sucaryl tablets dissolved in 2 teaspoons orange juice, and the orange rind. Mix very well. Form into balls about 1-inch in diameter. Roll each in cocoanut until well coated. Chill before serving.

Watch this column next week for Sugarless Turkish Delight for diabetics.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THREE TURN-DOWNS IN A ROW WOULD DISCOURAGE ANY-BODY!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

At a wedding I attended a few months ago, I met a boy who seemed to take an immediate liking to me. He stayed by my side all evening, and at the end of the evening he asked for my phone number. The next week he called me up every night, and twice one night. Three times he invited me to go out with him, but, due to circumstances beyond my control I was unable to go.

Since then he has never called me, and every now and then when I see him in the corridors at school he looks right past me as though I wasn't there.

Please tell me why he's acting this way, and what I can do so he will talk to me without my speaking first. — T.T.

Dear T.T.:

I would think the reason this chap is "acting this way" is because, having been turned down three times by you, he thinks you aren't interested in him, and so has hurt. Even though the circumstances for your declining his invitations were, as you said, beyond your control, he might easily have thought that you were inventing reasons for not going out with him. After all, three turn-downs in a row might easily be a bit suspicious to anyone.

Why don't you call him up sometime and ask him, informally, to come over and see you some evening? Or write him a note and say briefly, but in a friendly way, that you were very disappointed to find you were tied up on the nights he asked you out, and that you'd like to see him again, so couldn't he come over to your house some evening. If you want to make it even more natural, invite a few other boys and girls, and tell him some of your gang are coming over and you'd like to have him, too. It seems to me this ought to do the trick, unless he's the type of boy who would harbor a grudge without giving a girl a chance.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

EVERYBODY HAS PET PEEVES

It seems as though everyone has a few pet peeves, some more than others. How about you? At a psychology forums some years ago, 507 of them were listed, believe it or could be.

Do you think you'll lose your mind if you drop a water faucet from dripping? Does the buzzing of a fly make you want to run out of the house? Do the tips of your nails when a friend keeps tapping and drumming for half an hour? And what can you do about it? Nothing, without hurting her feelings.

Perhaps a young member of your family says his knife and fork in a manner that is not according to Emily Post. You have probably suggested to that he shouldn't put his finger so far down on his fork that it almost touches the food, but that you might as well give up. Just nothing.

Even in these days when good manners prevail there are men who bite their cards down to size tridge table. What their wives mean is for them to do it with height, although she may feel like whamming Dad over the head.

Surveys at the forum showed that, from the age of 25 to 40, women are more touchy about pet peeves. From 40 to 60, they are likely to have twice as many, which goes to show that in general when we are most critical and intolerant.

There will always be irritating habits. Children who say over the phone, "You can't guess who this is!" women who give long accounts of their pains and aches; children who whine; smarties who show off; men who put cigarette ashes in saucers.

Play no mind if you want to ward off wrinkles and save money on the beauty budget.

BANCROFT

Red Cross Gives Year's Report, Elects Officers

BANCROFT — A report submitted by nurse-in-charge, Miss Sigrid Laine, to the annual meeting of the Bancroft Red Cross branch, indicated 1954 as the busiest year ever for the local Red Cross hospital. The meeting was held in the community hall on Tuesday evening with retiring president, R. C. Marston, in the chair.

Patients admitted numbered 1109, and there were 264 births during the year, this figure also constituting a record. Forty-two major and 228 minor operations were performed; 384 outpatients received treatment and 372 persons were X-rayed. 11 chest clinics were held.

EQUIPMENT RECEIVED

Outlining equipment made available by a provincial government grant, Miss Laine said the following items had already been received: surgical instruments, deep freeze, rubber boots, refrigeration units, bedside tables and lamps, a wheelchair and an incinerator. A c.o.d. standard amount of work had been done on the incinerator.

An additional incubator had been donated by the Leaside branch of the Red Cross. Fifteen student nurses at the Toronto Western Hospital had each spent four weeks of their training at the Bancroft hospital.

THANKS TENDERED

Concluding her report, Miss Laine extended her thanks to the Red Cross Women's Auxiliary for their care of hospital linen and to the Young People of the Gospel Hall for their weekly visits to patients. She also thanked Dr. and Mrs. Anderson, Dr. and Mrs. Robinson, Dr. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hattin, the Bancroft Chapter O.E.S. and Mrs. Wm. Woodcock for gifts at Christmas.

A financial statement, presented by the treasurer, Mrs. O. W. Anderson, showed that the largest item, power and light, accounted for $780. A balance of $800 on hand at the year end was offset by insurance and other liabilities.

1955 OFFICERS

A slate of proposed new officers, submitted by nomination committee chairman, John Hawkins, was adopted by the meeting and H. Petch becomes board president. Vice-president, Gordon Presque, Mrs. F. Hibbard, Norman Mitchell, John Hawkins, Mrs. W. L. Martin, R. G. Thomson, Mrs. Ernest Wallis; treasurer, Mrs. O. W. Anderson; secretary board, Messrs. W. L. Martin, Mike Burns, Dr. D. Rouse; board members, Mrs. R. Stringer, Mrs. Russell Mrs. C. N. Brown, Mrs. Thompson, Mr. S. Rowsell, Mrs. C. Rollins, Mrs. H. Fenty and Jack Russell.

To conclude the meeting, three films, illustrating the varied phases of Red Cross work, were shown.

FEDERAL TAX CUT

However, the provinces showed little immediate inclination to switch to direct tax collection instead of rents.

At Regina, Provincial Treasurer Gardiner said there is little chance of Saskatchewan adopting such a tax. At Victoria, Premier Bennett declined comment on the tax plan.

TAX CONFERENCE

They showed more enthusiasm for a new federal-provincial tax conference which Mr. St. Laurent said will be called later this year to map out tax policies for the time after the present agreements expire March 31, 1957.

Under the agreements, Ottawa pays about $325,000,000 annually in return for exclusive rights to corporation, personal and other direct taxation fields in the provinces. Mr. St. Laurent said provinces get more money from federal rents than they would under tax rates similar to those now prevailing in Quebec.

In an exchange of correspondence with Mr. Duplessis, tabled in the Commons, Mr. St. Laurent used the words "the government of Canada tends to propose" the tax cuts to parliament. However, a cabinet spokesman said it is a firm decision. The government would entertain no alternative proposal from Quebec unless it was exceptionally good.

EXEMPTION SCHEDULE

The Quebec tax is based on a schedule of exemptions about 50 per cent higher than those allowed by the federal government. If Mr. Duplessis adopts the lower federal exemptions, officials here say he still will get his estimated yield of about $25,000,000 or so a year and double taxation in the province would end.

However, if he continues his current tax formula, some Quebec income earners in the lower brackets will be paying 10 per cent less tax than local taxpayers in other provinces. But those in the higher income brackets, earning $6,000 a year or more, still would be subject to some double taxation.

The Quebec tax allows a basic exemption of $3,000 a year and the federal tax $2,000 for a married person without dependents. Ottawa allows a single person without dependents a basic exemption of $1,000; Quebec $1,500.

SAVING SMALL

If Mr. Duplessis does not change his existing formula, single persons earning between $1,000 and $1,500 a year would not pay any provincial tax and pay only 90 per cent of the federal tolls. The maximum saving would be about $8.10 a year.

A married person without dependents earning between $2,000 and $3,000 also would not pay the provincial tax and only 90 per cent of the federal charge. The maximum saving here would be about $17.

Married persons without dependents earning between $3,000 and $6,000 annually would not pay double tax; the 10-per-cent federal bill be equivalent to the 11-per-cent provincial levy. But those making $6,000 or more would pay double tax. For a married person without dependents earning $6,000 the double tax would be about $7; on $10,000 about $40.

NO LARGER CUT

Mr. St. Laurent said his government could not afford any larger cut than the 10 per cent, but he observed that Mr. Duplessis had estimated the provincial yield would amount to 10 per cent in federal collections.

It have also indicated that we could not meet the suggestion of the Quebec authorities and allow the transfer of their provincial income tax to be deducted from the federal tax unless we were prepared to accord a similar right to any other province," Mr. St. Laurent said in his letter to Mr. Duplessis tabled in the House.

"It is our view that whatever differences there may be in the tax laws adopted by the different provinces, the federal laws must be the same everywhere and must be such as to leave the federal government with the revenues needed to fulfil its national responsibilities."

PROPOSED SPLIT

Mr. Duplessis in his Nov. 1 letter to Mr. St. Laurent had proposed a split of the federal government's personal income tax yield—roughly estimated at about $285,000,000 in 1954—by allowing the provinces to collect and retain 10 per cent.

"About 10 per cent to the province and about 90 per cent to Ottawa is an extraordinarily reasonable concurrence, you will no doubt agree," Mr. Duplessis said in his letter.

The federal government had objected to Quebec's claim that under the Constitution the provinces had priority over Ottawa in the direct tax field. Mr. Duplessis agreed in his letter to remove from the provincial tax statute statements in the preamble dealing with this prior right.

He agreed also to make Quebec's tax on undistributed income of dividends consistent with federal legislation, by allowing the province only 45 per cent of the rates authorized by Ottawa.

Eisenhower Will Likely Bow To Demand to Run Again

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower at midterm is a changed man—a man of increased political awareness, with a firmer, more confident grip on the problems of world and international leadership which clutch at him unceasingly.

The idolized general who jumped successfully from the military into the political arena reaches the half-way point of his first term in the White House Thursday.

Behind him are two years of mingled advances and reverses both on the home front and in the field of foreign relations.

Ahead of him are two more years of guiding the United States through what the president calls our "age of greatest peril," two years of sparring with a Congress of the opposite hands and with Republicans tugging on some issues in cross directions.

Beyond that there is a possibility that Eisenhower will bow to Republican pressure, already heard and growing, to try for another term.

The president was non-committal when asked at a press conference last week about his plans for 1956. He told reporters he hopes he never becomes so self-centred that he fails to respond to a call to duty, but added that the individual himself has to decide for where his duty lies.

Probably his own wishes were the only factor Eisenhower would be packing up two years from now and hurrying off to his Pennsylvania farm.

BUDGET NOT BALANCED

Midway in his first term, Eisenhower claims some solid domestic accomplishments. But he also suffered some defeats. He cut spending for example, but couldn't balance the budget. He got tax revisions but not the power to lower tariffs more, a flexible price support farm program but no basic law changes.

Then there was the 1954 election. The Republicans lost control of Senate and House of Representatives. But its losses were far below normal for non-presidential elections.

In the area of diplomacy, this first Republican administration in 20 years has demonstrated that the political changeover meant shifts in shading and emphasis only, not a return to isolationism or abandonment of U. S. support for the Free World against the Communists.

The two years past by have seen an end to war in Korea, the defusing of powder kegs at Trieste, the Suez canal, Iran, Guatemala, the building of a Southeast Asia defence alliance and a start on one for the Middle East—Western Europe has survived internal shocks arising largely within France and gone on to beckon a sovereign, rearmed Germany into the anti-Communist union.

There also were significant setbacks:

Failure to set up the Southeast Asia alliance in time to prevent the partition of Indochina; a rise of neutrality in India and South Asia; a growth of anti-American sentiment in Japan and Korea; a lessening of American influence in Saudi-Arabia.

In spite of ups and downs, Eisenhower's goals have remained unchanged—peace for a troubled world and a "dynamic, progressive, forward-looking" program to lead the U. S. along a "middle road" to greater strength and prosperity.

Only Traffic Interchange Of Kind in World Opened

By A. F. MAHAN JR.

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit opens today the first three links in what its engineers describe as the only traffic interchange of its kind in the world.

It is no up-and-around cloverleaf. It is a 13-bridge network that covers the equivalent of 11 city blocks.

Direction, say from north to west, can be changed merely by moving into the lefthand (or third) lane and veering in a gentle curve. There are no stop signs or lights. The speed limit is 35 miles an hour.

The interchange, which will cost $15,300,000 when completed later this year, is at the junction of the north-south John C. Lodge expressway and the east-west Edsel Ford expressway. It was started in 1951.

The Lodge, to cost $75,000,000, is due to be completed in 1956; the $120,000,000 Ford in 1957. Lodge, from a downtown loop running by Detroit's rising multi-million-dollar civic centre, will join James Couzens high-rise on the northwest below the widely-publicized Northland shopping centre. Ford will run from the western city limits across Detroit, then veer northeast through Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe.

WIDE LANES

The expressways have six lanes, 12 feet wide, with centre islands averaging about 14 feet in width.

"This type of interchange is the exact opposite of the cloverleaf so widely used in the east," said Alfred Berarducci, city expressway engineer.

"Knowing that the cloverleaf design cannot handle the heavy volumes of traffic our expressways will handle we had to invent a new type.

"This directional type of interchange is simplicity itself. The motorists haven't got to learn anything new or fret over a complicated set of directions.

"As a driver approaches the interchange he merely stays to the left to turn left or to the right to turn right. There will be no stops to interfere with through traffic anywhere."

Wherever traffic merges there are four one-way lanes for more than 100 yards, the incoming one gradually blending into the others. While the expressways are marked for three lanes of traffic, the lines are so widely divided that if they were disregarded four cars would fit comfortably on the roadway at all points.

The first short stretch of Lodge was opened Oct. 2, 1950. Now up to 4,000 cars an hour (65 2-3 a minute) use the 3½ miles already open. The first Ford stretch was opened July 9, 1951, and up to 4,300 cars an hour use its 4¼ miles.

False Teeth Often Have a Certain Odor!

Soak your plates in Polident daily to avoid "Denture Breath"

Polident is the specially designed cleanser that keeps false teeth sweet-breath—clean and fresh always. Follow these simple rules.

1. Never use a brush on them! Your dental plates are much softer than natural teeth. Brushing wears down filling ridges so they get loose.
2. Never use soap or toothpaste! They can leave film which collects bacteria and food particles, a major cause of offender "Denture Breath."
3. Use a soaking-type cleanser made for false teeth only . . . Polident! Polident is the denture cleanser recommended by more dentists than any other. No brushing, no handling of soapy plates that can slip and break. Polident gets where a brush can't reach. Best of all, Polident always leaves false teeth odor-free. Get the world's largest selling denture cleanser, Polident, at your drug counter.

NO "JIGGS" WITH THESE "MAGGIES"

The Brockville Maroodomas, who have been more or less a thorn in the side of the Memos all season, are the guests of the Memos in Memorial Arena tonight. And Mitch Stanten's crew will be a-running for victory just as sure as Stan's name is a-harris. They have won three of their last four starts and have crept to within five points of Boucher's boys. A win tonight will see them nudging our side with a-whispered "get-ready-to-move-over-bub" accompaniment.

And they are sure of their point score now since the OHA kicked out the Whitby Wrens' profest which charged the Maggies with using a player whose name was not on the original line-up. Sech gotta'end

And speaking of the OHA, Bill Hanley, its genial business manager, informs us that Manager Art Casterton of the Kingston Goodyears, who gallantly, but foolishly, became embroiled in fisticuffs in that recent Memos-Goodies brawl down Kingston way was tabbed with an automatic ten-dollar fine and a warning that if he erred again "Papa will spank."

The ole Princess Street java king (stir hard, we've lots of cups, but little sugar) regretted his action (three boys on the beak is enough for anyone to regret sticking out the probiscus) and will be a good boy in future, so he says.

To get back to hockey, the Memos have another "must" in front of them tonight. A win will shoot them into a two-way tie with the Whitby Wrens. Cornwall can spread a big jog-kid head of two points with a win over Clinton in the American arena. Wednesday night the Memos are guests of three pesky Petes up in Pembroville.

OLDTIMERS AT KINGSTON

Remember the thriller the National Hockey League "Oldtimers" staged here last winter, when the grey-thatched, balding heroes of yesteryear's hockey treated a near-capacity crowd of disinterested spectators and grinning oldsters to an exhibition of stick-handling and other hockey calisthenics such as have never been seen since the balmy days of the late Bill Green, Daw Whalen, Pat Boland and their likes?

LEAGUE MOVE UP

Gus Marker and Chuck Conacher, if memory is not at fault, wove a dizzy skating pattern that had the crowd goggle-eyed, with the speedy Gus racking up something like three or four goals, and La Conacher's blazing shot ripping splinters off the backboards.

The Oldtimers, contrary to public belief at the time, did not hang up their gear following the sudden passing of one of their starriest members, Lionel Conacher, who died while playing softball in Ottawa.

Instead they decided to carry on their winter-time activities of playing hockey in various centres of the province for one specific reason—to aid the crippled kiddies of Ontario. They do not collect one cent from the "OHA." They pay their own expenses, travelling and otherwise. About the only recompense they get is the thrill of action again and the opportunity to renew friendships made when they centred the National Hockey League spotlight years ago.

The "Oldtimers" will play one of their rare seasonal games in Kingston Community Centre on Saturday, January 29th. The Oldtimers Association president, Lorne Duguid, has promised a galaxy of silver-topped stars in the first visit of the never-to-be-forgotten Rodenites. Some of the fleetest of the old boys will attempt to break the existing "circling the surface" speed record.

They might even induce, as Belleville did a year ago, that former fiery arbiter of the lectures, one Mickey Rodden, to remove the barnacles from his skates and act in an officiating capacity.

Mr. Rodden did a fine job up here, despite the fact that three consecutive glaring offsides missed his eagle eye. He did not see them, and the error is excusable, for friend Mickey was trapped over the boards, back to the play, with a finger warging under the nose of a bench player. They were in a heated argument as to what happened in one of those games when Michael and the late Lew E. Marsh were the Damon and Pythias of the sweater-and-whistle brigade of their officiating era.

("Lisee, you bum," sputed an irate lady fan to Marsh during a game in the north country, "if you were my husband I'd give you poison."

"Madam," replied the irrepressible Lou, "if I were your husband I would take it.") •

Belleville fans should not miss this epic of hockey. The former greats belong to an organization the membership of which cannot expand, at least with those of their own era. They call back the curtain of hockey time, and bring to moderns an outstanding sample of what professional hockey was like "in the good old days," when guts, stamina and endurance were the prime requisites of a National Hockey League player. The date again, January 29th, down Kingston way.

TRENT VALLEY

Four teams of the Trent Valley Hockey League tangle in a double-header at the Arena tomorrow night. In the first game Bill Gault's Belleville Juniors hook up with the Trenton town team, with the Anderson-Williams crew from Or Point entering the strong Trenton ECAF club.

The Flyers, nothing daunted by the Point Anne unbeaten untied record, will go all out to map the string, even if they are without the services of defenceman Frank Boucher, who has an important appointment in Peterborough. If should be one of the tidiest games of the season.

And not far short will be the ice duel between the city Juniors and Trenton. The youngsters tossed a cool-awful scare into Point Anne last week and are rightly becoming one of the better teams in the loop.

Trenton has a hard-fighting, fast skating crew, too, many of the players being those who starred with the now defunct Wellington Dukes. The twin bill should be well worth the price of admission.

Five Points In 3 Games Increases Standing Position; Habs Hold Five of First Six

MONTREAL (CP)—A gentleman from Detroit showed his form last week that has kept him flirting with hockey immortality for several years now.

Gordie Howe accounted for a major portion of the scoring punch that moved Detroit Red Wings Sunday night atop the National Hockey League standings, two points ahead of the sadly-lagging Montreal Canadiens.

His five points in three games that the Red Wings played—and won—was matched only by another veteran of the hockey world, Ted Kennedy of Toronto Maple Leafs. Howe's two goals and three assists moved him from ninth to second—was matched only by anplace in the individual standings a week ago—and is the fourth with Montreal's Bert Olmstead.

TO 8TH SPOT

Teeder Kennedy's five assists were enough to move him from 13th spot up to eighth-place deadlock with Chicago's Bronco Horvath.

The combined performance of Howe and Detroit were a strong threat to Montreal's domination of the circuit. Although the Habs still hold five of the first six places in the standings, their showing last week was not designed to win gold medals.

They managed to lose both their games and were outscored 10-3 by their opposition. The "Big-Five" of Montreal's scoring—Bernie Geoffrion, Olmstead, Maurice Richard, Olmstead and Ken Mosdell in that order—garnered but seven points among them.

Although Montreal played the least number of games, they had the worst team showing during the week. Even the lowly Chicago Black Hawks salvaged a tie out of three games.

LEADS MOVE UP

The third-place Toronto Maple Leafs came out second best last week. With two wins and a tie they moved to within six points of Montreal. Boston Bruins remained in fourth position, 11 points back of Toronto and six ahead of New York Rangers. The Hawks are last with only eight wins and nine ties in 43 games.

In the individual showings, Boom Boom Geoffrion added an assist to his pace-setting 27 goals and 22 assists for a total of 50 points three ahead of Beliveau, who has 26 goals and 21 assists for 47.

Rocket Richard copped himself two goals and an assist during the week for a 23-18—41 record. Howe and Olmstead each have 36 points. Olmstead's total included a league-leading 22 assists.

LUMLEY LEADS GOALIES

Ken Mosdell is three points behind them and one ahead of Toronto's Sid Smith.

Toronto's Harry Lumley still leads the goal-tending aggregate. He has allowed only 73 goals in 43 games for a 1.69-average, well ahead of Terry Sawchuk of the Red Wings, who had a 1.91 average.

Richard is the league badman, with 88 minutes in the penalty box.

REMEMBER WHEN

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Grover Cleveland Alexander, one of the great righthanders of all time, was added to baseball's hall of fame 17 years ago today. He did all his pitching in the National League for Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis between 1911 and 1930, and was the league's champion pitcher with the Phillies in 1915.

Jackie Says 'This Is It'

BOSTON (AP)—Jackie Robinson said Monday the 1955 season will be his last in baseball if he is bothered by injuries as much as he was last season when he missed many games.

He said he has no managerial ambitions, that he has a commitment with a business firm which will make an announcement at the proper time.

Robinson also likes his own club, Brooklyn Dodgers, to beat the world-champion New York Giants for the National League pennant, "if Campanella (catcher Roy Campanella) is right, and Campy now says he has control of his fingers and is ready to go."

Last season Campanella had a bad hand and his potent bat was almost idle as the Dodgers were beaten for the flag by the Giants.

Sugar Ray, Tiger Ready to Go

CHICAGO (AP) —Sugar Ray Robinson and Ralph (Tiger) Jones were found in excellent condition Monday at a pre-fight medical examination at the state athletic commission office. They meet in a scheduled 10-rounder at Chicago Stadium Wednesday night.

The fight, to be televised (CBS) starting at 10 p.m. EST, will be Robinson's second in two weeks in a comeback attempt to regain the middleweight title. He scored a six-round knockout over Joe Rindone in a non-televised bout at Detroit Jan. 5.

Jones, 26, is eight years younger than the former welterweight and middleweight titleholder. He won two fights and lost five in 1954 and has an overall record of 32 victories in 47 bouts.

Robinson announced his retirement from the ring not long after losing light-heavyweight title bout with Joey Maxim in June, 1952, at New York.

Ottawa Forms Senior League

OTTAWA (CP)—Senior hockey returns to Ottawa this week with a newly-formed four-team league which will make its bid in Allan Cup competition.

Cecil Duncan, secretary of the Ottawa District Hockey Association, announced Monday the first meeting Monday night that four teams will form a city senior hockey league and will start play Saturday night.

It will be the first time since the 1947-48 season a city senior team has competed in the Allan Cup. That year the Ottawa RCAF team won the Olympic hockey championship.

Members of the new RCAF Flyers, RCOC Militia, St. Patrick's College and Ottawa Y.M.C.A. team, Lasalle, was admitted and will play next season.

The league was formed to fill the gap left when Ottawa Senators dropped out of the senior hockey League last month. Its champion will enter the Allan Cup senior hockey finals against the Maritime representative.

AWARD TO ROCKY

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano Monday was named "the person who contributed the most to boxing in 1954," by the Chicago Boxing Writers and Broadcasters' Association. Rocky also was the group's choice in 1951. He becomes the first to be chosen twice for the Jacky McFarland Memorial Trophy.

Trent Valley Hockey League

MARMORA — A fast game of hockey in the northern section of the Trent Valley League was that witnessed at the Marmora Arena on Friday evening when honors went to Campbellford, the visitors, after fluctuating fortunes, by 7 goals to 6.

Nelson was back in goal for the visitors and shut out some good sniping in the first period as his team then led by goals scored by Louth, unassisted, and by Jeffs on assists from Payne and Free.

Free scored unassisted early in the second and then Marmora put on the pressure. Jones got the first two on assists from Trumble and Paranuik. Darrah netted from Trumble's assist and Trumble got two, one on Leonard's pass and the other unassisted as the period ended.

Stevenson opened the scoring in the third on Payne's assist and then Trumble got Marmora's last goal unassisted. The lead did not last as Free got the winning goal on assists from Stevenson and Payne and Wilson and Fields had scored, unassisted to tie the score again.

It was the largest crowd of the season, numbering over 450. Inclined to roughness at times the game was kept under control by the referees.

Campbellford — Goal, Nelson; defence, Louth, Gould; centre, Stevenson; wings, Jeffs, Payne, alternates, Lee, Doolher, Fields, Blake, Herrington, Wilson.

Marmora — Goal, Kilian; defence, Gray, Nayter; centre, Darrah; wings, Leonard, Trumble; alternates, Jones, Paranuik, Garley, Sweet, Maloney, Brown, and Free.

Referees— R. Scriven, Hastings; H. R. Hunter, Havelock.

Earl Walls Outpoints Slade In So-And-So Ten-Rounder

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian heavyweight champion Earl Walls of Toronto looked ahead today to February title bout with James J. Parker after outpointing "Jack-in-the-box" Jimmy Slade of the Bronx in a 10-rounder at Maple Leaf Gardens Monday night.

"Walls' next man will be Parker. We hope to have it in February," said promoter Frank Tunney Monday night after the 26-year-old titleholder took a unanimous decision over Slade.

"No date has been set yet, but Parker's contract has been in for some time," Tunney said.

Walls and Parker are to have fought here Jan. 11 but the match was postponed when Parker, of Barrie, Ont., came down with intestinal flu.

DANCING BUZZ-SAW

Slade, who man-ger Al Joyner said "wasn't in shape" Monday night, was a hurried replacement. He hurried Monday night, too. The 26-year-old New York Negro was a dancing buzz-saw, never giving Walls a chance to unreel the knockout punch he packs in either fist.

Walls won because he was the aggressor. His victory avenged a 10-round loss to Slade in 1951 and solidified his Ring magazine rating as fifth ranking contender in the middle title.

Judge Jackie Johnson voted for Walls, also by a 7-3-1, Judge Fred Norbert had it 49 to 46½ for Walls and referee Sam Hoffman scored it 50 to 44½ for Walls.

Some in the crowd of 6,400 which brought a gate of $28,296, seemed disappointed with the official decision.

Walls, at 197½ outweighed Slade by 18½ pounds and held a big reach and height advantage.

When the Canadian champion found find his elusive target he connected with some good shots, but each time failed to follow up. In the fourth round Walls caught his opponent with a roundhouse right that drove the New Yorker to the ropes but Slade recovered quickly, in the ninth Slade was forced to retire after being hammered with two solid rights to the face and a left to the body.

Walls went over the left eye in the seventh. It was reopened in the 10th and required four stitches.

BOSTON (AP) — Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler of New York tuned up for his Feb. 25 title defence against Teddy (Red Top) Davis by knocking out Lulu Perez in 1:34 of the fourth round of a scheduled six-title 10-rounder Monday night in Boston Garden.

Saddler, who came in a pound over the contract weight, scaled 131 to 127½ for the 29-year-old from Brooklyn. It was the 36th knockout

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

The most remarkable player in the National Hockey League, in many respects, is tall Jackie (Ja Ja) Rollins, born in Vanguard, Sask., netminder for the lowly Chicago Black Hawks who finished last in 1953-54 and were flirting with last place in the current race when these lines were written.

Rollins is remarkable because, with a tall-end team, he was last Spring voted winner of the Hart Trophy, most coveted award in the major league, designating it as the player most useful to his club. In the 31-year history of the trophy, this happened only once before. As the Hawks finished last in the race, the voters possibly misread their ballots, they might have fallen right out of the League. It's possible.

When Rollins won the trophy, one cynical observer remarked that he should have some sort of award for keeping with his life. Rollins played in 66 of his club's 70 games last season. He was scored on 213 times, or at the average of 3.1 goals per game. But two others called in to replace Rollins when he was ill had 29 goals rolled up against them in four games, over 7 per game, indicating by comparison what a superb Jog Rollins was doing.

The remark about escaping with his life is not entirely in jest. The 6'11 Rollins is a target for every shot. Not all of the shots he stopped? It would be most conservative to say that, in the course of the season, he was bombarded by not less than 1,000 shots from the sticks of hockey's finest artists.

Besides being a great goaler, Rollins is something of a philosopher. After winning the trophy, he told a sports writer: "When you're with a team like Chicago, every game is a tough one. But, maybe it's a good thing. When you've got all that work, you keep warm and loose. Some goalies get beat on the easy shots because they're cold and all tightened up. Maybe a fellow can look better with a weak club than with a strong one. If he's any good at all, he stands out."

So Rollins stood out, like a lighthouse. He became the first goalie to win since New York's Chuck Rayner in 1950, and the first winner from a last-place club since defenceman Tommy (Cowboy) Anderson, a forward, of the 1952 New York Americans.

If You Like Winter Fishing You Can't Beat Lake Simcoe

TORONTO.— Winter fishing is under way on Lake Simcoe, 45 miles from Toronto, now the nearest of the resorts to the city and much of this part of Ontario. It ranks in importance next season with the Grey Cup and the Queen's Plate. Lake Simcoe's perennial smelts, its winter fishing important because it isn't easy to find the fishing spots with an hour's drive of a million people. Nor are there many places so near where the fishing equipment is so simple or where it isn't necessary to buy one of five-cent packages of hooks.

Of course you don't fish for perch, or sailfish or muskinonge or speckled trout at this time of year on Lake Simcoe. The prize may be the herring or whitefish and the occasional lake trout. But the pleasure of fishing provides compensations.

Experienced ice fishermen will contend that there's nothing to compare with the translucent green of Lake Simcoe's waters in the semi-gloom of the flish hut. The hut is tiny but large enough for two people. It is heated by tropical temperatures with a diminutive stove that burns two weeks of smoke, drying socks, perhaps and occasionally the smell of fish.

To the inexperienced, Simcoe fishing may seem somewhat dull. It isn't. It provides an unforgettable week-end for thousands every year. Here's what usually happens. Friday night, a party heads for the lake from Toronto, Hamilton, Oshawa or some other point within motoring distance.

Arrangements for accommodation have been made in advance. It is possible, however, sometimes to just drive in to Sutton, Jackson's Point, Pefferlaw or other communities in the lake area and obtain last-minute accommodation. There are many operators around the lake who have the huts, bait, tackle for rent, usually at about $5 per person per day. Operators usually know the best locations on the ice-covered lake for the huts. Some huts are on runners and are pulled into position like a sleigh. Others are towed by some of the most amazing vehicular contraptions ever devised. Still other huts are "skated out" to good locations, perhaps a mile or five miles from shore.

EVERYTHING ARRANGED

Early Saturday, the fishing parties are escorted to "location" and tucked away in the little huts, outfitted with simple hand-lines and baskets of small minnows. The minnows have been previously collected by the operator who is allowed 40 pounds of minnows by government regulation. In some cases the fishing hole has been "chummed" or baited in advance to assure that fish probably will be waiting for more food.

The fire is lighted in the tiny stove, some of which are made from old oil cans while others may be more elaborate. The hut door is closed and the window usually covered with a curtain of some kind. What light there is in the hut comes from the sparkling clear green water seen through the fishing hole which has been chopped in the ice. The light, surprisingly, is considerable — certainly ample for the fisherman to see what he is doing.

He holds the handline hooks, lowers them anywhere from 20 to 40 feet and waits. Some fishermen make "tip-ups" which move to signal nibble-far below. When the whitefish or herring bites, it must be hauled up carefully hand over hand or it may be lost. Once caught, the fish is tossed outside the hut for "quick freeze" unless it is to be kept for a fish-fry lunch in the shack.

Occasionally a lake trout may snap at the bait—if the fisherman has attached a wobbler, spoon or herring bait to the attraction to the line.

Landing a full-sized lake trout through a small rectangular fishing hole, in the confined quarters of a fish hut, obviously is a tumultuous procedure enlivened by shouts of encouragement from friends in neighboring huts.

NO SPEARING, PLEASE

Over it all, the sharp eyes of the conservation officers of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests keep watch. There was a time when spearing was permitted on Lake Simcoe, but no more. Also, some people used "maggers" or "snigers," cruel wire contraptions to which a dozen hooks had been welded, three tore more fish than were landed. The officers seize these as fast as they're found. Most sportsmen support the ban on such fishing methods.

Aside from these regulations, the fisherman has little to worry about. There are no limits on whitefish or herring caught in the winter fishing, and the table attractions of both are unexcelled.

Lake Simcoe has a summer population of perhaps 100,000 people around its shores. It has been fished, winter and summer, down through the provincial's history. Through careful supervision, planning, management and restocking by the Department of Lands and Forests, it has produced fish in greater abundance than perhaps any other lake on the continent so close to a large centre of population. On the average winter week-end there will be anywhere up to 5,000 fish huts scattered over Lake Simcoe's icy expanse.

It is a fine example of what good government supervision over a recreational area can do. There's nothing like it anywhere, its devotees contend.

Pro Golf Tourney Gets Under Way

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP)—Leading golf professionals of the United States and Canada begin play here today in the fourth annual international match-play for the John Jay Hopkins Trophy team matches—held in this country for the first time.

Singles matches over the La Jolla country club course start at noon (3 p.m. EST). The six two-man tee off in this order: (U.S. representatives listed first):

U.S. DEFENDING

The United States is defending champion, having won in all three previous matches.

Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, and Gordon Brydson, Toronto, were expected to meet today's play, but both will replace one of the above on each team for Wednesday's three ball foursomes. The Wednesday drawings will be made at the end of today's play.

In addition to the trophy, which had been the only performance award, each player gets $750 and travelling and living expenses. A win, loss, or draw, the 14 pros will try for cash bonuses.

Anyone breaking Gene Littler's course record of 8-under-par 63 will get $500, as will anyone scoring a hole in one.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Let's consider the plight of New York Rangers.

As of this writing, the Rangers had won two of their last 23 starts in the National Hockey League. Over the season, the team has won 10, lost 23 and tied 12, with no relief in sight.

It has been so long since the Rangers had a really good hockey team that a new generation of fans has come up here under the impression that the team is maintained only to enable them to see the good teams in action. That isn't far from the truth, though it must be a fairly expensive hobby for the Madison Square Garden corporation, which foots the bill.

It has been reported that the garden needs a crowd of 10,000 to break even, and that figure has been reached or exceeded but rarely in recent seasons. A new 7 p.m. starting time for Sunday games promises to jack up the attendance temporarily, but only a winning club can ever again make this the red-hot hockey town it once was.

INCONGRUOUS SITUATION

It seems somewhat incongruous that the two largest cities in the National league (Chicago Black Hawks are worse even than the Rangers) should be permitted to strangle the bottom year after year while Detroit, Montreal and Toronto keep a firm hold on the great ones.

Wouldn't it make more sezzle, we asked, to supply the Rangers and Hawks with sufficient talent to get them up in the race, or at least to keep them from being the complete patsies they are now? Wouldn't the entire league benefit from a few sellout crowds here and Chicago?

The answer, we learn, is no. The "have" clubs do not care what size crowds they play to away from home, because they do not share in the receipts, as is customary in every other professional sport that we know of. The hockey teams live on what they take in at their own box office, and so their only interest is in keeping the home fans steamed up with a winning club.

What are the chances, then, of the New York and Chicago clubs buying themselves a few boys who can shoot goals and win something better than an occasional tie?

KEEPING YOUNG STARS

Almost none whatever, we are told. Detroit, Toronto and Montreal virtually have a corner on the market in promising young "amateur" leagues, and they do not let any boy get away whom they have reason to believe will prove valuable.

"The time is long past when money will buy a real star," said an official of the Rangers. "The condition is similar in that in baseball. When we first entered the league we were able to buy outstanding players. The kind of money we offered then looked big to the Canadians, but it doesn't any more. What we paid for a whole team in those days wouldn't buy one good youngster now."

RED GRANGE QUITS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Harold (Red) Grange, the Galloping Ghost of football fame, quit Monday as a trustee of the University of Illinois. In a letter of resignation, Grange, 51, said he had to do this reason-

PICKED THE WRONG TIME TO BLINK

Perhaps it was the glare of the red light that made Boston goalie, John Henderson, right, blink in bewilderment, for Maple Leafs' Sid Smith, left, slipped the puck past Long John for the second goal in Leafs' 4-2 victory over the Bruins. Top scorer for the third-place Torontonians, Smith registered his 21st and 22nd goals of the season. (Central Press Canadian).

Rocky Will Test Sore Nose In Private 'Go'

NEW YORK (AP)—Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano will test his sore nose in a private workout before Feb. 15, manager Al Weill said Monday as he reported receiving another whopping offer for a title fight.

Weill said he received a wire from San Francisco promoter Jim Murray offering the champion $350,000 to meet England's Don Cockell in San Francisco in April or May in a benefit show.

TO TEST NOSE

"We'll test his (Rocky's) nose in a private two or three-round workout," said Weill. "I'll make a definite announcement by Feb. 15 on whether he can fight."

Marciano's nose was split in his eight-round knockout of Ezzard Charles on Sept. 17.

In recent weeks Marciano has had a $400,000 bid to defend against light - heavyweight king Archie Moore, a $250,000 offer to fight Cuba's Nino Valdes in Cuba, and a $300,000 offer to meet Cockell in London.

At Denver, fight promoter Jack Kanner said Monday an offer, guaranteeing a purse of at least $350,000 has been made for a fight between Marciano and Archie Moore. Kanner said the plans are for an outdoor fight this summer.

May Install Pari-Mutuel

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A pari-mutuel betting system may be set up at the annual Western Fair here in an effort to increase interest in afternoon grandstand shows.

Walter Jackson, general manager, told an annual directors' meeting Monday that before racing has always been the main afternoon grandstand attraction, during this week every fall, but added:

"Maybe we are kidding ourselves on the racing program. There has been nothing to indicate the public is interested much except when there is mutuel betting."

Directors decided to investigate legal and financial arrangements necessary for installing the system.

HIALEAH OPENS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hialeah Park opened Monday for 40 days of racing and a crowd of 24,453 saw Blessbull win the $21,700 inaugural Handicap in track record time. Blessbull, owned by Frances Sims of Brockton, Mass., skipped the six furlongs in 1:09 2-5 to win by five lengths and pick up $16,125 for his owner.

Hasty House Farm's Hasty Road was a late scratch because of the bulky field. Circlo M. Farm's Bronze finished second and E. D. Gottlieb's Do Report took the show. Blessbull paid $25.20, $17.40 and $13.70.

Glover, Olson Still Tops In American

NEW YORK (AP)—Rookie Jim Anderson of Springfield Indians is making a belated move to reach the top in the American Hockey League scoring race.

Freddie Glover and Eddie Olson of Cleveland Barons still held the No. 1 and 2 positions for individual scoring honors today with 55 and 54 points respectively. But Anderson is tied with Zellio Toppazzini of Providence Reds for third spot with 47 points.

The 24-year-old lefwinger is the league's leading goalgetter with 28 and also has 19 assists. Toppazzini has the most assists, 36.

Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh Hornets continues to lead the goalkeepers with an average of 2.74 on 197 goals allowed in 29 games.

Fight Valdes 'Winner Take All' Say Marciano

BOSTON (AP) — Apparently getting nowhere with his challenges to heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, light heavyweight king Archie Moore switched Monday to Nino Valdes, the No. 1 heavyweight contender from Cuba.

"I'll fight Valdes winner-take-all," said Archie. "If he doesn't want that, I'll let him take the major share of the purse. I beat him in St. Louis in 1953 and if he thinks he's entitled to a title shot, how about me? I beat him, didn't I?"

Moore was here to referee at a fight card for the benefit of the widow of Ed Sanders, the Olympic heavyweight champion who died after being knocked out here Dec. 11.

Ask Government For Donation To Hall of Fame

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was asked in the Commons Monday night to make a contribution toward a proposed hockey hall of fame in Kingston.

W. J. Henderson (L—Kingston) said a hockey hall of fame would become as popular as the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y. Kingston is one claimant to bring the birthplace of ice hockey.

Mr. Henderson said $70,000 had been contributed already and $30,000 by the National Hockey League for a hall of fame. He suggested Finance Minister Harris, Works Minister Winters and Northern Affairs Minister Lesage, who is responsible for the tourist bureau, might help the cause.

Is Afraid Great Comedians Will Be Extinct in 10 Years

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Jan Murray expresses fear "the great comedians will be extinct 10 years from now" unless television gives them a better break on the studios in which they work.

Murray, a comic for most of his career but now master of ceremonies on CBS-TV's Talent Scouts, says the comedian needs to be close to his studio audience to give his best performance.

He contends that 90 per cent of TV studios are designed so the audience gets a poor view of the comedian, and he receives little response by which to judge his performance. No comedian, he declares, can be at his best without audience reaction.

One of the difficulties, Murray says, is that conventional stages are constructed to give room for platoons of dancers, and that the comedian makes his appearance he's in a big open space and often far away from the studio audience.

Jan considers himself fortunate to have a TV role in which he doesn't carry the whole load of the show and in which his humor is only incidental. He injects comedy into the quiz game but much of the appeal comes from the suspense as to whether the contestant will quit before he loses, and the humorous reaction of the contestant.

Contestants receive a dollar a second for every second they choose to remain on the air and suffer a stunt penalty for the wrong answer. If a contestant plays the wrong one of five choices on the penalty he's eliminated but keeps all money won to that point. If he isn't eliminated he can elect to stay on for additional winnings but if some pre-selected outside event tilts a knockout in a prize fight that may be in progress] happens first, he loses everything.

On the average, says Murray, 75 the men contestants who are most reluctant to quit while they're ahead and most likely to continue, in the hope of winning more, until they're eliminated without a cent at all.

"Surprisingly though," he adds, "we've only had two people stay on the entire half hour and they both were women."

Murray has been a headliner for years in night clubs, hotels and theatres and did several other radio and TV shows prior to taking over Dollar a Second.

The Thursday night soldier parade on ABC-TV reaches its second anniversary Jan. 20. The program, on which Arlene Francis is mistress of ceremonies, is sponsored by the army recruiting service and uses only service man talent. The March 3 show will come from the U. S. Military academy at West Point, N. Y., first full program ever to originate from there.

Big Four Opens Sept. 3; Sked Reduced

MONTREAL (CP)—The Big Four Football League, its schedule reduced to 12 from 14 games for each team, will launch its 1955 season Saturday, Sept. 3, with games in Hamilton and Ottawa. The schedule, adopted at the league's annual meeting during the weekend and released Monday, shows that in the opening games Toronto will play in Hamilton and Montreal in Ottawa.

Hamilton will play in Toronto and Ottawa in Montreal Labor Day, Sept. 5.

Gilliam Signs With Brooklyn

BROOKLYN (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers didn't win the National League pennant last year but it looked today as though they'll be first in the contract derby.

With the signing of second-baseman Jim Gilliam, Brooklyn now have 21 contracts in the safe with only two signatures left. They are first-baseman Gil Hodges and outfielder Carl Furillo. Neither is expected to cause any trouble.

Sport in Brief

GETS TRACK AWARD

VANCOUVER (CP)—Doug Kyle, long-distance star of the University of British Columbia, Monday night was named 1954-55 winner of the Fred Tees Memorial Trophy as the outstanding Canadian university track and field athlete.

The award, in memory of a former Amateur Athletic Union of Canada secretary, was announced by national track and field committee chairman Fred Rowell.

West May Support Big Four On NFL No-Raiding Policy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Indications are that the Big Four will receive support from the Western Interprovincial Football Union at annual meeting at Calgary this weekend on the eastern league's no-raiding policy with National Football League players.

Three of the five western teams already have termed the move a "good one" and Moe Lieberman, president of the Canadian champion Edmonton Eskimos, has said he will ask the WIFU meeting to press for an agreement with the NFL in honoring players rights and contracts.

At its annual meeting last weekend, the Big Four in one session decided to respect player options and contracts held by the NFL, but the next day left the door open for further consideration on demand from Toronto Argonauts, who claimed they already have signed eight players from the American professional loop.

TO MEET BELL

Lieberman and Eskimos will as WIFU commissioner G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg is again meet with NFL commissioner Bert Bell and arrange "some sort of fair and honorable agreement."

Last year, Halter and other Canadian officials met with Bell but arrived at nothing definite.

Dr. Beattie Martin, president of Saskatchewan Roughriders, also favored the no raiding pact with the NFL.

"We're all for that," he said. "It's about time it was done."

BOMBERS' COMMENT

An unidentified spokesman from Winnipeg Blue Bombers, meeting in absence of president Ralph Misener and vice-president Jim Russell, said:

"If a player is under contract, he should not be enticed to break it regardless of what sport it is. The players themselves should honor the contracts they sign. The Big Four move on the touchy subject is one in the right direction."

Only Winnipeg commented on the Big Four's suggestion for an East-West all-star game next May. Vancouver after the Grey Cup.

Bombers' spokesman said they favored the idea but "there were a lot of angles to be worked out."

AT THE BELLE—Deborah Kerr, as the Christian hostage, Lygia, now plays a vital part with Robert Taylor, in one of three love stories in Quo Vadis, M.G.M.'s epic Technicolor production, co-starring Leo Genn, Peter Ustinov, and cast of thousands. Quo Vadis is showing Today, Wednesday, Thursday, at the Belle Theatre, on the Wide Screen and first time at regular prices.

Wings, Habs Place 11 Players On Half-way All-Star Team

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

MONTREAL (CP)—Detroit, Toronto and Montreal swept 11 of the 12 berths on the National Hockey League's two all-star teams at the midway point in the season, the league announced today.

Three players from Montreal Canadiens, two from Toronto Maple Leafs and one from Detroit Red Wings were the choice for the first all-star team in votes cast by sports writers, broadcasters and telecasters in the six NHL cities.

For the second team, the writers picked two each from Montreal and Detroit, and a single man from Toronto and from Boston Bruins.

The league selectors will vote again at the end of the regular schedule. Players with the greatest number of points on the combined balloting will earn positions on the final all-star team, to be announced after the Stanley Cup playoffs.

THREE REPEATERS

Only three of last season's all-star team made this year's first-half edition: Harry Lumley, Doug Harvey and Red Kelly. Lumley and Harvey were almost unanimous choices, receiving a total of 69 and 80 points respectively out of a possible total of 90 points.

Most notable omissions in the voting were Detroit's Ted Lindsay and Gordie Howe, who made the first team for the previous five and four years respectively.

Blazing Bilts Move Into Top-Spot Tie

HAMILTON (CP) — Guelph Biltmores moved into a first-place tie with Toronto St. Michael's College Majors in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings by defeating Hamilton Cubs 3-0 Monday night.

Bill McCreary, Tom McCarthy and Ron Howell scored the Biltmores. McCarthy on an empty goal after Cub goalie Dennis Biggin had been pulled out by coach Ducky Skinner for a sixth forward in a last-minute Hamilton gamble.

Biltmore goalie Glen Ramsay stopped 21 shots, some in spectacular fashion, for his first shutout of the year.

Cubs, who have been winless in their last five games, were given a full period by the referee but Coach Skinner who announced the indefinite suspension of forward Gary Sharpe and defenceman Cary James for "different play and breaking training."

Will Ask For Park Expansion

TORONTO (CP) — City council will be asked soon to approve a $1,750,000 enlargement of Maple Leaf Stadium, home of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, to hold 42,260 spectators.

Civic sports committee decided Monday to ask board of control Jan. 28 for permission for the harbor commission to issue debentures for the cost. The debentures would be backed by city council.

HANG ON TO HEMUS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Manager Eddie Stanky of the St. Louis Cardinals says infielder Solly Hemus definitely is off the trading block.

AT THE CAPITOL — Hunte Hall and Leo Gorcey enjoy harem life very much with Joan Shawlee in their latest Bowery Boys comedy for Allied Artists, "Dowery to Burglars" at the Capitol Theatre and having its first Belleville showing. On the same program Abbott and Costello in the comedy riot, "Buck Privates Come Home."

Most Important Thing in World To Me is People Say Murphy

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — George Murphy, who's made a career and a career in front of the footlights or cameras, now finds himself behind a desk. He's happy about it, too.

The genial Irishman has taken over the MGM public relations post vacated by the death of Ida Koverman.

"I like it fine," he says. "To me, the most important thing in the world is people. That's why my job is—dealing with people. We have experts dealing in all kinds of matters; it seems to me that there's a real need for someone to deal in human relations."

Murphy will help greet the visiting firemen at the studio and act as intermediary between the actors and executives.

WON FOR KEENAN

"I think actors will discuss their problems more freely with me than talking to another actor," Murphy suggested. He told me of once going to Keenan Wynn's office over a problem of Keenan Wynn's. Wynn wanted to leave on a hunting and entertainment tour for servicemen, but a film assignment loomed.

Murphy took Wynn to Schary's office, explained the situation, got permission for the trip and walked out. Keenan complained that he had a whole list of arguments he wasn't able to use. Murphy wouldn't let him open his mouth.

Like Mrs. Keewrman, Murphy will also scout talent for the studio. But he still retains his contract as actor, writer, producer and director. He hasn't done a bit-ter two, but he is working on another song-and-dance-and-occasional acting role.

Laufman Leads Junior Race

TORONTO (CP)—Ken Laufman, Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts' rough scoring centre, increased his Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League scoring lead by two points during the past week.

Laufman picked up six assists during the week to go six points ahead of Stratford Indians' Mickey Roth. Laufman has scored 13 and aided on another 39. He leads the league in assists.

CIESLA WELL AHEAD

In the Junior A League, Hank Ciesla of St. Catharines TeePees is still scoring goals at a blistering pace and boosts a 10-goal lead in the scoring race over Dan Polanski of Barrie Flyers.

Ciesla has netted 36 goals in 32 games and has also added 30 assists for 66 points. Polinski's total of 56 points is made up of 15 goals and 38 assists.

WILL AID BOATS

MONTREAL (CP) — B G Ballard, vice-president of the National Research Council, Monday night described a new signalling device that will be practical for use on the smallest fishing boat. He said the "microwave lighthouse"—a radio transmitter which broadcasts a signal in all directions—will enable ships to enter harbor in the densest fog.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1955.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Interesting, challenging period. May have to show your mettle and just how you can stand up to things generally. Don't let a few extra jobs or responsibilities worry you; tackle them.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your innate fine traits and thorough dependability are the valuable teammates today. Take anxiety and push ahead in what ever is your urgent schedule. Think cheerfully, hopefully.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Some matters more important, more immediately urgent than others now; give up long enough to check which could come first and just what method and course should be taken.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Taurus' chart generally comparable to yours now. Use your keen intuition and sense of fairness in all matters, work, family, interests, business connections. You will advance for future gains.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Be progressive but not hide bound firmly to methods and traditions of proven worth. Fresh opportunities if you take up the challenge and don't worry about personal recognition.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Your special talents, capabilities fit in here and day can not only be smooth but profitable for immediate showing or long-pull interests. Be enthusiastic but not careless of health.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Weigh thoughtfully, appraise as best you can day's possibilities. You need not overdo nor force issues but it is essential to give proper attention to plans, activities needing it.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Just the time for you to test your efficiency and common sense for the truly fine advantages to be found now. But remember, be reasonable, not too forceful. Smile your way through.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Alert your usually good common sense and intuition for day's problems and tasks. None should be too difficult but they will need close attention and accuracy. Be hopeful.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — This could be one of your most important days this one whole, encouraging (though not entirely easy) month. Seldom do you folks discourage and that's the spirit to have. Gains available now.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Sensible speed and co-ordination of all productive faculties, talents rightly and smartly used can bring top results, new results you may not have hoped for. Keep eyes open.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — A challenge to your determination and know-how and the efforts exerted will bring satisfying achievement. Don't be swayed once you have decided what's best and right; keep ambitious.

YOU BORN TODAY have a bright nature with sound business sense, yet you are sometimes too skeptical, too doubtful of what you can really accomplish. Important that you keep expanding and improving, and that you heed wise advice of those capable of giving it. Without being easily led, we must be of elastic mind in order to change for the better and grasp honorable opportunities. Always keep in your true dependable, steady and ambitious nature. When we lead, we must make ourselves capable of leading. You can do well with the right faith.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was reading her new cyberry book called Mediterranean Madness, and she said to pop, My William, I guess good-bye to Sundays. Still, when I remember Maud Hem's French sister, in law and the contempt way she shrugged her eyebrows and shoulders when she talked, I imagine it would be terribly transported to a country where everybody carries on conversationally in that manner, she said.

There's no sense in travelling if you're allergic to forrin ways, pop said. My friend Glumwood is like that, he said, and ma said, Who?

Glumwood Ivy, pop said. He loves forrin places but he cant stand forriners. He feels the same way you do about France. He'd love to eat French fried potatoes on top of the Eiffel Tower, but he's heard that the French don't serve coffee with dinner, and Glumwood is a grate man for coffee. He has always wanted to go to Japan and climb the high kimonas, but he's read that the Japs sleeps with their heads on wooden blocks, and Glumwood is a grate pillow man. So he never goes anywhere except from his home to his office, pop said.

Oh well, I'm sure I could adjust myself, ma said. Do you really think we could afford it, William? she said, and pop said. No.

BLEEDER IMPROVED

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—Willie Cooke, the 21-year-old hemophiliac who has been bleeding for 12 days, was reported today to be "slightly improved" by doctors at Duke University Hospital here. The constant bleeding began when a rock, a radio repairman from Four Oaks, N. C., had a tooth pulled. A hemophiliac is a person whose blood won't clot normally.

ACADEMY OPENED

BOMBAY, India (AP)—Morarji Desai, chief minister of Bombay state, Sunday formally opened India's National Defence Academy, situated in a 6,500-acre plot at the foot of medieval Singhgadh fort at Khadakvasla, 11 miles from Poona.

SETS UP BASE

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Argentine Navy said Monday it had set up a scientific base in the Antarctic only about 800 miles from the South Pole, the farther south ever reached by any ship.

SAUCER MAN'S VIEW OF EARTH FROM 100 MILES UP

Made during the record flight of a U.S. Aerobee sounding rocket (left), launched at the White Sands, N.M., proving ground, the remarkable picture above shows what the earth's surface looks like from an altitude of 100 miles. From bottom to top, the distance covered by the image is about 800 miles, while the horizon measure was estimated at 1,700 miles. The dark area at lower left is the Rio Grande Valley; the streak at upper right is the Gulf of California and black section is the sky. The camera was mounted on a 39-foot-long rocket built for the U.S. navy and designed to carry a 10-lb. instrument load. (Central Press Canadian).

CANADIANS IN SUBMARINERS' SCHOOL

SAILS FOR AFRICA

The 8,000-ton training cruiser Quebec slips out of Halifax harbor to start a three-months cruise which will make her the first Canadian warship to circumnavigate Africa. With a few exceptions, the ports of call have never been visited by Canadian naval ships. (CP from National Defence).

Airview of the wreckage in which Robert Saunders was injured shows the left wing crumpled and the forepart of the fuselage demolished. He was thrown clear of the plane when it crash-landed on a farm field one mile from the London airport. (Central Press Canadian Photos.)

PIERRE STOLE THE SHOW

Burr's

W. A.

BURR'S — Mrs. Keith Blakely opened her home for the new year meeting of the W.A. Thursday afternoon. Mrs. E. Edwards was in charge, assisted in the devotional by Mrs. Ross Burr and Mrs. K. VanCott, "Jesus, the Hope of the World," is this year's topic.

The annual reports were presented by the secretary and treasurer, showing a year of progress in the association's work.

It was decided to have a pot-luck supper in connection with the congregational meeting.

It was unanimous that the penny-a-day bags and dime cards be used for fund raising. Flower dues and birthday dues were paid in. Mrs. C. Hough thanked the members for basket of fruit and cards at Christmas sent to Mr. and Mrs. B. Hough. Mrs. Ronald Burr gave a new year reading. Mrs. Arnold Foster, Mrs. C. Tice and Mrs. C. Brooks were guests. Mrs. K. VanCott invited the February 15th meeting to her home.

Mr. and Mrs. K. VanCott moved into their new apartment at the new year and were host and hostess at a new year's turkey dinner to a family party of 15, which included Mr. and Mrs. T. Riorden, Mr. T. VanCott, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wood and Joyce, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Edwards, Phillip and Sharon and Mr. G. Edwards.

Mrs. F. Osterhout accompanied Mr. and Mrs. W. Adams to Toronto, where they are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hubble, Weston. Mr. Hubble has been ill in hospital.

COW FALLS INTO WELL

Nearly everyone has had at least one fall during this icy period. Farmers have found it difficult to water cattle as cows are both timid and clumsy on ice. Due to icy conditions a neighbor's pure bred cow fell into a deep well. A tractor failing to haul her out Trudeau's were called, and their truck and lift, succeeded in hauling her out. A veterinarian administered penicillin. She walked into the stable without aid and ate her supper with relish, apparently not too shaken by the experience, and quite unaware of all the neighborhood excitement she had caused. Glad the story ended happily, not all falls do.

This committee of three has been assigned to investigate the cause of the plane crash that caused the death of Robert Saunders. The plane, operated by the Ontario Hydro, carried dozens of officials thousands of miles without mishap. It had run into a freak storm which depositied nearly a foot of ice over the body and wings, forcing it to the ground. Left to right: Inspector H. W. Finkle, chairman of the enquiry; Inspector Arthur Empsey, and L. G. Tharratt, who was in the control tower of London airport at the time of the crash.

The Sunday services at Crofton and Bowerman's were cancelled on account of the icy roads.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Burr, Carrie Ann and Mr. Alan Werden, Elyria, were Thursday dinner guests of Mrs. E. Anderson, in Belleville. The occasion marking the birthday of Mrs. Burr. A travelogue, "Portrait of Paris," was much enjoyed in the evening.

Congratulations to Mr. Philip Squire, who was one in the Junior Farmers' quartet which won first place in Ontario in the competition recently held in Toronto. It was a pleasure to hear this quartet sing over the local CJBQ radio on Thursday noon-hour broadcast, also the Northumberland trio.

Mr. Alan Werden, Elyria, was Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. S. Werden when they entertained at a family dinner party, noting the birthdays of their daughters, Mrs. Ken Wood and Mrs. Marmon Montgomery. Alan is a guest this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Burr.

Winter bird guests have been downy woodpeckers, white-breasted nuthatches, bluejays, and a large flock of snow birds.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Osterhout were recent supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. K. VanCott.

Mrs. McKee, of Belleville, is assisting in the care of Mrs. F. Burkitt at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Harns. Recent guests at the same home were Mr. and Mrs. Milton Chambers, Amerold, Sask., and Mr. and Mrs. W. Burkitt, of Mountain View.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Harns were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Cochrane, Peterborough.

CROSBY RECUPERATING

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Bing Crosby, who has been suffering from a kidney ailment, is in hospital whom his general condition Monday night was reported "very good." Last weekend while his annual golf tournament was in progress at Pebble Beach in northern California, the actor-crooner had to miss most of the affair, being confined at his home there because of the recurrent trouble.

CHINESE SHIP BOMBED BY REDS

Smoke mushrooms skyward from a Chinese Nationalist freighter after it was bombed by Communist planes off the coast of the Tachen Islands. Reports from Taipeh said that it was the heaviest raid by Chinese Communist planes so far in the vest pocket war between Formosa and the Chinese Red mainland. (Central Press Canadian).

DOWN THE DRAIN!

BALTIMORE (AP)—As much as 2,000,000 gallons of water is leaking out of the Baltimore water system every day but nothing can be done about it until about March, 1956, says the city's chief water engineer. The water is being lost through a series of leaks caused by contraction of the joints in a large tunnel carrying water to about half the city. Because the tunnel handles so much of the city's supply, it cannot be shut down for repairs until other major installations are completed.

Settlement Hopes In Ford Strike Reported Waning

TORONTO (CP)—The Ford of Canada strike entered a record 101st day today, coupled with suggestions that optimism which had marked company-union negotiations appeared to have waned. Contract talks were to continue, however.

After a session Monday night Emil Mazey, international secretary-treasurer of the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL), said progress in the talks was not continuing. He did not elaborate.

This conflicted with earlier statements Monday by Mr. Mazey and T. J. Emmert, Ford of Canada executive vice-president, that progress was being made.

ONE INDICATION

One negotiator, said Monday: "We're continuing to make progress and the best indication of that is that we're meeting again."

The strike, involving plants in Windsor, Oakville and Etobicoke, now is the longest in the history of the Canadian automotive industry, it surpasses by two days the 99-day strike at Windsor Ford workers in 1945.

As negotiations continued two separate groups of company and union representatives from Oakville and the Ford offices in Windsor met in other parts of the Royal York Hotel to try to settle local differences.

WINDSOR CONTINUES

Mr. Mazey said the Oakville teams had completed preliminary discussion after three days and further meetings were not scheduled.

The Windsor office talks, however, were to continue today. Although the office workers are not on strike, most members of the UAW's office local have been laid off as a result of the walkout in the three production centres. Nearly 9,000 auto workers are out of work in the three plants.

Before the strike began in Windsor Oct. 10, workers wanted improved medical and hospital plans and wage increases of four cents an hour and 10 cents more at Oakville and Etobicoke and 15 cents at Oakville. Average rates are $1.99 at Windsor and Oakville and $1.59 at Etobicoke.

The company wanted a revised seniority plan. The union opposed it.

Bread Salesman Escapes Unhurt In Collision

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A bread salesman escaped uninjured Monday from a truck-train collision and threw a scare into railway men when they couldn't find the "body" in the wreckage.

A truck driven by William Drury, 31, of nearby Ida, was hit by a slow-moving Canadian Pacific Railway freight at a level crossing five miles west of here.

The truck skidded 25 feet along the tracks but no one on the train realized what had happened until engineer Fred Post of Havelock saw a truck fender hooked on his locomotive. He stopped the train a half mile beyond the crossing and backed up.

The wreckage was found but there was no driver.

Drury had jumped out and gone to a nearby farm house to get help. He finally returned to clear up the confusion.

Biting Thigh Of Dancer Cost Sonny Tufts $600

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It cost actor Sonny Tufts $600 Monday for allegedly biting the right thigh of Margarie Von, 19, dancer and swimmer.

Superior Judge Victor R. Hansen approved a $600 settlement of her $25,000 damage suit. He claimed the 44-year-old actor sank his teeth into her thigh while she was reclining below deck aboard a yacht anchored off Balboa Feb. 20, 1954.

She alleged the incident left her in a highly nervous state and with a three-inch scar. Tufts denied the biting.

Strong Selling Waves Drive Prices Down

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two strong selling waves drove prices sharply lower on the New York stock exchange yesterday for the fifth time in as many sessions. The Toronto exchange, which got off to a brighter start at the opening, followed Wall street to lower ground during an afternoon sell-off.

Although the general break was not as bad as the one two weeks ago, individual prices in New York fell lower on the average.

The Toronto market started the session generally higher in the fastest morning session in almost two years. Heavy profit - taking later hit all sections, however, and the market suffered wide losses which brought the industrial index down to 376.65—less than 1½ points from the low of 375.38 hit during the break of Jan. 6. The indexes of other major groups managed to keep well above the Jan. 6 lows.

AVERAGE OFF $3.18

Using the Associated Press average as a guide, Monday's Wall St. decline erased more than $3,000,000,000 from the total quoted value of securities listed on the New York exchange. The AP average of 60 stocks dropped $3.18 at 3:30.30. Total volume Monday was 3,360,000.

The market rallied strongly from Jan. 6 but has lagged for the last five sessions. Brokers expected it to go through what they call "a test of lows," but selling was immediately brought on Monday after buying support failed to follow the slump.

General Motors was off $2.12, Bethlehem Steel dropped $3, Du Pont dropped $5.50, Douglas Aircraft slipped $4.87 and General Electric was off $2.

Issues off $1 on the day on the Toronto market included Price Brothers, Ogilvie, Imperial Oil, Ford A and Steel Company of Canada. A gain of $3 by Confederation Life, and $3 by Canada Life helped balance the lower trend.

Will Build Bridge

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan chairman Fred Gardiner Monday indicated Ontario will build the Humber bridge in 1958 as part of the $54,000,000 Lakeshore expressway.

In the 1955 budget endorsed by the Metro roads committee Monday, $3,100,000 was included in a total of $18,611,000 for the expressway and main traffic arteries connected with it.

Provincial approval of the budget is necessary before Metro can go ahead.

Military Spending Of 34 Billions Set by Eisenhower

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military spending of $34,000,000,000 in the next fiscal year was proposed today by President Eisenhower, with two-thirds of the total going to manpower and with accent on the "nuclear-air retaliatory" arms of the air force and navy.

Eisenhower told Congress, in his budget recommendations for the year starting next July 1, that this expenditure would be the largest peacetime outlay for air-power and related programs.

In assigning this paramount position to the combined power of hydrogen and fission bombs and the planes to carry them, the president said this power is being "supplemented by other military forces of great strength, flexibility and mobility and by the forces of our allies."

WELL PREPARED

"Never in our peacetime history have we been as well prepared to defend ourselves as we are now," he said. . . . New weapons of unparalleled effectiveness are being integrated into the combat elements with all practical speed."

Without specifying hydrogen and standard nuclear fission bombs, he said that in the next fiscal year "expanded production facilities will be in operation and production of weapons will increase."

The recommendation is to authorize contracts for weapons production totalling $308,348,000 against an estimated $261,822,000 for the current year.

Eisenhower noted the first atomic-powered submarine, the Nautilus, has been launched, and said he is recommending additional nuclear subs.

The budget earmarked $675,000,000 for guided missiles next year against $539,000,000 estimated for the current year.

A fifth supercarrier of the 60,000 ton Forrestal class was recommended.

He restated the manpower program: To reduce from a present force of about 3,300,000 to about 3,000,000 by next June 30 and "something over 2,800,000" by June, 1956.

The navy will operate a "little over" 1,000 ships, compared with about 1,100 now in commission.

The active aircraft inventory for the air force, navy and marine corps would increase from about 24,000 last June to 36,000 in June, 1956, and would "continue to increase toward the present objective of close to 40,000 aircraft." In addition, the army will maintain 3,000 aircraft, including helicopters.

Hastings County Farm Forum

Last Monday three forums met to study Agricultural Fairs:—Brookdale (6), Hazzards (26) and River Valley (13).

There are several fairs in the county (7 in fact), one Class B, and the others Class C.

The groups thought they should not criticize fairs outside the areas of their local Class C fair. The fair boards were commended in their efforts to bring fairs up to standard, but Hazards expressed the opinion of all: "Top fairs, like any other business, cannot stand on past records, but must always be on the lookout for improvements to maintain and extend high standards."

RECOMMENDATIONS

Some recommendations were: (a) Prize lists be revised so as to encourage more local exhibitors competing. Professional exhibitors going from fair to fair and often shutting out local product year after year and taking top prizes was most discouraging to local entries. (b) Young men should act as assistants to judges at fairs. (c) A loud-speaking system to cover whole ground. (d) Seeds should be given in local competition. Handpicking discourages practical farmers from exhibiting. Standard set of rules for judge and exhibitors. (f) Higher prizes for more worthwhile exhibits. (g) Encourage more 4-H club activity. (h) More suitable entertainment for children. (i) Midway was accepted as a necessary evil but it should be watched and curbed. (j) More local contests, such as hog-calling, nail pounding and beauty.

Mrs. W. Barber moved a vote of thanks to the hostess for her hospitality.

The meeting was closed and the hostess and her assistants served refreshments, including the sandwiches which had been demonstrated. A social hour was then enjoyed by everyone.

Vertical Takeoff Fighters Open New Concept Military Tactics

By VERN HAUGLAND

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Those crazy mixed-up kids the Pogo sisters, the United States Navy's two vertical takeoff (VTO) fighters, are opening up a new concept of military tactics.

The Convair XFY-1 and the Lockheed XFV-1 stand on their tails and, with noses pointing straight upward, rise vertically.

They are the world's slowest and fastest propeller-driven aircraft. And they can scramble—as fliers call the urgent takeoff—or unscramble without runways, requiring only 30 square feet of space for getting up or down.

Although the navy isn't doing much talking, the craft appear to hold tremendous potentialities for land and sea operations.

They may make it possible for merchant ships to carry their own anti-submarine patrol planes. And they may provide closer tactical support than ground units have known.

There is nothing official about the designation of the craft as Pogos. Someone likened it to the fabled jumping stick and the name appears to have stuck.

The Convair was the first to achieve vertical takeoff in November, 1953. Lockheed's made its maiden flight some months later.

Each of the current Pogos is driven by six-bladed contra-rotating propeller, 16 feet in diameter. Both machines can hover motionless in air, as do helicopters, or fly faster than 500 miles an hour.

The craft stand at rest on casters mounted crossed tail fins, which resemble four-legged stools. The pilot must climb some 20 feet up a ladder to reach the cockpit. While the plane is in vertical position the pilot is in a lounge, or contour, chair position. As the plane goes into horizontal flight, the seat swings like a ferris wheel to place him in a normal flight position.

Eisenhower Would Like to See United Nations Arrange Cease Fire in Chinese Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today he would like to see the United Nations try to arrange a cease fire between the Chinese Nationalists and Red China's attacking forces.

The president told a press conference he does not know whether the UN would be able to do anything about halting the shooting, but he said he would like to see it use its good offices to seek a cease fire.

The president's remarks came atop a statement Tuesday by Secretary of State Dulles that the United States would offer no objections to the United Nations' seeking a cease fire. Dulles' statement created a sensation in Formosa, stronghold of the Chinese Nationalists.

AP correspondent Spencer Moosa at Taipeh reported that qualified sources indicated the Chinese Nationalists would reject such an idea.

A cease fire in effect would end Chinese Nationalist hopes of ever returning to the mainland.

Eisenhower also told his press conference that Dag Hammarskjold's mission to Peiping in an effort to win release of 11 imprisoned American airmen cannot be regarded as a failure so long as negotiations are continuing.

State Republican leader William Knowland of California has termed the Hammarskjold mission a failure.

30 Helicopters And Planes Drop Food For Scots

LONDON (AP) — Britain mobilized a fleet of some 30 helicopters and planes today to drop food and medicines in frozen northern Scotland. More snow was projected for most of the British Isles and Europe, where blizzards, gales and floods have raged for more than a week.

Another blizzard interrupted rescue operations late Tuesday.

At least 20 persons are known dead as a result of the week of bitter cold and flood, including 11 in Germany, two in France, at least five in Scotland and six announced number in Communist Poland.

The Royal Navy's 1,000-ton aircraft carrier Glory steamed from the Clyde toward the northern coast of Scotland to act as a floating base for helicopters engaged in rescue missions over the snow-bound counties of Caithness and Sutherland.

The RA Forderred more than 20 planes to a relief base in Kinloss.

More than 10,000 persons in Caithness and Sutherland were cut off from the outer world by 20-foot snowdrifts and fallen telephone lines. Radio broadcasts advised them to mark an "F" on the snow if they needed food, or a "D" if a doctor was required.

Another blizzard interrupted rescue operations in Poland.

In Paris, the Seine today was level with some of the lower parapets along its banks, and was rising steadily toward street level. Workers were busy piling sandbags along the whole embankment.

Police said Holland during the night a Dutch lifeboat rescued four British merchant navy officers and 22 men of the Chinese seamen in a violent gale from the 5,537-ton British vessel Theta Star which was driven a mile over a sandbank off Terschelling island.

'Guard Dies For Every Shot Fired at Us' Warn Convicts

BOSTON (AP)—"For every shot fired at us, a guard dies," warned four desperate state prison convicts as they scrambled into the second day to hold five guards as hostages in their fantastic bid for freedom.

The message was issued after the convicts' government call block of the Massachusetts state prison where the quartet of desperadoes has been holding the guards captive since 5 a.m. Tuesday.

Shortly after delivery of the message by warden John J. O'Brien, George Fingold, state attorney-general, delivered a grim rebuttal to the prisoners over the institution's public address system:

"If one of you kills, all of you will die in the electric chair."

NO COMPROMISE

Both O'Brien and Fingold said there would be no compromise with the prisoners. They stood fast in their demand that the guards be released unharmed.

On the other hand, the hardened convicts, serving virtual life sentences—repeated their overt appreciation of the federal government; Premier Frost and several of his cabinet ministers, the province; metropolitan chairman Fred Gardiner, greater Toronto; and Mayor Nathan Phillips, the city.

Foods from all walks of life, many who knew Mr Saunders well, some who had met him only once, attended.

All had expressed shock and dismay that he died at the end of his career. All joined in giving thanks for "the rich gift of his life." Expressed during the service by Dr. John Short, minister at St. George's.

Final Tribute Paid Memory Of R.H. Saunders

TORONTO (CP) — Robert H. Saunders, a man of boundless energy who made friends wherever he went, was buried today beneath a wreath of yellow roses.

In a ceremony of simplicity with tribute, his funeral at the paper boy and factory hand who became a lawyer, mayor of Toronto and chairman of the Ontario hydro-electric power commission, was carried to St. James' Cemetery.

St. George's United Church was filled by many hundreds who came to pay final tribute to the 61-year-old executive who was fatally injured in a plane crash near Crumlin airport at London, Ont., Saturday. He died Sunday.

Cabinet ministers and other government, business and religious leaders attended the church services. External Affairs Minister Pearson represented the federal government; Premier Frost and several of his cabinet ministers, the province; metropolitan chairman Fred Gardiner, greater Toronto; and Mayor Nathan Phillips, the city.

The post office department had estimated the French - language proportion of Manitoba's population at 12.54 per cent, although Mr. Viau contended it was larger than that.

He said he was "ridiculed" by Mr. Turnbull and two other officials.

Mr. Viau said one reason for inefficiency of federal emotions is that the three-man civil service commission can not keep up with them all.

Farm Council Calls on Govt. To Create Two-Price System

OTTAWA (CP) — The 200,000-member Interprovincial Farm Union Council today called on the government to create a two-price system for Canada's farm products, adjusting domestic prices on the basis of changes in living costs.

The council, headed by chairman J. L. Phelps, said in a cabinet submission the proposal may increase consumer prices, but argued that it would eliminate most of Canada's urban unemployment. Organized labor now was completely behind the plan, it said.

Farmers, whose net income had dropped by a total of $1,000,000,000 in the last three years, would get millions of dollars in new purchasing power with which to whet the wheels of industry.

The two-price system — one for domestic buyers linked to living costs, another at export prices based on supply and demand and both booked to extensive federal price props—has been aired in previous council meetings and in the cabinet. But there, is a difference now, said the council.

On previous occasions, it said, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent said the idea was fine in theory, but that it would be opposed by organized labor and that it would raise consumer prices.

"We are pleased to report that since that time we have gained the support of Canadian labor unions for this principle. They themselves made a similar proposal in a recent submission to this government. Labor unions agree with farm unions that unless farmers enjoy fair and adequate incomes, wage earners are in danger of losing their jobs or having their take-home pay reduced. . . .

"We take it, therefore, that the way now is open for the government to take appropriate action without further delay."

The council delegation was to meet with a cabinet group in Agriculture Minister Gardiner's office. Mr. St. Laurent, preparing for the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London, was expected to be too busy to see the delegation.

The council also proposed:

1. Long-term, low-interest credit for farmers.

2. A federal-provincial conference to discuss farm marketing and prices programs.

3. Changes in federal floor prices on eggs, which, said the council, seems more like a guarantee for the consumer than the producer. The council said the farmer should get at least 34 cents compared with the present 32.

4. That Canada promote trade with any country willing to buy and explore the possibilities of barter trade.

5. That there should be no increase in Prairie grain freight rates.

6. Establishment by the government of a compulsory national health insurance plan.

MEMBER CHARGES FAVORITISM IN POSTAL DEPT.

Claims Official Named Over Heads of Others

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons has been told that a Manitoba postal official was twice promoted over the heads of better employees through favoritism by officials of the post office department at Ottawa.

Fernand Viau (L—St. Boniface) Tuesday named the official as R.J. Emerson, formerly of Brandon, Man., and said he was "railroaded" last month into the job of area superintendent at Winnipeg without a competition to find the best man for the job.

He said Mr. Emerson is the protege of an assistant auditor in the post office department, and described both that assistant and the department's deputy minister, Walter Turnbull, as members of "an unelected dynasty of power in the post office department."

NAMES ASSISTANT

The Manitoba member said later, outside the House, the assistant he referred to is E. J. Underwood, chief executive officer to Mr. Turnbull. In his speech he did not name either Mr. Underwood or Mr. Turnbull but referred to them by their positions.

He accused Mr. Turnbull of "flouting the law passed by Parliament, insulting a member of Parliament and being inefficient in the handling of his responsibilities."

There were no immediate replies to civil servants in more than one department. If these could be presented to a Commons committee he was "satisfied that following the action of that committee appellation could be made to the governor-in-council (cabinet) to remove those deputy heads who have abused their office and inspired injustice upon faithful civil servants throughout the country."

AMONG 19

Mr. Viau was among 19 Commons members who participated in the closing speech debate.

He said last December's appointment of Mr. Emerson as area superintendent "is typical of the "criminal injustice."

Mr. Viau said Mr. Emerson should be removed and a competition held for the position. The appointment violated the principle of bilingualism in civil service positions in Manitoba.

FLEW TO OTTAWA

Mr. Viau said he flew to Ottawa at his own expense and was told by Post-master-general Hamilton (Mr. Coté) had been informed by Mr. Turnbull that a regulation waived the bilingual requirement in areas where there was not the necessary French-speaking population.

The post office department had estimated the French - language proportion of Manitoba's population at 12.54 per cent, although Mr. Viau contended it was larger than that.

He said he was "ridiculed" by Mr. Turnbull and two other officials.

Mr. Viau said one reason for inefficiency of federal emotions is that the three-man civil service commission can not keep up with them all.

Red Air Assault On Tachens Seen Invasion Prelude

U.S. Navy Will Not Help Defend Nationalist Isles

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—More than 200 Communist planes today unleashed the heaviest air attack of the Chinese civil war against the Nationalist Tachen islands in a likely prelude to invasion.

Eight miles to the north, said the Nationalist defence ministry, guerrillas "fighting in pools of blood" were still resisting today on battered Yikiangshan, invaded by the Reds Tuesday. It was believed here, however, that any isolated groups were still fighting and that Red conquest of the 3½-square-mile island was nearly complete.

Soviet-built planes roared out from the Red mainland and hammered the Tachens. It was taken for granted here that the off-shore islands, 200 miles north of Formosa, would be next on the Communist timetable.

SOFTEN THEM UP

The final invasion may not come until the Tachens have been softened up from the air. The islands reported well fortified and strongly manned, and having testing that makes the almost ideal for defensive warfare.

Tuesday's statement by State Secretary Dulles that the United States would offer no objection to United Nations seeking a cease-fire in the civil war caused a real sensation here.

Qualified sources indicated that the Nationalists would flatly reject such an idea. Official spokesmen refused to talk for publication, but there was no mistaking their unfavorable reaction.

The China News, an independent newspaper with close contacts in high places, declares that "Free China will not be the very end against such a presumptuous idea as a cease-fire in any form or under any circumstances."

CHINESE FEELING

There is a general impression here, too, that Dulles in effect was telling the Communists they need not worry about the U.S. 7th Fleet intervening should Chiang Kai-shek's island outposts be attacked.

Spread to Pehsen, a Nationalist island 22 miles southwest of the Tachens, also appeared to be developing today. The Nationalists said the Communists fired 132 shells at Pishan, and Red warships were in the vicinity.

Air force headquarters said Nationalist planes carried out night-long attacks against Communist bases in the Tachens, and claimed many Communist craft destroyed or damaged.

GUILD APPLICATION

TORONTO (CP)—Application for certification as bargaining agent for editorial employees of the Globe and Mail was filed with the Ontario labor relations board Tuesday by the Toronto local of the American Newspaper Guild (CCL-CIO). The Globe and Mail was offered for sale Jan. 10 and folds close Feb. 10.

Television Age Election Campaign To Pick True Blue Tory's Successor

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ORPINGTON, England (CP)—This quiet Kent community, snug beneath a forest of TV aerials, has become a proving ground for British experiments in Television Age politics.

The 55,000 electors of Orpington constituency, which slices through 27 miles of rolling country, will vote Thursday for a new member of Parliament to replace the late Sir Waldron Smithers, the "true blue Tory" who died last December.

Some unique campaign weapons have developed in the by-election, swelling the cost of the 1954 election.

Both parties faced a mutual enemy, the stay-at-homes who watch television.

Orpington is a "dormitory" area housing thousands of London office workers. Campaigners figured it would take more than an election meeting, no matter how important, to woo them from variety or panel quiz shows on TV.

Labor candidate David Vaughan Williams found that indoor meetings were useless. In desperation, year-old free lance journalist, settled for a downright hit-and-run program with extensive canvassing in the evening.

The Orpington district is a motor car equipped with loudspeakers, giving about 20 five-minute talks a day. After dark, he joined one of 50 parties forming a torchlight brigade to call on doors.

Conservative candidate Donald Sumner, a tall 41-year-old former airline pilot, has other plans. His loud-speaker circus, a sound wire truck and "gang" a crew of two or three speakers, visited about six areas a day.

Both candidates have worked an average 13-hour day since the campaign opened at the New Year. Conservative supporters already call Sumner "the member."

Sir Waldron Smithers sailed back into the House for his 21th year in 1931 with a majority of 11,000.

In the 43 by-elections since 1951, the Conservatives have held 22 seats and gained one, Sunderland South. Labor has held 17 and lost one.

Given Ten Years For Manslaughter

JUDGE WARNS HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States administration is curtailing its pledges in defence of Formosa to the minimum called for under the new mutual defence pact with Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist China.

A high-level government decision against using the U.S. 7th Fleet in defence of the Tachen islands off the Red China coast is an indication of that policy development.

State Secretary Dulles indirectly disclosed the decision at a press conference Tuesday in doing so, he was reported prompted by word from key Democrats on the Senate foreign relations committee that their talk in winning approval of the pact would be assisted by evidence that the treaty would definitely not cover the off-shore islands scene of the scene of bitter fighting. Signed early in December, the pact has not yet been ratified by the U.S. Senate.

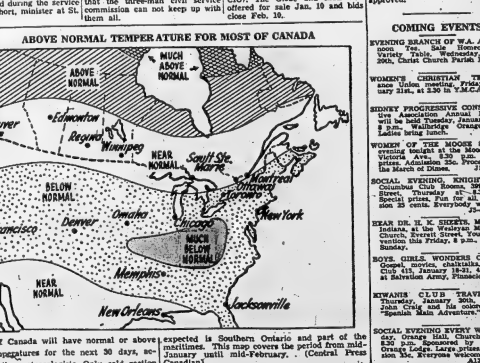
US EFFORT

The decision on the Tachens fits in with the Washington effort to stabilize the whole area around Formosa, Chiang's refuge. Exactly how this is to be done is far from clear.

The British government has been thinking in terms of letting the Communists have the Tachens and China coast go eventually to the Communists, while confirming Nationalist Chinese occupation of a session of Formosa and the nearby Pescadores group. Under this plan, the dividing line would be the centre of the Formosa Strait. Implied in all this, diplomats say privately, is withdrawal from the long-range objective of having Chiang some day return to the mainland in an anti-Communist invasion—his oft-stated goal.

Administration policies bearing on Formosa are still a formative state, but it appears that they may produce sooner or later new controversy within the Republican party over U.S Far Eastern policy.

House Loans Near Airports Are Frozen



TORONTO (CP) — Loans for houses within a one-mile radius of Canadian airports have been frozen by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

C. A. Bourns, manager of the suburban Toronto York branch of CMHC, said the policy went into effect today. He said it will continue until a firm policy has been set on residential building around airports.

CMHC makes no loans itself but guarantees loans made by authorized agencies.

Mr. Bourns said loan applications still will be accepted but not approved.

Council Members Will Be Given Opportunity to Study Procedure By-Law Ere Vote

Members of Belleville city council will be given an opportunity of viewing the new procedure by-law proposed by Mayor J. Both and compare it with the by-law now in effect before being asked to vote on the matter.

At Tuesday evening's adjourned meeting of council Mayor Both said that he had intended bringing the matter up for discussion, and vote, but said that in view of the several aldermen who a week ago had indicated they wished time to study the proposed amendments to the procedure by-law, he would let the vote until a later meeting if this were still wished.

Accordingly the matter was laid over until some future date and in the meantime members of the various departments and instead all councillors received copies of all committees. Other proposed changes would give the mayor additional power in city in direction of council.

One Tuesday night's meeting was a four-hour affair which saw a lengthy discussion on a number of matters, including that be paying the request for additional installation of a water main be approved by him on the city industrial site when it was levelled off by Mr. Huson.

Mr. Huson had contracted to move the site of fill until price of 26 cents per cubic yard. On completion of the job he claimed he had moved 1,000 less than was indicated by city engineering department and requested he made for an additional payment for moving the extra fill.

METHODICALLY DISCUSSED

The matter had been periodically discussed by council with the city engineer and Mr. Huson, failing to come to any agreement. Finally it was agreed Ontario Land Surveyor J. T. Ransom to check the accuracy of the engineering department figures and in his report recommended payment be made for an additional 6,000 yards.

Mr. Ransom said he had checked over the engineering department figures with levels which he himself had made several years ago in connection with the industrial site. He said he was satisfied these figures taken some years ago that he was able to determine the levels made by the city engineering department in estimating the amount of fill moved by Mr. Huson had been inaccurate.

Late last year Mr. Ransom's report had been brought in to council but it was referred to the industrial commission before it was read at the request of Alderman William Argue, then Industrial committee chairman.

AGAIN TURNED BACK

Last night Alderman Enos David recommended the matter be again referred to the industrial committee noting that as a new councillor, he was not familiar with the matter. However Mayor Both countered with an amendment calling for the matter to be dealt with immediately.

Alderman Graham then questioned the city's legal liability with result that Alderman David withdrew his recommendation in favor of one from Alderman Graham which called for the matter to go back to the industrial committee for report and also for a report from the solicitor as to the city's liability in the matter.

AMENDMENT LOST

The amendment was lost and Alderman Graham's motion carried.

A report by consulting engineers Gore & Storrie recommending $ recommended expansion program for the Belleville waterworks system was then read to council by public utilities manager T. W. Scott. Utilities chairman "Sandy" Lumsden noted the city would be asked to issue debentures covering the cost, and it was desirous that council know the details of the plan.

Mr. Lumsmin noted that the flat-rate charges for the domestic would be paid for out of waterworks profits.

The report read by Mr. Scott and which had been previously discussed by members of the utilities commission recommended an expansion program for the waterworks which would cost an estimated $652,000.

NEW TANK PROPOSED

Included was the construction of an elevated storage tank with a capacity of 600,000 gallons" to be built on the west side of present standpipe; construction of central waterman; enlarging of existing pumping station to house the filtration plants and finally installation of a chlorination unit at all water users in the city.

The report indicated that with the present population growth of the city and in the water area surrounding it, it was felt necessary that the waterworks plant be expanded to fill ultimate requirements. It was pointed out in population of about 31,000. By installation of the new tank by filling the resulting elimination of water, the present system would serve 36,000 people, it was stated.

WANT ISLAND RESERVED

When the population of the water area reached the above figure, it was noted that there would have to be given to the construction of a new pumping station. Reasons was given as the logical location. A letter from the utilities commission to council strongly urged that the island be reserved by the city for this eventual purpose.

The new plant would be necessary by 1960 and within the next years if the present population increase continued.

The question was raised when the utilities commission had first started to work in view of the matter in recommending the new plant and was sent plant instead of constructing the new one now. Mr. Scott said that the plant that all engine had been considered and it was considered practical to expand the present plant. Even when the new plant was constructed the present plant would say for

QUESTION OF ANNEXATION

Alderman Art Keegan raised the question of annexation and was told by Mr. Scott that if this were done the water rates in the area served would undoubtedly come into the city. From experience, Mr. Scott said, the utilities were making a recommendation that they say that there should be no services provided, unless the area to be serviced was annexed.

Asked if the expansion program were referred to the industrial committee noting that as a new councillor, he was not familiar with the matter, Mayor Both countered with an amendment calling for the matter to be dealt with immediately.

Alderman Graham then questioned the city's legal liability with result that Alderman David withdrew his recommendation in favor of one from Alderman Graham which called for the matter to go back to the industrial committee for report and also for a report from the solicitor as to the city's liability in the matter.

Council Refuses Club Licence Until Police Chief Approves

TRENTON. (Special) — Mayor Ross Burtt told businessman Jack Zigman last night that he would never get another licence for his athletic club until the chief of police of Trenton approved issuing the permit. Mr. Zigman appearing before council in person appealed for re-instatement of the licence to operate a public dance hall canceled by council after complaints from neighbors claiming their lawns were littered with whiskey bottles and smashed under the morning following dance night.

Mr. Zigman pointed out that he had lost $16,000 since he started the club.

"You didn't run it as a charitable organization," replied Mayor Burtt. "You ran it for Jack Zigman," he said.

Mayor Burtt brought to the attention of council that the town of Trenton paid $80 to stop Mr. Zigman from holding dances after he first opened in the hall for dancing after he received a registered letter from council ordering the dances stopped.

Mr. Zigman said he thought council would permit him since council gave him a permit to hold the club. He suggested council appoint a committee to supervise activities at the clubhouse. Mayor Burtt told Mr. Zigman that he had received written complaints from some of the strongest supporters of the club. Mr. Zigman indicated that police reports naming the club a "teen-age dive" had been enough to ruin it. He said police sergeant Steenburg found no drunks in the place the night he was invited to make observations of the dancing. He recalled a visit to the club by Premier Mayo or Whitley following stories in the newspapers.

NOTHING WRONG CLAIM

"Everybody in Trenton now thinks I'm a bad fellow," declared Mr. Zigman. "There is nothing wrong with the club. Some people just don't want it and that is all there is to it." He denied the write-ups that weren't true."

He went to the point. Mr. Zigman told the council. I don't want to be the guilty fellow. Now I'm in a bad spot. I want just as well close it up." "That's up to yourself," interrupted a councillor.

Mr. Zigman asked council to understand that he was a good fellow and a sportsman with eight years' experience in the ring. Reported Mayor Burtt: "I'm no boxer but I played and coached baseball and hockey all my life and as far as that's concerned I never got any money out of sport."

Mr. Zigman noted that he spent $17,000 to build the clubhouse. Councillor Gould inquired if he wanted to sell it. Mr. Zigman offered it to him for $10,000, emphasizing that it was a bargain at that price, Mr. Gould made no comment.

Councillor Robert Smithrim came up with the suggestion that the club tie in with the Trenton Recreation Commission. Councillor James MacDonald, a member of the commission, reported that Commissioner Bill Workman was unable to work out satisfactory arrangements with Mr. Zigman. Council suggested Mr. Workman try again.

Mayor Burtt assured Mr. Zigman that the clubhouse would not be policed, because "we've got 13 policemen now and we're not going to put in one."

Council passed a resolution authorizing Deputy Saving to commence 12:01 a.m. April 24 and end 12:01 a.m. September 25.

A. G. Taylor, proprietor of Wilson's Dairy in a written request asked the town to annex his property on Dundas Street East.

Council decided to proceed with the investigation of the possibilities of annexing all the land from the Dundas north of Dundas Street between Trenton and Middleton Road. Supporters of the movement feel the time is ripe to inaugurate the plan. One of the factors is that water rates have been increased outside of the town. The quality of the public utilities is to serve the people of Trenton because outsiders pay 25 cent of a water shortage, Mayor Burtt explained.

A letter written by Sam Mowbray, president of Trenton V. O.N. to RCAF requesting a record basis the Trenton branch would provide Middleton Park nursing service. The correspondence read by town clerk G. W. Larry pointed out that Trenton branch's annual cost of operation and the RCAF the remaining 25 per cent. Council approves the extension of the local service.

There is a strong possibility that bread trucks from outside places will be assessed $100 hawkers' and peddlers' tax. At the present time bread companies pay $1 license for visiting customers in town. Some of the councillors question the fairness of charging a Belleville catering concern $100 for a licence under the hawkers and peddlers' by-law while bread concerns obtain similar privileges for $1.00. Council expects to bring down a decision the end of this month.

Council refused to entertain a proposal by the Godden Land Company requesting the town to provide services, under local improvements, for a new 164-lot sub-division at the present end of the town south of Highway No. 9, M. Finlayson, president of Canadian Mineral Company, told 95 members of the Sales and Advertising Club, Tuesday night that the most important concept of business operation is that business is run by human beings, not machines.

Any business based on belief in the worth of its workers is bound to be a success, he said.

Mr. Finlayson, who had been Canadian Marconi in 1919 and became president in 1921, was speaking on "Business Responsibility to the Community."

The most difficult problem in business today is over specialization, said Mr. Finlayson. Many businesses become so specialized that they develop their own particular jargon which is confusing.

Another serious problem to efficient operation of business is an emotional, rather than a reasonable, approach to technical and operational difficulties. Workers' minds are cluttered either with non-essential or erroneous material concerning their jobs and their relation to their work.

Business must have a human side but it is only reasonable that business adopt a long range policy to foresee trouble in time to take adequate precautions to avoid it.

Discipline in any organization must come from the top, said Mr. Finlayson. The boss must discipline himself before he insists that his subordinates be likewise. Common sense will solve most working problems, said Mr. Finlayson.

Each person from the janitor to the president must feel that he is part of the organization if it is to give the best efforts to his job, said the speaker, and only a worker's best efforts will make the company go forward in a competitive system.

The speaker was introduced by Frank Murray and the thanks of the club were expressed by Bill Bell.

Acquitted of Charge

BRANTFORD (CP)—James Sinclair, 24, of Ottawa Tuesday was acquitted of manslaughter when Mr. Justice C. H. Locke of the Ontario Supreme Court ruled there was no evidence would cause the giver of a car in an accident which killed Mrs. Irene Cannitt of Chatham last May.

Commented one councillor: "These men are not builders. They're just lot sellers. I think there is enough promotion going on in Trenton now."

Council was advised that former Reeve Ernest Rogerson would be entering suit against the town in two or three days claiming $1,500 damages for irregular dismissal.

Warden Sprackett Requests Co-Operation of New Council

The January session of Hastings County Council got underway Tuesday afternoon with the election of Reeve James E. Sprackett of Tudor and Cashel townships as the new warden. He takes over from Fred G. Mitchell, who has retired from municipal life.

"I don't know how to thank you gentlemen for the honor," stated Warden Sprackett after he was escorted to the warden's chair by Reeves T. C. Graham of Tweed, and Elmer Wood, of Huntingdon township, "but I will endeavor to do the best I can to look after the business of the county.

In his inaugural address the new warden referred to Hastings as "one of the largest and best counties in the province."

He referred to the prosperous farming and dairying areas of the south; the industrial plants at Madoc, Marmora, Deloro, Stirling and to the Bethlehem Steel at Marmora, noting that it was difficult to visualize just what these meant to the county.

In the north there was the lumbering industry, which was still big business despite the fact that timber had been cut since well before the turn of the century. "Many people do not realize that we had started lumbering in Tudor township 150 years and moreover years later he had bought the business out despite the fact his father had commenced there was only about five years of lumbering left.

"We are still lumbering and even in our own small operation we cut over a million feet each year," the warden said. "All the lumber and timber in the north is not cut yet by any means."

TOURIST TRADE HELPS

A new development in the north, that of the discovery of uranium would mean a boom for that section, he said, adding if it proved successful. If so the village of Bancroft would develop into some a town, he prophesied.

The tourist trade also meant much for the county but the tremendous increase in the number of fishermen was rapidly depleting northern lakes of fish.

"Hundreds of fishermen come in every summer where at one time there were only a few," he said. "It is high time the policing of them will be necessary and I intend to make it my business to see that can be done."

Turning to the financial aspect of county administration Warden Sprackett noted that ratepayers expect county councillors to control their expenditures and urged committee members to stay within their budgets. Indirect costs were rising and hospital costs were up.

The new warden was presented with an engraved gavel by Fox, Wills, Insurance company representative, and with a flashlight by George DeVuyst "to keep his light on council." Mr. DeVuyst also presented the retiring warden with a pen and pencil set.

Council observed a minutes' silence in honor of Robert H. Saunders, Ontario Hydro Commission chairman, who died of injuries early Sunday following the crash at London of the Hydro plane. County Registrar William Hurst presented cheque for $4,669.54 as the county's share of the registry office fees. The amount of the cheque was the highest in the history of the county. Mr. Hurst paid tribute to the finance committee for modernizing the registry office greatly increasing its efficiency.

REFERRED BACK

A communication from Agricultural Representative A. E. Dalrymple requesting county grants for Junior Farmer work and Junior Farmer camp referred to ways and means.

A request from the village of Bancroft asking exemption from the annual county rate for road purposes was laid over for further consideration.

Reeves Leslie McLaren, William Davis and Russell K. West were named by the warden as a nominating committee to bring in slates for the various council committees.

There are only three new members in county council this year and are Alfred Wickett, deputy reeve of Rawdon; Harold Varty, deputy reeve of Elzingford and John Horsepool, reeve of Faraday.
